METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, at Anderton's Hotel, Bro. R. T. Kingham, W.M., presiding. Above one hundred brethren were present, and among them were Bros. T. Adams, P.G.P.; James Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, &c.; F. R. W. Hedges, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; Charles Hill, P.M.; Thomas Beard, P.M. 101; H. Massey (Freemason). The W.M. raised Bros. C. W. Blake, and F. J. Perks, and passed Bro. W. F. Bates. He then installed Bro. John Douglass, S.W. and W.M. elect (Proprietor of the Standard Theatre), as W.M. for the ensuing year. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. R. T. Kingham, I.P.M.; C. J. Scales, S.W.; W. Side, J.W.; James Willing, jun., P.M., Treasurer; G. Colls, J.D.; H. Stiles, I.G.; George Clark, D.C.; H. Lovegrove, W.S. and A.S.; S. W. Brumell, Steward; W. M. Stiles, Secretary; and J. Daly, Tyler. Bro. Kingham afterwards delivered the addresses. The W.M., when the ceremony was completed, initiated Messrs. Alfred Mellon, James Markie, Launcelot Hollingsworth, David Morgan, and George Frederick Hall. A Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. R. T. Kingham, I.P.M., for his eminent services to the lodge during his year of office. A vote of thanks was also passed to Bro. Kingham, for the admirable way in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. A vote of thanks was also accorded to Bro. Clemow, proprietor of Anderton's Hotel, for allowing the use of the room for the meeting of the lodge. Both votes were moved by Bro. James Willing, jun., and seconded by Bro. J. J. Michael, P.M. At the conclusion of the day's work the brethren adjourned to Mellon's Covent Garden Hotel, where a splendid banquet was in readiness for them. After disposing of the excellent repast the usual toasts were honoured. All the speeches were very short, and the toasts loyal to the Crown and the Rulers of the Craft did not long stand in the way of those which were to follow. Bro. Thomas Adams replied for the Grand Officers, and after acknowledging the compliment paid to the heads of the Order, expressed first his pleasure and then his astonishment at the enormous success of the Metropolitan Lodge. To him of course it was a peculiar pleasure, seeing he was one of the founders, and now the Preceptor of the Lodge of Instruction held under the warrant of the mother lodge. Bro. R. T. Kingham, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and said that Bro. Douglass had been a member of this lodge from its commencement. He was not quite sure whether he was one of the founders or not, but he believed he was. He knew this, however, that he had worked up from a comparatively humble office in the lodge to the exalted position he now held. He believed the lodge had every reason to congratulate itself that it had such a Master, and he thought Bro. Douglass had every reason to congratulate himself on being the Master of a lodge so worthy and respectable. Bro. Adams had referred to the size of the lodge, and had said that the lodge had been in existence four years, and during that time had made wonderful progress. It now exceeded in numbers some of the oldest and most respectable lodges in the kingdom, and he might almost say that it equalled in respectability any lodge in the kingdom. He hoped that during Bro. Douglass's year of office the Metropolitan Lodge would continue to grow in numbers, and that the W.M. would have every reason to be proud of it, and that it would have every reason to be proud of him. The toast having been honoured with great warmth by the brethren, Bro. Douglass in acknowledging it, said he was exceedingly obliged to all the brethren for the way they had received his name, and it would be an incentive to him to perform the duties of his office to the very best of his ability. He then proposed "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. R. T. Kingham, the Installing Master." Most of the brethren knew that after a very hard campaign a soldier returned home and required a little rest. After having had a campaign, however victorious he might have been, the soldier required a little rest, and it was a great gratification to him to find that his countrymen appreciated his services, and that his King or Queen decorated his breast in recognition of what he had done. It was now his (the W.M.'s) pleasing duty to decorate a Master who had succeeded in what he had undertaken, who had done hard work in the lodge, and now needed rest. He would receive from the Principal of this lodge, on behalf of the lodge, a jewel, in commemoration of the services he had rendered to the lodge. He hoped that when brethren saw in lodge the jewel on Bro. Kingham's breast it would bring to their minds the services he had rendered to the lodge, and that it would also serve to remind Bro. Kingham himself of the many duties he had performed; because it had been a pleasure, he (the W.M.) was quite certain, to minister to the wants of the brethren during the last twelve months. This toast, like the former, was most enthusiastically received, and Bro. Kingham, in replying said, that when he was installed in the chair, and had to make his first appearance at the head of the lodge, he thought that the most appropriate figure of speech he could make use of was to say that that was the happiest moment of his life. Now that he was what Bro. Willing would call a show—a Past Master of the lodge—he hardly knew whether to express the period as the most happy period of his life. He could assure the brethren that the duties he had had to perform in the lodge he had performed to the utmost of his ability, and he trusted he had given satisfaction. He could also say it had always been pleasing to him, though no doubt he had had many shortcomings. He had performed the Master's work during his year of office, and he had now installed in the chair a worthy and distinguished brother. Naturally he felt very proud of the position he had attained, and he fully appreciated the compliments the W.M. had paid him. He hoped during the W.M.'s year of office that he (Bro. Kingham) would be able to render him some assistance in the discharge of his duties. He had no doubt Bro. Douglass would not require much assistance from him, but if he did he (Bro. Kingham) should consider he was discharging a part of his duties in rendering the W.M. that assistance. The other toasts were "The Past Masters," responded to by Bro. J. J. Michael, P.M., "The Initiates," acknowledged by each of those brethren, "The Visitors," for whom four brethren responded, "The Masonic Charities," acknowledged by Bro. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and Bro. F. R. W. Hedges, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. "The Treasurer and Secretary," responded to by Bro. James Willing, jun., and Bro. Wm. Stiles, "The Officers," acknowledged by the S.W., and the Tyler's toast. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. F. R. W. Hedges, Sec. R.M.I.G.; C. G. Hill, P.M. 1366; Geo. Lee, 40 (Canada); E. J. Massie, 993; E. E. Barratt Kidder, 12; A. Rayner, 1201; E. Ayres, 742; J. Yeomas, W.M. 167; J. G. Humphrys, 167; L. Jacobs, 1589; J. C. Dwarber, P.M. 55; J. Terry, P.M. 228, P.G.J.W., Herts, R.M.B.J.; A. Allworth, P.M. 1261, &c.; C. W. Hudson 315; C. Stevens, P.M. 101; W. S. Cooke, 25; B. Kauffmann, 1732; T. Vernon, 25; S. Sonnes, P.M. 1425; T. Crabtree, 274; F. West, 1076; C. B. Putland, 1732; A. Sturt, 1328; E. R. Freebody, 87; W. H. Ball; George Hall, 1076; M. Mildred, 1326; W. W. Morgan, jun., 1385; F. W. Sillis, 1744; J. L. Bligh, 1414.

THE ALL SAINTS' LODGE (No. 1716).—The installation meeting of this young and flourishing lodge, consecrated only on the 21st September, 1877, was held at the Town Hall, Poplar, on Friday, the 4th inst. At five o'clock the W.M., Bro. W. H. Farnfield, opened the lodge, and after reading and confirming the minutes of the last regular meeting, and two emergency meetings, and receiving and adopting the report of the Audit Committee, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the ceremony of installation commenced. At this time there were many visitors in the lodge, including Bros. James Terry, Prov. Grand Warden Herts; E. M. Hubbuck, P.M. 58; J. A. Farnfield, P.M. 256; H. J. Lewis, P.M. 907; C. J. Salmon, P.M. 173; George Payne, P.G.S., P.M. 1; Bradshaw Brown, 1; Gresham Barber, 74 (Birmingham); Venn, and several other brethren. Bro. John Dennis, P.M. 907, and S.W., was presented and installed by Bro. W. H. Farnfield, according to ancient custom, and the new W.M. appointed as his officers: Bro. J. K. Coleman, S.W.; Leonard Potts, J.W.; Turner, S.D.; Young, J.D.; Bates, I.G.; and House, D.C. Bro. N. J. Fenner, P.M. 162, who had been unanimously re-elected Treasurer, was again invested with the collar of that office, and Bro. Bracebridge P.M. 781, was appointed Secretary. Bro. Hubbuck gave the address to the W.M., and Bro. Terry those to the Wardens and brethren. After the ordinary business was transacted, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, also served in the Town Hall, by Bro. Grist, of Hackney. This gave universal satisfaction, and after the loyal and Masonic toasts had been honoured the W.M. proposed "The Health of the I.P.M.," Bro. W. H. Farnfield, and on behalf of the lodge, presented him with a P.M.'s jewel, wishing him long life and health to wear it. The gift was, however, supplemented by a handsome gold watch, chain, and locket, which the W.M. presented in the names of the brethren individually, with a hope that while in Masonry the jewel would remind Bro. Farnfield of the estimation of his services, the chain would daily afford him proof that the members of the All Saints' were not unmindful of the attention and interest he had given during his year of office for the welfare of the lodge. Bro. Farnfield in thanking the brethren for the honour paid him, stated that the jewel with which he had been invested was one of the most handsome he had ever seen, and although it was on the minutes that a Past Master's jewel was to be presented to him, he little thought that the gift would be so valuable, or that it would be supplemented by the chain, &c., which he had had the pleasure to receive. The toast of "The Charities" was responded to by Bro. Terry, and the W.M. gave in his name as Steward for the Benevolent Institution, Bro. Lewis, a visitor, authorising his name to be placed on the list for a donation of 10 guineas. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. J. Groat, Org. 1716, assisted by Bros. Carter, Simons and Th. Distin.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, October 3rd, at the Masonic Hall. Bros. Frank Wilkinson, W.M., in the chair, supported by Bros. F. J. Brown, I.P.M., and P.P.G.S.W. Somerset; T. B. Moutrie, P.M., and others. The officers being Bros. Ashley, P.M., Treas.; Capt. Peel Floyd, acting S.W.; P. Braham, J.W.; Wilton, jun., acting S.D.; C. Radway, J.D.; T. E. Wilton, D.C.; Capt. Robinson, I.G.; W. Hunt, Secretary pro tem.; Bigwood, Tyler; Ames and Holmes, Stewards. The other members W. L. Baldwin, Org.; E. J. B. Mercer, Robt. Carey, P.M.; S. G. Mitchell, P.M., &c.; W. B. Gregory, S. S. Parton, John Clewys, W. Peach, Rich. Mann, E. Stiles, John Cartmel, J. W. Murlis. The visitors were Bros. W. H. Dill, P.M. 906; H. J. Freeman, 906; Harry Brumby, 112, N.Y.; J. A. Luce, 639; W. Stocks, 145; F. Glover, 906. The lodge was opened at 7.45, and the minutes of last regular and emergency lodges were read, confirmed, and passed. Two brethren, Bros. Chivers and Parton, were carefully examined, and passed to the Second Degree, the W.M. performing the ceremony most impressively, and complimenting the candidates on their proficiency in their answers. Letters were read from Bros. Dr. H. Hopkins, G. Falkner, Col. Guyon, and Major Preston, apologising for unavoidable absence. A candidate, Mr. H. B. Smith, properly balloted for at the last meeting, being presented, was duly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry, the ceremony being performed by the W.M., Bro. J. Wilkinson, the charge was given by Bro. Moutrie, P.M., &c., the working tools of both Degrees being presented by Bro. Braham, J.W.; the newly-initiated returning thanks for the privilege in very appropriate terms. The amended bye-laws, as approved of by the V.W. Prov. Grand Master of Somerset, Lord Carnarvon, were read, and ordered to be printed, and issued to the brethren. Bro. J. Wilkinson, W.M., then proposed Mr. Henry Lane Brown, son of the respected I.P.M., and Capt. Peel Floyd seconded, as a candidate for initiation. Bro. Cartmel proposed, and Bro. Robinson seconded, Mr. Fredk. Willis, for initiation. This concluding the business, the lodge was closed in perfect harmony and solemn prayer at 9.45.

ABERGAVENNY.—Philanthropic Lodge (No. 818).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held at the Masonic Hall on Friday, the 4th inst. There were present a large attendance of brethren. The W.M. elect was presented for installation by Bro. W. C. Freeman, P.M., and after the usual preliminary ceremony a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Thomas Harry, the W.M. elect, was duly installed as W.M., the ceremony being most efficiently rendered by Bro. G. H. Gorin, P.M., P.P.G.A.D.C. The W.M. after receiving the usual salutes appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. H. R. Barrett, S.W.; J. Marsh, J.W.; Rev. J. W. Osman, Chaplain; V. A. Julius, P.M., Treas.; J. D. Freeman, Sec.; W. Eames, S.D.; I. C. L. H. Little, J.D.; G. H. Gorin, P.M., D.C.; C. Howells, Org.; E. Hampton, I.G.; J. Thomas and J. Jones, Stewards. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Bro. Gorin, the Installing Officer, and the meeting terminated. In consequence of unavoidable circumstances the installation banquet was postponed until December next.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—The last regular meeting of this prosperous Provincial Lodge was held at the Albany Hotel, on Wednesday, the 9th inst., when there were present amongst others, Bros. S. H. Knaggs, W.M.; Tomlinson, P.P.G.D. of Norfolk, Treasurer, acting S.W.; W. Taylor, J.W.; W. Wigginton, P.P.G.S. of Works, Middlesex, Secretary; W. H. Saunders, P.G.D. of Middlesex, I.P.M.; Dr. Clark, P.M.; Vaughan S.D.; Ashley, J.D.; Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, acting I.G.; Richnoll, Steward. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The election of W.M. resulted unanimously in favour of Bro. H. Court, S.W., who was absent in consequence of a severe domestic bereavement. Bro. Tomlinson was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Harrison reappointed Tyler. A vote of condolence was also unanimously passed to Bro. Court, W.M. elect, for the great loss he had sustained. Upon the motion of Bro. Wigginton and Saunders, a Past Master's jewel was unanimously voted to Bro. Knaggs, who happily returned thanks for the honour conferred. There being no other business before the lodge, it was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to a collation. The preliminary toasts were duly honoured. Bros. Wigginton, Saunders, and Walls responded on behalf of "The Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers of Middlesex." "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the I.P.M., in which he congratulated him the W.M. upon his improved health, and the pleasure which it had afforded all the members to see him once more presiding over them. This toast having been most warmly received, the W.M. made a very feeling response. "The Past Masters" was acknowledged by Bros. Wigginton, Tomlinson, and Saunders. "The W.M. elect and the Principal Officers," by Bro. Taylor, J.W.; and "The Junior Officers," by Bro. Walls. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings, and the brethren separated until the second Wednesday in November next, when Bro. Court will be duly installed W.M. for the ensuing year.

YORK.—Eboracum Lodge (No. 1611).—At the regular meeting of this lodge on Monday, the W.M., Bro. T. B. Whythead, P.G.D.C., presiding, with a full attendance of officers, members, and visitors. Bro. J. S. Cumberland, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year; Bro. G. Balford, P.M., P.G. Org., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer; and Bro. P. Pearson, Tyler. The work of the lodge consisted of a passing, and the W.M. proposed as a joining member Bro. Wm. Lawton, P.M. York Lodge, 236, P.P.G. Reg. He also presented to the lodge library on behalf of Bro. MacCalla, Editor of the Keystone, Philadelphia, copies of his works on operative Masonry, and the origin of American Freemasonry. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. Major Shaw-Hellier, W.M.; and Capt. Murphy, J.W. St. Patrick's Lodge, 295 (I.C.); Haffner, P.M.; W. T. Gowland, 236; W. H. Sampson, 236; and others.

GREAT STANMORE.—Abercorn Lodge (No. 1549).—This summer lodge held its fifth and last regular meeting of the season on the 2nd inst., and, as usual on the closing occasion, was well and worthily represented. The W.M., Bro. G. Tidcombe, was supported by Bros. Ebbs, S.W.; Marshall, J.W.; Rogers, Treasurer; C. Veal, Secretary; Ray, S.D.; Long, J.D.; Helsdon, P.M. and D.C.; Garrod, P.M.; Middleton, Tyler, numerous members, and visitors. Bros. Honeywell, P.M. 889; Hall, 34; Welford, J.W. 733. The lodge was opened in due form by the W.M. at 3.50, and the minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, he proceeded to examine Bro. Paten, preparatory for the Second Degree, gave the necessary instructions on his retirement, and opened the lodge in the Second Degree. He then passed the worthy brother to the Degree of Fellow Craft, and called forward Bros. Tyrell and Schmidt to undergo the usual examination prior to the Third Degree, both proving satisfactory, they were sent for preparation, and the lodge was opened in the Third Degree. The W.M. then raised one brother to the Sublime Degree of M.M., and the members present expressed great satisfaction at the impressive manner in which the respected W.M. performed both ceremonies, tending still more to maintain the well-earned reputation the lodge has gained for good working. This completing the agenda, the W.M. resumed to First Degree, and on making inquiries for the good of the Craft, and receiving hearty good wishes from each of the visiting brethren, closed the lodge with solemn prayer in peace and harmony, at 6.10. The brethren then adjourned to banquet, where all passed off very happily, the evening's enjoyment much enhanced by the able assistance of Bro. Honeywell, as Organist, whose name in the profession is so well-known, both in Surrey and Middlesex. The musical abilities of several members were also as usual fully appreciated. The W.M., in effective and appropriate terms, gave the three honoured toasts, and in particular when he gave "The Officers of the Lodge," dwelt, with great satisfaction, upon the presence again of his J.W., Bro. Henry Marshall, for the first time since his serious accident, caused by his praiseworthy conduct in helping neighbours in a case of fire. The worthy brother, in reply, expressed, with great warmth, his gratitude to the G.A.O.T.U. for sparing him to come amongst them again, and his evidently sincere affection for his brethren of the lodge, many of whom he personally thanked for their visits and sympathies. The visitors replied separately to the toast in their honour, and thanked the W.M. and brethren for the usual hearty welcome which is always accorded to them. The W.M. also returned thanks for the high eulogium passed upon himself by P. M. Garrod, and asked the brethren to support as usual his charity box, which was duly responded to, therewith the Tyler's benediction passed away the season of 1878, alike to the credit of the lodge as to Bro. C. Veal, the host of the hotel, whose name is becoming well-known in that capacity, as well as a Mason of some distinction.

INSTRUCTION.

PERCY LODGE (No. 198).—A meeting was held on Saturday last, at the Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, Islington, N. Present:—Bros. Hallam, sen., W.M.; Lorkin, S.W.; Pebbs, J.W.; Killick, Sec.; Halford, Treas.; E. Parr, S.D.; J. Mullington, J.D.; G. H. Millington, I.G.; R. Pearce, Preceptor. After the usual preliminary business, the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, and several sections of the Second and First Lectures were worked by the W.M. and Preceptor. Bro. G. H. Calderwood, of the Crusader's Lodge, 1677, was declared a member, and Bro. Lorkin appointed W.M. for the next meeting. The Fifteen Sections will be worked in this lodge on Saturday, the 26th inst., Bro. S. E. Moss, P.M. 185, will preside.

THE METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507.)—The usual weekly meeting of the above lodge was held at the Metropolitan Club, King's Cross, on Tuesday the 8th inst., at 7 o'clock. Present Bros. Edmonds, W.M.; Pierdon, S.W.; Kidder, jun., J.W.; Putland, S.D.; Smith, J.D.; Johnson, I.G.; Adams, Preceptor; Gilbert, Andrews, Dimsdale, Carter, Cox, and others. The lodge was opened in due form, minutes read and confirmed. Bro. Andrews was duly initiated and afterwards passed and raised in the established Degrees of the Order in a most able and impressive way by Bro. Edmonds the W.M. Bro. Andrews was afterwards unanimously elected a joining member. The W.M. for the ensuing week was duly appointed, and no other business being on hand, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and adjourned until Tuesday next, the 15th inst., at 7 o'clock.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Quarterly Court of the Governors and Subscribers of this Institution was held on Saturday last at Freemasons' Tavern. Col. Creton, Treasurer and Trustee, presided, and there were present among others Bros. John Boyd, Wm. Mann, James A. Birch, J. L. Hine, John Wordsworth, James Dunsford, Joshua Nunn, Alfred Tisley, Wm. A. Thorp, W. Hyde-Pullen, H. Hacker, Wm. Benham, C. F. Matier, A. T. Godson, Wm. Robt. Woodman, M.D.; S. Rawson, Henry Browne, sen., F. W. Tyerman, W. Payne, Geo. Page, W. Wooton, W. B. Adamson, L. Finch, R. B. Webster, F. H. Burish, John G. Marsh, H. A. Dubois, Thos. W. White, John Hill, A. H. Tattershall, W. Downing, Major E. H. Finney, A. W. Stead, W. Noak, G. F. Lancaster, J. E. Le Feuvre, Prov. G. Sec. Hants and I.W.; Charles Godtschalk, Griffiths Smith, R. C. Elze, D.P.G.M., Somerset; P. T. Thompson, H. Cox, Raynham W. Stewart, Thomas Hill, S. P. Norris, W. H. Spaul, Alfred C. Spaul, F. G. Baker, Wm. Roebuck, A. H. Diaper, John G. Stevens, J. J. Berry, M. D. Loewenstark, Frederick Binckes (Sec. Boys' School), W. Westsmith, Richard Trill, C. A. Cottebrune, E. S. Snell, D. Roberts, Geo. Jeffery, L. Stean, A. D. Loewenstark, Geo. T. Fox, Edward Clark, Ernest H. Stammwitz, David Haslett, Louis Hirsch, J. M. Klenck, Richard Bonney, Richard Norris, and H. Massey (Freemason).

After reading and confirmation of the minutes of previous Court, Col. Creton moved "That a Sub-Committee, consisting of five members of the General Committee, be appointed to take into consideration the desirability of revising the laws, and report thereon to the Quarterly Court in January next." He said it must be in the recollection of many of the brethren that there was some feeling on a very recent occasion that the laws in some particulars were not quite distinct and clear, and it was on that account he had given notice of the present motion. At the Quarterly Court of the Boys' School, on Monday a similar motion would be made, so that the joint Committee would consist of ten members.

Bro. S. Rawson, P. Dist. G.M. for China, seconded the motion.

Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., said he had given notice of an amendment to increase the number of members of the Committee to nine. He thought that nine members would be better able to discuss the laws. He would like to see on the Committee some brethren from the provinces, who would probably be able to furnish some views which might not suggest themselves to the metropolitan brethren. Bro. C. F. Matier seconded the amendment.

The Chairman said that if the same amendment was carried at the Quarterly Court of the Boys' School it would make the joint Committee consist of eighteen members, which he thought would be too large.

Bro. Thomas W. White thought that a Committee of five members from such a large Institution as this was not large enough, as the feeling of a large portion of the subscribers would not be got at, and they might get into trouble at some future time.

The amendment was then put and carried.

Bros. Æ. J. McIntyre, G.C., J. M. Clabon, Joshua Nunn, J. A. Rucker, John Boyd, Griffiths Smith, John Creton, J. Le Feuvre, and J. L. Hine were elected members of the Committee.

On the motion of the Chairman, seconded by Bro. Joshua Nunn, it was resolved "That four girls be elected at this Quarterly Court instead of three, thereby filling up a vacancy caused by death."

Bro. Joshua Nunn moved "That the amount paid as an honorarium to the Chaplain be increased from £20 to £25 per annum, also, that to the parochial charities from £5 to £10 per annum." Bro. Nunn said this was a recommendation from the House Committee, and the reason for it was that since the lesser amounts were first paid the number of children in the school had increased from 70 to 200. They occupied a much larger space in the church than they did formerly. The seats were all free, but still the Institution subscribed, because the space which was filled by the children of this school would, no doubt, be filled by parishioners who would subscribe, if the seats were not occupied by the girls of this Institution, who could not afford to put anything into the box.

The motion was seconded by Bro. A. D. Loewenstark, and carried.

Bro. Henry Browne, P.G.D., moved "That the premiums on the Secretary's guarantee be paid by the Institution." It was a trifling matter, he said, but if the Secretary's paid it it would be so much out of his pocket. He (Bro. Browne) thought the Institution should pay it.

Bro. H. A. Dubois seconded the motion, which was put and carried.

Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., Vice-President, upon the recommendation of the House Committee, moved, "that an exceptional case having arisen by the untimely death of Bro. Charles Jardine (a member of the Audit Committee of this Institution) through the late fatal collision on the Thames, whereby a widow and nine children are left unprovided for, the laws regulating the admission of candidates to this Institution be suspended for the purpose of admitting Cecily Sara Jardine, aged 8 years, one of the said orphans from the catastrophe, without election."

Bro. Nunn stated the circumstances of the case, which have already been reported in the Freemason, and said that it was a singular thing that a vacancy occurred in the school through one of the children elected last time not having presented herself, and her mother not having even answered one of the letters that had been written to her on the subject.

A brother having seconded the motion,

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., questioned the power of the Court to suspend one of its laws for the purpose of meeting a particular case. The law provided that admission to the school should be by election, and though he would be very glad to see this child brought into the school, owing to the exceptional circumstances of the case he did not think the Court had power to do it.

Bro. F. Binckes, P.G.S.; opposed the motion, and, explained, that though he was the first to propose it, it was under an impulse, and he now felt that he had been wrong. He knew how difficult it was to oppose a generous offer made on the occurrence of a great and unexpected misfortune; but at the same time he could not help feeling after grave deliberation that to admit the little girl of Bro. Jardine to the Girl's School and a boy to the Boy's School, in the way proposed would be opening the door to a large amount of abuse. The little girl was eight years of age, and he thought there would be no difficulty in electing her in April. Her age was such that she could wait. But, unfortunately, the boy was between ten and eleven years of age, and he could not wait till April. He did not propose to violate the law of the Boy's School, and as 170 guineas would purchase the boy into that school, he (Bro. Binckes) had proposed to raise, and had pledged himself to raise the amount necessary for the purpose.

The Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., referred the chairman to the laws of the Institution, and submitted that the word "suspension" not being in the bye-laws there was no power in the Quarterly Court to suspend them.

Bro. McIntyre, G.C., Grand Registrar, who was appealed to by the Chairman, after reading the law referred to, said it was not competent for the Court to suspend the law.

The Chairman therefore declared the motion to have fallen to the ground.

Bro. Joshua Nunn, upon the recommendation of the General Committee, moved "a gratuity of £20 to G. S. Peachy, for attention and assistance as extra services during the late Secretary's illness."

The motion was agreed to.

Bro. H. Hacker's motion that the name of Edith Brown, No. 21 on the list of candidates for election, be struck out as ineligible, was lost, the brethren being of opinion, after a narrative of the case by Bro. Hacker, that the child's father was not in such circumstances as to render her ineligible.

The election of four girls out of an approved list of twenty-nine candidates was then proceeded with. The following is the result.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The Quarterly Court of the Governors and Subscribers of this Institution was held on Monday last at Freemasons' Tavern. Col. Creton presided. There were also present, among others, Bros. Henry Smith, Edward M. Haigh, Charles John Perceval, Henry C. Burt, Raynham W. Stewart, S. Rawson, T. J. Pullen, Thomas Hill, William Payne, William Mann, J. E. LeFeuvre, Geo. Jeffery, A. Durrant, H. T. Thompson, Thomas Cochrane, Wm. F. C. Moutrie, W. H. Spaul, W. Hopekirk, J. Terry, James A. Birch, J. J. Berry, Henry Bartlett, A. D. Loewenstark, H. Cox, W. J. Compton, William Roebuck, G. R. Ware, James Walden, George Thos. Fox, G. F. Lancaster, Louis Stean, Edward W. Davis, F. Land, Edward Clark, David Roberts, 754; F. B. Davage, H. Massey (Freemason).

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, the brethren, on the motion of the Chairman, seconded by Bro. John Boyd, passed the following resolution:—"That thirteen boys be elected by this Court, instead of eleven."

Bro. R. B. Webster, Life Governor, withdrew the following motion of which he had given notice:—

"That the Laws regulating the admission of Candidates to this Institution be suspended for the purpose of admitting, without election, Arthur George Jardine, aged 10 years and 5 months, a son of the late Bro. Charles Jardine, (Steward for the Anniversary Festival in July last), who lost his life in the recent fatal collision on the Thames, leaving a widow and nine children without provision."

Colonel Creaton moved that a Sub-Committee of five members of the General Committee be appointed to take into consideration the advisability of a revision of the laws; that such Committee be empowered to confer with a similarly appointed Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and to report thereon to the Quarterly Court in January next.

In moving this resolution Colonel Creaton said that before he put it to the brethren he would state, what all the brethren knew, that on Saturday a similar motion was made at the Girls' Quarterly Court, but an amendment was carried, that instead of a Committee of five members being elected, the number should consist of nine. Perhaps the Quarterly Court of the Boys' School would also like their Sub-Committee to consist of nine.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, and several other brethren expressing a wish that nine brethren should form the Committee, the motion was put to the Court, in that shape, and carried; and Bros. H. C. Levander, J. G. Stevens, Raynham W. Stewart, W. Roebuck, J. Hickman, the Rev. Dr. Morris, Dr. Ramsay, S. Rawson, and J. E. Chancellor were chosen as the Committee.

Bro. R. W. Stewart, in proposing a Trustee of the General Fund, in the place of Bro. John Symonds, Vice-Patron, resigned, said all the brethren regretted very much the resignation of Bro. Symonds, who had always discharged his duties most efficiently. He thought it was quite right that they should always have as a Trustee a brother who was well-known and highly respected, and of a standing equal to the position and dignity of the School. He should therefore propose that Bro. Colonel Creaton be elected Trustee in place of Bro. John Symonds, resigned. Colonel Creaton was Trustee already of the Sustentation Fund, but that would not interfere with his taking the Trusteeship of the General Fund.

Bro. W. Roebuck seconded the motion, which was put to the meeting and carried unanimously.

Colonel Creaton, in acknowledging the vote, said he thanked the brethren very much for conferring this honour upon him, and he could assure them that when called upon to act in the capacity to which they had just elected him, he should do his best to discharge his duties faithfully and with credit.

The scrutineers of votes for the election were then chosen, and the poll was declared open.

Bro. Binckes afterwards, on a telegram arriving, said that with reference to the case of Bro. Jardine's children, he had seen the Rev. J. Edmund Cox, the Vice-Chairman of the "Princess Alice" Fund, Mansion House Committee, about buying the children into the Schools. A telegram had just been put into his hands, which was very satisfactory. Dr. Cox telegraphed—"The 'Princess Alice' Committee have decided to buy Bro. Jardine's two children into the two Schools." (Cheers.)

Later in the day, on the motion of Bro. Henry Smith, Provincial Grand Secretary for West Yorkshire, seconded by Bro. J. M. Klenck, a vote of thanks was passed to Bro. J. Symonds, in acknowledgment of his services as Trustee.

The following is the result of the election:—

GREECE AND FREEMASONRY.

In one of the leading daily papers of Athens, the Laos, some time back, we noticed some publications, attributed to our Order, most diabolical in their expression, and trying to mislead its readers. In Greece Masonry is not as yet ripe, and the principles of the Order are misunderstood, although there are many good Masons to be found in Greece and the Islands, Masonry is not progressing as fast as we should like to see it. The Grand Lodge of Greece, we might say, is a thing of the past. We are pleased, nevertheless, to state that the remarks of the Laos have been most emphatically contradicted by their London correspondent in a letter dated the 19th ult., and published in the Laos of the 1st inst. We may acquaint our readers that the London correspondent of the said paper is the well-known Greek author, Bro. Loverdo, of the Urban Lodge.

THE LIBRARY OF THE SUPREME COUNCIL.

Few Freemasons are aware that a curious and very valuable library is among the many unique possessions of the Supreme Grand Council, at 33, Golden-square. This library is the repository of an enormous amount of Masonic information, an acquaintance with which would be of great use to the Craft, and go far to dispel the popular delusion that there is no Masonic literature.

From a knowledge of the ceremonies alone Freemasons have no conception of the worth of their inheritance; but some insight into the literature of such a library as belongs to the Supreme Council will unfold to them a field of history and mysteries, whose thorough exploration will take years to accomplish.

The studious Freemason will find here food more than sufficient to satisfy his keenest appetite, while the cursory observer will be dismayed at the wealth of the stores that lie before him.

For the honour, well being, and usefulness of the Craft, we earnestly recommend the brethren to take advantage of the opportunity of obtaining information which this storehouse offers, and they will find no difficulty in obtaining admission and inspection if they apply or write to any of the members of the Council, or to the Secretary.

THE LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

The meeting of the Committee took place on Wednesday last, when several life members and new members were admitted. A good deal of routine business was attended to, and it was decided to hold a Committee meeting every fortnight, on Wednesday, at 11 o'clock, at the offices of the Association, to elect members and attend to the necessary work of the Association.

It was resolved, when the balance at the bankers exceeded a certain amount, to qualify the Association as Life Governor of the Masonic Charities, in rotation, in the name of the Chairman.

The Committee adjourned to Wednesday, Oct. 30th, at 11 o'clock.

ROYAL ARCH MASONRY IN CANADA.

On the 25th of September, the second annual Convocation of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of the Province of Quebec, was held in the Royal Albert Chapter Rooms, in the city of Montreal, when an address was delivered by the M.E. the Grand Z., and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

M.E.G.Z., John H. Graham, Richmond (re-elected); R.E.G.H., J. H. Swarns, Montreal (re-elected); R.E.G., J. Frank Edgar, Montreal; R.E.S.E., J. T. McMinn, (re-elected) Montreal; R.E.S.N., Angus Grant, Montreal; R.E.P.S., F. T. Thomas, Quebec; R.E. Treasurer, Albert D. Wilson, Montreal; R.E. Registrar, M. McCarthy, Sherbrooke; E., John Poirous, Grand Janitor. Grand District Superintendent: —R.E., W. M. Le Mesurier, for Montreal District; R.E., James Addie, for Eastern Townships District; R.E., H. J. Pratt, for Quebec District.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We are happy in being able to state that Anthony Trollope, the eminent "litterateur," and from whose able pen a story will appear in the Christmas number of the Masonic Magazine, is a brother of our Order.

Two Amateur Performances will be given in the Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield, on the 24th and 25th of this month, by the Sheffield Masonic Amateur Theatrical Society. Among the pieces to be performed are "Charles the Second," and "Still Waters Run Deep."

Lieut.-Col. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., will be installed Prov. Grand Superintendent of West Yorkshire on Wednesday next, the 30th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh will leave Coburg at the end of the month to join her Majesty's ship Black Prince, which is to escort the Marquis of Lorne and her Royal Highness Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne) to Canada.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has appointed General the Right Hon. Sir William Thomas Knollys, K.C.B., Receiver-General of the Duchy of Cornwall.

The Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, No. 249, resumed active operations at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool (after the summer recess), on Thursday evening, the 10th inst., with Bro. John Hayes, P.M., P.G.S., as the Preceptor.

St. LEONARD LODGE, No. 1766.—The Consecration of this lodge will take place at the Town Hall, Shore-ditch, on Tuesday next, at 4 o'clock p.m. precisely. Bro. James Terry will be the Consecrating Officer. The principal officers designate are Bro. Louis Stean, P.M. 212, W.M.; George T. Barr, J.W. 907, S.W.; and C. F. Barham, P.M. 754, J.W. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

We are requested to announce that the Fifteen Sections will be worked at the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction, on Friday evening, the 25th inst., at seven o'clock precisely, in the Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich. Bro. Govan Macdonald, Preceptor, P.M. 1158, and others, will preside.

The Consecration of the Ivanhoe Lodge, No. 1779, will take place at the Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield, on Tuesday week, the 29th inst. As it is upwards of 10 years since a similar ceremony was performed in Sheffield a large attendance of brethren is expected. Bro. A. Hay, P.M. 139, P.P.G.S.B., is the W.M. designate, his Wardens being S. Gatty, S.W.; and J. Radford, J.W.

The Sheriffs of London and Middlesex (Bro. G. Burt and Mr. T. Bevan) intend giving their inaugural banquet on Friday, 1st of November. The entertainment, by kind permission, will be held at Grocers' Hall.

Tuesday night's Gazette announces, under date Oct. 14th, that the Queen has been pleased to appoint the Right Hon. Sir John Douglas Sutherland Campbell, K.T., G.C.M.G. (commonly called the Marquis of Lorne), to be Governor-General of the Dominion of Canada.

The marriage of the Duke of Connaught will take place, it is understood, about the second week in February at St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, shortly after the return of Her Majesty and the Court from Osborne.

Although the durable and handsome material known as velveteen has long been recognised as a really efficient substitute for the costliest Lyons and Genoa velvet, and, in addition to its cheapness, is even more suitable for ladies and children's dresses, as it is not so heavy and cumbersome to wear, one great drawback connected with it has been its tendency to turn brown and white long before the fabric itself is worn out. This has been due to the inferior character of the dyes employed, and, perhaps, also to the difficulty of discovering others better adapted to the required purpose. The old difficulties have, however, been surmounted by the manufacturers of the "Louis Velveteens," which are of the true oriental blue-black, retain all their colours and brilliancy to the last, will not cockle, are not spotted by rain, and, while extremely durable, cannot be distinguished in appearance from the best velvets. The "Louis Velveteens" are procurable at all drapers, but for the protection of purchasers every length of seven yards is stamped with the trade mark, a griffin's head supported by wings, and the motto, "nos aspera juvant."

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.—Bros. Finch and Adamson (Province of Kent), desire to thank all the brethren outside the province of Kent who assisted in securing the election of Meta Bell Brasier, who polled 4741 votes at the last election.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Southwark Lodge of Instruction, No. 879, at the Southwark Park Tavern, Jamaica Level, Bermondsey, on Wednesday evening, October 23rd, 1878, at seven o'clock punctually, by Bro. C. W. Kent, P.M., Preceptor, assisted by many brethren.

Some brethren in south London feeling that there was ample room in the neighbourhood of Brixton and Camberwell for a Mark Master's Lodge, sent a petition through Bro. W. G. Brighton, Prov. Grand Secretary Middlesex, and Surrey, and a warrant has been issued by the Grand Mark Master (Lord Skelmersdale) for holding a lodge at the Surrey Masonic Hall, to be called the Brixton Mark Lodge, No. 234. The officers designate are Bro. Thomas Poore, P.G.M.I.G., P.M. (Craft and Mark), as W.M.; Bro. G. P. McKay, W.M., Panmure, (Craft), J.W., Panmure, (Mark), S.W.; Bro. Henry Lovegrove, S.W. 1777, and Steward 1507 (Craft), P.S. (elect) Chapter 72, J.W.; and Bro. H. Baldwin Stuart (Craft), and Panmure (Mark), as Secretary.

PHILANTHROPIC LODGE, No. 107, KING'S LYNN.—The R.W. Prov. Grand Master (the Right Hon. Lord Suffield K.C.B.), the Deputy Grand Master, and other Provincial Grand Officers and distinguished visitors have signified their intention of visiting the above lodge on Monday, the 21st inst. The lodge is summonsed by the W.M., Bro. George W. Page, for half-past five, when the raising of Bro. W. H. A. Keppel will take place. After the closing of the lodge a banquet at the Globe Hotel, will take place to celebrate Lord Suffield's visit.

It may not be known by everybody that the late Judge Keogh, though a Catholic, was a good Mason; perhaps the fact added bitterness to some of the recent diatribes levelled against his memory.—"Atlas," in the World.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked at the meeting of the Wellington Lodge of Instruction, No. 548, White Swan Tavern, High-street, Deptford, on Monday, next, the 21st inst. The lodge will be opened at 7 p.m., the chair of W.M. being occupied by Bro. J. G. Milbourne, and that of S.W., by Bro. John Shaw, P.M.

The Ninety-first Anniversary Dinner of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls will take place on the 14th May, 1879. The names of brethren willing to act as Stewards are earnestly solicited by the Secretary, Bro. F. R. W. Hedges.

We understand that Bro. the Rev. Dr. Ernest Brett, of Christ's Hospital, has become a Vice-President of all the Masonic Charities.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of W. Yorkshire met on Wednesday last at Halifax. A report will appear in our next.

An Improved Horseshoe has been invented by an ingenious Swiss gentleman, Dr. J. Hirsiger, which bids fair to be a great boon to the equine race, inasmuch as it contains no nails, the shoe being secured to the hoof by three clamps, which are set by a spring and a couple of inoffensive saws. The invention is now being tried at the Horseguards, and if successful will doubtless be instrumental in saving many a valuable animal from lameness and more serious diseases.

The annual meeting of R. A. Chapter, De Burgh, No. 424, will be held on Thursday, 24th October, at 3 p.m., in the Temporary Hall of the Lodge of Industry, No. 48, at 34, Denmark-street, Gt. Portland-street, for the installation of Principals, and investiture of officers, after which the companions will dine together at the Grey Horse Tavern.

The Rev. H. B. Tristram, Canon of Durham, Prov. G.M.M.M., has issued instructions for the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of M. M. M. of Northumberland and Durham, to be held in the Masonic Hall, Park-road, Sunderland, on Wednesday, 30th October, at 2.30 p.m., under the banner of the Union Lodge, No. 124. Banquet at the conclusion of the lodge, at the Queen's Hotel.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Durham will be held in the Masonic Hall, Durham, on Tuesday, 22nd October, at 3 p.m., by command of Bro. John Fawcett, J.P., R.W.P.G.M. Banquet at 4.30 p.m., in the Town Hall. The Fund Committee will meet in the Masonic Hall, at 12 o'clock.

Bro. Wm. Stokes is at present giving a course of Lectures on Memory at the Royal Aquarium. He is assisted by some of his clever juvenile pupils, who with the professor afford much amusement combined with instruction in reference to the science of memory.

Just out, part 10 of the Rosicrucian and Masonic Record, price post free, 1s. 1d. Office, 198, Fleet-street, London. (ADVT.)

The Rosicrucian and Masonic Record contains a portrait of the late Bro. R. Wentworth Little.

The Installation Meeting of the New Finsbury Park Lodge, No. 1695, was held on Tuesday last, Bro. W. T. Purkiss being re-elected W.M. for the second year. A report of the proceedings is in type and will appear in our next.

ECCLESTON LODGE, No. 1624.—The installation meeting of this flourishing young lodge was held on Wednesday last, a report of the proceedings at which will appear in our next.

Bro. James Pain, the eminent Pyrotechnist, announces his benefit at the Alexandra Palace for Tuesday, November 5th (Guy Fawkes Day), on which occasion three distinct fireworks displays will be given. There will also be a torch light procession and a bonfire.

Bro. James Fox, the Wine Steward of the Cannon-street Hotel, met with a serious accident there on Saturday. He was carrying two bottles of champagne, when one of them suddenly burst, and a portion of glass, cutting through his trousers, completely severed the main artery of the leg. He was at once taken to St. Bartholomew's Hospital. The injury was at first believed to be dangerous, the wound bleeding so much that chloroform had to be administered and an operation performed before a stoppage could be effected.

The Dairy Show at the Agricultural Hall was closed on Monday night for the year. It was announced at the distribution of prizes that 50,000 of the public had paid for admission, and that the show had been thoroughly successful.

The "Princess Alice" Mansion House Fund now amounts to between £37,000 and £38,000.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Percy Lodge of Instruction, meeting at the Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, N., on Saturday next, the 26th inst. The lodge will be opened at seven o'clock precisely.

REPORT OF THE LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

The Committee has great pleasure in reporting the result of its proceedings, at the recent elections. If any doubt had previously existed in the minds of any as to its need and utility, the results of the elections of the Boys' and Girls' Schools must have completely removed them. For it is now patent, not only what room there is for concentration and utilization of the votes of the London subscribers, but how very haphazard and uncertain, to say the most and best of it, is the voting of many of our worthy London brethren, while the provinces have every advantage which skilful combination and concentration of the voting power can give, the claims of London candidates are to a great extent jeopardized by want of any such effective use of the votes. And if, with so many disadvantages, and with so little preparation, the Committee has succeeded in the recent elections, there can be no possible reason why in April next, the strength of the Association may not be shown forth in still greater power and with still more conclusive effect.

At the Girl's School election, thanks to the care of its members, and the liberal assistance of many kind friends, and to an amicable interchange of votes with Provincial Committees and others, the Association polled 2794 votes for Ethel Stone, making her third on the poll; and 305 votes for E. E. Williams, rendering her election in April secure. The Committee congratulates all the members of the Association on this striking proof of its activity and utility.

At the Boy's School election, Balcombe, the 13th candidate elected, received 1370 votes, while for Watkins, 1272 votes were polled, and for Green, in all 1064. Several votes were also polled by members of the Association for Miles Coverdale.

This is an aggregate of 3706 votes, and it will be noticed that Watkins was only about ninety behind the last successful candidate. It is but fair to observe that many members of the Association, including the Chairman, recorded their votes, as promised, for Meta Bell Brasier.

At the April election the Committee will be able to poll a very much larger number of votes, and if duly supported by its many friends will offer a chance of success to many who otherwise, humanly speaking, could have no chance of success at all.

The Committee is pleased to be able to add that its formation and operation are regarded with friendliness and even interest by the Provincial Committees, its "raison d'être," fully admitted, and childish prognostications of provincial and metropolitan opposition are, to use a familiar expression, "laughed out of court."

Indeed, in the nature of things, all such objections could only arise either from interested motives on the one hand, or ignorance of the fair claims of voters and the needs of candidates on the other.

The Committee made "friendly interchanges" of votes with the Charity Committees of West Yorkshire, East Lancashire, Norfolk, and other brethren and bodies, and the best feeling was exhibited, and "hearty good wishes" exchanged on one side and the other.

The Committee, therefore, has great pleasure in commending the Association to the general support and kindly countenance of all our London brethren.

Not that the Committee wishes to press its claims on any one, or to "tout" for members in any way. Reminding those worthy and distinguished members of the fraternity who have so cheerfully and gladly joined its ranks, it leaves its future prestige and utility to the results of time, and the fair criticism of its brethren, convinced that it supplies a positive need, and will be found to be the "right thing," as tending to the advantage of the Charities themselves, and the help and success of many deserving London candidates, who now appeal in vain for succour and support.

Reviews.

CASTILLO'S DIALECT POEMS, G. M. TWEDDELL, Rose Cottage, Stokesley, Yorkshire.

We have received these poems in the North Yorkshire dialect, by the late John Castillo, and edited by Bro. G. M. Tweddell, and read them with much interest. As specimens of local "patois," or rather provincial dialect, they are very characteristic and very striking. Unfortunately both preface and poems enter upon subjects which are forbidden to Freemasons to discuss in any shape or sense, since they touch upon points on which issue is joined at once by polemical combatants, and theological acolytes, not to forget political partizans. Freemasonry, happily, offers a peaceful meeting place for all who wish for a time to forget the divisions of religion and the animosities of politics.

Admiring as we do the reality of the provincial dialect, it is evident that the poems, as well as the preface, contain much which is impossible to review in the Freemason. Having said this in justice to ourselves, we repeat that the poems will, no doubt, interest many readers.

HISTORY OF THE AIREDALE LODGE, No. 387. By J. RAMSDEN RILEY, P.M. (Privately Printed.)

We have read this book with sincere pleasure, and thank Bro. Riley for it, since it is the memorial to us of a very "good lodge," and a pleasing souvenir of many happy hours, and kind friends, and honest work in cheerier days of old. It calls up before us many old and worthy brethren, and not the least, Wainman Holmes.

The lodge, according to Bro. Riley, was chartered in 1788, as the "Duke of York," at Doncaster, where it carried on a slumberous existence until 1806, when it removed to Bingley. The last official meeting appears to have been in 1815, though Bro. Wainman Holmes remembers meetings until 1827, and some of the meetings were open air meetings on Baildon Moors. Here is a point for Bro. Hughtan.

In 1827 the lodge became the Airedale Lodge, No. 814. Its history has since been well known in W. Yorkshire; and it has boasted of many worthy men and Masons as its members.

It was formerly No. 814. It then became No. 543, and is now No. 387. Prosperity to it, and thanks to Bro. Riley for a very interesting lodge history.

THE MASONIC NEWSPAPER. New York, 142, Montague-street, Brooklyn,

Is a new Masonic venture, to which we wish all possible success.

UNITED EVER. (A Masonic Song.) Words by Bro. WHITEFOOT. Music by Bro. JOHN TOLKIEN.

This is a Masonic song which has reached a second edition, and which promises, as we have no doubt it will receive, much Masonic patronage. We recommend it warmly to all our musical brethren.

NIGHT AND DAY, Edited by DR. BARNARDO, Pursues the "even tenour" of its useful way.

SOCIAL NOTES. Edited by Bro. S. G. HALL, 56, Paternoster Row.

This is a monthly serial of much pleasant reading, and appears to be likely to find many friends. It is very ably edited, and we have found both pleasure and profit in its perusal. We recommend it to our readers.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

A Series of Free Popular Lectures for Men and Women was inaugurated last week at the Working Men's College, Great Ormond-street. These lectures will take place on Thursday evenings, are to be on literary and scientific subjects, and are intended to attract the public to the College so that people may become aware of the advantages offered by the Institution. Founded by the late Professor Maurice in 1854, the college, now under the direction of Mr. Thomas Hughes, has always maintained that the end and function of all learning is the making of good citizens, and has kept the teaching subordinate to that end.

A Muscovite Exhibition of Russian produce is to be held in the Kremlin Gardens at Moscow in 1880.

The invention of the Telephone is now claimed by the Celestials. A Chinese writer in the Pekin Gazette declares that Kung Foo Whing, a distinguished philosopher, who flourished at the close of the tenth century, invented the telephone in 968. The instrument is known in China as "Thumthsein."

TECHNICAL EDUCATION AT CAMBRIDGE.—Under Professor Stuart's fostering care, mechanical science is obtaining a chance of introduction to University life at Cambridge. A workshop has been erected and stocked with tools and machines, so that instructions can now be given in the use of tools in metal and wood, and also various instruments can be manufactured. Elementary practical classes will be started this term.—Athenæum.

Monkeys are famed as adepts in mimicry, and a British doctor in Java recently received an unpleasant proof of their imitative propensities. The doctor had a large monkey, tame and very clever, which was generally its master's companion in the dissecting-room whilst he pursued his anatomical studies. Jacko used always to watch the proceedings attentively, and one day, when alone with his master, seized the unlucky doctor, popped him upon the dissecting-table, and was just going to put his lessons to practical use, when the doctor's cries brought the people of the house to the spot just in time to save the doctor from immediate vivisection.

A report has recently been made on the state of the Doubleday collection of lepidoptera. A recognized type collection in any branch of natural history is an object of respect, and any accident that may befall it is sure to arouse the interest of a large circle. As is well-known to entomologists, the late Mr. Doubleday's collection of lepidoptera is recognized as a type collection, and his systematic lists form a classification very commonly used. The Science and Art Department accepted the charge of the collection, and found space for it at the Bethnal-green Museum. A catalogue of the contents was made for the department by the late Mr. Andrew Murray, F.L.S., and the part referring to the first 106 drawers, containing British species, was printed by order of the Committee of Council on Education. That the collection is really used is shown by the fact that last year there were 1492 applications for permission to examine it. The report states that fresh specimens of no less than 238 species are required for the collection in order to replace those destroyed by mites. The list of those required has been published in the Entomologist.

THE FETE AT THE TROCADERO.

We have reason to believe that there is certainly up to the present time, at any rate, no truth in the report, somewhat industriously spread about, that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has accepted any invitation, (if ever it has been sent), to attend the fete of the "Rite Ecossais," at Paris, on the 23rd. We regret very much the unauthorized use of the name of our Royal G. Master. We hear a good deal about this fete in prospect, and from our numerous communications on the subject, we find, as we expected, that in our good Order there are grave doubts, as well as not unreasonable apprehensions respecting it. For many reasons, and for obvious causes, we cannot advise any English brethren to be present at the fete, as we think, that as the French say, "sous tous les rapports," we, as English Masons, had better stay away. We do not think it needful to enter into all the reasons which guide us in this, our humble, but honest opinion, but we can safely say that we have a good and sufficient cause for such a recommendation to our brethren. We call attention to a Communiqué on the subject elsewhere, which deals with a phase of the question, which has an interest for us all alike.

ELECTION FOR THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

The election for the Boys' School took place on Monday, the 14th inst., when thirteen candidates were elected out of sixty-one. Previously to the poll, Bro. Binckes informed the meeting that the "Princess Alice" Mansion House Committee had determined to purchase a presentation to the Boys' and Girls' Schools for the orphan son and daughter of the late lamented Bro. Jardine. This announcement was loudly cheered. The successful candidates were announced by Col. Creaton, at about 4.30, and one remarkable feature of the election was the large numbers polled, and the equally large number of successful first cases. The thirteen successful on the poll received the large numbers of 20,000, more or less. This we believe to be unprecedented polling, and as the fourteenth candidate was only 98 behind the thirteenth, and several unsuccessful candidates polled over 1000 votes, this last election may fairly be regarded as one of the most severely contested which has ever taken place, and a probable type of similar hard fought elections in the years yet to be. Balcombe, the thirteenth on the poll, was supported by the London Masonic Charity Association.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL ELECTION.

The "October election" took place last Saturday, the 12th inst., and was marked by one or two peculiar features which deserve note and remembrance. Previously to the election a motion was made by our worthy Bro. Joshua Nunn, to suspend the rules, in order to admit a daughter of our lamented Bro. Jardine, who perished with numerous other innocent victims in the ill-fated "Princess Alice." There were, however, constitutional objections to such a course, (advisable and praiseworthy as it might have been in itself), and, after a discussion, the Chairman, very properly, refusing to interfere to prevent it, on the advice of our esteemed Grand Registrar, the motion was held to be in contravention of the established laws of the School. For Bro. Jardine and his orphan children all felt great pity and sincere Masonic sympathy. The poll opened for the election of four pupils out of twenty-one candidates. Our readers will read elsewhere the actual figures, which are both instructive and striking. Three provincial candidates and one London case were returned, a second London case closely following the last successful candidate. Meta Brasier, (a very good case), headed the poll with 4741 votes, M. S. Cooper, also a strong case, following with 2817; Ethel Stone was next with 2794, and E. M. Hill was the fourth with 1104. No. 22, Florence Palmer, has polled 1018, so that her election in April is secured, on which we congratulate her many zealous friends. As this was the first time the London Masonic Charity Association has intervened to aid London candidates, it was a matter of much rejoicing to all, that what it did do it did so effectually, as, on its first appearance to poll 2794 votes. By a report elsewhere which we publish, it would seem that it congratulates its members, and not without cause, as we know, on the good feeling existing between the various influential Provincial Charity Committees and itself, a fact which disposes of many hasty objections. The second candidate, E. E. Williams, is safe, the report states, for April. We think that one of the results of the operations of this, in our opinion, needed Association, will be to bring in new Life Governors to our great charitable Institutions. It is remarkable, that a considerable number of the votes remain unpolled. Why is this?

LODGE FUNDS.

For some time past our attention has been drawn to frequent complaints as to the present position and actual apportionment of our lodge funds, and, therefore, now that our brethren are again assembling in lodge, and round the genial board, "on hospitable thoughts intent," we think it both well and seasonable to allude to the subject. In dealing with the question we are, however, aware, at the outset, that we have a somewhat difficult and delicate matter to handle, and one that requires alike delicacy of touch and a good deal of discrimination. It is easy enough to speak "ore rotundo" on the subject; it is not a difficult undertaking to expatiate in ornate sentences on such a topic; but to write Masonically and fairly, and sensibly, to boot, so as to be read and so as to be attended to, is not altogether quite so easy a thing as some pseudo critics affect to think or to say. For the difficulty lies in this, always a great difficulty, "per se." We are dealing with other people's affairs and other people's money, and so we may take the "high moral" or the "low didactic" line as we like, yet the inevitable "crux" occurs, as in all similar discussions—"What have you to do with the matter? Is it not better for you to mind your own business?" Hence, whether we are Masonic philosophers or Masonic censors, it appears to us that we are bound to write very cautiously and very deferentially, even remembering our differing and contrasted views on this "vexata questio." For it is impossible for the ablest of us all to lay down dogmatically rules which will apply to individual lodges, and yet be in any measure accepted by all lodges alike. It would be an herculean undertaking to prescribe axioms equally acceptable by, and equally suitable to all, which should be axioms of Masonic economic administration, whether in general or in particular. For we must not, if we are wise, take a too ascetic view of Masonic social needs on the one hand, neither should we ever forget on the other, that Masonry must always have for various reasons a social aspect which it is neither safe nor prudent to discourage or disregard! Therefore, to all lodges must be left a great amount of private judgment and practical liberty in the matter as it is safe, we think, to assume, that lodges themselves best know for themselves what most accords with the needs, the comfort, the prestige of the members. But we think we may fairly say this, that no administration of lodge funds can be sound or safe, which spends all on banquets, and does nothing for charity, and least of all can that balance-sheet be admired, nor should it be imitated, which demonstrates that the lodge is always in debt to its Treasurer. It is much to be feared that many of our lodges are hardly in a solvent condition, and that as far as we can at present see, each year adds to their embarrassments and their liabilities. We have seen some balance-sheets where with a few casual payments, all the returns are swallowed up on festivities, and nothing is done for charity in any way. We have also noticed Treasurers' accounts, where the balance is always against the lodge, and no effort is made to diminish it or wipe it off. We would respectfully urge upon all lodges placed in such a position, (how many we like not to think), one of two courses, either to diminish their expenses, or to increase their fees. And, on the whole, we lean to the last alternative as most likely, perhaps, to conduce to the interests of the lodge and the good of Freemasonry. Is it not a scandal to us all alike that such a large proportion of our lodges never have done anything, and, apparently, are doing nothing for the great Charities of our Order? Is it not high time to set our house in order in this respect? Ought we to lose a moment in "squaring up" our lodge accounts, and showing to all that we practice as well as preach the excellent grace of charity? We await a reply to these queries.

THE RITE ECOSSAIS.

(Communicated.)

It is well, we think, that our readers should be aware why many objections exist to English Masons taking part in the fete of this Order on the 23rd. It is known as a fact, that the same pernicious teaching that has affected the Grand Orient of France has also permeated, to some extent, at any rate, the "Grand Conseil." It is true that so far no such "overt act," no such wilful renunciation of belief in God has taken place in the "Rite Ecossais," but it is also a fact, about which no French Mason would doubt, but that the profession of faith of the Grand Conseil is as slender and unsatisfactory as well may be, and is a form, and nothing more. The utmost that the Geneva Congress seemed to reach unto by "hook and by crook," as they say, was a "creative principle," an "Anima Mundi," in fact, but far removed from T.G.A.O. T.U., and all that is involved in the religious acceptance of the Holy Name and belief of God, which marks our reverent English Masonry. Considering all that has gone on in France, and at what is now taking place Masonically, we confess that this exaltation of a High Grade is, we think unwise, and unsound, in theory and in practice. The Grand Orient is at present in direct antagonism with us, and may almost be considered in abeyance, but that is no reason why we should in any way mix up the claims of a High Grade organization with the simpler and straightforward position of Craft Masonry. The Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite has nothing whatever to do with Craft Masonry. Knowing, as we say, perhaps, better than most of our readers what is going on in France, we think it well to interject again to-day a few friendly words of counsel and warning.

A PROTEST.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As a Life Governor of one of the Masonic Charitable Institutions, I have been addressed by an association calling itself the "London Masonic Charity Association," and have been asked to hand over my votes to be disposed of by the association in such manner as may seem to the committee to be desirable. This I most emphatically decline to do, and I trust that the great majority of London Masons, who may happen to be possessed of votes in any of our Charitable Institutions, will follow my example.

Readers of your paper cannot be ignorant of the existence of this so-called Charity Association, and I have repeatedly noticed the appearance of its name in your columns. When I heard of its proposed formation, and learned its objects, I expressed a strong belief, founded on earnest hope, that the design would be abandoned; but I now find that operations have actually begun, and that certain London brethren have lent to this most un-Masonic project their countenance and support. On my own behalf, and on behalf of many London Masons who think as I do on this matter, I wish to enter a protest against the proposed proceedings of this association; and I would ask my brethren who like myself are London Masons to look at this question, not as mere local charity-jobbers, but as members of our great and united fraternity, too truly Catholic in its sympathies to be hampered and shackled by the petty influence of any local clique or caucus.

The raison d'être of the London Masonic Charity Association is that the various provinces, by concentrating their voting power upon two or three candidates from their several Districts manage to secure an amount of patronage unduly large when measured by the amount of their subscriptions to the Charities. It is alleged that the metropolis, through its many wealthy lodges, contributes more than half of the money required for the support of the three Institutions, and yet fails to secure half of the patronage. And so it has been determined that London shall have a local association also, and that only London applicants shall be supported by its influence, in order to defeat or in part neutralise the action of the provinces.

This is called an "act of self-defence" on the part of London Masons: It may be so, but I take leave to say that self-defence of this character is not in harmony with the genuine tenets and teaching of Freemasonry. The provinces are doing wrong, and it is our duty to set them a good example, not to follow a bad one set by them.

I trust that those of my brethren in London, who have given in their adhesion to this scheme, will be led to reconsider their position, and reflect upon the objects aimed at by the London Masonic Charity Association. That failure may attend its operations will be the wish of every good Mason, for success would mean the triumphing of principles, selfish and small in themselves, and certain to prove very harmful to Freemasonry.

If it were possible to weld the whole voting power of London into one homogeneous mass, and to place its entire weight at command of a few skillful wire-pullers, who can doubt that the scale would be so heavily turned against the provinces as virtually to exclude them from all representation and patronage? One of two results must follow; either the provinces would all unite and array their combined forces against the capital, or our provincial brethren would decline to enter upon such an un-masonic contest, and decline also to aid with their subscriptions the Charities from which they would be practically excluded. London Masons would then have the advantage of all the patronage in our Institutions, and also the privilege of providing all the money needed for their support. Is this a consummation devoutly to be wished?

I am dear Sir and Brother, faithfully and fraternally yours,

THOS. EDMONDSTON, Master 1658.

[We publish this letter under the special circumstances of the case, though we had not proposed to continue the discussion. We entirely disagree with our correspondent, and consider that he has misapprehended alike the "raison d'être" of the institution and the position of affairs.]

THE SUPREME COUNCILS AND NEW ZEALAND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Having bestowed much time for several years in the study of the constitutions, practice, and usage of Supreme Councils working the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, I would feel obliged by your giving a place in your valuable columns to the following remarks, on the recent treaty entered into between the seceding Supreme Councils from the confederation of Lausanne and the Supreme Council of Egypt.

That treaty reminds one of the Russian-Turkish treaty of St. Stefano. Its provisions have been extorted from the Egyptian Council, and in so far as it deals with the rights and privileges of parties not accessories to it they are not bound by it.

Now, the first question which arises is, has the Egyptian Council any control over that of New Zealand? It authorised, by the exercise of its undoubted power, the formation of the New Zealand Council. By virtue of that power the latter Council was lawfully formed; and having been so formed, its connection with that of Egypt ended. It became a separate and independent body. The child Council was born, and at its birth acquired an independent existence which no parent could destroy.

The decree, or charter, quoted in the Freemason, of the 28th September last, is not the charter under which the Council of New Zealand was created; and I am at a loss to see the writer's object in encumbering your columns with that document. The charter which the Council of Egypt did give was different from the one he quoted in many respects; and it did not authorise Egypt to exercise any control over the newly-created Council of New Zealand, or give it a power to cancel its constitution, or even limit its action. The revocation, therefore, by Egypt of its decrees authorising the formation of a Supreme Council in New Zealand, does not annihilate the Supreme Council of that country, which was long ago formed. Had the decrees been revoked before they were acted on matters might have been different. But their recall now, after their object has been fulfilled, is like one "bolting the stable door after the steed has been stolen."

In no case, however, could these decrees be recalled without an offer of restitution or compensation for the money spent through a reliance on them. No such offer has been made. And it is not said that the Supreme Council of New Zealand has exceeded its powers or ignored any provision of its charter, or in any other way broken the contract. But it is said that it was granted in error. What that error is it is not stated. Egypt, however, was fully and truly informed of all the circumstances, and told that every effort would be made to get it to revoke any charter it might grant; and it was requested not to give it if any such request would be listened to. I need not say that mere change of mind is not a ground on which such a delivered charter, acted on, can be recalled. The only ground for inducing Egypt to act the questionable part it has taken, was the consideration of immediate recognition by the Councils of Charlestown, and its associated Councils. But its act is ultra vires, and consequently harmless.

The three Supreme Councils of this kingdom have exacted this treaty from Egypt, on the alleged ground that it had no jurisdiction in a dependency of the British Crown. But this contention is erroneous. The constitutions of the Order do not recognise such distinctions. They define the "places" where Supreme Councils may be found, and they provide that if none already exists in any country any Sovereign Grand Inspector General may form one there irrespective of nationality.

We see this principle well illustrated in the cases of Scotland and England. As regards Scotland, it is said to have been formed by an alleged Sovereign Grand Inspector General of France, although there existed at the time of its formation a Supreme Council in the United Kingdom at Dublin, and as regards England, it was formed by the Supreme Council of Boston, an American Council, although the Councils of Ireland and Scotland were then both in existence. If these Councils could be lawfully formed by foreign bodies, why should similar procedure be unlawful as regards New Zealand? Perhaps General Pike, the Sovereign Grand Commander of Charlestown, will kindly solve this difficulty, and I hope more successfully than he has done those knotty points brought under his consideration by writers in the Freemason, in reference to the legality of the Supreme Councils of Scotland and Charlestown, and the authenticity of the Constitutions of 1786.

Another contention of the three British Supreme Councils is that it is only lawful to have one Supreme Council in any one state. But this principle and regulation they themselves have disregarded by the formation of the Supreme Councils of Scotland and England, while another Council—that of Ireland—existed in the kingdom.

How then can they plead this regulation against others? They cannot appropriate and reprobate it to suit their own convenience. It is either binding or it is not. If binding, they are bound by it, and two of these three Councils must terminate their careers. If it be not binding, the New Zealand Council may exist on the ir own shewing.

But not only do the three British Councils maintain the lawfulness of their respective existences; but they further maintain that each is entitled separately, and as three distinct Councils, to exercise its functions in New Zealand. There would thus be in that colony not one but three independent Supreme Councils—a claim more absolutely repugnant both to the spirit and to the letter of the Constitutions it is impossible to fancy.

That New Zealand is not, in the sense of the Constitutions of the A. and A. Rite, a part of Great Britain, I need not trouble you with any remarks, for the Supreme Councils of England, Scotland, and Ireland have themselves conceded the principle as regards Canada, and the one country stands towards Britain in the same relation as the other.

As regards the diplomas granted by Egypt to the brethren resident in Scotland, they are ostensibly recalled, because it is said to have been represented to Egypt that the Supreme Council of Scotland was an irregular and illegitimate body. But it has been shewn in the Freemason that that statement is true. The Constitutions of Scotland set forth that it was formed by virtue of a patent, dated in 1814, held by a Dr. Morrison from the Supreme Council of France. Well, that statement is untrue, for the patent exists, and it is not from the Supreme Council of France. Indeed, that Council had no existence until 1821. Dr. Morrison's patent is from a spurious council, termed the "Supreme Council of the West India Islands," which, in flagrant violation of all Masonic law, carried on its business, not in the West Indies, but in Paris, side by side with other Councils in that city. Dr. Morrison's patent, however, such as it was, prohibited him from conferring any degree beyond the Thirtieth, and yet we are asked to recognise a Supreme Council of Thirty-thirds, all of whom were made by him.

Dr. Morrison, as already stated, was made a 33° by the spurious body referred to in 1814, but, strangely, ten years afterwards, and three years after the formation of the Supreme Council of France, he presented a petition to the Grand Orient of France, seeking its Thirtieth Degree, on the footing that he did not already hold it, and that he recognised the Grand Orient as the only legitimate repository of these Degrees in France. These facts clearly shew that Dr. Morrison himself considered his patent of 1814 as spurious. Can it, therefore, be said that the Supreme Council of Scotland, which bases its existence solely on that spurious patent, is a genuine body?

Your contemporary, the Scottish Freemason, has shewn uneasiness at these statements, and has appealed to the "courteous" Secretary of the Supreme Council of Scotland to answer them. But that gentleman is as astute as he is courteous, and acts on the well-known principle, that "discretion is the better part of valour!" He so acts because he knows that the statements he is called on to answer are true, and being true are unanswerable.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN THOMAS LOTH,
Dr. Ph., 33°, Member of the Grand College of Rites of France. Author of the Illustrated
History of the A. and A. S. Rite.

THE MARK DEGREE

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I cannot allow the remarks of your correspondent "W. Viner B. Bedolfe, M.D., P.M., P.Z., 1329," to pass entirely unnoticed, although they deserve to be. The very tone of his communication is so full of acerbity and splenic temper that I pause to consider whether he can be really a member of the Craft, as he professes. Assuming that he does it is to be regretted that he does not bear in mind the tenets of the Order, and at least try to write charitably towards a brother whose sacred calling should in itself command some respect if not indulgence; but, Sir, I am afraid that the opportunity of parading one's name and standing and rank in Masonry is often inductive to narrow minds to appear in correspondence upon any subject, notwithstanding their entire ignorance of the same, and in crude carelessness as to how much they may wound the feelings of the man of calmer and sounder judgment. Self-laudation, with concomitant disregard of persons or things, is in itself a sad misfortune, but when such a person forgets that respect which is due to his brother in Masonry, it is simply deplorable. However much Bro. Bedolfe may differ in opinion as to Bro. Lamonby's address, he is scarcely warranted in endeavouring to treat such address with contumely. His letter is too exhaustive and full of ignorance of the subject he tries to criticise to encourage one to reply as he desires, as it is evident he is simply suffering from cacothetes scribendi, which his attendance at the first banquet board may somewhat tend to ameliorate, unless he also suffers from cacothetes carpendi, when it would, perhaps, be a more convenient time to relieve his mind, it would, at all events, be better than exposing his ignorance of subjects in print. I would ask Bro. Bedolfe what his opinion is of the Second Degree of Freemasonry? Whether, indeed, it has anything in it to warrant the title of "Second Degree," and if he is at all at a loss to reply, I advise him to go to the trifling expense of joining the Mark Degree, when, I think, he will conclude that that is, or should be, the Second Degree in Masonry. To me it appears to be the missing link between the First and Third Degrees.

That which is at present called the Second Degree cannot conscientiously be called a Degree at all, hence the Mark Masons, wise in their knowledge of the same, believe that Mark Masonry must at some future date be acknowledged by Grand Lodge.

I need scarcely add that the subscriptions of the Mark Degree to the Masonic Institutions are acknowledged by Grand Lodge, and their lists at the festivals very warmly appreciated.

Let Bro. Bedolfe take that to heart, and for the information he desires let him join the Degree, to see for himself, as to its beauties or otherwise. We may then, perhaps, derive some intelligence from his pen, from which I conclude nought, but "grammar, good sense and truth," will flow to our united edification.

Perhaps Bro. Binckes will enlighten our brother, if not upon the subject matter in discussion, he may upon common courtesy, brotherly love, and truth.

I am, dear Sir, yours in faith and fraternally.

ECCE SIGNUM.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Dr. Bedolfe, who has written you a long letter sneering at the Mark Degree, does not appear to be aware that a Committee formed of members of Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter recommended the acknowledgment of that Degree, and that the report of the Committee was unanimously adopted by Grand Lodge at the Quarterly Communication in March, 1856. The reason why that portion of the minutes was not confirmed at the next meeting is well known in the Craft, although the spirit which prompted their rejection is scarcely appreciated.

Yours truly,

P.M. 533.

I believe the Grand Lodge of England stands alone in not recognising the Mark Degree.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I write as representing your many brethren of one of the lodges of which I have the honour of being a member, and in the welfare of which I with many others take deep and earnest interest.

In this interest I am asked to address this, not only for myself individually but for the Craft generally, and shall feel obliged if any of your numerous and valued correspondents will kindly give me, through the medium of your excellent paper, their opinion on the usages and etiquette of our Craft with respect to the following case.

A much respected I.P.M. of the lodge to which I have alluded, on the occasion of the last monthly meeting had important business to transact in his "private vocation," (many miles distant). He hurried home only to be in time to reach the precincts of the lodge (or rather, the ante room) during the commencement of the ceremony of closing.

Whilst waiting for admission he of course inserted his name (at the request of the Tyler) being present, ready to enter the lodge.

The question is this. Has the W.M. (after putting the minutes to the option of the brethren in open lodge) a right to say "I rule that the name be erased from the attendance book."

Yours truly and fraternally,

P. R. G. W.

[In our opinion the W.M. has the right to oversee and correct the attendance book. The question of the confirmation of the minutes is another thing. It is quite clear that the brother did not attend the lodge. Ed. F.M.]

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—With the darkening days and changing temperatures the digestion becomes impaired, the liver disordered, and the mind despondent unless the cause of the irregularity be expelled from the blood by an alternative like these Pills. They go direct to the source of the evil, thrust out all impurities from the circulation, reduce distempered organs to their natural state, and correct all defective and contaminated secretions. Such easy means of instituting health, strength, and cheerfulness should be in possession of all whose stomachs are weak, whose minds are much harassed, or whose brains are overworked. Holloway's is essentially a blood-tempering medicine, whereby its influence, reaching the remotest fibre of the frame, effects a universal good. —[Advrt.]

CONSECRATION OF THE ROYAL HANOVER LODGE, No. 1777.

This new lodge was consecrated on the 11th inst., at the Town Hall, Hounslow, by Col. Francis Burdett, Prov. G. Master for Middlesex. Col. Burdett was assisted by Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, G.D.; Bros. John Boyd, P.G.P., as S.W.; Dr. F. W. Ramsay, Prov. G.S.W. Middlesex, as J.W.; H. G. Russ, Assistant G. Secretary, as D.C.; W. H. Barber, as Secretary; Sir Charles Bright, Dep. Prov. G.M. for Middlesex; the Rev. J. Conder, LL.D., as Chaplain, and numerous other brethren.

The complete list of brethren present was as follows:—Officers of the lodge:—H. A. Dubois, W.M.; Henry Lovegrove, S.W.; Geo. Clark, jun., J.W.; W. H. Barber, Sec.; G. J. Dunkley, Org.; Bro. Ramsey, was elected Treasurer, but was unavoidably absent.

Consecrating Officers:—R.W. Col. Francis Burdett, Prov. G.M.; Sir Charles Bright, Dep. Prov. G.M.; H. Shadwell Clerke, S.G.D.; F. W. Ramsay, S.G.W.; J. Boyd, P.G.P.; Rev. J. Conder, LL.D., Chaplain Grand Master's Lodge, No. 1; H. G. Russ, Ass. G. Sec.

Visiting brethren:—E. J. Massie, 993; Curtis, 145; C. C. Cruikshanks, 1507; Dixon, P.M. 209 P.P.D.C.; Berks and Bucks; Crawshaw, 209; Newby, 73; Abbott, P.M. 218; Johnson, P.M. 855; John Blake, P.M. 8, P.G.S.; Leatham, P.M. 1216; E. W. Dubois, 1216; H. Clark, 1507; Green, P.M. 27; Dr. Whitmarsh, 145; Daniel, I.P.M. 65; Lyon, 863; Stedwell, P.P.S.G.W.; Chas. B. Payne, Grand Tyler; Woodstock and Daly, Tylers; H. Massey (Freemason.)

The musical arrangements under the direction of Bro. G. S. Graham, were executed by Bros. Taylor, Bannister, Clegg, Hobern, and Evans. Letters of apology were sent from Bros. Sir A. Woods, Kinghorn, P.M. 1507; Levanter, Prov. G.S.; and others.

The musical portion of the ceremony was under the direction of Bro. G. S. Graham, who was assisted by the quartette party, Bros. R. Taylor, A. Bannister, W. Clegg, and W. Hobern, with Bro. G. W. Evans, as Organist and accompanist.

After opening the lodge in the Three Degrees, Col. Burdett said the brethren were assembled for the purpose of consecrating a new lodge, and it was usual at such ceremonies for the Consecrating Officer to say a few words, not only to the officers coming into office for the first time, but also to the brethren who were intending to become members of the lodge. It was hardly necessary for him to address many of the brethren, as they were so well acquainted with the principles of the Order; but still there might be a few who might derive some benefit from a short address. The brethren were all much pleased at the advances which Masonry had made during the last three or four years, those advances not having been so much in the addition of lodges, but in the class of persons who had joined the Order. It was of great advantage to Freemasonry to have in it men of position and standing. They did not wish to have large numbers of lodges or overwhelming numbers of brethren. A lodge with a large number of members was frequently a noisy lodge. It was desirable to have a small number of members and a good subscription, which would generally insure a good description of men, who would give a character to Freemasonry, to persons who were living in the neighbourhood where the lodge was situated. It was such people who were to be looked to for the support of a lodge, and he hoped that during the time the Royal Hanover Lodge was in existence in Hounslow they would find a great number of the gentry round about, and the superior class of inhabitants joining and doing credit to the lodge and Freemasonry. There were instances in which difficulties arose in lodges, more particularly in lodges which were large. In large lodges there were frequently little coteries and cabals. A small lodge was usually more united and unanimous. In a large lodge many members were desirous of wearing collars of office, and when they could not get into office they became annoyed and blackballed intending initiates only through pique. In a small lodge, if a brother found a gentleman was being brought forward as a member who was not a fit and proper person to become a member of the lodge, it was better not to blackball him, but to go previously to the Secretary quietly and inform him that if the gentleman were brought forward he would be blackballed. He might mention another suggestion which he thought was worthy of attention. In a province like Middlesex, where many gentlemen were proposed for initiation, who were brought down from London, it would be better not to bring him for initiation the same night as he was to be balloted for, because if the ballot box was not clear the proposer and seconder of the gentleman were in the awkward position of having to go out and to tell him he could not be admitted. They managed these things differently in Ireland, where a gentleman was balloted for at one meeting and initiated the next. He once saw in a neighbouring province, a gentleman who had been prepared for initiation told he could not be admitted, as some of the brethren objected, and he had to retire, as might be imagined, in a very disagreeable state of mind. All these points he thought ought to be considered, as the Order was making such great and rapid advances. They were now going to consecrate No. 1777, and he believed up to the present time there had been as many as fifty-two new lodges constituted this year. Last year there were sixty-three. Consequently there was a probability that by the time the present year was out there would be more lodges established this year than there were last year. During next year it was likely that there would be added to the roll sufficient to make up the total number to 1800. It required great knowledge, intelligence, and tact to manage such a large number of lodges. If the members of all the lodges were brought together one could imagine what an array they would form. We should hardly know what to do with them. Still he felt that the rulers of the lodge he was now going to consecrate would do their best to keep every member within bounds for the interest of the lodge, in which case we should no doubt see the lodge soon standing high in the ranks of Freemasonry.

After the formalities following the address had been observed,

Bro. the Rev. J. Conder, in delivering the oration, said—Brethren, I am honoured on this interesting occasion by being allowed the privilege of addressing a few words to you, on a subject which is, I believe, generally the theme, because it is one in which we are all interested; the nature and principles of Masonry. I confess at starting, my fear, nay, my certainty, that I shall fail in doing justice to my subject. The brother who proposed that the honour should fall to my lot kindly suggested to me that I should, in a few words, give you my impressions and my experience of Masonry. In his suggestion he seems to have given, but in other words, the same subject—the nature and principles of Masonry. In our knowledge and our impression of Masonry we learn its nature, and to the honour of the fraternity, be it spoken, in our experience we evidence its principles. Now, brethren, I know well the surest way to affect men, to touch their hearts, is to speak to them as it were heart to heart, not lip to heart, to gather in hand, as it were, the strings binding together a common humanity, and any one so doing let him speak as feebly as he may, in simple or in eloquent terms, let his voice be high or low, harsh or sweet, he is, I must be listened to; and so, brethren, to assure myself of a patient hearing I need only refer to my impressions of Masonry, and I am sure your hearts will go with me. For were not my impressions yours? When I speak of them do you not, are not your minds taken back to some of the most solemn moments of your lives? when by a most impressive ritual, by the simplest, and yet most beautiful, symbolism you learned step by step some of the mysteries of Masonry, something of its beauty and excellence. Your impressions were mine, I am sure they were. You felt strongly as you went through the various ceremonies, and you were constrained to exclaim almost aloud, "How beautiful! How significant! How true! How holy!" And you went forth, as I think, every English Mason must go forth from the lodge in which he was initiated, with a noble determination that Masonry should make you a better man, that you had a noble call, that you had to live up to the principles which you had heard enunciated, and which had been brought so clearly before you in the symbols and allegories which you had seen. Does not the recollection of these impressions give you some idea of the nature of which Masonry is, and how it touches our human nature. Masonry in very truth appeals very strongly to men. There are indeed traces of an universal Masonry, in so much that material structures have in all ages afforded illustrations and words descriptive of moral goodness. There is no language on the face of the earth which has not words more or less connected with Masonry. Men speak of the foundation of truth and integrity, of men being upright, they talk of men being true, of edifying one another. And there is one section of the community whose lives are more or less guided by rules or canons. In a similar way in our lodges we take the tools and secrets of the art of Masons, not as operative, but as speculative Masons, and apply them to our morals and to our whole lives. And what a debt we owe to those wise men of old, those noble men and true, who investigated the inner hearts as it were, and brought together the teaching which will be handed down from generation to generation till time shall be no more. The Mason goes forth from his lodge to practice the principles he learnt in it. Therefore, the brethren who have come forward and sought and obtained permission to found this Royal Hanover Lodge, all honour be to them, they have started a noble work, and they deserve well of every member of the Craft. They bring forward the great truths we have learned that others may be enlightened as well, that others may go forth to show their principles in their actions and in being true friends; true men show themselves true Masons, advancing in every social virtue, exercising charity in assisting the distressed, knowing their country's laws; worthy as citizens, worthy as men; with such principles as these Masons must be and will be honoured. Now all the world wonders at the progress of the Craft; wonders! and when men wonder, despite some scepticism they may show at one time or another, what is good and true they will ultimately admire, for they cannot but acknowledge that the man who sets before him a standard of excellence, and endeavours to live up to it, is a better man than he who is contented with a common mediocrity. Masons, we have a noble work, as our art has been honoured by the highest in the land in time past so I believe will it be honoured in time to come. May its principles be adhered to more and more closely, and when our work here is done may our good names be enrolled in the great lodge above ruled over by the One True Great Master.

The lodge was then consecrated according to ancient form, and at the conclusion of the ceremony, Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, P.G.D., at the request of Colonel Burdett, took the chair, and installed Bro. H. A. Dubois, P.M., as W.M. of the lodge, who thereupon proceeded with the instalment of his officers.

A vote of thanks was passed to Bros. Colonel Burdett, Sir Charles Bright, H. G. Russ, Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, the Rev. J. Conder, LL.D., Dr. Ramsey, and John Boyd, who were also elected honorary members of the lodge, the W.M., in proposing the resolution, stating that the brethren would always feel glad to see them whenever they might be disposed to visit the lodge.

Colonel Burdett, in acknowledging the compliment, said honorary members were always pleased to visit the lodges, and come again among the brethren; but although the members were always glad to see them, and extended to them a hearty reception, the honorary members did not like to put the lodge to the expense of entertaining them. There was no question that it was an expense, and it was desirable to keep the lodge funds in as prosperous a state as possible.

The lodge was then closed, and the brethren were conveyed by omnibus to Richmond, where a choice banquet was prepared for them at the Greyhound.

After the banquet, the customary list of toasts were honoured, and Colonel Shadwell Clarke responded for "The Grand Officers."

Bro. Buss, replying for "The Consecrating Officers," said it had been stated that all the Consecrating Officers came to consecrate the lodge with a great deal of pleasure, seeing that the Province of Middlesex was in a very prosperous condition. Middlesex was a new province, and at the time it was first formed, there were but six lodges in it. There were now twenty-eight. This was a great advance, seeing that London penetrated so far into the province. As it was they were obliged to cross the water and come into the London district to have a banquet. Richmond was in the London district, and having to come to Richmond from Middlesex to get a dinner, showed what disadvantages Middlesex was under, and how much more creditable it was to it that it had so many lodges. In the programme of toasts the toast of "The Consecrating Officers" was accompanied by the Shakespearian quotation, "You have made good work, you and your apron men." He was sure that in coming to consecrate the lodge it must be patent to all that they had done what they could to bring a new lodge into existence, and he hoped it would be considered that they had done good apron work. The Provincial Grand Master had done good apron work, for ever since he had been Prov. G. Master it had been his desire to promote the interest of the province. He had never been backward in doing it, and that evening he had given fresh evidence of his desire to bring credit on the province. How far he had been assisted in his work by the officers it was for the brethren of the lodge to say. With the assistance of Dr. Ramsey, Col. Shadwell Clarke, and the Rev. J. Conder, he had been able to give éclat to the proceedings. The Rev. Chaplain had performed his duties in a way which he had never seen excelled. The address was an excellent one, and he thought that, launched with so much éclat, Lodge No. 1777 must prove a success.

Col. Burdett proposed "The Health of the W.M." They had had the pleasure of placing in the chair a brother whom they all highly respected, and who they were confident would carry out the duties of the lodge in a manner, not only creditable to the lodge, but to the province also. He was sure that the lodge under his direction would bring credit on the Order. The brethren had seen what the W.M. was able to do. He had proved himself in every way to be a worthy brother to those who knew him, and he would also prove himself an excellent Master to those whom he would have to initiate in the Craft. He not only was anxious to perform the duties he undertook, but he performed them in a way which must redound to the honour of the Order.

The W.M., in reply, said that when he joined the province of Middlesex he entered into his duties heart and soul. He had had the pleasure of subscribing to two very prominent lodges in London, but nevertheless, Middlesex was the province to which he gave his Masonic adherence. He had passed two chairs in the province. He was the Secretary of a lodge of which Sir Charles Bright had just left the chair, now filled by Dr. Ramsey. The Royal Hanover was the fourth lodge he was a subscribing member to in the province. He mentioned these circumstances to show that his heart was in the province. It was a province which was so near to London that it might almost be said to be in London itself. They were proposing the toasts in the London district, and he was very glad of it; not that he wished to detach himself from Middlesex, but the neighbourhood of Hounslow was so badly off for places of entertainment that they were obliged to go for their dinner to Richmond. All work and no play, they were taught at the school, makes Jack a dull boy, and he believed that in Masonry it was equally true, and that the brethren should take refreshment after labour. He did not mean to say that if they met ten times a year they should have a banquet each time, but he thought they might dine one half of those times. He held also that hospitality was very desirable, and Masons must often have experienced this virtue when going from town to town. He thought it well that lodges should foster this virtue. In conclusion, he hoped that the Royal Hanover Lodge would become A1 in the province.

Bro. H. Lovegrove, S.W., replied for "The Officers," and Bros. Whitmarsh and Larham for "The Visitors," shortly after which the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren returned to town.

The musical brethren, Bros. G. S. Graham, R. Taylor, A. Bannister, W. Clegg, W. Hoborn, and G. W. Evans, entertained the brethren with some pleasing music during the intervals between the toasts.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NORTH AND EAST YORKSHIRE.

The Freemasons of North and East Yorkshire held their annual Grand Lodge on the 10th inst., at Beverley. The gathering took place at Richmond last year, and now Beverley has been honoured. The event proved a red letter day in the history of the town, which is in every way appropriate for the assembling of an historical fraternity. Although the business of the Grand Lodge did not commence until two o'clock in the afternoon, all the early trains brought up Masonic visitors, who occupied themselves for a few hours by inspecting the Minster and St. Mary's Church, as well as other objects of antiquarian interest. The Minster was the chief attraction, more especially as Bro. Stephenson, of the Beverley Lodge, well-known for his antiquarian researches, had acceded to a request to give a verbal description of the leading features of the building. Increased interest was given to the morning's proceedings by a recital on the organ, given by Bro. Camidge, organist of the Minster. The organ is a grand old instrument, by the famous builder Snetzler, and it was heard to great advantage on the occasion, the organist having made a delightful selection of music, which was highly appreciated by all who were fortunate enough to be present. All the selections were of a contemplative character, Handel's overture to "Samson" being the first number. The next was one of Batiste's quiet Andantes, the one in E minor. This was played in fine taste, showing a judicious blending of the stops. No. 3 was Mendelssohn's "Cornelius' March," a fine sparkling theme, bringing out the more prominent stops of the instrument. The next number was an Andante movement by Smart, whose name is a sufficient guarantee for graceful melody and pure harmony. The organist led up to this movement by a pretty extemporaneous passage or two. The two next selections were specially interesting. The first comprised the movements moderato and allegro from Corelli, adapted no doubt from the instrumental writings of this famous composer, who died in 1713. The other number was Schumann's "Ich Crolle Nicht." A selection from Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" was the next number on the programme, but at the last moment the organist changed it for Haydn's representation of "Chaos." The concluding piece was Bach's Prelude and Fugue in D, and with this the visit of the Freemasons to the Minster terminated, and the fraternity wended their way to the Assembly Rooms to hold their Grand Lodge. The entire suite of rooms was engaged. The principal rooms were decorated with flowers, plants, and Masonic flags and emblems.

Every lodge in the province was well represented. Prior to opening the Grand Lodge the Board of Benevolence held a long sitting, and considered several applications for assistance from widows of Freemasons and necessitous brethren. Several grants were passed and the claims of candidates—boys and girls—for admission to the schools were carefully investigated, and resolutions to support the most deserving passed.

Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, the Provincial Grand Master, presided over the Grand Lodge, and was supported by Bros. the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, J. Pearson Bell, M.D., J.P.; Hon. W. T. Ord Powlett; Major Woodall, and others. The following brethren were installed Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

Hall	Prov. S.G.W.
Charles Norman, Richmond ...	Prov. J.G.W.
Rev. Lewis Heath, M.A., Newland ...	Prov. G. Chap.
Richard W. Hollon, York ...	Prov. G. Treas.
Joseph Todd, York ...	Prov. G. Reg.
M. C. Peck, Hull ...	Prov. G. Sec.
John H. Ennis, Hull ...	Prov. S.G.D.
J. T. Atkinson, Selby ...	Prov. J.G.D.
Alfred W. Ansell, Hull ...	Prov. G. S. of W.
Thomas S. Whytehead, York ...	Prov. G.D. of C.
Benjamin L. Wells, Horwase ...	Prov. G.S.B.
John Camidge, Mus. Bac., Beverley ...	Prov. G. Org.
J. Ward, York ...	Prov. G. Purs.
T. Criez, Hull ...	Prov. G. Tyler.

A committee was appointed for the purpose of increasing the support given to the several Masonic Charities in the province, and it was announced by the Grand Master that the Provincial Lodge next year would be held in York, on the invitation of the Eboracum Lodge. About 150 brethren afterwards sat down to a banquet, under the presidency of the Provincial Grand Master, who in the course of the proceedings thanked the officers and brethren of the Constitutional Lodge, Beverley, for the handsome hospitality with which the Grand Lodge had been received.—Yorkshire Gazette.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SUSSEX.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Sussex was held at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, on Friday, the 4th inst. Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., Prov. G.M. of the province, presided, and he was supported by a large number of Past and Present Provincial Grand Officers, and some few Grand Officers of England, whose brilliant regalia presented an imposing appearance on the raised dais.

The following were the Provincial Officers present.—Bros. J. H. Scott, Deputy Provincial Grand Master; Joseph Dixon, P.M. 271, Prov. S.G.W.; C. P. Henty, P.M. 38, Prov. J.G.W.; Rev. H. M. Davey, S.W. 38, Prov. G. Chaplain; R. Crosskey, P.M. 1303, Prov. G. Treas.; C. A. Woolley, P.M. 311, Prov. G. Registrar; V. P. Freeman, P.M. 732, Prov. G. Sec.; T. S. Byass, P.M. 1465, Prov. S.G.D.; T. H. Crouch, W.M. 851, Prov. J.G.D.; J. M. Kidd, P.M. 732, Prov. G.D. of C.; C. Sandeman, P.M. 315, Prov. G.A.D. of C.; A. King, 271, Prov. G. Organist; Jos. Farncombe, P.M. 311, Prov. G. Steward; W. T. Nell, P.M. 315, Prov. G. Steward; W. G. Sharp, P.M. 1141, Prov. G. Steward; Hughes, Prov. G. Tyler.

Apologies for unavoidable absence were received from Bro. John Hervey, Secretary of the Grand Lodge of England, Sir Albert Woods, and many other brethren of eminence in the Craft.

The Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the annual meeting, held at Brighton, Sept. 18th, last year, were read and confirmed.

The Prov. G. Secretary called over the roll of the lodges in the province, and all were found to be represented except the Battle Lodge. He also read the Prov. G. Treasurer's report and statement of accounts, also the report of the Board of Finance, both of which showed a very satisfactory state of things in spite of unusual expenses during the year. On the motion of Bro. Hallett these reports were adopted and ordered to be printed and circulated among the members.

The Prov. G. Secretary also presented a return showing the strength of the various lodges in the province up to the 30th June, which showed that sixty-seven were initiated, fifty-eight joined, and that there were 828 members belonging to the twenty lodges in the province.

The R.W. Prov. Grand Master addressed the brethren after the report of the Charity Committee had been presented. He said he was gratified to learn that through their exertions they had been successful in securing the election of two boys to the Masonic School. Observing, as he had done in the Freemason (the organ of the Craft) what had been done in London towards assisting the Charities, he felt that in the province of Sussex some further effort must be made by the brethren if they wished to retain any chance of returning local candidates. He suggested the formation in each lodge of a charity fund to which each brother should subscribe a small sum weekly or monthly as they might decide. As they accumulated funds the subscribers might draw lots for precedence in obtaining life governorships to one or more of the Masonic Charities, and by this means a vast amount of good might be done without its incurring any appreciable expense on the brethren. (Applause.) In conclusion, he stated that he had appointed Bro. J. H. Scott, Deputy Prov. G.M. of Sussex by patent; therefore, there would be no necessity to go through the ceremony each year. He then proceeded to invest the following as his Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

W. Sergison	Prov. G.S.W
J. St. Clair	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. E. Cave-Brown-Cave ...	Prov. G. Chap.
C. A. Woolley	Prov. G. Reg.
V. P. Freeman	Prov. G. Sec.
W. Hale	Prov. G.S.D.
Mark Tanner	Prov. G.J.D.
C. Tomkinson	Prov. G.S.W.
Kidd	Prov. G.D.C.
W. G. Sharpe	Prov. G.A.D.C.
Jos. Farncombe	Prov. G.S.B.
A. King	Prov. G. Org.
W. T. Nell	Prov. G. Purs.

G. S. Evershed, E. Bright, F. J. Rubie, A. J. Hawkes, F. Holford, and S. B. McWhinnie ... Prov. G. Stwds.

Bro. Crosskey was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Hughes re-appointed Tyler.

Having completed the ceremony of investment, Sir Walter Burrell returned thanks to his past officers for the manner in which they had rallied round him during the year, especially on occasions of his visiting the various lodges in the province. He fully hoped to have the same attention from those just appointed. During the past year no less than nineteen members of the various Sussex lodges had been called from this sublunary sphere, and he regretted to find that among them were several distinguished Masons whose memory required a passing word from him. Among them were Bro. Cunningham, an ardent lover of the Craft, and a skilful worker therein, Bro. Fabian, P.G. Supt. of Works, Bro. Whitefield, Master of the Hartington Lodge, Eastbourne, Bro. Ade, and many others. Referring to Masonry generally, he said the chief occurrence of the year was one of great regret. He referred to the defection of the Grand Orient of France, which, by setting aside all obligations to the Great Architect of the Universe, had put themselves outside true Masonry. He must, therefore, beg of lodge officers to be very careful before receiving a visiting French brother to ascertain whether he was a believer in the Almighty. That very thing had occurred before opening lodge that day, and he was pleased to know that the visiting brother had expressed his conviction, and was thereupon admitted among them. (Cheers.)

Bro. Trollope, P.G.S.W., thanked the Prov. G.M. for his kind remarks with respect to the late Bro. Dr. Cunningham, and stated the intention of his old friends to erect a monument over his remains, towards the expenses of which he hoped the brethren would subscribe, as Bro. Cunningham was well known and deservedly respected by a large number of brethren in the province.

The business of the Prov. Grand Lodge having been concluded at five o'clock, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room, where a sumptuous banquet was supplied by Bros. Sayers and Marks, Western-road. The room was tastefully decorated with flowers and evergreens by Bro. W. T. Nell. Over 100 guests were present, a larger number than for several years. The R.W. the Prov. Grand Master, presided, and he was supported by Bros. J. H. Scott, Deputy Prov. G.M.; Shadwell Clarke, G.G.D. of England; H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary of England; Kuhe, P.G. Organist of England; W. R. Wood, P.G. Steward of England; V. P. Freeman, Prov. G. Secretary; E. W. Tuffey, P.P.J.W. Notts and Hants; J. J. Eastes, Deputy Prov. G.M. of Kent; G. Bishop, 231; H. Jopp, P.P.S.G.W. Gloster; Parker, P.M. 34; W. Hilton, P.M. 1351; G. A. Littlewood, P.M. 780; W. Hamilton, P.M. 34; G. Wilson, P.M. 1351; W. Steward, P.M. 1351, and a large number of brethren.

At the conclusion of the dinner grace was sung by Bros. Montem Smith, George Fox, T. Baxter and W. Roe, and throughout the evening they gave a very excellent selection of Music. Bro. A. King, Prov. Grand Organist, and Bro. W. Devin, P. Prov. Grand Organist, accompanied the vocal pieces, and Bro. Kuhe (P.G. Organist of England) favoured the company with one of his brilliant solos on the pianoforte.

The usual loyal and Craft toasts having been heartily drunk, Bro. Shadwell Clarke gave "The Health of the Provincial Grand Master of Sussex," eulogising him for the zeal he had shown in the discharge of his duties. He succeeded a nobleman who was well and worthily esteemed, and therefore the task was of a somewhat onerous character. He expressed a hope that Sir Walter might long be spared to discharge the duties of his important office. (Applause.)

The R.W. Prov. G. Master, in acknowledging the toast, said he had, during his brief year of office, visited 14 out of the 20 lodges in the province, and he hoped shortly to be able to visit the rest. He trusted he should be long spared to occupy his present proud position and to have the happiness of frequently meeting the brethren. He was greatly obliged to his officers for the way in which they had rallied around him on all occasions. Might they meet for many years in peace, happiness and brotherly love. (Cheers.)

Bro. Mayall (Mayor of Brighton) proposed "The Deputy Grand Master and Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge." He spoke in flattering terms of their Masonic virtues and their assiduity in discharging their duties.

Bro. J. H. Scott, in reply, said that during the past twelve months the G.M. had taken all the duties upon himself, visiting nearly every lodge, and bringing each one up to the mark. He expressed a hope that the volume of the Sacred Law would ever be found open in their lodges, and that the feelings of brotherly love, relief and truth might ever reign among them. (Applause.)

The Prov. G.S. Warden (Bro. Sergison) also acknowledged the compliment.

Bro. C. A. Woolley gave "The Visitors," coupled with the names of the Deputy Prov. G.M. of Kent and the Mayor of Brighton, both of whom responded in general terms of thanks.

Bro. V. P. Freeman, Prov. G.S., proposed "The Health of the W.Ms. of the Province," coupled with the names of Bro. Wyatt (Chichester), and Bro. St. Clair (Bognor), who responded.

Bro. W. H. Hallett proposed "The Stewards," and expressed his thanks to these brethren who had so well and successfully catered for their enjoyment that evening. They had very efficiently discharged the duties of their office.

To this toast Bro. Jos. Farncombe (Lewes) responded, also Bro. Nell (Brighton) and Bro. Sharp (Horsham).

The Prov. G.M. complimented the Stewards not only on the excellent dinner, but the very capital music which had been provided, and great credit was due to Bro. Devin for the admirable arrangements which he had made, as the music had tended greatly towards the enjoyment of the evening. (Applause.)

The proceedings, which were throughout of a most enjoyable character, were brought to a close about ten o'clock.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Northumberland and Berwick was held on Tuesday, 8th inst., at Alnwick, under the banner of the Alnwick Lodge, 1167. The lodge was opened at two o'clock, in the Corn Exchange, when the attendance of brethren was the largest which has ever taken place in the province.

The Right Hon. Earl Percy, M.P., Provincial Grand Master, occupied the chair, being surrounded by the Grand Officers of the province.

The Grand Secretary (Bro. B. T. Thompson) read the minutes of the last meeting, which were confirmed.

The Treasurer (Bro. Anderson) read the financial statement, showing that the income of the Grand Lodge during the year was £437, and the expenditure £220; £1200 was invested in bonds, and the interest paid annually to the Treasurer.

The Secretary read the report of the Committee, recommending that £84 should be granted towards Masonic Charities, and £95 towards various local charities in the province. The report was unanimously agreed to.

The reports of the various lodges were then read, all of which showed that each lodge was in a prosperous condition, and had during the past year worked harmoniously together.

The G.M. said he could not say that the number of Masons in the province had increased during the past year; in fact, Masonry had been stationary. When he presided at the Grand Lodge last year, the number of Masons in the province was 1563, whereas this year the number was 1545, being a loss since last year of 18. Still he considered that Masonry was in a prosperous condition.

On the motion of Bro. Davis, Bro. Anderson was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and a cordial vote of thanks was given to him for his past services.

The following brethren were then appointed Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

A. Robertson	Prov. G.S.W.
R. Ridsdale	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. G. Robinson	Prov. G. Chaplain.
Anderson	Prov. G. Treas.
G. Cockburn	Prov. G. Reg.
B. T. Thompson	Prov. G. Sec.
J. Bolam	Prov. G.S.D.
John Harkness...	...	Prov. G.J.D.
J. A. Forbes	Prov. G.S. of W.
Davis	Prov. G.D.C.
S. Hughes	Prov. G.A.D.C.
T. S. Rule	Prov. G. Swd. B.
B. Hall	Prov. G. Org.
R. C. Armstrong	Prov. G. Purs.
J. Taylor	Prov. G.A. Purs.
G. Currie	Prov. G. Tyler.

This concluded the business, and the Prov. G.M. having addressed a few words to his Past Grand Officers and those whom he had that day appointed, the Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

Afterwards, the brethren proceeded to Alnwick Castle, where, on the invitation of the Prov. G.M., and by permission of the Duke of Northumberland, they dined together. Upwards of 700 sat down to dinner, which was served up in the banquetting hall.

The Prov. G.M. on entering the room, was received with honours, and Bro. Davis having stated that her Grace the Duchess of Northumberland was in the gallery, three times three cheers were given.

Grace was sung by a number of the children from the Duchess of Northumberland's school. Grace was also sung after dinner, and his lordship gave the toast of "Her Majesty the Queen," which was drunk with all the honours.

His lordship next gave "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England," which was received with enthusiasm.

The Prov. G.M., Earl Percy, M.P., then gave "The M.W. Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W.D.G.M. Lord Skelmersdale, and the Officers of the Grand Lodge," characterising Lord Carnarvon as a kind friend, a wise adviser, and one who had the interests of Freemasonry at heart. (Cheers.)

The V.W.D.P.G.M. (Bro. Cockcroft) gave "The Health of the Prov. G.M., Earl Percy," which was received with the most vociferous cheering.

His Lordship, in reply, said it gave him great pleasure, before vacating the chair—"no, no"—of seeing the Provincial Grand Lodge assemble in Alnwick for the first time since he had occupied the chair. (Applause.)

Alluding to what he characterised as a lurking notion that he had copied the example of the Marquis of Ripon—"no, no"—he took the opportunity, in the presence of so large an assemblage of the Freemasons of Northumberland, of saying in the most explicit terms that there was not the shadow of a foundation for such reports—(cheers)—and that he was not a Roman Catholic. (Great cheering.) There was nothing to be ashamed of in anyone becoming a Roman Catholic, or in joining any religious denomination, but there was in being afraid to avow it. He repeated he was not a Roman Catholic, and, please God, he never would be. (Great cheering, the whole assembly rising and waving their handkerchiefs.)

He again mentioned this, so that if any one of them heard the story repeated he would be able to contradict it. (Cheers.) In conclusion, he hoped they would never have occasion to regret his occupying that station. (Cheers.) Several other toasts followed.

DUBLIN MASONIC ORPHAN BOYS' SCHOOL.

We have been kindly favoured by our esteemed Bro. William Frazer, F.R.C.S.F., L.K.Q.C.I., &c., &c., of Dublin, and P.M. 494, with the following description of the really handsome medal which has been struck for the prizes in this Institution:—

The medal is of silver. The obverse represents King Solomon consulting with Hiram on the building of the Temple. The king is represented seated, Hiram standing opposite to him, both having their hands placed on a plan of the Temple spread before them, and at Solomon's side are seen his shield and sword, the latter being of the peculiar leaf shape, common in early times with all the primitive races who employed bronze weapons, and which are so well-known to Irish antiquarians from their frequent occurrence amongst the collections of our early antiquities. Both these figures are appropriately draped in flowing robes and crowned, behind them are represented pillars of the Temple and a pyramid of hewn stones, and above the king is a festooned curtain.

In the engraving of the medal is read "1 Chron. xxii." The reverse contains a blank space, reserved for the intended inscription (the boy's name, date, etc.), around this are disposed two symbolic wreaths, one consisting of a branch of the tree acacia (acacia nelotic), the meaning of which every Mason will understand, its leaflets are all disposed so that each leaf looks upwards, and its round flower buds are visible, emblematic of life and hope. The other consists of a wreath of olive leaves to denote the student's victory and its reward.

The Masonic emblems of the compass and square form a suitable junction of the wreaths beneath. Around the outside of these wreaths is inscribed "Masonic Orphan Boys' School, Ireland."

To those familiar with medals it will be sufficient to say, that it measures four minutes scale, or it may be described as being about two inches in diameter.

This medal, by Bro. John Woodhouse, the well-known die sinker of Dublin, who, a few years ago, it will be remembered, designed an equally beautiful medal for the Irish Masonic Female Orphan School.

The Editor of the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Pocket Book" will be glad to receive notice from Secretaries or members of Craft Lodges, Royal Arch Chapters, Mark Lodges, etc., of any change in place or day of meeting since January last.

The City Press of Wednesday last, contained list of the Shareholders of the City of Glasgow Bank.

The license for Music and Dancing was renewed to Bro. John Oliver of the Surrey Masonic Hall at the Surrey Sessions on Thursday.

Bro. John Douglass, proprietor of the Standard Theatre, was installed as W.M. of the Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507, on Wednesday last.

The following reply has been sent by the Prince of Wales to an address presented to him on Saturday by the Freemasons of Alloa:—"To Thomas Milne, Esq., M.D., St. John's Lodge, No. 69, of Freemasons, Alloa, N.B.—Balmoral Hotel, 91, Princes-street, Edinburgh.—Mr. Knowles is desired by the Prince and Princess of Wales to thank the members of St. John's Lodge, No. 69, of Alloa for their address, and for the kind sentiments which they expressed towards their Royal Highnesses and the members of their family. The Prince wishes to take this opportunity to state the great satisfaction which he experienced in finding himself in a position to accept of the appointment of Patron of the Freemasons of Scotland. —October 12, 1878."

The Prince and Princess of Wales, attended by General Sir Deighton Probyn, Colonel Ellis, Mr. F. Knollys, and Miss Knollys, left Marlborough House shortly after 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening for Paris, in order to attend the distribution of prizes in connection with the International Exhibition. Their Royal Highnesses drove to the Charing-cross Station of the South Eastern Railway, where they were received by the Hon. J. Byng (deputy chairman), Mr. R. Withers (director), and Mr. John Shaw, manager and secretary of the line. The special train, which consisted of an engine, two saloon and several other carriages, quitted Charing-cross at 8.20 p.m., and travelling via Tunbridge Junction, Ashford, and Folkestone, arrived at the Admiralty Pier, Dover, at 10.5 p.m., where their Royal Highnesses at once embarked on board the special steamer Maid of Kent for Calais. The address of the English exhibitors and jurors to the Prince of Wales will be presented at the Royal Pavilion on Tuesday morning next.

The Queen's prizes were distributed at the Guildhall on Friday night the 4th inst., to the successful students of the metropolitan drawing classes. The Lord Mayor presided. After an address from Mr. Buckmaster, Bro. the Duke of Connaught, who presented the prizes, said:—"My Lord Mayor, ladies, and gentlemen,—it is at all times a most gratifying task to distribute the prizes for merit, and it is especially so when they are well earned. It enhances their value when we all remember that they required hard work and close attention, for the prizes of the science and art and technical class schools are not easily won, and the examiners insist upon maintaining a high standard of work, and this is especially the case with the Queen's prizes. To obtain them, two things are required—diligence on the part of the pupil and skilfulness on that of the teacher. The results of the present examination have been most successful, and nowhere in the kingdom have they been more so than in the metropolitan classes. In the drawing section alone the metropolitan drawing classes have carried away one-fifth of the drawing prizes awarded the whole kingdom. A certain amount of self-denial is required for men who have worked hard all day to study in the evening, but this adds immensely to their credit and places them at once on a higher level than those who have not availed themselves of those opportunities. I must congratulate the working men of London on having those opportunities of improving themselves in a thorough knowledge of their craft, and on so many of them having taken the opportunities of doing so. The results on this occasion are most satisfactory, and I feel that we must all be aware of the immense amount of good that these classes are doing in this great metropolis. I feel that I should not be doing my duty if I did not express how highly I appreciate the zeal, the energy, and the ability that have been shown by Mr. Busbridge and others in their work. It must be most gratifying to him and those who work with him and under him to see how their labours have been crowned with success. It is to be hoped that these successful results may continue, and that year by year they will take increased interest in this important work." The prizes were then presented.

Bro. John Dodson, W.M. 35, S.W. 1589, has been elected Master of the Wheelwrights' Company.

A friend of mine has among the primest possessions of his house a stout box, five feet long by four feet deep. This is filled with the choicest Trichinopoly cheroots, to which a peculiar flavour is added by the recollection of the fact that they have never paid duty. The flavour was acquired thus: When my friend arrived in Southampton, he fell into the hands of an exceptionally austere Custom House officer. The man insisted upon rooting everywhere, diligently examining boxes innocent of contraband contents, and poking the bed to discover in the mattress probable layers of tobacco. Coming in due course to the box containing cigars, he curtly asked, "What's in this?" "Tobacco," said the traveller from the far East. The Custom House officer turned upon him a withering glance. Here was a man indulging in untimely jests with a responsible officer of H.M. Customs! With an angry snort the offended dignity hurriedly scribbled a cabalistic mark on the box, and passed on to the next luggage. So the chest came ashore duly passed, and duty free.

The directors of the Crystal Palace announce that they are prepared to receive proposals for lighting the concert room and one other portion of the building with the electric light.

A French Flying Machine has been invented by an Oregon electrician. The machine is egg-shaped, made of sheet-iron, measures 8 feet by 5 feet at its greatest diameter, and is to be propelled by electricity produced by a generator of 200 horse-power. The inventor declares that electricity will carry the traveller from New York to San Francisco in ten minutes.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

DALHOUSIE LODGE (No. 860).—The last meeting of this influential lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Thursday, the 10th instant, when there were present, amongst others, Bros. T. B. Dodson, W.M.; Heige, S.W.; Parker, acting J.W.; Dalwood, I.P.M.; Wallington, P.M.; Treas.; Littell, P.M.; Sec.; Dickens, S.D.; Smith, J.D.; Christian, acting I.G.; Baker, D.C.; Burleton, Steward; and Thompson, P.M. The visitors were Bros. J. Dodson, W.M. 55; Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, &c. (Freemason); and Cizens, Organist, Royal Albert. The latter brother, in the absence of Bro. Seymour Smith, ably presided at the harmonium. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. with the assistance of his officers, raised Bros. Jackson, Todd, and Windas, to the Degree of M.M., and initiated Messrs. Crack and Jenkins. The ceremonies were well performed. There being no other business before the lodge it was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave with commendable brevity the customary Royal and Craft toasts, which were duly honoured. In proposing "The Health of the W.M.," the I.P.M. said that considering it was the first essay, the W.M. had performed his lodge duties very creditably. He said that the W.M. was very popular with the members of the Dalhousie Lodge, not only for his geniality, but for his attention to the lodge, and his good qualities generally. He, the I.P.M., had had the pleasure of introducing him to the lodge, and he was very gratified that he had made such rapid strides in Masonry as to be considered by the members of so old a lodge as No. 860 worthy to occupy the proud position of W.M. He had begun his office financially well, and he believed that in Bro. Dodson they had a W.M. who would, at the expiration of his tenure, leave the lodge in good circumstances in every respect. In conclusion, he wished the W.M. health and prosperity. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," the W.M. made a very humorous reply. "The Initiates" followed, and the toast was acknowledged in appropriate terms by the brethren thus honoured. In giving "The Visitors," the W.M. expressed the great gratification he felt at being in a position to dispense the hospitality of the lodge to their visiting brethren, and he hoped that their visit had been in every way satisfactory to them. This toast having been warmly received, Bros. Dodson and Walls responded to it. "The Past Masters" came next. In introducing this toast the W.M. expatiated at length upon the great personal obligations he was under to those distinguished brethren. He said they had also done good suit and service to the lodge, and he hoped that their example would inspire those young members of the Dalhousie Lodge who were "working up" to emulate their good deeds. In referring to the I.P.M., he said that no member could display greater energy in Masonic matters than Bro. Dalwood. He was an excellent "worker," and a most genial brother, but as he had occupied the chair nearly three years, his, the I.P.M.'s, merits were so well known to them all, that he hoped they would pardon his dilating any further on the subject. This toast having been duly honoured, the I.P.M. made a neat and modest response. "The Treasurer and Secretary" came next, and drew from those brethren very able replies, Bro. Littell's speech being particularly good. In giving "The Officers," the W.M. congratulated the lodge upon possessing so strong an array of hard working members. The duties of the chair could not be fairly carried out unless the officers were thoroughly conversant with their respective responsibilities. It would be invidious to make comparisons, but there were two prominent members of the working staff who were deservedly entitled to more than mere honourable mention, and they were Bros. Heige, S.W., and Dickens, S.D. (Hear, hear.) This pledge having been heartily received "The Masonic Press," and the Tyler's Toast terminated the proceedings, which were throughout most eminently successful. During the evening Bro. Cozens and others contributed some very excellent instrumental and vocal music. The next meeting of the lodge will be held on the second Thursday in November next.

WHITTINGTON LODGE (No. 862).—The regular October meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. Alfred Moore, W.M. Amongst the brethren present were the following officers:—Bros. Blakemore, S.W.; Brown, J.W.; Thomas Kingston, P.M., Treasurer; James Weaver, P.M.; Secretary; Tait, J.D.; and Bros. Jones and Walker, Past Masters. The Worshipful Master performed the work, which consisted of initiating Mr. William Jones, and raising Bro. James Irvine. Bro. Blakemore, S.W., was elected as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year; Bro. Thomas Kingston, Treasurer, and Bro. John Gilbert, Tyler; Bro. Pike was elected Treasurer of the Benevolent Fund. A Past Master's jewel was voted to Bro. Moore. The brethren afterwards disposed of some technical business, and subsequently closed lodge. A banquet at Freemasons' Tavern followed, and the usual toasts were proposed. Bro. Walker, P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and in doing so said this was the last time Bro. Moore would have the privilege and honour of presiding, and the toast, therefore, called for more remarks than at the other times he presided. The W.M. had said he was going to have short speeches that evening, and that would be his (Bro. Walker's) excuse, even if he desired to make a long speech, for making a short one. The health of the W.M. was a pleasing subject to talk about. The proper course to pursue would be to recapitulate some of the events of the W.M.'s year, but he could not charge his mind with anything special, excepting that the W.M. had been most exemplary in discharging the duties attached to the office, that he had amply fulfilled the advice which he received when he was installed in the chair, and had shown great courtesy to all. It was a matter of congratulation that it had been so, and that he had not been found wanting in anything which attached to his position. He would like to draw the brethren's attention to the very eloquent and able style in which he had performed the ceremonies. The compliment which the brethren had paid the W.M. by voting to him in the lodge a P.M.'s jewel was well deserved, and the brethren felt so, as was evinced by the general approval with which the motion was received. The money value of the jewel was not so important as the unanimity with which the proposition was greeted, each brother vying with the other to do the W.M. honour. The W.M., in reply, said he highly appreciated the very courteous and kindly manner in which his I.P.M. and friend, Bro. Walker, had referred to him, and also to the brethren for the very generous way in which they had received his remarks. Bro. Walker had referred to his (the W.M.'s) good qualities; but there was no man, as a rule, who, if he asked himself the question, and answered it honourably and honestly, was so well acquainted with his faults as the man himself. He (the W.M.) was conscious of two or three slips during his year of office; but although he was conscious of those slips, he was conscious of this fact, that they had been altogether unintentional. He could not help feeling (and he said it with all candour, relying entirely on that good brotherly feeling which existed amongst the brethren), a little ashamed of himself when he came to the end of the ceremony of raising that evening that he forgot one or two items; but it was six or seven months since he went through it, and he had not had an opportunity of instruction since then. Bro. Walker, however, helped him through the difficulty. He certainly appreciated very much the brethren's goodwill, and he hoped he should always retain it. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Initiate." In building up a house there must be foundation stones, and the initiate would remember he was placed in a certain position in the lodge figuratively to represent the foundation stone. They always welcomed initiates whom they could look forward to as men whose society they would enjoy, and treat essentially as brethren in the true and honest sense of the word. They had with them one that evening who, although he (the W.M.) only knew superficially at present, he wished to speak of as he found him, and in this case he found the initiate a man, who by his manner of going through the ceremony, seemed impressed with the seriousness of the undertaking. In a few words apart with him while sitting at the table the initiate told him he was very much impressed with the poetry and grandeur of the Masonic ritual. Now, when a man told him that he thought the brethren might look upon him as a good and true brother. The toast having been honoured, Bro. William Jones said he was no speaker, and, therefore, would be very brief in what he said; but what he had to say he could say with all his soul. He thanked the brethren for the kindly manner of his reception, and particularly for the kindly assistance he received from those brethren who surrounded him and the W.M. For years, and though his life had not been a long one, he could say, for years and for years he had thought there was something about Masonry which he should like to know, and in knowing, possibly to belong to it; but for the life of him he never could understand what Masonry was, and up to the present he must say he did not know much; but this much he would say, that in the course of his business he had fortunately been thrown among men who had happened to be Masons, with whose character and honesty he was much impressed—very much impressed. On those grounds he was among the brethren that evening. If there was something to be learned then they would find him a very apt student indeed. So far, he might tell them that he highly appreciated what he had seen, among which was the good fellowship by which strangers were pleased to recognise a man as a brother, if that man was respectably introduced to them. He was sure that introduction was realised in the minds of the brethren, and he only hoped that in the future his association with the brethren would be equally agreeable as it had been yet. If it was as agreeable to the end as it was now, he felt assured that it would be pleasant and profitable to all of them. The W.M. proposed "The W.M. Elect." The majority of them had known Bro. Blakemore some years, and had seen how very carefully and conscientiously he had carried out all his duties in every office to which he had been appointed. He (the W.M.) felt certain, and he was sure all the brethren did, that now Bro. Blakemore had been elected to the responsible position of W.M. of the lodge, he would as well fulfil his duties in the future as he had in the past. Bro. Blakemore in responding, said he was pleased that the brethren appreciated his performance of his past duties by calling him to a more important office, in which he hoped to acquit himself with the same credit as the brethren considered he had in the assistant offices. The W.M. had spoken of him in very high terms. He (Bro. Blakemore) did not think he was deserving of such eulogy, but he hoped by the time he had finished his career in office the brethren would give him the same kind vote which on the motion of Bro. Walker had been passed to Bro. Moore. He looked forward to that event with a great deal of pleasure, as it was his highest ambition. When he got it, if he did get it, he should feel that he had deserved the honour which they had conferred on him that evening. The W.M. then proposed "The Past Masters." He felt, as he was very likely soon to be one of that body, that he was interested in the toast, but when he was one of the body, he would try to be a worthy member of it. It was clear to him from his twelve month's experience that the P.M.s. were by no means nonentities, for they were very useful to the W.M., to whom they gave the advantage of their past experiences; having gone through the mill themselves they knew the W.M.'s weak points. They were always able and willing to come and assist the W.M., and of this fact the brethren had had a proof that evening. Bro. Jones and Bro. Walker replied, the latter stating that everything appertaining to the office of Treasurer was in a very prosperous condition; also, that there was no debt, everything having been paid except the small dinner that night. Bro. Kingston, the Treasurer, desired him to say that he had a very large balance in hand, such a one as would charm the hearts of the Auditors a few weeks hence. The W.M. then gave "The Officers." He thought the brethren were all fully conscious of the very excellent way in which the officers conducted their duties. When he joined the Whittington Lodge he was, although ignorant of what Freemasonry was, on the very first occasion impressed very unfavourably with those brethren who had to conduct him through the ceremony, and he remembered, when he was a very young Mason, only three months' old, that he felt so strongly on the point that he spoke out about it, and brought forward a proposition, which was, although unintentionally, offensive. He then proposed that no one should be permitted to take office unless he was able to fulfil the duties. Since that time, though he did not say his proposition had anything to do with it, a better condition of working had prevailed, and so far as the officers were concerned, no Master could succeed unless they were good officers. However well up in his own personal duties he might be, it was impossible he could impress candidates favourably unless he was thoroughly well supported by all his officers. He might do the work as well as it was possible to be done; but if his officers were not efficient, the whole affair went as a piece of machinery would where one cog in a wheel was broken. The initiate to-night would bear him out when he said that everything went as smoothly as it possibly could, and for that smoothness he (the W.M.) was indebted in a great measure to the officers. He had great pleasure in testifying that during his year of office he had been greatly indebted to them. All the officers responded, and the brethren then separated.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, Oct. 16th, at the Spread Eagle Hotel, Wandsworth, under the able presidency of Bro. W. A. Morgan, the W.M. The following officers and brethren were present:—Bros. J. B. Walker, J.W.; H. Wilson, Treasurer; J. Frost, Secretary; W. J. Huntley, J.D.; Fredk. Reed, D.C.; F. W. Wardrop, I.G.; E. H. Boddy, P.M.; J. G. Carter, P.M.; George Howick, P.M.; H. E. Francis (visitor), P.M.; J. G. Kewney, P.M.; H. R. Jones, I.P.M.; P. Cooke, P.M.; C. W. Gray, P.M.; F. H. Newens, P.M.; John Sanders, J. F. Tucker, Percy V. Denham, W. Springett, W. H. Price, A. J. Duck, G. Clark, H. J. Newens, Geo. Fortescue, and A. A. Denham. Bro. Boddy, P.M., filled the position of S.W. Bro. J. Sanders was raised to the Third Degree, Bro. Tucker passed to the Second Degree, and Mr. Joseph William Marshall and Mr. William Field, were initiated by the W.M. It was unanimously resolved, upon the motion of Bro. Carter, P.M., seconded by Bro. Gray, P.M., that a jewel of the value of five guineas, and a purse containing a like amount, be presented to Bro. John Frost, the Secretary, for the very efficient manner in which he had carried on the duties of his office for many years past. At the conclusion of the business an excellent dinner was provided by Bro. H. Dougherty, when the usual loyal, patriotic, and Masonic toasts were given, and responded to.

CAPPER LODGE (No. 1076).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place on Thursday, 10th inst., at the Marine Hotel, Victoria Docks, West Ham, and was opened by Bro. John White, the W.M., at 6 p.m., precisely. The officers present beside the W.M. were J. Dorton, I.P.M.; A. Knox, P.M.; H. B. Holliday, P.M.; F. Brian, S.W.; P. McCarthy, J.W.; B. B. Brayshaw, P.M. and Treas.; Jas. Mitchell, Sec.; H. Taplay, S.D.; T. Job, J.D.;

W. Dorton, I.G.; W. Nevens, D.C.; A. R. Mason, W.S.; M. Sherwin, Org.; and B. Norman, O.G.; The visitors included Bros. F. A. White, P.M. 907; B. Carter, P.M. 898 and 1381; H. Balls, 77; G. H. Stephens, Delraclair, 13; Smith, 1100; and C. Jolly, 913; (Freemason). The lodge having been duly opened, the only business presented was the election of W.M., Treasurer, and O.G., for the ensuing year; and unanimously Bro. Brian, S.W., was elected for the former; Bro. Brayshaw for the second, and Bro. Norman, for the latter position. Bros. Miles, Thomson and Mason, were elected as Auditors, and Bro. P. M. Holliday as President, and Bro. Mason, as Vice President of the Benevolent Fund attached to the lodge, of which a report was received and passed unanimously. It was then unanimously resolved that a Past Master's jewel of the value of ten guineas should be presented to Bro. White, the W.M., as a token of the esteem and respect entertained for him by the lodge, and then it was closed in due form. A pleasant and prettily arranged collation having been discussed, the W.M., gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, Bro. Sherwin, singing a verse of the National Anthem, at that of "The Queen and the Craft;" and here we may say "en passant," that his manipulation of the harmonium during the evening materially enhanced the charms of the very good singing that enlivened the proceedings. Bro. Dorton then gave "The W.M." and in so doing said he rose with a great deal of pleasure to propose the toast, one that they as Masons always delighted to honour in that lodge, it was that of their W.M. (Cheers). As he had had an opportunity once before that evening of saying, with respect to Bro. White, they had watched him closely during his year of office, and seen how he had striven to do his duty, and how faithfully he had done it. They were about to lose him, that was to say, he would soon leave that chair to which he had been so great an honour, and on his leaving it, he Bro. Dorton only desired to convey to him the sentiments of both himself and the lodge when he wished him every happiness and prosperity. (Loud cheers.) He had done his duty well, and faithfully, and when he came among them, the Past Masters, they would receive him with as much pleasure as he felt sure the lodge would with regret at his leaving the chair. (Cheers). The toast having been drunk most enthusiastically. Bro. White, in reply said, after thanking the brethren for their hearty reception of his name, that he could not do more than he had done in the lodge, or say more to thank them than he had said. If it were possible he would only intensify them. Their kindness would always be remembered by him, and so long as he lived, so long would their esteem be the most precious memory of his life. (Loud Cheers). The next toast was that of "The Visitors." The W.M. said he was pleased to say they had rather an extended list of visitors, and he felt that the brethren of the Capper Lodge would give them such a reception as would bring them again to the lodge. (Cheers and laughter). Bro. White in reply expressed his pleasure at seeing the marked change there was in the lodge. It was not the first time he had been with them, and although that night he had not had the pleasure of seeing the W.M. work yet he felt sure it was such as maintained the good working name for which the Capper Lodge was noted. (Cheers). For himself he thanked the W.M., and was pleased to see the unanimity and good feeling which existed in the lodge at the present time, and trusted it would continue. (Applause). The next toast was that of the "Past Masters," and in reply to a very flattering yet earnest eulogium of the W.M., Bro. Dorton said that during the time he had sat at the left of the W.M., he had always endeavoured to do his duty. It was the last time he should have the honour of being so close to the chair, and the last time he should have the honour of responding to that toast, but he should always remember with pleasure and pride the year he had sat as I.P.M. in the Capper Lodge. (Loud Cheers).

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The last meeting of this lodge was held at the Club House, Kennington Oval, on the 1st instant, when there were present Bros. Reeves, W.M.; Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, S.W.; Kohler, J.W.; Higgins, I.P.M.; Page, P.G.S., P.M., &c.; Treasurer; Sturat, P.M.; Secretary; Speedy, S.D.; Marston, I.G.; Robinson, D.C.; Honeywell, P.M.; Organist; Stokes, W.S.; Stranger, A.W.S.; Koch, P.M.; Everett, P.M.; Drysdale, P.M.; Pope, P.M. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M., with the assistance of his officers, installed Messrs. Baldock and Boyce into Craft mysteries in a very careful manner. The ballot for Bros. Downie, 186, and Collett, 1470, as joining members, proved to be unanimous. There being no other business before the lodge it was duly closed, and the members and visitors adjourned to the banquet. Amongst the latter were Bros. Fox, P.M. 73; Wood, I.G. 180; J. Kent, 177. The Royal and Craft toasts having been done full justice to, Bro. Higgins, I.P.M., rose and proposed "The W.M." In the course of his remarks he congratulated the W.M. upon the careful manner in which he had performed the ceremony of initiation that evening. He also said that the W.M. was deserving of great praise for having surmounted many difficulties that had arisen in consequence of his business engagements, and which in a less zealous brother might have materially interfered with the proper performance of his Masonic duties. In conclusion, he wished him every prosperity and happiness during the remainder of his year of office. This toast having been warmly received, the W.M. made a brief response, in which he said that it was very pleasing after a recess of six months, to meet them again. He was sorry that they had not met in greater numbers, but this, no doubt, was due in a great measure to the continuance of the fine weather, which had tempted many of their members to extend their holidays. He incidentally mentioned that he had suffered a very severe domestic bereavement since their last meeting, but he was very grateful and thankful that his health had permitted him to preside there that evening. He looked forward to a very pleasant termination to his year of office as Master of the Kennington Lodge, and, in conclusion, he congratulated the members upon its prosperous position, financially and otherwise. "The Initiates" followed, and was duly acknowledged by Bro. Baldock and Boyce. The toast of "The Visitors" drew from the brethren thus honoured a very warm and flattering acknowledgement of the hospitable manner in which they had been entertained. In proposing "The Past Masters," the W.M. made some very humorous remarks in praise of each. In conclusion, however, he expressed his personal obligations to those brethren for the assistance and counsel they had freely given him from his advent in the lodge to the present time, and he believed that no young lodge possessed so strong and distinguished a body of Past Masters as No. 1381 did. This toast was briefly acknowledged by the I.P.M. "The Treasurer and Secretary," "The Officers," and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a termination. During the evening Bro. Honeywell and others musically entertained the brethren, who separated until the first Tuesday in November next.

ECCLESTON LODGE, (No. 1624).—The installation meeting of this young and flourishing lodge was held on Wednesday evening, Oct. 16, at the Grosvenor Hall, Pimlico, and was most numerously attended. Bro. D. H. M'Leod, W.M., presided, and was supported by his officers, and a great array of visitors, amongst whom were Bros. Wade, 860; Steel, P.M. 1194; Pollard, 858; Summers, 1360; T. Poore, P.M. 720; Wyer, I.P.M. 1314; Bond, 1314; K. Smith, 1441; Cameron, P.M. 180; Holland, P.M. 173; Collard, 149; Cantler, P.M. 1441; Hunt, 1772; Renshaw, 194; Crow, 141; Beckett, 780; Hunt, 1348; Baker, 1641; H. Thompson, 1426 and P.M. 177 and 1158 (Freemason); and others. The lodge having been opened in the First and Second Degrees three brethren were then duly passed as F.C. The next business was to install Bro. Joseph Charles Flattely, the W.M. elect, into the chair. Having been duly presented and addressed all the brethren below the chair were requested to retire, when a Board of Installed Masters, thirteen in number, was formed, and Bro. Flattely was installed into the chair of K. S. by Bro. M'Leod, the retiring Master. This part of the ceremony, as well as the rest of it, was performed with an ease and impressiveness that elicited the warmest expressions of approval from some of the oldest and most experienced Past Masters who formed the Board of Installed Masters. On the brethren being admitted, and the new W. Master having received the customary salutes, he appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. Vincent, S.W.; Samuel Jones, J.W.; Isaacs, Treasurer; Beckham, Secretary; J. Hoole Fisher, S.D.; E. Powell, J.D.; Wedham, Organist; Goole, I.G.; C. Taylor, and H. Johnson, Dir. of Cers; Jackson and Wilson, Stewards; Tapp and Thomas, Tylers. Bro. M'Leod then delivered the addresses to the Master, Wardens and Brethren in a careful and impressive manner. The new W. Master immediately entered upon his duties, and in a most able manner initiated Mr. Joseph Ashbourn and Mr. John Reece Jones into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The business of the lodge was then brought to a close, and the brethren retired to the banquet room, the W. Master presiding. On the withdrawal of the cloth, the W. Master said that the first toast he had to bring under the notice of the brethren was one that always met with a hearty response in the Eccleston Lodge, as it was that of "The Queen and the Craft." There was no company of Englishmen who were assembled under whatever name it might bear, but that name was cordially received, and it was a name that was respected and loved throughout the whole of the civilised world. He gave them then "The Queen and the Craft." The toast was cordially received and followed by the National Anthem, the solo parts by the professional singers. The W. Master said the next toast he had to propose was "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master, H.R. H. The Prince of Wales." As the first member of the Royal Family he was entitled to their highest consideration, but when they knew that he was their Most Worshipful Grand Master that gave him an additional claim to their consideration. From the time of his installation he had lost no opportunity of showing his great desire to make himself a thorough Mason. He hoped, therefore, that the brethren would cordially respond to this toast and in a manner that the subject of it deserved. The toast was drunk, followed by a sharp and ringing "fire" and Brinley Richard's well-known song. The W. Master said the next toast he had to propose was "The Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, the Right Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers." He said that they were not that night honoured by the presence of any of the Grand Officers, but if they were they would not be able to tell them any more than he (the W. Master) that they were a most hard-working and zealous body, and they might see by the Masonic Press that the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and Bro. Hervey, the Grand Secretary, were constantly at work either consecrating new lodges or installing brethren in others. He was sure, therefore, that the brethren would heartily respond to the toast of "The Grand Officers." Bro. M'Leod, I. Past Master, said for the first time an instrument had been placed in his hands which really did not belong to him, the W. Master had placed in his hands his gavel, and in Masonry that was synonymous to a request that they would pay respect to the chair, to the W. Master of the Eccleston Lodge. The toast he had to propose was "The Health of the W. Master of the Eccleston Lodge." He was sure that Bro. Flattely deserved their applause, for in his person was exemplified everything that was good in Freemasonry, and he believed that those good qualities would also be maintained by those who might follow him to the chair. He would make no invidious distinction between those who might come ten, twenty, or fifty years hence as Worshipful Masters of the Eccleston Lodge, for they would never forget those great principles which as Freemasons it was their pride to promulgate, as he was sure their W. Master would do credit to the lodge he asked the brethren to give him their confidence. The situation of a Master of a lodge was by no means a sinecure, and if he made the slightest slip in any respect, it might take a long time to eradicate any feeling which might arise therefrom, and he had felt that himself. If he was sure, however, he was doing that which was right, any complaints he should "pass by as the idle word which he regarded not," as he had a duty to perform and to use the power he possessed conscientiously, so that it might be satisfactory to the lodge and the brethren therein. He need not speak as to the good qualities of Bro. Flattely as they were so well-known in Freemasonry. He had now attained to the summit of his profession, and he felt sure that he would conduct the affairs of the lodge with credit to himself and the satisfaction of the brethren. He gave then "The Health of Bro. Flattely, the W. Master of the Eccleston Lodge." The W. Master in responding to the toast, said his Bro. M'Leod had described him in such eulogistic terms that he scarcely knew how to reply to the toast, but he would say that when he first put himself forward to become Master of the lodge he made a resolve to follow in his footsteps, and conduct the affairs of the lodge in a careful and effective manner. He had carried out that determination from the commencement to the best of his ability, and with the assistance of his brother officers and the brethren he trusted that at the end of his Masonic year that they would accord to him the same hearty response as he was sure they would do to the toast he should have to propose. He could assure them that nothing should be wanting on his part to make the Eccleston Lodge second to none in the Craft. The W. Master said the next toast he had to propose he looked upon as the toast of the evening, and one that he approached with diffidence, as he feared he should not do that justice to it that it deserved, it was "The Health of their Immediate Past Master," he did not believe that any brother could hold up his hand and say that he had not carried out his duties most successfully, for he had never seen him, from the time he took the chair to his leaving it, but most efficiently did he carry out every duty he was called upon to perform. He defied any one to say that the ritual of Freemasonry was ever more correctly or better rendered than it had been by their Past Master. He was endowed with a peculiarly good memory, and he had shown from the first to the last that he could carry out the duties of the lodge in the most successful manner. He might add that their Past Master was second to none in his zeal and earnestness in promulgating the principles of Freemasonry, and he hoped that the day was very far distant when the Eccleston Lodge would lose the benefit of the services of Bro. M'Leod. It would be wrong in him (the W.M.) to say much more in proposing the toast, for he was sure that every brother was satisfied with what he had done, and he had great pleasure in investing him with a jewel, as an evidence of the esteem in which he was held amongst the brethren of the lodge; trusting that for many years he might wear it with credit to himself as the second Master of the Eccleston Lodge. Bro. M'Leod, in returning thanks said, on the present occasion it was indeed difficult to find words to express the sentiments which were so closely wound round his heart and breast, and give utterance to them; the brethren had worked, and he had worked in the Eccleston Lodge, and he was sure they would join with him in expressing the delight and satisfaction at the proceedings of that evening, and having reached the climax they could not but be satisfied. From the manner in which they had received his name he felt assured that whether it was at the immediate time or in the vista of the distant future, the members who might arrive at the same position as he had done, would use the power for the purpose of carrying out what was excellent in Freemasonry, such as had been developed that evening. He need not, however, dwell on the excellence of Freemasonry, as in performing his duty as Installing Master he had to impress upon them the beauties of Freemasonry, to present to them a garland rich in the choicest blossoms, and as members of the Eccleston Lodge to show them that in their path there lay open to them beauty and honours leading to credit and renown. It ought to be their ambition to obtain the highest position in the Craft, and being imbued with the genuine tenets of the Order, seek to obtain the position of W. Master; for he was one to whom not only homage was paid in having the privilege of promulgating principles which were not only beneficial to the Craft but to mankind at large. He felt that he had done what had met with their approbation. He said "God bless the Eccleston Lodge," and might every brother work industriously to obtain his position of W. Master. Throughout the globe might Freemasonry flourish and inculcate those principles he had impressed upon them in the installation ceremony, which he might paraphrase in the words of a great poet:

"As some still cliff that lifts its awful form

Swells from the vale and midway leaves the storm.

Though round its breast the rolling clouds are spread Eternal sunshine settles on its head."

He trusted that would be the destiny of Freemasonry, and he felt sure that amongst themselves they were privileged to promulgate principles having for their object the welfare of mankind throughout the globe, and that they would go on inculcating those lessons which were taught to every deserving man who was inrolled under their banners. He should carefully preserve the jewel with which they had presented him, which he should ever wear with pride as a token that he had deserved the approbation of the members of the Eccleston Lodge. He had a family, and he hoped in time to introduce his son amongst them, with a hope that he might attain to the same honours. The W.M. then said as regarded the rest of the toasts he should be very brief, as the hour was late, and the next toast he had to give was that of "The Initiates." What blood was to the human frame so was it to Freemasonry, for without the infusion of new blood Freemasonry would die out, and he felt sure from the careful manner in which their initiates had gone through the ceremonies that night that they would do credit to their Order. Bro. Ashtown returned thanks, and said it was his intention to work hard so as to become a good Mason. The W. Master then gave "The Past Masters of the Lodge," for which Bro. Hunt returned thanks. The W. Master said he had another toast, which he felt some difficulty in proposing, as it included in it some of the most distinguished brethren in the Craft, and that was the toast of "The Visitors." He simply told the brethren that they had amongst them some of the most experienced Past Masters of the Craft, and the Eccleston Lodge felt honoured at their presence at the installation, and he was glad that nothing went wrong, but all went on in a smooth and pleasing manner. He called upon the brethren to respond in a manner worthy of the toast, it was a toast that was worthy of their approbation, and that was the health of their brother visitors. Bro. Poore, of the Panmure Lodge, and Bro. Wyer, of the Acacia Lodge, responded for the visitors; and after some other toasts had been given the proceedings were brought to a close at rather an advanced hour. Bro. Jos. Cantle was the director of the musical arrangements, and he was assisted by Bros. Frank Percival, Knight Smith, and D. H. McLeod. The floral and other decorations of the banqueting room were supplied by Bro. Beckham, the Secretary of the Lodge.

ALDERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—The autumn session of this lodge commenced on Monday, October, 14th, when the brethren assembled at the Castle and Falcon, Aldersgate-street, under the care of the Rev. Dr. Ernest Brette, W.M. of the lodge. The brethren attending included Bros. J. D. Allcroft, M.P., I.P.M.; Chas. Hogg, M.D., S.W.; A. J. Altman, J.W.; George Kenning, Treas.; Thomas Jones, Sec.; Rev. Richard Lee, M.A., J.D.; E. Y. Jolliffe, D.C.; H. Alder Smith, M.D., I.G.; Thomas Benskin, and W. S. Chapman, Stewards; and the following brethren, Bros. John Jackson, Samuel Benton, M.D.; Alfred Brookman, S. White, W. W. Landell (a M. in 1821); and Hyde Pullen. The following visitors were also present, Bros. W. A. Barrett, W.M. Orpheus, 1706; Herbert Dicketts, P.G.S.; Glove, 23; E. R. Marriott, S.W. Isaac Newton, University, 859; and W. Steedman, Tyler. The business of the evening included the consideration of a communication from the Grand Lodge on the recent action of the Grand Orient of France. This consideration was preceded by the W.M. requiring the Secretary to read the 1st Charge of the Book of Constitutions. The lodge endorsed and supported the action of the Grand Lodge. After the despatch of sundry business, the brethren received instruction upon the First Tracing Board from Bro. Hyde Pullen, delivered with all the grace and unction that distinguishes this learned and respected brother. The cause of the Charities was brought before the lodge by the W.M., and it was arranged that the February gathering would be attended to by the W.M., that in June by Bro. Brookman, and that in July by Bro. Altman. The lodge being closed in due form with solemn prayer, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, under the care of the W.M. After one of Bro. Benskin's elegant banquets, the W.M. challenged the brethren in the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were responded to with more than the usual enthusiasm. The health and welfare of the W.M., the past W.M., the officers, and the visitors, were acknowledged with true Masonic vigour, and acknowledged by Bros. Brette, Allcroft, Hogg, Altman, Landell, Dicketts, Marriott, and the Secretary. The brethren separated at an early hour in the evening, to meet on the second Monday in November.

NEW FINSBURY PARK LODGE (No. 1695).—The second installation meeting of this lodge took place at Bro. Pigot's, the Finsbury Park Tavern, Seven Sisters'-road, Holloway, on Tuesday, 15th inst. Present: Bros. W. L. Purkiss, W.M.; J. Eldridge, P.M., acting as S.W.; T. Press, J.W.; R. V. Davies, P.M., Treas.; A. J. Berry, Sec.; H. B. O. Dunn, S.D.; R. C. Frampton, J.D.; J. N. Thompson, I.G.; J. Pigot, P.M.; G. D. Edmunds, G. B. Carey, T. Jackson, C. Hutchinson, C. H. Hawkes, J. H. Bastable, S. Hawkins, E. Groat, G. Chutter. Visitors: Bros. H. G. Buss, Assist. G. Sec.; T. Cubitt, P.G.P.; J. Terry, P.J.G.W. Herts.; E. Clark, P.P. G.S. of Works Middlesex; H. Hollis, P.G.S.B. Herts.; F. Kirk, W.M. 1687; W. B. Stannard, 1275; G. E. Frodsham, 3; W. Wilkinson, 167; F. T. Cox, 753. Bros. Bastable and Hawkins were raised, and Bros. Hawkes, Groat, and Chutter were passed. The Master having been re-elected for a second year, was saluted, and he then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. T. Press, S.W.; H. B. O. Dunn, J.W.; Davies, Treas.; A. T. Berry, Sec.; R. C. Frampton, S.D.; J. N. Thompson, J.D.; G. Edmunds, I.G.; Eldridge, P.M., Director of Ceremonies; Groat, Organist; Carey, Steward. Bro. Terry gave the addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren. A letter was read from the Secretaries to the Wentworth Little Memorial Fund, and a donation of £1 is. was voted. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. After the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," and "The M.W.G. Master," had been proposed, and loyally responded to, "The Health of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers" was given, and ably responded to by Bros. Buss and Cubitt. The toast of "The Visitors" elicited some excellent replies from Bros. Clarke, Woller, and others. On the toast of "The Masonic Charities" being given and responded to, Bro. Terry made his usual eloquent appeal for assistance for the maintenance of those Institutions and alluded to the position the New Finsbury Park Lodge had taken at so early a period of its existence. The W.M., who stood as Steward for the Benevolent Institution and the Boys' School at their last festival, announced his intention of acting as Steward for the Girls' School on the next occasion. The remaining usual toasts were given and responded to, and several of the brethren having contributed their vocal assistance, a most enjoyable evening was passed, contributed to, no doubt, by the excellence of the banquet, which was served in Bro. Pigot's well known liberal manner.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 309).—The first meeting of the session was held at the Masonic Hall on Tuesday, the 1st inst. Present Bros. Schiemann, W.M.; Roberts, S.W.; Wilson, P.M., Treasurer (acting J.W.); Carter, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., Berks and Bucks, Secretary; Dixon, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., Director of Ceremonies; Tolley, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., Organist; Cousins, J.D.; Dick Radclyffe, P.G.S., I.G.; Apted and Evans, Stewards; Past Masters Hume, P.G.D.C.; Stacey, P.P. G.R.; Strange, P.P.G.D.; Reid; McIlwham; Stedwell; and Long. Visitors Bros. Dr. Hartmann; Cantrell, P.M. 1501; Davey, S.D. 1566; Baum, 198; Bingham, P.M. 771; Johnson, 771, and others. Bros. Brinsmead and Stevens were raised to the Third Degree. Bro. Dixon, Director of Ceremonies, called attention to the fact that since the last meeting of the lodge, The Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Sir D. Gooch, Bart., M.P., had appointed Bro. Hume, I.P.M., as P.G.D.C., and Bro. Dick Radclyffe as P.G. Steward. The brethren present thereupon saluted the two new Provincial Grand Officers in due form.

LIVERPOOL.—Merchants' Lodge (No. 241).—The usual meeting of this lodge, held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-st., on Tuesday evening, the 8th inst., was rendered especially interesting by the fact that all the recently appointed and invested P.G. Lodge Officers (mentioned in last week's Freemason) were invited to be present, and this kind and cordial invitation was so generally accepted as to make this meeting certainly one of the most brilliant (so far as the "purple" and more modest "crimson" officers were concerned) which has been witnessed for a considerable time within the walls of the Masonic Hall. The lodge was duly opened by Bro. James Winsor, W.M., who was ably supported by the following officers:—Bros. Geo. Peet, P.M.; Geo. Hutchin, P.M.; Richard Brown, P.M.; R. Robinson, P.M. and P.G. Registrar; J. H. Sheen, S.W. Thos. Salter, J.W.; Dr. S. J. McGeorge, P.M., P.P.G.R. Treas.; Wm. Williams, Sec.; Jno. Latta, S.D.; Thor. Whitehead, S.D.; Geo. Broadbridge, P.M. P.P.G.D.C., D.C.; A. B. Ewart, Organist; and Jas. Pendleton, I.G., and a large number of members and visiting brethren. The First and Third Degrees were given by the W.M. in a most impressive manner, and he was ably assisted by the full staff of officers. At the end of the business one proposition was made for rejoining and two for initiation, and hearty good wishes were given from numerous brethren. At the banquet which followed, presided over by Bro. James Winsor, W.M., the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and cordially responded to. In giving "Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., R.W.P.G.M., and the P.G.L. Officers," the W.M. called particular attention to the remarks of the R.W.P.G.M. as to the support of the London Charities, and expressed a hope the lodges and individual brethren would act vigorously on the suggestions made by his Lordship. The toast was responded to by Bro. Robertson, P.M. 32. Prov. J.G.W.; Bro. Rev. J. Rees Jenkins, W.M. 216 Prov. G. Chaplain; Bro. R. Robinson, Prov. G. Reg.; Bro. J. T. Callon, Prov. G. Treas.; Bro. W. Archer, Prov. J.G.D.; Bro. O. J. Hayes and Bro. W. J. Newman, Prov. G. Stewards. "The Visitors," was responded to by Bro. Mellor, P.P.G.J.D., North Wales and Shropshire; Bro. Rigby, P.P.G. Pura. Cheshire; Bro. Ford, W.M. 1380; Bro. Henochsberg, J.D. 1502. "The Newly Initiated" followed, and then "The P.M. of the Lodge and Officers." The former portion was responded to by Bro. Councillor G. Peet, I.P.M., and with the latter the W.M. coupled the name of Bro. Williams, Secretary, who is about to leave England for the sake of his health. Bro. Williams responded in feeling terms. I.P.M., Bro. Peet proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which he acknowledged in fitting terms. The lodge being recalled to labour a notice of motion was given that 25 guineas be given out of the funds of the lodge to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Very general satisfaction was expressed by the brethren at the excellent manner in which the new House Steward, Bro. Chaplin, had prepared the banquet.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, on the 9th inst., Bro. J. Jowett, W.M., occupied the chair of K.S., and there was a good attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge having been opened in due form, the sectional lectures in the First Degree were given by the following brethren:—First Section, Bro. Warbrick, J.W.; Second, Bro. Ellershaw, S.W. 1353; Third, Bro. John Hatch, P.M. and Secretary; Fourth, Bro. Richard Stanton; Fifth, Bro. E. Cardwell, S.W. At their conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was passed to them, on the resolution of Bro. E. Simpson, P.M., seconded by Bro. J. L. Whimpray, P.M. The usual proclamations were then made, which elicited hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren, and the lodge closed in peace, love and harmony.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—This lodge held its monthly meeting on the 7th inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, Bro. A. A. Sheriff, I.P.M., presided, but there was not a numerous attendance. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree, the ballot was taken for Mr. John G. Curtis, supervisor of Inland Revenue, and, proving unanimous, he was duly initiated in the mysteries of Masonry by the W.M., the working tools being presented by Bro. Taylor, the J.W. Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B. of E., gave a short resumé of the proceedings at the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire, held on the 2nd inst., at Liverpool, under the presidency of Lord Skelmersdale. In the course of his remarks Bro. Mann said, although he was not in a position to state it affirmatively, yet he had every reason to suppose that the next meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire would be held at Morecambe, an announcement which was received with much applause. The usual proclamations were then made and responded to, and the lodge closed in accordance with the formularies of the Craft.

LIVERPOOL.—Temple Lodge (No. 1094).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 9th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, under the presidency of Bro. T. S. Williams, W.M., the officers and members present being Bros. B. C. Yelland, P.M.; T. Birch, J.W.; R. R. Martin, P.M., acting as S.W.; Joseph Wood, Treas. (Freemason); T. Marsh, P.P.G.A.D.C., Sec.; H. B. Jones, S.D.; J. Alexander, J.D.; H. Horspool, I.G.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O., Org.; T. Carr, S.; Peter Ball, Tyler; R. A. Drake, R. Bethel, E. W. Boukling, G. Pringle, J. Cave, E. Septon, W. Callow, and others. The lodge was opened at six o'clock, and after the minutes had been read and other business transacted, Bro. Mercer being proposed as a joining member by Bro. R. C. Yelland, P.M., seconded by Bro. R. R. Martin, P.M. After labour the brethren adjourned to refreshment, presided over by the W.M., who gave the standard loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Martin, P.M., having possession of the gavel, said—W.M., officers, and brethren, I am about to depart from our usual custom by proposing for your acceptance the health of our respected W.M., whose presence amongst us to-night in that chair, which he so worthily fills, will justify the course I take, and met with a hearty response. Brethren, he has passed through a serious affliction, and we all have missed the kind, affable, and unassuming gentleman, who now, under the blessing of the G.A.O.T.U., is once more at his post. I will not say he is the most popular Master we ever had, but I do say, and old members will bear me out in saying it, that we never had in his predecessors a more attentive and painstaking W.M., and it will be very difficult to find one so perfect in all his points, and what we much admire, more punctual in attendance. Now, brethren, let us heartily and thankfully join in wishing him long to be spared to his family and his lodge, and as the brethren of the Temple Lodge well know how to manifest their love to their Master, I ask you to join me in drinking his very good health, and may the day be far distant when we shall no longer see him in our midst. Unmistakable enthusiasm prevailed in the room as each brother gave "Our Worshipping Master," and then followed the usual honours and capital firing, which caused Bro. Williams to be visibly affected. Bro. Williams, W.M., who was most cordially received, then rose, and said—Bro. Past Master Martin, I thank you very sincerely for your kind expressions with reference to myself, and you, brethren, for the hearty and generous manner in which you have received them. I can but feebly express the pleasure I feel in being once more with my dear and long tried friends and brethren; often during the time I have been laid aside by illness have I thought of you, and anticipated the meeting with you again. And it has ever been so in my association with the Temple Lodge, for from the first evening when I was introduced into our old lodge room by our dear Bro. Washington I have received at your hands nothing but kindness, courtesy, and brotherly love; and I thank you, I trust honestly, and without reserve, for all these proofs of your attachment and esteem—and never more so than at the present moment. And I feel proud of your good opinion, proud that I have a place in your hearts. What man does not? Indeed, if a man told any of us that he did not care for the good opinion of his fellow men, we should not believe him, or think he had sunk very low in the social scale. I see around me this evening many dear and valued brethren, some with whom we have had sweet communion have passed away from us, but I think we may look upon these occasional social gatherings, including, as they do, the society, and good wishes of those we highly prize, as among the brightest spots in our lives. And brethren, as in social life, so it is in our home and domestic lives. How we prize the affections of the dear ones at home! How their love helps us through our daily duties! Brethren, we know by experience that these are times of deep depression and anxiety in our commercial and manufacturing interests, indeed, in every department of trade; and what I ask, is more cheering to the business man, the proper husband and father, when he walks into his home after a hard and anxious day's labour and trials, than to feel that he is with those who love him dearly, who think him the best and kindest of men, those who watch his every expression because they know each of them is dear to him, dearer than his own life, yes, brethren, these are amongst the bright spots in our daily experience; these are some of the silvery fringes to the clouds which at times overhang our days, let us then appreciate them rightly and truly, let us prize them as amongst the best gifts of a loving and kind God and father. Excuse, brethren, these few remarks, I was not aware that Bro. Martin intended to make any reference to myself until a minute or two before he rose. I thank you again for all your love and sympathy, and may every blessing you have wished for me be returned to each of you in tenfold abundance. The W.M. then retired, and Bro. Martin took the chair, when Bro. the Rev. P. Pennington, P.M. 249, entered, and was received with acclamation. His health was proposed, and he addressed a few words to the brethren upon old associations, and expressed surprise at the reception awarded him. Bros. Bethe and Birch added much to the pleasure of the evening by their vocalisation.

HARRINGTON.—Curwen Lodge (No. 1400).—The annual meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Wednesday afternoon, the 9th inst., Bro. William Carlyle having, at the preceding lodge meeting, been unanimously elected as W.M. for the ensuing year. The brethren of the lodge mustered in good force to do him honour on this auspicious occasion. There were also a considerable number of brethren present from neighbouring lodges. Bro. Carlyle has held office as Treasurer of the lodge from the first, and he also took no small part in its establishment. He was Junior Warden elect of the lodge when it was commenced, and for the honourable position of W.M. he has been on a number of occasions strongly solicited to offer himself, but he always retired in favour of other brethren. On this occasion, the solicitations of the brethren could not be discarded by him, and consequently all other candidates retired in his favour. He was also re-elected as Treasurer. Bros. Gibson and Kenworthy, who have all along kindly undertaken the duties of the installations, again officiated in that capacity. Bro. Johnson, the retiring W.M., opened the lodge at three o'clock, and was ably assisted by his officers. The following members of 1400 were present:—Bros. J. Dick, M.D., P.M., as S.W.; J. R. Bain, P.M.; F. Dixon, P.M.; J. Tallentire, J.W.; W. Carlyle, Treas.; J. W. Young, P.M. and Sec.; R. Harkness, I.G.; W. Wagg, 962, as Tyler; Joseph Hodgson, Dryden Carver, John Hartley, John Back, James Scott, Thomas Maxwell, John Scott, Joseph Musgrave, Jabez Hawkins, also the following visitors:—Bros. T. C. Robinson, Sec. 1002; W. Whitehead, 962; John J. Little, 962; Isaac Evening, 1002; S. S. Braithwaite, 872; Jos. Kay, J.W. 872; F. Hodgson, S.W. 872; J. Wood, I.P.M. 962; E. Tyson, W.M. 119; John Rothery, J.W. 119; J. P. Barnett, 962; J. J. Beattie, P.M. 962; Rees Thomas, 962; William Wagg, Tyler 962; G. B. M'Mullen, 962; John H. Banks, 371; W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119, P.G. Sec.; G. W. Kenworthy, P.M. 119, P.G. Treas.; John J. Coverdale, Sec. 962. The newly-installed Master invested his officers as follows:—Bros. John Hartley, S.W.; James Scott, J.W.; Rev. A. F. Curwen, P.M., Chaplin; J. W. Young, P.M., Sec.; Dryden Carver, S.D.; John Little, J.D.; Daniel Dickinson, D.C.; John Back, Steward; James Batt, I.G.; John Cumming, Tyler. After the usual proclamations and charges were delivered by the Installing Masters, the lodge was closed. The brethren met at a banquet at the Globe (Mrs. Ditchburn's), at five o'clock, which was set out in the best of style, reflecting the highest credit on the establishment. The chair was taken by Bro. Carlyle, the Worshipful Master. The usual loyal, patriotic, and Craft toasts were duly honoured, and the brethren separated after spending a most enjoyable evening.

PLUMSTEAD.—United Military Lodge (No. 1536).—An emergency meeting of the above lodge took place on Friday, the 11th inst., and was pleasantly noticeable for the excellent work done by the new W.M., Bro. Hay Grieve Picken, as well as for the unanimity and kindness that somehow insensibly pervades the whole atmosphere of it, making it a pleasure indeed to assist at its meetings, and mingle with its gallant and jovial members. The work comprised the initiation of Mr. D. Hickey, the balloting for Bro. F. H. Field, A.S.C., P.M. 1436 and 1331, and W.M. 558, the passing of Bro. Chamberlain, and the raising of Bros. Latten, Howe, Barker, Penfold, and Hawksford, all of which was most satisfactorily carried out, the expectations of the brethren being fully realized by the fine working of their W.M. Besides the W.M. the following officers were present, H. Shaw, S.W.; D. Deves, J.W.; W. Murphy, Treas.; G. Kennedy, Sec.; W. Wilding, S.D.; A. Brooks, J.D.; T. Hollyman, I.G.; G. Spinks, I.P.M.; W. Weston, P.M.; G. Lackland, Tyler. Among the visitors were Bros. J. G. Whomes, P.P.G.W. Makta; T. F. Kenneday, P.M. 67; T. Hassell, 13; R. Beaver, 700; F. West, 700; J. F. Randall, 913; G. Beaver, 700; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason). The toasts were given and received, and on all sides the W.M. was congratulated for the manner in which he, by his endeavours, had maintained the prestige of the lodge. "The Visitors" received their welcome right loyally, and responded in form to the hearty reception of the toast; nor is the reception of visitors here a mere matter of form, they are impressed with the treat given them both Masonically and socially, and pay the lodge the greatest honour possible by attending again and again. Several toasts followed the ordinary ones, nor was time encroached upon in the matter, for the harmony throughout was well sustained. Bro. Jolly, as the representative of this journal, had his name toasted with musical honours, mention being made by the W.M. of the handsome sum of £25 contributed by him to the Relief Fund of the "Princess Alice," through the sale of some verses, of which he was the author, and Bro. Jolly feelingly replied. Bro. Norman, one of the oldest and most respected Masons in the district, was next complimented, and then the brethren dispersed, after a most enjoyable evening.

EALING.—West Middlesex Lodge (No. 1612).—A most interesting meeting of the members and friends took place at Ealing, on the 14th inst., the occasion being the installation of Bro. Thomas Kingston, P.M. of the Whittington Lodge, as W.M. for the ensuing year. This lodge meets at the Mechanics' Institute, and the rooms are well adapted for the purpose, but on this occasion they were too small, as several brethren were unable to be accommodated with seats. The day was fine, and rendered a visit by London brethren very agreeable. No better proof of the vitality of Freemasonry, and of its power to bring men together for mutual good can be shown than the career of this lodge. It has no history; it is far too young to talk of its Past Masters. It is but two years old, and during those years Bro. Beasley has been the only W.M. He claims, and justly, to be the father of the lodge, and the brethren have great cause to be proud of their "father;" he is not fatherly in appearance, being in the prime of life, but he performs his Masonic duties with all the skill and ease with which the "father," whether it be of a lodge or of a family, should be distinguished. The way in which he installed Bro. Kingston, was admirable, and well worth a journey from London to Ealing to witness. During the time it has been a lodge the West Middlesex has made so many additions to its numbers that it now counts over forty members, and one of the notable acts of the evening, before the installation ceremony was entered upon, was the raising of the initiation fee to £10 10s., and the joining fee to £6. When the lodge was formed it was the intention of the founders to put the lodge on this excellent footing, and they have reason to be gratified that their purpose has been so far accomplished. The members of the lodge were enthusiastic in their appreciation of all that Bro. Beasley said or did, and he was assisted by excellent officers. The lodge was opened punctually at two p.m., and the Warden's chairs were occupied by Bros. Kasner and Burr, respectively. Bro. P. H. Roe, Secretary, and Bro. Kingston, acting as P.M. After the minutes of the previous lodge and emergency meetings had been read and confirmed, the report of the Audit Committee was read and adopted. Bro. E. T. B. Allen being a candidate for raising was questioned, and having shewn proficiency, was raised to the Third Degree; after which Bro. W. J. Bloomfield was passed to the Second Degree, both ceremonies being performed by the W.M. in his usual able manner. The event of the day, the installation of Bro. Kingston by Bro. Beasley, followed. For this ceremony the Senior W. chair was occupied by Bro. Weaver, P.M. 862, P.G.O. Middlesex, &c., and that of J.W., by Bro. W. S. Cantrell, jun., P.G.D. Berks, W.M. of the High Wycombe Lodge, and Bro. Kingston was duly installed in the chair of K.G. The following officers were duly invested by the new W.M., with appropriate addresses, viz., Bros. Kasner, S.W.; Burr, J.W.; Roe, Sec.; Tucker, Treas.; Green and Dyer, the S.D. and J.D., being absent, other brethren were invested as their representatives; Delevanti, Org.; Seward, D.C.; Bourne, I.G.; and Harrison, Tyler. Bro. Kingston, in the name of the brethren, then presented Bro. Beasley with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, remarking that he did so as a mark of the high esteem he was held by the brethren, and as a slight return for the services he had rendered to the West Middlesex Lodge during the two years he has presided over it, amid the hearty cheers of the brethren and visitors. To add to the impressiveness of the occasion, Bro. Weaver, an honorary member of the lodge, in suitable terms expressed his approval of the manner in which the business of the day had been conducted, both by the W.M. and officers, and held those brethren up as patterns of the excellence to which the lay brethren should all aspire; and that in the future the lodge might continue to be an honour to itself and a credit to the Craft, as it then was. A letter was then read from Bro. J. Hervey, G.S., expressing regret that his health precluded his accepting the kind invite of Bro. Beasley, but holding out hope that on one of the quiet evenings he might be able to attend. The G.S. also expressed his satisfaction in a most kindly manner of the prosperity and high position to which the lodge had attained. The lodge was closed in due form, after which the members and visitors adjourned to the Feathers Hotel. Fifty-seven sat down to the banquet, which the host, Bro. Stephens, had provided in an excellent manner, the only fault of which was that it was if anything too profuse. As usual the loyal toasts were given and responded to, after which Bro. Beasley proposed "The Health of the W.M.," of whose good qualities he spoke in eloquent terms, stating that he had never been acquainted with a better man or truer Mason. Bro. Delevanti then introduced his daughter, who favoured the assembly with two songs with excellent taste and feeling, at the conclusion of which the W.M. returned thanks for the cordial reception he had met with as W.M. He gave up all hopes of acquitting himself with the skill and ability displayed by his predecessor, but assured the brethren that his best efforts should be used to make his year of office a pleasant and prosperous one to the lodge. He fully appreciated the honour conferred upon him, but his fear was that following one so able and eloquent as Bro. Beasley his efforts would fall short of his wishes. He said that it was three years since he was installed W.M. of his mother lodge, the Whittington, and as he had reason to think he had filled that office to the satisfaction of the brethren of that lodge, so, he hoped, he would those present. Before he sat down he proposed a toast for their acceptance, which he knew would be received by them with the greatest cordiality—it was "The Health of their Past Master," and only Past Master, Bro. Beasley, the installation Master of the day. Any attempt of eulogy from him would be superfluous, as all there knew how well he presided over the lodge, both in the lodge room and at the banquet table. Bro. Beasley rose. He would lose no time in returning his sincere thank for the way in which the toast had been received. He appreciated their kindness, he trusted, in a way which it deserved. He only hoped they had not set too high a value on his services. He was the first P.M. of the lodge; true he had served two years as their Master, and he hoped his services had been of benefit to the lodge. Being now the P.M., he aspired to be looked up to as something more, —as the father of the lodge; and he hoped he might for many, many years he looked up to in that connection. Bro. Beasley concluded by thanking one and all for the kind way they had supported him. The "Health of the Visitors" having been given, was responded to by Bro. Cull, Cantrell, and Morgan, in appropriate terms, after which Bro. Bloomfield, although not an initiate, but as it was his first attendance at the banquet table, he having been initiated at an emergency meeting, responded to his health very heartily, and expressed himself highly pleased with what he had seen of Freemasonry and his proposer Bro. Beasley. The brethren before separating expressed themselves highly pleased with the day's proceedings, and looked forward to a prosperous year.

NEWARK.—Newton Lodge (No. 1661).—The installation ceremony of this lodge, which was consecrated only last year, took place on Friday, October 11th, at the lodge room (the Savings' Bank), Lombard-street. The day was unusually fine, and a goodly number of brethren and visitors responded to the summons, which specified 3 o'clock prompt as the hour for the commencement of business. Amongst the visitors were several Grand Lodge Officers, and Masters, and Past Masters of lodges in the province, amongst others we may name Bros. W. Phelps, I.P.M. 1435; W. Vowles, 411, P.P.G.S.W.; Joseph Allen, P.M. 149, and 130; C. Davis, W.M. 47; J. Slack, S.W. 47; Tournow, S.W. 1405; H. A. Attenborough, P.S.W. 47; C. Huthwaite, W.M. 402; J. M. Davis, 934; J. Tate, 402; R. Mitchell, W.M. 1405, P.G.D.C.; F. Vernon Bussell, 939, P.G.C.; W. Pearson, 657; Charles J. Neale, P.M. 402. The Installing Officer was Bro. Joseph Allen, P.M. 149, who performed in a most able and impressive manner the duties assigned to him. Bro. Charles Johnson, having been duly installed, proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. Sir Henry Bromley, Bart., S.W.; S. Job, J.W.; G. Branton, S.D.; James H. Tomlinson, J.D.; J. Irving, Treasurer; W. E. Dawson, Secretary; J. Barnett, I.G.; C. J. Godby, Chaplain; Curtis, D.C.; W. Kelley, W. Lilley, and C. Bailey, Stewards; E. Liddle, and Castle, Almoner; L. Ward, and J. Dooley, Tylers. The I.P.M. Bro. W. Newton, after whom the lodge takes its name, and to whom the lodge is indebted so much for its present efficiency, retired from his office with the hearty thanks of his brethren for his untiring zeal in the formation of the lodge, and for the able way in which he had carried on his work since its commencement. The present W.M. has been elected by the unanimous voice of his brethren, he having been one of the foremost to carry out the ritual of the Order in all its beauties, having been himself an enthusiastic worker as the Past S.W., led his brethren to emulate his example. The lodge having been closed in due form with solemn prayer, the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, in the Town Hall, provided by Bro. H. Walton, of the firm of Walton and Son, Clivdon Arms' Hotel. Nearly sixty brethren sat down, the room was very tastefully decorated with flowers and choice plants, and the menu was all that could be desired. The usual toasts on like occasions were given and received with enthusiasm; the evening being enlivened by several appropriate songs and speeches. The hour for parting having arrived, the proceedings terminated with the usual Tyler's toast at about 11 o'clock.

WALTON.—Wilbraham Lodge (No. 1713).—The first annual installation in connection with this promising young lodge was held at the Walton Institute, Sefton-road, on Tuesday evening, the 8th inst. The lodge was formally consecrated last October, by Bro. the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Dep. G.M. Eng., R.W.P.G.M. West Lancashire, and since that time it has enjoyed a large measure of success. The attendance on this occasion was numerous, and the proceedings passed off with an éclat which was prominent at every point. The chair at the commencement of the business was occupied by Bro. C. W. Cayzer, W.M., and the officers present were Bros. P. Maddox, I.P.M.; F. J. Pentin, S.W. (W.M. elect); the Rev. R. T. Leslie, Chap.; Edwin Smith, Treas.; Wallace Smith, Sec.; R. W. Hickson, J.D.; M. Hill, D.C.; Leigh Lyon, I.G.; The list of members included Bros. A. Cross, W. Caw, F. Willey, the Rev. T. W. Richardson, P.M. 1380; R. Price, and others. The visitors included Bro. G. J. Townsend, W.M. 1086; R. Roberts, 1086; J. J. Swift, 1477; H. B. Ackerley, P.M. 680; S. E. Ibbt, P.G.S.B.; W. Lowe, 823; H. P. Bloomer, 1299; T. Unwin, F.M. 637; J. Wain, P.M. 418; W. H. Bucknall, S. 460; W. Boulton, P.M. 823; H. Ashmore, W.M. 823, P.M. 1325; S. J. Wareing, S.D. 1502; T. Sammons, P.M. 1393; J. Keet, Sec. 1356; W. P. Vines, I.G. 1570; W. B. Caw, 786; J. Cartwright, 1356, and others. After the lodge had been opened and the minutes confirmed, Bro. the Rev. T. W. Richardson, P.M. 1380, took the chair, and proceeded to install Bro. F. J. Pentin as the W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year, a ceremony which he performed with impressive effect. The following were subsequently invested officers for the ensuing year: Bros. C. W. Cayzer, I.P.M.; the Rev. T. W. Richardson, P.M., Chaplain; Wallace Smith, S.W.; Rev. R. T. Leslie, J.W.; Edmund Smith, Treas. (re-elected for the second time); R. W. Hickson, Sec.; Dr. M. Hill, S.D.; L. Lyon, J.D.; F. Willey, I.G.; A. Cross, S.S.; B. Crook, J.S. (by proxy); P. Maddox, P.P.G.S. of W., D.C., and W. H. Ball, Tyler. In the course of the business proceedings, the P.M. presented a valuable Past Master's jewel to Bro. C. W. Cayzer, I.P.M., as a token of the esteem in which he was held by the brethren, and in recognition of the manner in which he had performed his duties during his year's occupancy of the chair. The gift was briefly acknowledged by Bro. Cayzer, who referred to the pleasure it had given him to preside over the Wilbraham Lodge during its first year's existence. He should always cherish the gift as an evidence of the regard of the brethren, and he assured them he would continue to take a very warm interest in all that concerned the prosperity of the lodge. Two candidates were subsequently initiated by the newly-installed W.M., and the impressive and efficient manner in which he performed the ceremony augured favourably for the success of his year's office. "Hearty good wishes" having been given by about a dozen visitors, the business proceedings were brought to a close. An excellent banquet was, after a short interval, served in the lodge room (a model of artistic beauty in the way of decoration), the caterer being Bro. J. Casey, of the Walton Lodge, No. 1086. At the conclusion of the banquet, the W.M. gave "The Queen," and "Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." The S.W. next gave "The D.P.M. and P.G.M. (Lord Skelmersdale), the Rt. Hon. Colonel Stanley, D.P.G.M., and the Officers of the Province, Past and Present." The toast was acknowledged by Bro. S. E. Ibbes, P.P.G.S.B. In giving the toast of "The Worshipful Master," Bro. C. W. Cayzer, I.P.M., referred to the remarks which had been made at the recent Provincial Grand Lodge by the P.G.M. and P.G. Sec., with reference to the excessive expenditure of lodges on picnics, to the neglect of charity. He very much doubted the accuracy of this allegation, and said that, as far as his knowledge went, the expenses of picnics were not defrayed out of the funds of the lodge, but by the members themselves. Besides, if this practice existed to any extent, he thought it would have been more becoming on the part of the P.G. Sec., if he had written to the W.Ms. of the lodges who had offended, rather than by bringing the matter forward in the public manner in which he had done.—The toast was cordially received, and responded to by Bro. Pen-tin. "Past Masters," given from the chair, was responded to by Bro. Cayzer, I.P.M. "The Installing Master" by Bro. the Rev. T. W. Richardson, P.M. 1380; and "The Officers," proposed by Bro. J. B. Mackenzie, S.W. 1609, was acknowledged most suitably by Bro. the Rev. R. T. Leslie, J.W. Other toasts followed, and a pleasant evening was spent.

INSTRUCTION.

SAINT JOHN OF WAPPING LODGE (No. 1306).—A meeting of this lodge was held at Bro. Mortlock's, the Gun Hotel, High-street, Wapping, on Monday evening, 14th Oct. Present:—Bros. Stephens, W.M.; Banks, S.W.; Veal, J.W.; Mortlock, P.M.; Brame, Sec.; McDonald, J.D.; Moss, I.G.; Greely, Wooding, and several others. The lodge was opened in due form, the minutes of the last lodge meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was worked by the W.M., Bro. Wooding candidate. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Brame, being the candidate for raising, answered the usual questions, and withdrew. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, the ceremony of raising was worked by the W.M., Bro. Brame candidate. The lodge was closed down to the First Degree. Bros. Stephens and Veal worked the Fourth Section of the First Lecture. Bros. McDonald, 1445, and Moss, 1275, became joining members. Vote of thanks was recorded to the W.M., for the able manner he worked the ceremony of the evening. Bro. Banks, S.W., was elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

Royal Arch.

ROYAL YORK CHAPTER OF PERSEVERANCE (No. 7).—This well-known chapter held its usual meeting on Tuesday evening, but there was no work to do, a very unusual thing in the Royal York Chapter. The companions present were Comps. R. E. K. Wilkinson, M.E.Z.; C. A. Murton, P.Z., acting H.; G. J. Row, P.Z., acting J.; J. Hervey, P.Z., Gr. Scribe E., Treas.; R. J. Chappell, R. Grey, G. Lambert, W. Starkey, Regg., P.Z.; A. W. Home, Scribe E.; R. J. Davies, Scribe W.; E. Home, 1st A.S.; S. J. Weston, and A.S., and other companions of the chapter. Visitors:—Comps. Sir John Robinson, Henry Parsons, and W. Dawes. The resignation of Comp. T. W. Board, P.Z. (M.P. for Greenwich), was received with regret; and the return to the chapter, after some four years' absence of Comp. Henry Law, gave much gratification. Comp. Law has been a subscribing member all the time of his absence. The balance in hand was £104. The chapter having been closed in ancient and solemn form, an excellent banquet followed, every detail of which did the utmost credit to Bro. Best, who has worked a wonderful change for the better in the cuisine of the Freemasons' Tavern. After a very enjoyable evening the brethren separated in perfect harmony, at about ten o'clock.

JERUSALEM CHAPTER (No. 185).—This old chapter met after its long recess on Tuesday, the 8th inst., at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street. Amongst those present were Comps. Wagner, M.E.Z.; P. Robinson, H.; Holbrook, P.Z., acting J.; Elsom, I.P.Z.; Harfield, P.Z., Treas.; Davage, P.Z., S.E.; Walls, P.G.O. of Middlesex, S.N.; Gispert, Servia, and Parkinson, Janitor. Comp. Dewar, M.E.Z. 1104, was a visitor. The minutes of the convocation in April last were read and confirmed. There being no business on the agenda, the M.E.Z., with the assistance of the Second Principal, most ably rehearsed a portion of the exaltation ceremony. The chapter was shortly after closed, and adjourned until the second Tuesday in December next. The banquet was well served. The customary Royal Arch toasts were duly honoured. In proposing "The Health of the M.E.Z.," the I.P.Z. dwelt upon his long connection with the Jerusalem, and the efficient manner in which he had discharged the duties of the prominent positions which he had successively filled in the chapter. He hoped that his year of office would be a prosperous one, and that when he vacated the chair he would be spared many years to come amongst them as a Past Principal. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," the M.E.Z. briefly replied. He said he was sorry that on the first night of his presiding in the chapter that there should have been no "work" to do. However, he trusted that on the next occasion he should have, at least, one candidate to exalt, but if he did not he intended to rehearse the ceremonial, in order that the working of the old Jerusalem should not deteriorate during his occupancy of the chair. In conclusion, he thanked them very heartily for the kind manner in which they had responded to his health. "The Visitor" followed, and in reply, Comp. Dewar expressed the gratification his maiden visit to their chapter had afforded him. The remaining toasts, "The Second and Third Principals," "The Past Principals," "The Treasurer and Scribe E.," and "The Officers," followed quickly, and were duly responded to. The Janitor's toast at an early hour terminated the proceedings.

BEADON CHAPTER (No. 619).—The regular convocation of this chapter was held on Thursday, Oct. 10th, at the Horns Tavern, Kennington. Comps. Coot, M.E.Z.; Jacobs, H.; and Wyr, J. The minutes of the last convocation having been read and confirmed, the next business was to elect the officers for the ensuing year, and the election of each was unanimous as follows:—Comps. Jacobs, M.E.Z.; Wyr, H.; H. Thompson, J.; Green, S.E.; Sharratt, S.N.; Dodman, P.S.; Avery, Treasurer; and Bavin, Janitor. There being no other business before the chapter it was closed in due form, and the companions adjourned to an excellent banquet, after which the usual Royal Arch toasts were given, and a very pleasant evening was passed.

Mark Masonry.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Fortescue Lodge (No. 9).—The above lodge held a meeting at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, the 14th inst. Present: Bros. J. Brewer, W.M., and P.P.G.J.O.; Wood, I.P.M.; J. T. Shapland, P.M., and P.P.G.J.W.; W. Brewer, E. Galliford, J. List, W. C. Oliver, W. Britton, J. Gaydon, W. Ley, R. Kingdon, and others. Bro. W. Cole was elected W.M. for the year ensuing; Bro. J. Galliford, Treas.; and Bro. Kingdon, Tyler. The revised edition of the bye-laws was read and approved of, and ordered to be printed and circulated among the members of the lodge. The installation of the W.M. elect will take place at the next monthly meeting, after which the brethren will dine together as usual.

TRURO.—Fortitude Lodge (No. 78).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Truro, on Thursday, the 17th inst., W. Bro. Charles Truscott, jun. (P. Prov. G.S.B.), W.M., in the chair. There were also present R.W. Bro. William James Hughan, P.G.W., P.M. &c.; W. Bro. William Middleton, P.M., P. Prov. S.G.D.; W. Bro. J. C. R. Crewes, P.M., and Sec., P. Prov. G.S. of Works, and others. The members and the lodge were in Masonic mourning, as a mark of their respect and esteem for the memory of their lamented and deceased Prov. Grand Master, Sir Frederick M. Williams, Bart., M.P. On the proposition of the R.W. Bro. Hughan, a vote of condolence was passed, and ordered to be entered on the minutes, as also forwarded to Lady Williams and family. The W. Bro. Emra Holmes, P.M. 70, Past G. Superintendent of Works of H.M. Customs, Fowey, was balloted for as a joining member, and was heartily and unanimously accepted. The W.M. then advanced Colonel J. W. Peard, J.P. (P. Prov. S.G.W. Cornwall), and Bro. W. B. Morris (I.G. 131) to the honourable Degree of a Mark Master Mason, the R.W. Bro. Hughan giving the signs, and a short address on the character and antiquity of the customs preserved in the Degree, and stated that if any thing in Masonry pointed to antiquity it was the "choosing of the Mark," and the incidental matters connected therewith. The "unrecognised Degrees" meant simply that in England the Grand Lodge only acknowledged the Craft of Three Degrees, and the Arch; in Scotland the latter was not recognised by the Grand Lodge, but the Mark was, and wherever the English language was spoken, save in this country, the Mark was worked as preparatory to the Royal Arch Degree.

GIBRALTAR.—Inhabitants' Lodge (No. 43).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 17th September last, in the new rooms of the Inhabitants' Lodge, in Armstrong's Terrace, South Sheds, under the presidency of Bro. James Cunningham, W.M. for the ensuing year, assisted by the following officers:—Bros. J. Conroy, S.W.; B. White, J.W.; S. Jackson, M.O.; J. Nolan, S.O.; J. Button, J.O.; J. King, S.D.; O. Latham, J.D.; W. Cockburn, I.G.; D. McGrath, D.C.; J. Robson, R. of Marks; and E. Bacon, Sec. and Treasurer. There was an unusually full attendance of brethren and several visitors. The minutes of the preceding meeting having been confirmed, the ballot was taken for the following brethren, candidates for advancement: Lieutenants Turner and Hunter 74th Regt., and Penno 69th Regt., all of Lodge Friendship, 278, E.C., and Bros. Bellion, Wilkinson, Way, Lowry, P. Lyons J. B. Compton, A. Armstrong, C. T. Armstrong, and Ham, all of the Inhabitants' Lodge, 153, E.C. The result being favourable, Bros. Turner, Hunter, Lyons, Compton, A. Armstrong, C. T. Armstrong, and Ham, being present, were severally advanced to the honourable Degree of Mark Master by the W.M., in a manner that elicited warm commendation from the brethren. It was stated by the W.M. that the remainder of the candidates were away from the Rock on business, and after the usual Committees for the year had been appointed, and some routine business gone through, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren retired to the refreshment room, spending the remainder of the evening in a most enjoyable and harmonious manner. Bro. Cunningham, the W.M., must indeed be congratulated not only on his own working of the Degree, but also on the energetic and impressive manner in which his officers carry out their respective duties; and we doubt not that his year of office will be what it deserves, viz.—one of great prosperity to the lodge and of benefit to the Craft generally.

PLYMOUTH.—Brunswick Lodge (No. 48).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Union-street. The W.M. elect, W. Bro. J. H. Stephens, P.G.S. Wks., was installed by W. Bro. E. Aitkin Davies, P.P.G.J.D., supported by the following board of I.Ms.:—W. Bros. V. Bird, Past G.M.O.; J. Austin, Past G.S.D.; R. Lose, Past G. Pur.; S. Jew, P.P.G.M.O.; A. R. Lethbridge, P.P.G.M.O.; W. D. Thomas, P.P.G.O.; G. E. Stentiford, W. Amery, John Bartlett. At the close of the installation the W.M. invested the following brethren as the officers for the ensuing year: Bros. F. Littleton, P.G. St., S.W.; J. Andrews, J.W.; C. D. Stentiford, M.O.; A. Soper, S.O.; B. Johns, J.O.; W. Bro. G. E. Stentiford, Treasurer; Bros. J. W. S. Trevan, jun., Secretary; J. W. Trevan, sen., S.D.; W. Collings, J.D.; W. Collins, I.G.; C. Nicholson, Steward; James Bartlett, Tyler.

Knights Templar.

MOUNT CALVARY, or Early Grand Encampment of England.—A convocation of this old encampment was held on Friday, the 11th inst., at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, when there were present Sir Knights Tanner, E.C.; C. Jacques, P.; D. Dewar, P.E.C., Registrar; Paas, P.E.C., Almoner; Driver, and Captain; Neald, Expt.; Walls, C.L.; Rosenthal, P.E.C.; Baxter, P.E.C.; Roebuck, P.E.C.; J. Hervey, P.E.C.; Williams and Rawles, Equeries. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the election of E.C. for the ensuing year resulted in favour of Sir Knight Morgan. Sir Knight Paas was unanimously re-elected Almoner, and Sir Knight Rawles, re-appointed Equerry. A notice of motion to found a P.E.C.'s jewel in connection with the encampment having been handed in, the convocation was duly closed, and the Sir Knights adjourned to the banquet. The usual routine of toasts were done full justice to. Sir Knights Hervey, Paas, and Dewar, responded for "The Grand Officers, Present and Past." "The E.C." was proposed by the I.P.E.C., and duly acknowledged. The remaining toasts, "The P.E.C.'s," "The Almoner and Registrar," and "The Officers," were given quickly, and responded to by the members thus honoured. The next meeting of the encampment will be held on the 11th of January next.

NOTTINGHAM.—Abbey Chapter Encampment.—The regular meeting of this, the oldest encampment of the Order, was held at the Exchange Hall, on the 16th ult., when there were present amongst others, Sir Knights J. Thompson, E.C.; C. J. Wragg, P.E.C.; M. Vowles, P.E.C.; J. Comyn, P.E.C.; R. Fitz Hugh, P.E.C.; C. B. Truman, P.E.C.; R. Boughton-Smith, Second Captain; H. R. Hatherly, Marshall; H. Glover, E. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Sir Kt. Wragg, by permission of the E.C., most impressively installed Comps. R. T. Ingram, 47; H. R. G. Hanson, 47; and W. Hickling, 47, as Knights of the Order. There were other candidates down for installation, but through unavoidable circumstances, were prevented from attending. Some important motions were brought forward by Sir Kt. Wragg, the discussion of which were adjourned to the March meeting. There being no other business to transact, the encampment was duly closed, and the Sir Knights adjourned to the May Pole Hotel, where a well served banquet awaited them, presided over by Sir Knight Truman, in the absence of the E.C., who was called away to attend professional duties.

PRESENTATION.

Bro. John Clark, the I.P.M. of the Peace and Harmony Lodge, Southampton, at its monthly meeting on Monday, in the presence of a very full attendance of brethren, was presented, in the name of the lodge, with a gold Past Master's jewel, in recognition of his services. The presentation was made by Bro. T. P. Payne, one of the oldest Past Masters, following an initiation by the W.M., Bro. W. H. Martin, and was suitably acknowledged by Bro. Clark.

The visitors included several Scotch brethren; a P.M., who, having seen much of Freemasonry in China, gave an interesting detail of some of his experiences to the brethren; and the officers of the local Royal Gloucester, and Southampton lodges—the latter being represented in the toast list, in the unavoidable absence of the W.M., by one of his Wardens, the Mayor of Southampton (Bro. A. L. McCalmont).

ALEXANDRA PALACE AND GROUNDS.—A grand display of fireworks is announced to take place on Tuesday, November 5th, upon the occasion of Bro. James Pain's benefit. It will, no doubt, be in the recollection of our readers that Bro. Pain has given to the visitors of the Alexandra Palace some of the finest displays of the pyrotechnic art on record, in proof of which he has been awarded several medals, and has received honourable mention in many instances. An appropriate day for his benefit has been selected—viz., the 5th of November. The programme for the day is on a most liberal scale, including military concerts, opera, circus, &c. As a speciality for the occasion, there will be a tremendous bonfire, a torchlight procession, and three displays of fireworks—on the lake, near the grove, and at the south front of the palace. Such attractions to the beautiful palace and grounds are sure to find favour with the public. The occasion will be well suited for children; and it may be mentioned that extra trains will run at short intervals throughout the day. Special arrangements have been made by the Great Northern Railway to run late trains to Victoria. The undertaking deserves success.

THE FREEMASON,

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1878.

AN EXPLANATION.

It seems, though we can scarcely believe it, that a Communiqué which appeared in our last impression with regard to the "Rite Ecossais" at Paris, has been hastily supposed by some very worthy individuals to refer to or reflect on the Grand Council of the A. and A.S. Rite, at Golden-square. Though we do not seek in any way to diminish our own responsibility by the appearance of the Communiqué, we beg to remark here for correctness sake, that a Communiqué is not a leader, and a leader is not a Communiqué. There is an essential difference between them, though for the admission of a Communiqué the Editor is, of course, equally responsible as for a leader. We do not ourselves profess to understand by what perversity of misconception, or by what ingenuity of misrepresentation any such assertion could be actually made, or any such idea seriously entertained. We cannot suppose that such hasty and inaccurate complaints could have been chivalrously raised by any to injure a brother behind his back! We can only put them down to the strange but certain fact, that very few persons or Masons take the trouble to read carefully over, and that fewer still are apparently able to understand the "Queen's English," even in the carefully edited pages of the Freemason. We cannot profess to realize otherwise what in the present instance amounts to a complete hallucination. The Freemason has never in any way attacked the Grand Council of the A. and A. Rite in England, not even by implication, much less by direct statement. On the contrary, it has on numberless occasions, and in countless ways, in words which still exist, expressed its good feeling towards the distinguished members of the Ancient and Accepted Rite in this country. All the remarks to which exception has been taken, as we said before, by a marvellous inattention to, and misconception of the English language, referred, and referred alone, to the Rite Ecossais at Paris. If we are to understand the allegation and arguments alluded to literally, all such animadversions which are made in respect of the "Rite Ecossais" at Paris, reflect equally on the authorities of Golden-square. This is a statement and assertion which come upon us with great surprise, and for which, we confess, we are totally unprepared. Remembering all that has taken place in Paris and elsewhere, calling to mind the discussions when the ill-fated congress at Geneva gave rise to, and to the one fact, above all, that the Rite Ecossais at Paris, claims to establish a Craft lodge, as in the Mauritius lately, we fancy that many of the leading members of the English A. and A. Rite will be as astounded to hear such a view of the matter as we are. For we again repeat, by no use, except a perverted one, of text and context, can the remarks we thought it our duty to make be in the remotest degree supposed to refer to the A. and A. Rite in England, and we utterly and openly repudiate any such theory or any such explanation of our humble words. We wrote as we did write from an honest sense of duty and necessity. We fancy that we understand the position of affairs abroad better than some who would constitute themselves our critics, and nothing but our position as honest journalists, responsible to the great body of our readers, would have induced us even to refer to a subject so distasteful in itself to us, and which has nothing to do, in our opinion, with Freemasonry proper. We beg, therefore, to say this, once for all, in conclusion. The Freemason aspires to be an honest, impartial, and well-informed journal of Freemasonry all the world over, and as such it intends, whether it pleases or displeases others, to pursue the "even tenour of its way," regardless of misrepresentation, and heedless of intimidation or misconception. Its words are plain, honest English words; what they mean they say, and what they say they mean. It has always been entirely self-sustained, and seeks strenuously to "maintain that character," without which it might indeed sink, into becoming the organ of a clique or the mouthpiece of a faction, but would lose its own peculiar and unchanging characteristic of absolute and unbought INDEPENDENCE. It is not intended for this or that grade, for this or that coterie, but is published for, and dedicated to, THE ENTIRE CRAFT.

THE VOTING AT THE GIRLS' AND BOYS' SCHOOLS ELECTIONS.

Some of the figures and facts connected with the last elections for the Girls' and Boys' Schools are so striking, and in more than one sense, so peculiar, that we think it well to call the attention of our readers to them carefully and concisely. As regards the Girls' School there were 29 candidates and four vacancies to be filled up. Of these 29, 21 were provincial and 8 were London cases. Of the candidates one had come up six times, 2 four, 2 twice, and 24 were first applications. Of the 4 successful candidates two had come up four times, and two were first applications. The 4 successful candidates polled in all the large amount, bringing forward the number of votes in April, of 11,456 votes. The 25 unsuccessful candidates polled in all 10,094: The highest candidate, Meta Brasier, polled 4741, the lowest, Elizabeth Minnie Parker, 22, and one candidate polled a cypher. Ethel Stone was supported by some warm friends and the London Masonic Charity Association, and polled also the high number of 2794. Meta Brasier was supported very warmly by the London brethren, and we are glad to record her return, though really a Kentish case. Thus, three provincial candidates were returned as against one London case, though, as we said before, a large proportion of the votes polled for Meta Brasier came from London. We are now left with 25 cases to deal with in April, which will probably be augmented in the interim, if we may judge by former elections. The first two unsuccessful candidates are, certainly, safe in April, and the next half-dozen, according to normal experience, but just now nothing is certain or sure. In respect of the Boys' School it had a long list of sixty-one candidates originally, but on the polling day of fifty-nine, with thirteen vacancies. Of these fifty-nine candidates, two had made seven applications, five five, four four, seven three, twenty-one two, and twenty-six appeared for the first time. Of these fourteen were London cases simply, one Essex and London, one South Wales and London, and the remaining forty-three provincial cases. Of the thirteen successful candidates, two had come forward seven times, six had come forward twice, and five were among the new cases. Of the thirteen successful candidates ten were carried by the provinces, and three were London cases. West Yorkshire secured White and Keighley, polling 3412 votes for the two; East Lancashire secured Roberts, polling 1667 votes; Essex returned two, Day and Coverdale, polling 3729 for the two, though it is fair to say that the main support of Miles Coverdale came from London voters. Durham polled 2373 votes for Gardner, placing him at the top of the poll; and Monmouthshire secured the election of Browning with 1593 votes, Warwickshire succeeded with Hall, polling 1531 votes, and Cheshire returned Rossiter with 1375 votes. The London candidates returned were Reece, Simmons, and Balcombe, with an aggregate of 4659 votes. At first sight it might seem after deducting 4659 from 21,941, the gross amount of votes polled for the successful candidates, that the provincial voting represented 17,282 as against 4659, but then it is certain, as a fact, that London votes entered largely into all the numbers polled by provincial candidates. Coverdale's case was warmly supported by London brethren, though properly, as we said before, a provincial case. Balcombe had very large support from friends, owing to the peculiar distressing circumstances of the case; hence his success. Owing to the heavy polling Watkins, the second candidate of the Association, was 98 votes behind the last successful candidate, and for him the Association polled, in one way or another, nearly 1000 votes. We confess that we feel trougly that these figures and facts justify fully the action of the London Masonic Charity Association.

THE GRAND LODGE OF QUEBEC.

We do not see that anything has occurred to change our already expressed opinion on this subject. We have read several official publications, and carefully studied the correspondence which appears in our columns, but still we adhere to our original view of the whole question. We are quite clear, that in denying the right of the individual lodges to retain their connexion with the mother Grand Lodge, which granted to them their warrant, the Grand Lodge of Quebec was utterly wrong, and the New York Dispatch was still more wrong altogether in saying that all American Grand Lodges would endorse the theories and action of the Grand Lodge of Quebec. The Grand Lodges of Missouri, Kansas, and Arkansas hold the views we have ourselves expressed on the subject, and we have also good reason to believe that such will be found to be the opinion also of the Grand Lodge of New York. Nay, we will go further, and say that we believe that all the American Grand Lodges will eventually avow the same teaching, inasmuch as when the whole question is carefully looked into, apart from passion and party spirit, which mark the utterances of the Grand Lodge of Quebec and its supporters at this special moment, the law of Masonic right and common sense will be upheld in America as in Great Britain. The Grand Lodge of Canada, equally, clearly takes the same view as we do, and when we remember that the English Grand Lodge has always maintained a Provincial Grand Master at Montreal, the Masonic law and precedent on the subject seems to us to be unimpeachable. We do not see, we confess, that anything can fairly be said against the Grand Lodge of Scotland, except, that perhaps its action has been a little premature. The Grand Lodge of Canada appears to have waived its jurisdiction, and the territory occupied by the Grand Lodge of Quebec, but failing a concordat as between the Grand Lodge of Scotland and the Grand Lodge of Quebec, we are not prepared to blame the Grand Lodge of Scotland because it revived its rights in abeyance, and asserted its claim of prior occupation. But yet, perhaps, prudence, a great Masonic, as well as humanitarian virtue, might have, perhaps, said to the Grand Lodge of Scotland "Festina Lente," "hold your hand." And even now, we believe, that if instead of fiery "deliverances," and foolish and childish Masonic excommunications, the Grand Lodge of Quebec will be reasonable in its proceedings with the Grand Lodge of Scotland, peace may be preserved, and the whole of this untoward controversy may come amicably to an end. But to the absurd pretensions, and unprecedented claims of some of the champions of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, as well as of the Grand Lodge itself, neither the Grand Lodge of Scotland nor the Grand Lodge of England can ever, under any circumstances, submit.

FRENCH FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Having resolved on a change, with a view also to devote a little time to the study of Freemasonry, and of primary education abroad, we ventured to commence our voyage, even with the report of the loss of the Eddystone, and of a rough channel ringing in our ears, but arrived at Newhaven, Neptune we found pacified, and that all was calm.

A voyage in France reminds one of the time, alas, long gone by, when first I landed on its shores and sought the portals of its colleges, when Louis Philippe was on the throne. A mad time my masters! when the villages around seemed in perpetual fête, and outside barrier balls abounded, where the fun never failed, and when to use the old phrase

"Le vin de quatre sous"

"Met le sens sous, dessus," when the grisettes wore caps as "de rigueur," when cocottes were few, and the francs went—well, at any rate much further then at present. Then it was the polka in its original half military form, first made its appearance, exciting wonder and admiration.

"Oh! happy days of youth, why did ye pass away."

At that period, now nearly forty years since, Paris held a relatively higher position in the world of science than it does now. Sir H. Davy had passed away, although the halo of Faraday, his successor, will ever endure, and some of our best men in the quagmire of somnambulism had become lost to science. In Paris on the contrary still existed that phalanx of working men of the school of Cuvier, who had rehabilitated the olden world of Guizot, who left the chair of his university to guide unhappily the destinies of Europe; whilst in medicine and its allied sciences Orfila, Thenard, Broussais, Laennec and a host of well known names instituted the commencement of the new era in science and investigation in which our own country so soon participated, and which it may now be said to lead. However that may be, although France may not always lead the van, she will never be in the rear of science or of art.

Her material good is indeed, as it were, secured by the happy endowments which providence has afforded her, the beauty of her climate, and a people gifted by nature with the highest intelligence and discernment, the highest which has yet been accorded to man. The enjoyments of life, the happiness of the individual, no matter in what locality, may best be summed up in the phrase, "see France and live!" and it stamps with truth the regrets of Beranger, in the adieu of Marie, Queen of Scots:

"Adieu charmant pays de France
Que je dois tant chérir,
Berceau di mon heureuse enfance
Ah! te quitter—c'est mourir."

I arrived here last Saturday, and rising the next morning my wife desired to visit the chapel of Dr. Presence, in the Rue Madame, and enquire of the welfare of the Medical Mission, whilst I myself, too little calm for quiet worship, finally listened to a discourse addressed to the Divinity Students at St. Sulpice.

On the Monday I took my way to the Grand Orient de France, Rue Cadet 16. It is the third story, but English Masons must not be surprised at French simplicity.

A Tyler was arranging a Chapter when I entered, but I readily obtained all the information I required with this addition "Come here, monsieur" every evening at 8 o'clock, except Saturday and Sunday, and you will always find a working lodge to receive you." On my asking him to explain the difference between themselves and the Scottish Rite? his reply was "well we are Red." To which I replied, "that is, you go in for the Republic."

Having promised to return at 8 p.m., I went to the Grand Bureau of the Scottish Rite in the Rue de la Victoire, somewhat more pretentious than the Grand Orient, but still uppretending, although admirably arranged with a series of Masonic rooms.

I was received there with much friendship by the officers present, who gave me the programmes of several lodges, offered me gratuitous tickets for the fête in the Trocadero on the 24th inst., whilst I gladly purchased a ticket for the banquet.

"Now," said I, "tell me the difference between yourselves and the Grand Orient of France?" The reply was, "we are White." "That is," I remarked, "you go in for royalty?" "It is so," said he, "but you know we are all brothers." This is probably the explanation of the difference between the two bodies, — they will never coalesce—however their orbits may approach, the one will always hold to the symbol of legitimate kingship—"Oh! Richard, oh mon Roi," whilst the symbol of the other will ever remain "Egalité and the Republic;" and when any allusion is made to a passing event, viz., the invitation to our Royal Grand Master, this grand distinction must always be in mind; one means Henri V., the other the Red Republic. Light and darkness can present no greater divergence.

The same evening I repaired to the Lodge L'Amitié, working under the Grand Orient, rather too late for the opening, but on sending in my Masonic diploma was immediately received in the first Degree. The W.M. received me with kindness, and politely invited me to a seat on the dais beside him. The walls, the cushions, all were red. Three candidates were for proposal, most careful enquiries respecting each had been made, and three reports for each candidate were read, and one of the "profanes" proposed was a mécanicien, the second an artisan, the third a cabinet maker. Their character and principles were carefully discussed. The last of the profane, a cabinet maker, had just finished his time of service as a soldier, he was born in La Vendée, his opinions were stated "very advanced," his ideas "socialist," his age twenty-eight. After much discussion all candidates passed the ballot, but none were initiated, the W.M. present being only a deputy. Of those present the W.M. and another had medals, i.e., jewels; all wore collars, few had aprons, and one wore a red scarf. There is an officer in the Grand Orient unknown to us, called the Orator. He has charge of the Book of Constitutions, and as politics and religion are forbidden, it is his duty to declare what discussion or what proceeding is legal, and he really seems well read in the Constitutions.

As to the officers, the W.M. was a kind-hearted, friendly genial man, of middle age, such as one would feel at home with anywhere; the Secretary was also, I should say, a nice fellow; the Orator—not Cassius' self was so lean or apparently so devoid of "sleep-a-night." His eyes, his hands, his limbs, seemed doomed never to know repose.

In the usual manner he proposed a question that "collections for the families of the political prisoners be continued until the amnesty should be declared," which the Secretary opposed. On the question being decided against him he succeeded in getting a second ballot, and in his own favour, the legality of which the Secretary in his turn opposed, and left the lodge.

The Orator's style was rapid and dictatorial, very different from the reasonable style of the other brethren, his opinions, evidently very advanced, and indeed he did not seem as one liked by the other brethren, of whom about thirty were present.

The meeting lasted three hours, no refreshment was taken, fifty concert tickets allotted to the lodge, to be sold for Masonic orphans were disposed of, and a collection for indigents having been made, the lodge was closed.

In looking over the book of Constitutions, printed only in 1877, I found that part of the first article, which affirmed belief in "the existence of God, and the immortality of the soul" crossed out with a pen.

I tried to talk it over with the Orator, but he somewhat sulkyly observed that it was decided.

I was, however, evident that some of these worthy people were not quite at their ease, and when I asked the W.M. what meaning he attached to the letter G attached to his Star in the East, he seemed puzzled, and made no clear reply.

The meetings I found were monthly, but that fifteen days after each meeting the lodge met in Committee, to which visitors were not admitted.

It would occupy too long to go further into the evening's work. It is to be feared that English Masons and those of the Grand Orient may become wider and wider apart. Still the break is not quite hopeless. Let us hope for the best.

"Deal gently with our sister's fall.

Who knows but tender love

May win her at our earnest call

The surer way to prove."

Tuesday evening, October 15th, I took my way to the Lodge Ecossaise L'Alliance, No. 70, Rue J. J. Rousseau. Seven o'clock being underlined on the summons, I kept my time, but on arrival was desired to return at 8.30, for the lodge never opened before that time. Returning as desired, I sent in my diploma, and was received in a kindly manner by the W.M., who invited me to a seat on the dais by his side. He then commenced raising eight F.C's. to the Third Degree.

I may remark that the "working" is not done with the same neatness and precision as with us, the W.M. and each Warden had books before them, and so little did they know that each lost the place repeatedly, and fell into confusion. The ceremony closely resembles our own, the signs only partially so, while the eight being all raised together produced an effect very different to that of an English lodge.

As the W.M. gave the recapitulation, I, myself gave the five points to one of the candidates in the English way, and they seemed much pleased with it. The lodge was then closed down in the Three Degrees, in the name of the Great Architect of the Universe, but no invocations, previous to which, however, the W.M. read a manuscript address, the excellence of which could not be exceeded.

A vote of thanks had been proposed to the visitors, to which I had the honour to respond, my remarks, especially as to the G.A.U., were kindly received with much cheering, whilst subsequently most of the brethren came round me to shake hands.

It strikes me that some enlightened English brother, adapting himself to French manners and ideas, would establish a modification of the English Lodge of Instruction, he would be well supported, and that he might have a most beneficial influence on the future of the Scottish Rite in France, and give a confidence in its principles to the outside world, which at present it can hardly be said to possess.

I attend a lodge in "grande tenue" this evening, and as I shall not continue my journey until after the Trocadero fête, hope to study further this very interesting, and to Masons even important subject.

THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' SCHOOLS ELECTIONS. To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The October elections for the Boys' and Girls' being over, the result has been to teach the brethren in general the great uncertainty and needless expenditure of voting power, and the London brethren in particular, the increased and very urgent necessity for the step taken by the London Masonic Charity Association. In the present instance, the members thereof worked very hard to secure the return of three candidates with their last applications, and were only successful in one, the other two being first and fourth on the unsuccessful list, whilst West Yorkshire returned two on the first application, one with four, and the other with three more chances, East Lancashire returned one on the first application, with eight more chances, and Warwickshire returned one, first application, seven more chances.

The great uncertainty of the elections was most strikingly shown by the result for that of the girls; the first candidate "Brasier," with 4741 votes, was in a majority of 1924 to the next, and 3637 to the fourth and last applicant, the London Masonic Charity Association were here fortunate, even beyond their expectations, in returning one out of the four vacancies, but I am inclined to think that a more judicious management would have secured the return of the second that it supported; at the same time, I do not regret the result, as the successful case "Hill" was, perhaps, more urgent and equally deserving. How truly may the old adage, that "a prophet is not without honour save in his own country," be applied to the London Masonic Charity Association, for where it might naturally have looked for help and support there it found its strongest opponents, who made assertions against it, without a single fact or particle of evidence to found them upon, and where it might have reasonably expected opposition, viz., in the provinces, it was met with nothing but the utmost courtesy, greatest kindness, and valuable assistance and support, at the same time they acknowledged the necessity for the step we had at last taken, and expressed their surprise that we, in London, had not pursued it before; and I feel quite sure that the members of the London Masonic Charity Association, one and all, fully appreciate and reciprocate the kindly feeling expressed in deeds as well as words by the brethren in the provinces.

Before concluding, I would call the attention of the London brethren thus early to two last applications which will appeal to them next April. The candidates are "Frost, C. F.," with only ten votes; and "Giles, F. A.," with only three votes to bring forward; the former has no relations dependent on the Institutions, his father became a Life Subscriber to both the R.M.I.B. and G., and had served as Steward to both, and subscribed 8½ years. The applicant is one of four dependent on the mother. Her address is 44, Arthur-road, Holloway. The latter has no relations on the Institutions; father subscribed 12½ years, and applicant is also one of four dependent on the mother, living at 11, Skinner-street, Bishopspate. There is another last chance London case, viz., "Nicholls, R. H.," but as he brings forward 1013 votes, so much exertion will not be required in his case. Among the girls there are at present no last chances for London, and but two for the provinces, viz., "Peele, K. A.," Durham, with a sister already in the Institution, and she, herself, the only one dependent on the mother, and "Williams, E. C.," Monmouth, father subscribed 10½ years, has none of her family on the books of the Institution, and is one of two dependent on the mother.

Another very distressing case is in Monmouth, "Laybourne, R. E. A.," father subscribed 15 years; her uncle, who brings this case forward, lost another brother, also a Mason, and is now the chief support of two widows and ten children besides his own.

Before closing my letter I glanced over your paper, and was highly amused with the letter from Bro. Edmondston. No. 1658; surely he must have been reading "Don Quixote," and have gone to bed on a supper of underdone pork, to have tilted so violently against the emanations of his own brain, for the most adverse reading could not have concocted such an array of iniquities as those against which our worthy brother has been so violently charging. I certainly must recommend Bro. Edmondston, or any other of our opponents, to make themselves conversant with the tenets and principles of our Association, before they expend so much energy in fighting the air, and they cannot expect a reply repudiating ideas which never existed in the minds of those who are the objects of such unmeaning attacks.

Yours fraternally,

CHARLES PERCEVAL,
Treasurer, L.M.C.A.

BRO. EDMONDSTON'S PROTEST.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I quite agree with you as to the undesirability of further controversy in your columns as regards the London Masonic Charity Association. It can only be judged by its results, and by these alone. But there are two points and two points only on which I wish to make a few remarks, and for which I crave a little space in your journal.

1st. The first is that Bro. Edmondston, authoritatively (rather, perhaps, on no authority) passes severe condemnation on the Provincial Charity Committees for combining their votes. I, on the contrary, think, and equally dogmatically declare, that they are right in doing so, and only availing themselves of their privileges as subscribers, and the law of common sense.

2dly. Let me give an illustration of the use and the "raison d'être" of the London Masonic Charity Association. They say "one good illustration is worth one thousand arguments." Watkins, who was defeated by a "fluke" by ninety-eight votes, is one of nine children, and that was his last chance. His poor mother having few influential friends, has failed both at the Boys' and Girls' School election. Just as we had hoped by a friendly interchange to secure his election, a well-known brother obtains three hundred votes for another case, and the poor widow with nine children is left out in the cold.

I confess that I went home sad at heart, and felt more than ever the absolute need of the London Masonic Charity Association. For candidates with many friends of course it is not needed, but for friendless candidates it will be a "God send," as we were told at Freemasons' Tavern.

I am yours fraternally,

A MEMBER OF THE L. M. C. A.

A CAUTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Rather more than a year and a half ago, when I was resident at Castletown, Isle of Man, I received a visit from a man calling himself Bro. Szapira, who said he was or had been a member of the Morning Lodge, No. 351, under the French dispensation. I cannot at this present moment recollect the name of the town where this lodge, according to his account, is, or was, held, but to the best of my recollection it was not Frankfort-on-Main.

With this single exception, the account that "I.P.M. 1327" has given of his doings at Waltham Cross and its neighbourhood would do exactly for his visit to the Island.

The case is well known in the Island of Man, and I have no doubt that a full account of his visit could be given by a P.M. of the Athole Lodge, 1004, who took a great deal of trouble in ascertaining the merits and demerits of the case.

His visit to me began by his asking me to buy his books.

I replied that I was not in want of those that he showed me. He then said that if I would not buy his books, I must relieve him. It was my bounden duty to do so. When I told him that I could not relieve him without making enquiries, he abused me in the foulest terms.

Yours fraternally,

J.W. 1678.

CENTENARY OR SPECIAL JEWELS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I shall be glad to know through the Freemason (or to my residence) whether either of the following lodges have warrants for centenary or special jewels, as I have not succeeded in obtaining definite accounts as yet, and desire to do so for my next work.

Fraternally yours.

HANDSOME OR HANSOM.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I see in a recent police report that the Times talks of a "Handsome cab." Is this a misprint or an affectation? I always understood that "Hansom" cabs were called so after their inventor, Hansom. Is that a mistake? The moral of that police report would undoubtedly be, "Handsome is as handsome does;" so, perhaps, it was a joke of the reporters'.

Yours fraternally,

CONSECRATION OF THE ST. LEONARD LODGE, No. 1766.

This new lodge, whose warrant bears date as far back as the 25th of June last, was consecrated on Tuesday last, at the Town Hall, Shoreditch, by Bro. James Terry, Provincial Junior Grand Warden, Herts; who was assisted by Bro. W. T. Howe, G.P., as S.W.; W. H. Main, P.M. 813, as J.W.; William Clark, Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies, Suffolk, as Director of Ceremonies; Joseph Cox, as Secretary, Charles G. Hill, P.M., 1366, as I.G.; and the English Glee Union. Bros. H. Ashton, G. Musgrave, F. H. Cozens, and A. Hubbard, under the direction of Bro. A. Hubbard. The ceremonies of the day, which were most fluently and impressively performed, had the advantage of being conducted in a magnificent room, the loftiness of which prevented any inconvenient heat being experienced by the brethren, although there were some 120 present. The ceremonies being in the hands of such an expert as Bro. Terry, were completed in the space of an hour and a half, and the brethren who had the pleasure of witnessing them received, an admirable lesson in the art of consecrating a lodge and installing a Master. The opinion of the local brethren as to the necessity of a good lodge in the parish of Shoreditch was evidenced by such a large muster of the fraternity, which more resembled a Provincial Grand Lodge than any other assembly of Masons. The brethren who signed the lodge book were: Bros. L. Stean, Geo. T. Barr, C. T. Barham, C. Stevens, Joseph Cox, C. J. Graham, Hy. J. F. Gale, A. H. Clement, Wm. Bennet, A. Russer, W. Beasley, E. Walker, James Roberts, J. Terry, P.G.J.W., Herts, P.M. 228; Charles W. Cox, 1566, J.W. 1564; E. T. Henman, 1243; James Smith, 193; W. Perry, P.J.W. 1107; W. H. Main, P.M. 813; F. Breen, S.W. 1076; John Henry Hale, W.M. 737; John G. Stevens, P.M. 554 and 933; Walter J. Ramsey, 174; John Stilwell, 813; W. T. Stevens, S.W. 737; H. Ashton, 1185; W. Dowse, P.M. 754; J. H. Thompson, 1237; Henry Rawes, 950, 1353; J. B. Bunwell, 1663; Albert Hubbard, 813; T. Cusworth, P.M. 813; W. Stead, W.M. 813; W. Stephens, P.M. Clapton and Ripon; W. Burton, P.M. 1124; Edwin Blunt, 1489; W. T. Howe, P.G.P.; Thomas Sim, 65; W. H. Wallington, P.M. 860; J. Taylor, P.M. 933; Saml. Holliday, W.M. 382; Thomas Glass, 813; W. F. Green, 861; Thomas Purdy, P.M. 861; W. Grist, 1489; H. J. Dickson, 781; Fred. H. Cozens, 907; R. R. Harper, S.W. 813; H. J. Gabb, P.M. 813; W. Shead, 1366; G. Edwards, 907; J. B. Shackleton, P.M. 1326; Wyndham Hart, 49; H. Stephens, W.M. 754; Joseph Driscoll, P.M. 30; G. H. Wilkinson, jun., 49; E. E. Powle, W.M. 860; Stephen Hagnatt, 101; George Plummer, 177; Charles G. Hill, P.M. 1366; Geo. Levy, 40; W. Johnson, 861; Henry R. Fletcher, 1604; Josh. Woodhams, 101; J. Bartlett, P.M. 813; W. Snellgrove, S.W. 907; Elias Somers, P.M. 1602; W. Webb, 382; R. M. Clarke, 1339; L. M. Bedwell, 861; John A. Hunt, 569; W. Dawson, 1602; J. A. Smith, 1167; G. L. Young, 820; Charles B. Payne, G.T., P.M. 27; J. W. Taylor, W.M. 917; George Musgrave, 1507; Charles Coleman, 907; L. Jones, 996; Thos. Chapman, 788; James Blyth, 813; W. Clarke, 114; and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the usual ceremonies had been gone through, and the lodge formally dedicated to the noble science, Bro. Terry installed as the first Worshipful Master of the lodge Bro. Louis Stean, P.M. of 917, and several other lodges—a brother whose standing in the Craft is of forty-eight years' duration, and who is well-known as an able worker of the ceremonies, and connected of old with the support of the Masonic Charitable Institutions. Bro. Charles Stevens was invested as I.P.M., Bro. George T. Barr as S.W., Bro. Charles F. Barham as J.W., Bro. Charles Stevens as Treasurer, Bro. Joseph Cox as Secretary, Bro. Benjamin as S.D., Bro. Jones as J.D., Bro. Clements as I.G., Bro. Gale as D.C., Bro. Marshall as W.S., and Bro. C. T. Speight as Tyler.

Bro. Terry delivered the addresses to the Worshipful Master and the brethren, and Bro. W. Clark the address to the Wardens.

A long list of intending initiates and joining members was read by the Secretary, after which a vote of thanks to the Consecrating Officers was passed, the lodge was closed, and the brethren partook of a delightful banquet, supplied by Bro. W. Grist, of Hackney.

The loyal and Masonic toasts followed, Bro. W. T. Howe, G.P., responding to the toast of "The Pro and Deputy Grand Masters, and the rest of the Grand Officers."

Bro. Terry, then rose, and said that as a Consecrating Officer the duty devolved upon him of submitting for the brethren's acceptance a toast, and he was sure the subject of it was one that was he very much gifted indeed with the power of oratory, he should exhaust it on this subject. His toast was "The Health of Bro. Stean, W.M." Bro. Stean in the course of his observations had said that he had now been forty-eight years a Mason. It was something for the brethren to think of, that a brother for all that number of years had passed over his head, yet thought himself sufficiently young to take the gavel of office to rule and direct the affairs of a new lodge. He (Bro. Terry) had had the pleasure of Bro. Stean's acquaintance in Masonry for nearly twenty years; they had worked together very zealously, very hard indeed, in days gone by, and he was happy, indeed, to see health and strength spared to Bro. Stean till now to undertake the arduous task imposed upon him. He was certain that the brethren of the St. Leonard Lodge had made a very excellent selection for first Worshipful Master of a brother who was an expert in the Craft, who was well acquainted with all the routine working of it, was familiar with all its ceremonies, and was competent to preside over the brethren at the banquet table. This certainly was a rare combination in one brother, that he should know the Book of Constitutions, be able to perform the ritual, and also be able to preside with grace at the festive board. In Bro. Stean he was certain they had those combined qualifications, and he ventured to predict that during the first year of the lodge's existence it would have a very prosperous, happy, and harmonious career. Prosperous they all desired to see it, happy they were all wishful it should be, and harmonious he was certain it would be. Unless harmony prevailed the lodge could not be prosperous. Bro. Stean had been a good worker in days gone by in promoting all that was good and pure and holy in Freemasonry. He had been a supporter of the Institutions, and had done excellent service. If he (Bro. Terry) were to talk for ten minutes, or a quarter of an hour longer he could not tell the brethren more than they themselves knew already. If they had not known Bro. Stean's good qualities they would not have recommended him for the proud position of being their W.M. Therefore, without further preface he would propose that they should drink with all heartiness and sincerity, and with the greatest warmth one Mason's heart could shew to another, "The W.M.'s Health."

Bro. Stean, in reply, said he felt at a loss for words to express what he felt. When he was a young man he thought it a great honour and a very great pleasure to preside in a lodge. He now looked on it in a different light—as a duty. He thought that after having had honours showered on him, and having been for many years respected in the Craft, if it lay in his power at the end of his career to start a new lodge that should be vigorous it was his duty to do so. He doubted not that the St. Leonard Lodge would carry out a great deal more than it had laid in his power to do. Still he hoped and trusted that the seeds of Freemasonry would be sown in this lodge, and that many young members now alive would remember his words when he was gone, and say that Bro. Stean's prediction had been fulfilled, that the lodge was equal to any in the Craft, their subscriptions to the Charities as great as any, and that every chair in the lodge—the W.M.'s, the S.W.'s, and the J.W.'s, as well as the Deacon's—would represent a Vice-President of one or other of the Institutions. [The report will be concluded in our next.]

News of Professor Nordenskiöld's North-East Passage Expedition has reached Stockholm. It left the north coast of Norway on the 25th of July, reached Jugor Straits on the 30th, steamed on the 1st of August and arrived at the mouth of the Yenisej on the 6th. It was intended to start afresh on the 10th of August. The Kara Sea was nearly free of ice. A little scattered drift ice near White Island was the only ice met with during the whole voyage. The expedition has thus a good prospect of success.—Nature.

The Eastern unsettlement threatens to create yet another nuisance—a new European language. The Albanians, in asserting their nationality, claim that Albanian shall be the official language of their country. The Albanians have two chief languages, the Tosk and the Guegh, and they cannot read them when other people write them, so they use Greek for written communications. Some years ago we mentioned that the Bible Society had published a Tosk Testament, which no one could read, so they printed a Guegh Testament, in another new character, and set up schools to teach people to read it.—Athenaeum.

The Lord Mayor elect (Alderman Sir Charles Whetham) has honoured Messrs. Lock and Whitfield, of Regent-street, with a sitting for his photograph, which will be reproduced by the Woodbury permanent process and published with the November number of the British Mercantile Gazette.

CONSECRATION OF THE LODGE OF PROGRESS, No. 1768.

The consecration of this lodge took place on Thursday, October 17th, at Freemasons' Hall, W.C., by the V.W. Bro. John Hervey, Grand Sec.; Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G. Chaplain; H. G. Buss, P.G. Treas. Middx. as Director of Ceremonies; Murton, P.G.D., as S.W.; Fenn, P.G.D., as J.W.; The musical arrangements were in the hands of a very able brother, but we regret we cannot mention him by name, or the brother who acted as I.G.

In his opening remarks Bro. Hervey expressed unqualified satisfaction at being called upon to consecrate a lodge, every petitioner for which was a member, and in most cases a prominent working member, of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, wherein he had held the office of Treasurer for over thirty years. He had no misgiving whatever that the rendering of the beautiful ceremonies of the Order would in any way suffer in the hands of the officers designate, or that any candidate seeking Masonic light in the Lodge of Progress would fail to be impressed when the mysteries of Freemasonry were revealed to him in all their solemnity.

An eloquent oration was delivered by the Rev. Bro. Simpson, of which the following may be taken as a summary. "I have had much pleasure in complying with the request that I should assist as Chaplain at the consecration of the Lodge of Progress, more especially as my old and excellent friend, the Grand Secretary is the Consecrating and Installing Officer, I congratulate you on the happy choice you have made in styling yourselves the Lodge of Progress. I will take your title as a key to the observations I am about to make. But let me first premise these remarks are not intended to teach the experienced brethren here present anything unknown, but rather to remind them and myself of some old facts and truths that may help us on the march of progress. In the opening chapter of the volume of the Sacred Law we have the first record of progress in matter. From chaos came the new created world; mother earth ever labouring for our good furnished the materials to aid man, first with his tent, then the hut, the house, the tabernacle, and so on, until finally that grand masterpiece, King Solomon's Temple at Jerusalem was completed. Thus to this day the wonderful properties and powers of matter are being continually evolved. Let us take a short review of the progress of man. Though fallen from his first high estate, man, fashioned in the express image of his God, has made mighty progress in the restoration of that Godlike image that was defaced. A long line of patriarchs, prophets, kings, and righteous men in sacred history attest this progress, while Plato, Aristotle, and many a great philosopher, in profane history, bear witness to the same. In modern days we meet with many noble and remarkable instances of the like kind, all this moral, intellectual, and religious progress tending to one great result, educating man for the Grand Lodge above. Again, with regard to the progress of Masonry, this has been great, especially of late years. The principles held by Masons, and the foundation of all religious systems that acknowledge the one true and living God, which acknowledgment at once implies acting under a law, acting in the sight of the law-giver, responsible belief, and a system of rewards and punishments. In no system is the arrangement from design more beautifully and significantly illustrated than in Freemasonry. It tells man of a happy present and of a still happier future; and guiding his footsteps by the light of Divine truth, points to those eternal mansions whence all goodness emanates. May this lodge ever be guided by this light. Order, harmony, and proportion are the requisites of every building, spiritual, social, and political, which would make any claim to perfection. Let us endeavour to unite ourselves by the principles of genuine philanthropy, so to build up ourselves in good works, and to practise the doctrines taught by our noble institution, that in whatever character we may appear in the world, we may faithfully perform our duty. Let us live as men considering the great end for which the goodness of God created us, beseeching Him who ruleth the universe and giveth order and motion to the heavenly bodies, that He would direct our goings in the true and right way, that our footsteps slip not, that he would promote still more and more that charity which is the bond of all virtue, and give us wisdom to contrive in all our undertakings, strength to support us in all difficulties, and beauty to adorn those heavenly mansions, where His honour dwelleth."

The ceremony of consecration being concluded, Bro. W. A. Dawson was presented for installation, duly inducted into the chair of K.S. by Bro. Hervey, and received the salutations of the brethren.

Bro. Legg was unanimously elected and invested Treasurer, and the following officers were appointed:—Bros. F. R. Spaul, S.W.; A. C. Spaul, J.W.; Hornblower, Sec.; Tattershall, S.D.; Duret, J.D.; Ockenden, I.G.; and Marvin, M.C.

Bros. Hervey, Simpson, Buss, Murton, Fenn, and Richards, were elected honorary members.

Bros. Smallpeice, Secretary Emulation Lodge of Improvement; Hunt, Kentish, and other petitioning brethren were present, and there were also several visitors.

Several propositions for joining and for initiation were handed in, and all further business being despatched the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to supper, where the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, all speeches being commendably short.

This lodge will be worked on strictly Emulation ritual and proposes to dispense with banquets.

The first regular meeting will take place on Wednesday next, 30th inst., at Freemasons' Hall.

Reports of Lodges 78, 1085, 1512, and 1560, stand over.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF ST. LUKE'S CHURCH, SOUTHPORT.

As a rule, unless Royalty be present, the laying of a foundation stone of a public building is chiefly noticeable for the speeches delivered. There are no spectacular effects connected with the ceremony, and the duties of journalists are confined to reporting the addresses, and publishing the architect's description of the building. But the foundation stone of St. Luke's Church was laid under altogether different circumstances. "Pomp and ceremony" distinguished the proceedings, and, lifting them altogether out of the ordinary groove, excited the curiosity of the public to the utmost. Freemasonry, to those beyond the pale of the Craft, is enveloped in mystery, so that upon the rare occasions when the veil of concealment is partially raised, the outside world eagerly avails itself of the opportunity to obtain some little knowledge of the "forms and ceremonies" observed by the brethren. It is, therefore, not a subject for wonder that the publication of the announcement of the foundation stone of St. Luke's Church being laid with Masonic honours caused the inhabitants of this town to turn out in large numbers. Not only was the ground on which the church will hereafter stand, alive with spectators, but the streets through which the procession passed were filled by sight-seers. The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, as Provincial Grand Master for West Lancashire, laid the foundation stone, and his presence secured the attendance not only of brethren of the Provincial Grand Lodge, but of Masons resident in the district. The appointed rendezvous was Holy Trinity Schools, the members of the local lodges walking to it in procession from Nevill-street. Half-past one was fixed for the grand procession to start, and the Masons exhibited their appreciation of the truth of the proverb that "punctuality is the soul of business," by turning out shortly after the appointed hour in the usual order.

It is difficult to write anything like a picturesque description of a procession in which the picturesque element is conspicuous by its absence. A number of gentlemen, walking two and two, attired in black broadcloth and "stove pipe" hats, the sameness of their attire relieved by curious little aprons, is not altogether a cheerful spectacle. The procession was, however, redeemed from the utterly commonplace by the choirs of Holy Trinity and St. Luke's in their surplices, and a large number of clergymen who put in an appearance, attired likewise in surplices, and also wearing the distinctive hoods of their respective universities.

Whatever may have been the effect of the procession on the spectators, the ceremony on the ground must have surprised all present. It proved to outsiders that Freemasonry is a substantial reality, and the service—for such it may be really called—was conducted with a large amount of solemnity.

The Masons having taken up their appointed positions an ode was sung, and the following address was presented to the Provincial Grand Master by the Vicar of Holy Trinity:

Holy Trinity, Southport, October 18th, 1878.

My Lord, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master,—The population of Holy Trinity Parish having enormously increased of late years, and the church accommodation thereby become wholly inadequate to its requirements, it has been decided to divide the parish, and to build on this spot a church of a plain, but substantial character, to seat 1000 persons, the estimated cost of which is £6000. Of this sum £3000 has been already subscribed; and Bro. the Rev. W. A. Marsden, B.A., has accepted the charge of the new district. The Building Committee, appointed to carry out the work being all Freemasons, and knowing how highly the great principles of the ancient Craft are valued by your lordship, ventured to suggest that this would be a suitable occasion for their practical application. I have, therefore, on behalf of the committee, myself, and all present, to offer to your lordship a most hearty welcome and our warmest thanks for so heartily acceding to our request to lay the foundation stone of our new church; and may the Great Architect of the Universe prosper our handiwork, and grant your lordship long life to practice and uphold the principles of true Masonry in this province.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

C. S. HUPP, Vicar.

The upper stone having been raised, and the lower one adjusted, the Provincial Grand Chaplain offered up the following prayer:

Prevent us, O Lord, in all our doings with Thy most gracious favour, and further us with Thy continual help, that in all our works begun, continued, and ended in Thee, we may glorify Thy holy name. Aid us, O God, in the work we are now about to commence, and grant that this foundation stone may be the foundation of much faith and good works. Put it into the hearts of Thy people that they may give freely of that which Thou hast bestowed upon them, that upon this stone may be raised a superstructure perfect in all its parts, honourable to its builders, and worthy of the great cause to which it will be consecrated. Give to us grace that we may engage in our present purpose with the deepest humility and most earnest reverence, and that all our work may be to the honour and glory of Thy great name.

The ceremony of laying the stone was then proceeded with, the band meanwhile playing solemn music, and as soon as it was "truly laid," the R.W.P.G.M. strewed the corn and poured the wine and oil over the stones.

An ode was also sung in an impressive manner by the choir and Masons.

Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.M., stepped forward, and said—Mr. Hope and brethren, I assure you it gives me very great pleasure indeed to come here this day to begin so good a work as this which is about to begin, namely, to lay the foundation stone of a church in this town. This is the second time that I have performed this ceremony in this town, but this is the first time I have performed it with Masonic honours; in fact, it is the first time that have had the gratification and the pleasure of laying the foundation stone since I came to rule over this great province. (Cheers.) I am sure there is no Masonic work in which I have ever been engaged that has given me half the pleasure than that of doing this work to-day. We all know how much Church accommodation is wanted, in this increasing town, which is increasing so rapidly that the accommodation at present provided cannot be one-half enough for those who ought and would attend the churches if they were able. (Cheers.) Therefore it gives me still greater pleasure when I see this great work of church extension is being carried out here from time to time. I can remember no later than last year our good bishop—the Bishop of Chester—told me that since he came to preside over this diocese he had consecrated or re-opened no less than some eighty-five churches. Now, when we think of the time he has been amongst us I think that shows an advance in South Lancashire, and that the work of church extension is proceeding well and rapidly. (Cheers.) I will not detain you now, as I may have to address you later, but I will merely say that it gives me very great pleasure to lay this foundation stone, and to be surrounded as I am by so goodly a number of the brethren of the province, whom I thank for having come here on this occasion. I can only hope this church may rapidly rise, and that the funds may be speedily for the coming, and that the hope I have expressed that the church will eventually be free will be fully and entirely carried out. (Loud applause.)

The Rector having offered up a prayer, Bro. Alpess, the Provincial Grand Secretary, read the Maronic address.

His Lordship then proceeded to lay the foundation stone with full Masonic ceremonial. Previous to this being done the Provincial Grand Secretary read aloud the inscription on the plate, which was as follows:—"This foundation stone of St. Luke's Church was laid with Masonic ceremonial by the Provincial Grand Lodge of the Western Division of Lancashire, on the 18th Oct., A.L. 5878; A.D. 1878." Other ceremonials were gone through, after which his Lordship took the mallet, and declared the stone, "Well formed, true, and trusty."

The Provincial Grand Chaplain offered up a prayer.

The Provincial Grand Master having inspected the plans of the intended building, delivered them to the architect, desiring him to proceed without loss of time to the completion of the work in conformity with the plan.

The proceedings terminated by the singing of the National Anthem.

The procession was then formed in reversed order and returned to Holy Trinity Church Schools, where the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed.

A banquet was held at the Prince of Wales Hotel, which was attended by several ladies and a large number of Masons and others interested in the success of the new undertaking. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. and P.G.M., presided, being supported on the right by Bro. H. S. Alpess, the Prov. Grand Sec., and Bro. the Rev. C. S. Hope; on the left by Bro. the Rev. J. Rees Jenkins, the Prov. Grand Chaplain; Bro. the Rev. C. H. Knowliss, Rector of North Meols. Among those who sat to the right and left of his lordship were Major Turner, P.P.G. Treasurer, the Rev. Canon Clarke, D.D., the Rev. Canon Sheldon, Captain Hesketh, Lever R. Rowbottom, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., and others.—Southport Visitor.

Obituary.

BRO. JOHN NEALDS, SECRETARY, 777.

Bro. John Nealds died October 10th, 1878. He was initiated into Freemasonry in 1837, acting as Secretary about thirty-five years to the Royal Alfred Lodge, No. 777. This worthy brother, who was much esteemed both by Masons and others for his charity, kindness, and urbanity, could never be persuaded to take the Master's chair, though he had filled that of S.W.

A strange fatality has fallen on the Royal Alfred Lodge, No. 777, during the last two months, the brethren having been summoned three times within seven weeks to attend one of their number to the grave, the lodge having only twenty-five members. Bro. Lovitt, the Senior P.M. of the lodge, was buried on the 2nd of September; Bro. Seymore, S.W. of the Royal Alfred, on the 16th of the same month, and Bro. Nealds on the 15th October.

The death of Bro. Seymore was fearfully sudden, as he attended a lodge of instruction the previous evening, left in his usual health about half-past ten, was taken ill in his bath next morning, expiring within ten minutes of the first alarm. The other two brethren had been unwell some months past.

At the opening debate of the session of the Deaf and Dumb Debating Society which took place in the Lecture Hall of the Royal Association in Aid of the Deaf and Dumb, St. Saviour's, Oxford-street, Mr. Thomas Davidson (President in the chair). The question discussed was "Is the Indian Government justified in going to war with Afghanistan?" After a spirited discussion by means of the finger and sign language the following result was obtained:—Ayes, 33; noes, 5; neutral, 2.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Female Complaints.—On the mothers of England devolves much and serious responsibility in securing for their daughters robust health; frequently alas! thoughtlessly sacrificed by culpable bashfulness at a particular period of life, when all-important changes take place in the female constitution, upon the management of which depend future happiness or misery. Holloway's Pills, especially if aided with the Ointment, have the happiest effect in establishing those functions upon the due performance of which health and even life itself depend. Mother and daughter may safely use these powerful dependant remedies without consulting anyone. Universally adopted as the one grand remedy for female complaints, these Pills never fail, never weaken the system, and always bring about the desired result.—[ADVT.]

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DURHAM.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Freemasons in the county of Durham was held at the city of Durham. The business of the lodge was transacted in the lodge room, under the presidency of the right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master (Bro. John Fawcett, J.P.), and there was an unusually large attendance.

After the transaction of the routine business, the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master offered his hearty congratulations to the brethren present on the prosperous condition of Freemasonry in the province, as indicated by the reports of the respective W.M.s. of independent lodges. He was particularly pleased to hear that in several instances there had been no single case of "blackballing" during the year. (Hear, hear.) He attached very great importance to that, because it showed that Freemasonry was being properly understood. It showed that no person was proposed for initiation without due inquiry, and it also showed an absence of personal animosity. The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master took the opportunity of deprecating, which he did very strongly, the action taken by the Grand Orient of France in expunging from their constitution the essential belief in a Deity; and he expressed the profound pleasure with which he hailed the bold stand made by the Grand Lodge of England on this subject, and enjoined on the various Masters of lodges in the province, particularly in seaports, the duty of carrying out and observing the edict of the Grand Lodge, that none be admitted into the Craft from French lodges who had been made since this change had been effected, unless he fully avowed his belief in this cardinal doctrine, and recognised its importance.

The remarks of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master were received with every mark of approbation.

The Provincial Officers for the ensuing year were then invested. They are as follows:—

Sir Hedworth Williamson, Bart.	Prov. D.G.M.
Alderman Thomas Robinson, Mayor of Newcastle	Prov. G.S.W.
Dent	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. J. M. Shepherd	Prov. G. Chap.
Metcalf Watson	Prov. G. Reg.
Rev. Canon Cundill	Prov. G. Treas.
W. H. Crookes	Prov. G. Sec.
Fred Maddison	Prov. G.S.D.
W. J. Watson	Prov. G.J.D.
Robert Hudson	Prov. G.D.C.
George Greenwell	Prov. G.A.D.C.
John Tilman	Prov. G.S. of W.
Johnston	Prov. G. Swd. B.
Muller	Prov. G. Org.
W. J. Turnbull	Prov. G. Purs.
E. Sutherland, F. W. Poe, W. H. Emerson, J. E. Lazenby, J. B. Hall	Prov. G. Stewards.
John Smith	Prov. G. Tyler.

The brethren, about 250 in number, afterwards assembled at a sumptuous banquet held at the Town Hall. We ought to add that the Provincial Grand Lodge, at its meeting decided, amid universal acclamation, to fix a tablet in the Cathedral (with the permission of the dean and chapter) in commemoration of the lengthened period of service rendered by Bro. John Fawcett, in his capacity as Grand Master of the province, he being the oldest Provincial Grand Master in the kingdom. It is to be placed beneath the memorial window which was put in some time ago by the Masons of the Durham Province.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. The three chairs were filled by Bro. John Clabon, President; Bro. Joshua Nunn, Senior Vice-President; and Bro. James Brett, Junior Vice-President. The other brethren who attended were Bros. Henry Garrod, C. A. Cottebrune, Griffiths Smith, W. Stephens, S. Rawson, J. M. Case, John Constable, L. Alexander, W. H. Honey, C. F. Hogard, John White, J. Wright, David Roberts, Treasurer, 754, P.G.S.B., Herts; F. Binckes, W. Jones, P.M. 862; G. H. Rawley, D. J. Robinson, W.M. 186; W. Mann, P.M. 186; W. Stuart, Robert E. H. Halford, G. P. Britten, John Davis, J. Nicholson, A. J. Manning, R. A. Steel, Charles K. Killick, J. Newton, W. C. Corner, and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, Bro. W. Dodd, and Bro. C. B. Payne, Grand Tyler, also attended.

The brethren then confirmed grants to the amount of £155 made at last meeting of the lodge, and afterwards considered the new cases. Of these there were eighteen on the list. Three were deferred for evidence that the brethren had paid two years to their lodges. The fifteen remaining cases were relieved with a total sum of £319, which was composed of one £50 (£50), three £40 (£120), two £30 (£60), two £20 (£40), four £10 (£40), one £5, and two £2 (£4).

Lodge was then closed.

Reviews.

THE ROSICRUCIAN. Edited by Bro. W. R. Woodman, M.D., and Bro. H. C. Levander, M.A. 198, Fleet-street.

The editorship of this quarterly and very interesting High-Grade magazine has changed hands, in that our esteemed and able Bro. Levander has succeeded in the joint editorship to our lamented Bro. R. W. Little. The number for April is a very good one. All the articles are worth reading, especially "A Templar Preceptory," (based on Kenrick's interesting little work, to which we have often alluded), and Bro. Kenneth Mackenzie's article on the Swedenborgian Rite, which, however, has nothing properly to do with Swedenborg. We do not profess to agree with Bro. B. H. Burrows, in respect of "Hiram the Builder." Bro. Burrows repeats Mackey's mistake, that Hiram was not an architect; in which he is, like the great doctor quite in error. See the Bible. The history of Hiram, like to the central figure and legend, no doubt, of all early mysteries, is a very interesting subject of discussion, but we see no reason to doubt, especially remembering the significant silence of the Bible, that our own history has in it no a priori objection to its truth. The Magazine contains a good likeness and memoir of our lamented Bro. R. W. Little, whose services to Masonry and Masonic literature cannot be overrated.

OUR RED COATS AND BLUE JACKETS. By HENRY STEWART. Bro. John Hogg, Paternoster Row. This is a very interesting work, which will repay perusal, and will gratify many of our younger readers. The deeds of our gallant Red Coats and Blue Jackets are always very pleasant reading, and we can find nothing better for "stalwart youth," than those acts of heroism, which have immortalised our two great services.

The book begins with the wars of the French Revolution, takes us through our great sea and land wars, through Indian wars and Indian mutinies, through China, the Crimea, and ends with Abyssinia and the Ashantee war.

Such a varied history is, like the kaleidoscope, full of ever changing views and startling aspects, but in all British pluck and British heroism by land and sea predominate, and come wondrously to the fore. To those who have studied more elaborate works, (for them the book is not intended), of course, the details of the battles appear somewhat slight—and especially at Waterloo; those of us who have read Hooper's book will remember much that is necessarily omitted. Indeed, the account of Waterloo can only be a sketch.

Still the work is most interesting in itself, especially for the young, and we predicate for it much popularity and a remunerative sale.

TEACHER'S ASSISTANT. Eyre and Spottiswoode, Printers to the Queen.

This very useful appendix to the Sunday school teacher and the Bible, as put forth by the Queen's Printers, deserves perusal and patronage. It deals, and though succinctly, deals successfully with the poetry, music, ethnology, plants, animals, money and weights, chronology, &c., of the Bible, and it will be most useful as it is needful to Sunday school teachers. Much of our Sunday school teaching is fragmentary, unsatisfactory, and incomplete, owing to want of information, and we recommend Sunday school teachers to study, not skim over, this little and unpretending, but valuable work. It is quite clear that you cannot teach if you are not taught yourself, and from all evils, defend us from unlettered and untutored instruction. Our Sunday schools might do more than they do, if all our teachers received certificates of competency, as with the best intentions in the world, they often fail in absolute knowledge of the subject, as well as power of teaching. Let them, however, study this little help, and they will be able to give their classes a good deal of valuable information. The study of the Bible is the strength of our Sunday school system.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CHANGES IN THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE. Yokohama, 1878.

This is an address delivered to the Grand Lodge of Burmah, June 24th, 1878, by D.G.M. Bro. C. H. Dallas. It is well worth reading. Without travelling over old ground, or repeating an oft told tale, we commend the outspoken words of the D.G.M. to the attention and study of our many readers.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

OLYMPIC.—That sooner or later Bro. Neville would revive poor John Oxenford's adaptation of "Les Deux Orphelins" was taken for granted by those who remembered how highly successful the piece proved when produced at this theatre some few years ago, and the only wonder was that its revival had been delayed so long, considering the many favourable opportunities that have presented themselves during the last two seasons, thanks to the unfortunate failures the house has seen. There can be no two opinions as to "The Two Orphans" being a clever sensational piece, and exactly suited to the traditions of the Olympic, and the crowded houses that nightly testify their approval is the criticism no doubt Bro. Neville appreciates most. Under these circumstances we need only congratulate him upon the efficiency of the cast he has obtained for its due representation. We are glad to see him in his old part of Pierre, the faint-hearted cripple, for it requires all his art to enlist one's sympathies in a character, to say the least, far from heroic, and almost contemptible. Of the original cast, we have, besides Mr. Voltaire, Mr. Rignold, Mrs. Huntley, and Miss Ernstone, who have lost none of their force, especially Mr. Rignold, who, perhaps, a little exaggerates the bully. Of the new impersonations we cannot speak too highly of Miss Helen Barry's "Countess," which shews only too clearly the advantage of having an accomplished artiste in a small part; and of the others, Miss Marion Terry and Mr. F. H. Macklin merit praise for their careful acting and finished style.

ROYALTY.—Miss Kate Santley has resumed the management of this bright and pretty little house. Somehow it seems "The Royalty" is never in good hands except Miss Kate Santley's. The programme, one of the best in London, consists of three pieces, namely, "Kerry," an excellent one act drama, but in this present instance not well cast, excepting, of course, the "Kerry" of Mr.

Groves; his personation of the old Irish servant is an admirable performance; "A Happy Pair," one of the brightest, wittiest, little comediettas ever written, in which Miss Santley plays "Mrs. Honeyton," and plays it so well too that I am surprised she does not essay some more ambitious character part, and "La Jolie Perfumeeuse," a capital piece of nonsense set to excellent music by Offenbach.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

The monthly return of the number of paupers in England (minus about 3 per cent. for lunatic paupers in asylums, &c., not included) shows that at the end of August the southern part of the kingdom, including London, had 5961 fewer paupers than at the corresponding period of last year; while the northern part of the kingdom (with Wales) showed an increase of 15,091 paupers. But an examination of the return shows also that the south, with a population of 9,959,215 at the last census had 316,284 paupers at the end of August 1878, or 3.17 per cent. of the population; while the north, with 12,747,087 population, had only 339,852 paupers, or 2.66 per cent. of the population.

A telegram has been received at Bremen, by the Geographical Society, from M. A. Sibirakoff, announcing that the Lena, steamer, of the Swedish North-East passage Expedition, had reached the mouth of the Lena, ascended that river 180 (German) miles, and arrived at Jakatsk in safety on the 22nd of September.

The Dutch schooner Willem Barents has returned from her Arctic expedition. No one of those who sailed in her has suffered in health except Dr. Sluiter, naturalist. Gravestones have been placed on the spots where celebrated Dutch explorers are believed to have perished, and scientific experiments have been made. Accounts of these and charts of the voyage will shortly be published.

A Brighton gentleman, who wrote recently to Mr. Gladstone on the subject of spiritualism has received the following reply:—"London, Oct. 16.—I do not share or approve the temper of simple contempt with which so many view the phenomena. It is a question, in the first instance, of evidence; it then follows to explain, as far as we can, such facts as may have been established. My own immediate duties prevent my active intervention; and I remain, in what may be called contented reserve, without any fear that imposture will rule or that truth can be mischievous.—Yours faithfully, W. E. Gladstone. Mr. J. T. Markley, Horsham, Sussex."

Some remarks on the subject of Opium-smoking are recorded by Dr. Ayres, Colonial Surgeon at Hong Kong, in his last report to the Department. According to the opinion and experience of this officer, it is a misapprehension to attribute to the smoking of opium, as a rule, the fearful and ghastly results with which it is usually credited. When offenders are committed to goal their allowance of opium is frequently stopped altogether, but no evil results ensue. It would appear that opium-eating has been confused with opium-smoking, and that many who practise the latter are the subjects of scrofulous diseases in their worst forms and most advanced stages.—Lancet.

Four more minor planets have been discovered lately within a fortnight:—No. 189 on September 18, by Professor Peters, at the Observatory of Hamilton College, Clinton, New York; No. 190, by Professor Watson, at Ann Arbor Michigan; No. 191, on September 30, and No. 192, on October 2, both again by Peters, who for some years past has been the most successful planet-hunter, his last discovery raising the number of his unanticipated discoveries to 32. This last planet is announced to be of the ninth magnitude, and is on that account noteworthy, since such a bright planet has not been among the newly-found ones for some years. The planet No. 188, discovered by Peters on June 26, has received the name Menippe.—Academy.

Mr. Edward A. Bond has now entered on the discharge of the duties of Principal Librarian and Secretary of the British Museum, under his appointment by the Queen, Mr. Winter Jones having retired from the office on Saturday last after a service of upwards of 41 years. There is every probability that Mr. E. M. Thompson, the present Assistant-Keeper of the Manuscripts, will succeed Mr. Bond in the keepership of the department. Mr. T. Nichols has been appointed private secretary to the Principal Librarian.

The Papal Archaeological Academy will shortly resume its sittings. It has been closed for some time in consequence of political circumstances, but Leo XIII. has now granted permission for its resumption under the direction of Cardinal di Pietro. Besides the study of classical antiquities, to which the Academy formerly confined itself, it is now to turn its attention chiefly to the middle ages. Meetings are to be held in the house of Cardinal di Pietro until a fitting locale is found for the society.—Academy.

In digging the foundations for a new shaft at the rear of premises in the occupation of Messrs. Morgan and Co., in Long-acre, last week, some workmen came upon a chest containing a large number of gold and silver coins of the reign of Henry VIII. in a high state of preservation. Besides a quantity of miscellaneous articles, the box contained about 20 pieces of church plate and ornaments. Among these were a massive chalice, a ciborium, and a monstrance, all set with precious stones; a finely-carved crozier head, a lapis lazuli crucifix, a pectoral cross and chain attached, some small vessels, and what appears to have been the mitre of an abbot or a bishop. At the foot of the chalice a cross with a nimbus is engraved, and in a scroll the Latin inscription "Ad majorem Dei gloriam."

Masonic and General Tidings.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.
—We have much pleasure in informing the Craft that Bro. Lieut.-Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, East Lancashire, has consented to preside at the next anniversary festival of this Institution, which will be held on the 12th of February, 1879. This is the first occasion, we believe, on which the Prov. G.M. for this province has presided at any of our Masonic festivals, and we doubt not but that the brethren will gladly avail themselves of this opportunity of enrolling themselves as Stewards and supporting Col. Starkie in his Presidency. Bro. James Perry, P.G.J.W. Herts, Secretary, will be glad to receive names of brethren willing to act as Stewards.

The meetings of the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193, are held every Wednesday evening throughout the year, from 7 to 9 o'clock p.m., at the Fen-church Tavern, Railway-street, City.

The Doric Chapter of Instruction, No. 933, will commence its weekly winter evening meetings on Monday next at 8 o'clock, at Comp. Yetton's, the Rising Sun, Globe-road, Bethnal Green. Comp. T. J. Barnes, P.Z., is the Preceptor; Comp. W. H. Myers, S.E.

A special meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter of West Yorkshire will be held at the Freemasons' Hall, Surrey-street, Sheffield, on Wednesday, the 30th of October, 1878, at four o'clock, for the installation of the Most Excellent Comp. Lieut.-Col. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., D.L., P.Z. 61, as Provincial Grand Superintendent, and for the transaction of the general business of the province.

Bro. Emra Holmes' new work, "Amabel Vaughan," is to come out in December. Messrs. Lake and Lake, of Truro, are the publishers. We believe between 200 and 300 copies have already been subscribed for. The object of the publication is to assist a distressed brother Mason, and as such commends itself to the Craft, apart from the literary merits of Bro. Holmes' tales, poems, and Masonic papers; and subscribers' names will be gladly received by either the local or the London publisher, Bro. Geo. Kenning, 198, Fleet-street.

Bro. John Derby Allicroft, M.P., P.M. 1657; has been initiated an honorary member of the Hope of Worcester Lodge of Oddfellows, Manchester Unity.

Sir Edmund Lechmere, M.P., R.W.G.M. Worcester, and Lady Lechmere, have left England en route for Rhodes and Cyprus.

Mr. Edison's patents for the subdivision of the electric light were filed in the Patent Office in London on Wednesday morning, and as soon as the legal formalities have been completed, the experiments with the invention will, no doubt, be publicly made.

The election for the office of Remembrancer for the City of London will take place on Wednesday next, in the Court of Common Council.

WENTWORTH LITTLE MEMORIAL.—It has been thought advisable by the President to postpone the meeting of the Committee from the 28th instant, until the circular has been sent to all the lodges in London and country.

The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor accompanied by Bro. Sheriff Burt, opened the Tottenham, Edmonton, and Enfield Industrial Exhibition in Park-lane, Tottenham, on Thursday.

The Consecration of the Abbey Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 225, will take place at the Abbey Council Chamber, Abingdon, on Wednesday next. Bro. the Rev. P.M. Holden, P.G.C. (Mark), is the Installing Officer. Special arrangements have been made by Bro. E. L. Shepherd, the Secretary, with the G.W.R., to enable London brethren to leave Paddington by the 10 o'clock a.m. express. Return tickets, second-class, 11s, on production of summons.

"Catherine Carmichael; or Three Years' Running," is the title of the new and original story, written expressly for the "Masonic Magazine," by Anthony Trollope.

Miss Helen Barry has purchased a new comedy, "April Showers," by the authors of "Flirtation," Messrs. Bellamy and Komer.

The annual benefit of Messrs. John and Richard Douglass, proprietors of the "National Standard Theatre," will take place at that establishment on Monday, and Tuesday, Nov. 18th and 19th, on which occasion the celebrated actress, Miss Heath, will appear in her great character of Jane Shore. We wish Bro. John Douglass a full house.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked by the principal acting officers of the St. James's Lodge, No. 482, on Monday week, the 4th proximo, at five o'clock p.m., precisely. The lodge meetings are held at the New Inn, Handsworth, near Birmingham.

Madame Worrell-Duval announces that her annual evening concert will be held at the South Place Institute, Finsbury-square, on Monday, Nov. 11th. Tickets may be obtained of Bro. W. T. Rickwood, 33, Cheap-side, E.C., and Bro. Wm. Worrell, 67, Knowle-road, Brixton.

The whaler Arctic arrived on Wednesday from the Davis Straits fishery. The Arctic has one whale, and the other ships of the fleet have only five fish among them. The steamer Camperdown, of Dundee, is reported totally lost, but the crew have been saved. She was worth £20,000. Such an unfortunate whaling season has probably never before been experienced.

Bro. George Burt, Past Grand Warden Dorset, was among the visitors at the Emulation Lodge on Monday last. In replying to the toast of "The Visitors," Bro. Burt remarked that this was the first Masonic meeting he had attended, since his installation as one of the Sheriffs of the City of London.

In presenting the prizes in connection with the Nottingham science classes the Duke of St. Albans said, we must feel proud at the triumphs of our commerce and our industry, which had placed us foremost among the nations of the earth; but he would remind his hearers that Continental nations were prepared at this moment to attack that supremacy. He was astonished the other day to hear one of the leading bankers in the metropolis say that he was able to engage three German clerks for the price of two English ones, and that these Germans were able to speak four languages. He thought the advancement which had been made in educational matters on the Continent was a grave matter for consideration. It was no argument that because genius in this country would show itself in a variety of ways and because we had talent in our midst, schools of art and science were unnecessary. It was more than ever necessary that we should have such machinery. If Englishmen were not furnished with a good elementary education, and if science was not put within their reach, English industry would be beaten out of the field.

The sum of £20 has been handed over to the Princess Alice Mansion House Relief Fund by Bro. Charles Jolly, being the product of the sale of some verses of which Bro. Jolly was the author.

At a recent meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Durham it was decided amid universal acclamation to fix a tablet in the Cathedral (with the permission of the Dean and Chapter) in commemoration of the lengthened period of service rendered by Bro. John Fawcett, the R.W. G.M. of the Province. Bro. Fawcett is the oldest Provincial Grand Master in the Kingdom. Should permission be granted by the Dean, the tablet will be placed beneath the Memorial window, erected some time since by the Durham brethren.

Our readers, particularly those in Ireland, will learn with deep regret of the death of Bro. Captain George Huband, which sad event occurred on Sunday, October the 13th.

An effort is being made to relieve the necessities of Bro. J. B. Buckstone, who for so many years afforded amusement to playgoers at the Haymarket Theatre, and who is now in great distress. He is unable to move without assistance, and his memory has entirely gone. Donations may be sent to the Editor of the Whitehall Review (who has consented to act as Treasurer), 6, York-street, Covent-garden, London, W.C.

FREEMASONRY IN SOUTHAMPTON.—The petition of members resident in Southampton of the New Forest (Lymington) Lodge to open a lodge in the town where they reside has been granted, on the recommendation of the Prov. Grand Master (Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.), who was petitioned by certain Southampton Masons in opposition. The first Master of the new lodge, named the "Albert Edward," No. 1780, is to be Bro. W. Hickman, of Southampton, the Dep. Prov. Grand Master. Bro. Hickman has just been elected Chairman of the Board of Directors of the new Masonic Hall Company in Southampton, which has secured for its new premises a beautiful site overlooking the fine western bay of the town and the bordering New Forest.

We regret having to record this week the death at Hooley House, Coulsdon, of Bro. James Johnstone, who had been for more than twenty years the sole proprietor of the Standard. In recording the sad event the Standard of Tuesday says: "Mr. Johnstone's private character can hardly be spoken of impartially by his friends in a journal which remains in the possession of his family; but affectionate remembrances of him will long be kept green in the memories of the many who have the best cause to know how just were his dealings and how generous his impulses. It was a manly, strenuous, energetic, and influential life that came to its close this week, at Hooley House."

The Duke of Sutherland has presented each of the tradesmen on his Trentham estate, some 120 in number, with a milch cow and sufficient pasture land for feeding. This is in addition to the gardens and pasture land they already possess.

REGISTRATION OF DENTISTS.—Already about 907 persons have been registered under the Dentists Act. No less than 816 of these had no claim to legal recognition except that of being engaged in the practice of dentistry—553 alone, 263 in connection with pharmacy. Of those registered 89 possess the licence in Dental Surgery of the Royal College of Surgeons of England.—Lancet.

The French Government has decided to stop the issue of tickets for the National Lottery after the eighth million. The State printing presses cannot supply them fast enough to meet the demand.

The Sheffield Independent informs us that the Richmond Vestry have instructed their surveyor to watch the progress of the electric light, and report whenever he thinks it desirable for the streets of Richmond to be lighted by it.

The plant and appliances employed in the erection of Cleopatra's Needle have been removed, and the artisans from South Kensington Museum are engaged in taking plaster casts of the obelisk. Bro. Professor Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., has handed to Bro. John Dixon, C.E., a cheque for £10,000, in redemption of his pledge to pay him that sum on the erection of Cleopatra's Needle on the banks of the Thames.

GRAND LODGE OF CANADA.

The meeting of the Grand Lodge of Canada, which commenced at Shaftesbury Hall on Wednesday, attracted a large number of the Craft from the country, besides a fair representation of city bodies. The brethren attended in Masonic clothing, and presented a fine appearance.

The following were elected officers for the ensuing year:—

M.W. Bro. W. H. Weller, Cobourg (re-elected)	Grand Master.
V.W. Bro. J. A. Henderson, Kingston, (re-elected)	D. Grand Master
V.W. Bro. Bernard Saunders, Toronto	G.S. Warden.
V.W. Bro. T. H. Tracey, London	G.J. Warden.
Rev. C. W. Patterson, Aurora	Grand Chap.
V.W. Bro. E. Mitchell, Hamilton	G. Treasurer.

PAXTON LODGE (No. 1686).—The first anniversary meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday evening, the 26th of October, at the Crystal Palace, Bro. J. M. Klenck, W.M., presiding. There were several visitors present, amongst whom were Bros. Levander, P.M. 507; Morgan, 311; T. Robertson, 1538; C. T. Johnstone, 1237; Rosenthaw, 1339; W. McKay, 1339; H. C. Leverdale, 1415; J. Webb, 55; Charles Fry, 913; and H. Thompson, 1426, and P.M. 177 and 1158 (Freemason). This is what is called a banner lodge, and several of a most artistic design were displayed, and with the chaste and elegant furniture the lodge room presented a most pleasing and unique appearance. The lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes read, the W. Master vacated the chair, which was taken by Bro. H. E. Francis, when Bro. Goddard, S.W. and W.M. elect, was presented to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. After the customary ceremonies all the brethren below the chair were requested to retire, and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. Goddard was installed into the chair of K.S. in a most able manner by the installing Master. The brethren being admitted, the new W.M. was saluted in the Three Degrees, after which he appointed his officers as follows: Bros. Sawyer, S.W.; Boswell, J.W.; Klenck, Treas.; Francis, Sec.; Woodham, S.D.; Basenett, J.D.; G. R. Dodd, I.G.; S. Walker, D. of C.; N. J. Whitcombe, Asst. D. of C.; F. W. Goddard, W.S.; Partridge, Asst. W.S. The usual addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren having been delivered by Bro. Francis, the W. Master said it then devolved upon him to present a jewel to Bro. Klenck, their I.P.M., which was one of a most artistic design, and in presenting it to him he could sincerely say that he possessed their sympathy and good wishes on the termination of his year of office as the first W.M. of the Paxton Lodge. Might he long continue to wear it on his breast, and might he also long continue to be a member of the lodge, for to him the foundation of it was mainly due. Bro. Klenck briefly returned thanks for the honour conferred upon him, as he should have another opportunity of addressing them at a later period of the evening. The W.M. said that Shakespeare had said "Hang out your banners on the outer wall," but in that lodge they placed them within their walls, and he had great pleasure in presenting one for their acceptance, which was of elegant design, beautifully emblazoned, and the work of Bro. Francis, the Secretary. Bro. Klenck, I.P.M., proposed a vote of thanks should be entered on the minutes to the W.M. for his present, which was seconded by Bro. Sawyer, S.W., and carried unanimously. The W.M. briefly returned thanks. Bro. Francis said he also begged to present the lodge with a banner, which they saw behind the J.W.'s chair, and on which at present there were only three names, but he hoped the time would come when it would be filled with them. He considered that no lodge was worthy of support that had not its charity fund, for it was hardly worth the name of Freemasonry. He asked the brethren to accept at his hands the banner they saw before them (this banner contains the names of three brethren who have qualified themselves as Vice-Presidents of the Benevolent Institution). The banner was received with thanks to the donor. On the motion of the W. Master, it was agreed that the meeting nights of the lodge should be on the last Monday in March, April, May, September, and October. Apologies for non-attendance at the lodge were received from Lieut. Col. Burdett, Prov. Grand Master for Middlesex, Colonel Peters, Bros. J. Lucas, Allen, J. M'Cree, Lacey, J. Lord, Dr. Sterling, A. Durrant, and George Kenning, P.G.D. Middlesex. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the large dining hall, where the banquet was served. At the conclusion the W.M. gave "The Queen and the Craft," and, in doing so, said they not only owed her fealty as their Sovereign, but she reigned in their hearts as the mother of their Grand Master. In giving "The Health of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master of England," he said they, as Masons, revered his exalted position as Grand Master, and the energy, cordiality, and assiduity with which he discharged the duties was universally acknowledged, and on the present occasion, they could not do less than express their esteem of their Grand Master. The W. Master said the next toast he had to propose was "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers," who formed a most distinguished conclave, and as no one could do justice to their merits he should "cut it short," and, without saying any more, give them "The Grand Officers." The toast was heartily responded to. Bro. Klenck, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the Worshipful Master," and remarked, that as the brethren had known him from the foundation of the lodge, as one of its founders, they had had full opportunity of judging of his capability in the office he had occupied previously to that night. It was said that their W.M. had coveted three things, the first was to preach a sermon at Exeter Hall (a laugh), the second, to play a leading part on the stage of Drury-lane (renewed laughter), and the third, that he might become W.M. of the lodge. As to the two first, he knew nothing, but as regarded the last, his wish had culminated in obtaining the position of W.M. that night, and he had no doubt that in time he would achieve the others. Bro. Goddard was a true man, and he (Bro. Klenck) greeted him heartily on the post he then occupied, and he was sure that they would by acclamation accord what was unusually due to him for his services, and it is almost needless to say that this request was heartily responded to. The W.M., in responding, said he was "poor in thanks" and was inadequate to give expression to his feelings in reply to the toast which their honourable Past Master had proposed. It had been well said by their great poet that "when a well-graced actor leaves the stage the audience are idly bent upon him that enters next, thinking his profile to be tedious," and that was just the position in which he found himself at that moment. Having made some facetious remarks as to his appearance at either Exeter Hall or Drury Lane, he said, as he looked upon long speeches as an abomination, he should cut it short by merely saying that from the very bottom of his heart he thanked them for the honour they had conferred upon him. The W. Master in giving "The Health of Bro. Francis, the Installing Master," said he was deeply impressed with the solemnity of his installation, and should that night go home with the deepest feelings with regard to Freemasonry. He had hitherto regarded Freemasonry as it was exemplified in brotherly love, relief and truth, but when he heard the solemn working of Bro. Francis, he was more than ever deeply impressed with it. He gave "The Health of Bro. Francis, the Installing Master." Bro. Francis, in reply, said he looked upon Freemasonry as a solemn, and a great moral institution, and whatever ceremony he had to go through he always put that feeling into it. He had no trepidation in installing Bro. Goddard into the chair, for he was sure that he had installed a man who would never disgrace it. He might not be perfect in the ritual, but as regarded the principles of Freemasonry, they might well be proud of such a Master. While he (Bro. Francis) was connected with the lodge he would do his utmost to promote its interests, and he trusted that they would never have a less happy gathering than they had that evening. The W. Master said that night they had only one Past Master, but he trusted with the blessing of the G.A.O.T.U.; that they should in time have many Past Masters. That night their Past Master was Bro. Klenck, and he had to present him with a testimonial, supplementary to the one he had received in the lodge, and which he then placed on the table. (The testimonial was on vellum, beautifully emblazoned, in a deep gold frame, and it bore the following inscription:—"Presented to John Mathew Klenck, P.M., by the members of the Paxton Lodge, No. 1686, in testimony of the high esteem in which he was held by his brother members, his exertions on behalf of the Masonic Charities, his efficient services to the lodge, and to commemorate his being first W.M., and one of the founders." This was a work of art, and not only complimentary to the brother to whom it was presented, but might almost be looked upon as a revival of the well-known illustration of ages gone by, for in many ancient cloisters the monks of old they pursued the delightful occupation of illuminating breviaries and other works. In libraries and collections of rare and beautiful art treasures of our day are specimens of their wondrous workmanship; but the exigencies of modern printing will not allow the expenditure of so much time and labour, and it is only when we see a testimonial so excellently illustrated as the one before us that we can recall the art so well practised in the olden time, and linger with pleasure over a work of art and beauty. It has been well said, that "a thing of beauty is a joy for ever." Masonic emblems are from the angularity and rigidity of their forms difficult to work into a design of this class, yet, Bro. Francis has succeeded admirably in introducing among a wealth of scroll work, flowers, and quaint devices, the emblems so prized by the Craft. The initial letters are bold and pleasing in their form. Gold and silver have been lavishly, though not obtrusively, used, and the colouring leaves nothing to be desired in its richness and harmony, reminding one somewhat of an Oriental carpet in the exquisite blending of the various tints. The portraits of the founders of the lodge, with their autographs, are well introduced and added to ours; they are excellent likenesses. On the whole Bro. Klenck, I.P.M., may congratulate himself, not only on the possession of a writing that doubtless conveys the feeling of his brethren, but is also meritorious as a work of art. After a few well chosen words, he said he presented the testimonial as a memorial of his career as W.M., and to shew still further how much he was estimated by the brethren, they had elected him to be the Treasurer of the Paxton Lodge. Bro. Klenck, I.P.M., in reply, said he thanked the W.M. for the very kind manner in which he had proposed his health, and the brethren for the way in which they had received it. With regard to his connection with the Paxton Lodge he had endeavoured to do his duty, and if he had succeeded in giving them satisfaction as their first Master he was much pleased to receive their approbation. He thanked them for the jewel they had presented to him in the lodge, and he hoped that for many years it would adorn his breast. With regard to the additional testimonial, he should exhibit it in the best part of his house, and he could assure them that he was highly pleased at the cordiality and unanimity which reigned in the lodge, they were as members of one family, and he hoped and trusted that no differences would ever arise amongst them. As long as the G.A.O.T.U. allowed him to live anything he could do, to the best of his ability, was at their service, and he hoped in time to obtain additional favours at their hands. "The Visitors," "The Press," and "The Officers of the Lodge," having been given and responded to, the Tyler's toast brought a very happy meeting to a close, and the members and visitors returned by train to town.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge, (No. 78).—The brethren of this lodge assembled at the Asheton Arms Hotel on the 26th ult. There was a fair attendance of brethren and visitors. The W.M., Bro. W. Percival, presided. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Bro. Hewitt, and received confirmation. Mr. Thos. Dixon Yates was proposed as a candidate and the ballot was unanimous. Mr. Yates was accordingly initiated by the W.M., the working tools of an Entered Apprentice were presented by Bro. Hewitt, and the ancient charge was delivered by Bro. Fothergill, S.W., in a most impressive manner. Bro. W.S. Whitaker was raised to the Degree of M.M. by Bro. Percival, W.M. The working tools were presented by the S.W., Bro. Fothergill. The lodge having been lowered to the First Degree Bros. Jowett and Tetlow signed and received their Grand Lodge certificates. During the vacation the lodge lost one of its most valued and esteemed brethren in the person of Past Master Bro. Samuel Henry Cheetham. The W.M. said he had a painful duty to perform in announcing the death of their brother Cheetham. He was well-known and highly esteemed by all the brethren of the lodge. He had filled nearly every office in the Imperial George Lodge, to which he was admitted in August, 1865. He became the W.M. in 1874. Throughout his whole career in the lodge his uniform kindness and gentleness of disposition endeared him to the brethren. He has now joined the Grand Lodge above. We deeply regret the irreparable loss which the lodge has sustained, and we can sympathise with his widow and family in their sad bereavement. I beg to propose "that a vote of sympathy and condolence with the widow and family of our late Bro. Past Master Samuel Henry Cheetham be passed by the lodge, and that the Secretary be empowered to convey the same to them." Bro. Fothergill, S.W., in seconding the resolution, remarked that perhaps he had known their deceased brother more intimately than any other member of the lodge. It was Bro. Cheetham who had proposed him (the S.W.) as a joining member of that lodge. The resolution was carried unanimously. Hearty Good Wishes were accorded from Lodges 158, 163, 208. Charity was next attended to, and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony. The brethren adjourned to the social board. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and the brethren separated shortly before ten.

BURY ST. EDMUND'S.—Royal St. Edmund's Lodge (No. 1008).—This lodge held its first meeting after the summer vacation on Friday, the 25th ult., and upon this occasion was visited by the V.W. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, D. Prov. Grand Master of the province, and Past G.C. of England. A goodly number of the brethren assembled to meet him, including Grand and Prov. Grand Officers. Among the number were Bros. W. H. Lucia, Grand S.W. Br. of England, and Prov. G. Sec. of the province; J. Hoxley Beyer, P. Prov. G.S.W.; T. J. Huddleston, Prov. G. Treas.; C. T. Oakes, P. Prov. G. Reg.; Wm. Armstrong, P. Prov. G.J.D.; J. R. Thompson, P. Prov. G.S.B.; W. D. Paine, P. Prov. A.D. of Cer. The lodge was opened by the W. Master, T. F. Lucia, after which a deputation of Past Masters conducted the D. Prov. G.M. into the lodge, who was received by the brethren in a most hearty manner. The further business of the evening was to pass Bro. F. Macell Smith to the Second Degree, who, after the necessary prelude, was passed as a Fellow of the Craft, the ceremony was performed by the W.M., assisted by the V.W. the D.P.G.M., who explained the working tools of the Degree in a most lengthened manner. The usual proclamation was then made by the W.M., and the communications were read by the Secretary, after which "Hearty Good Wishes" from Lodges 959, 1224, and 1592, were given. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren retired from labour to refreshment. During the evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and received, and at the finale, it was acknowledged by all present, that it was another red-letter day to be placed on the diary of the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge.

DERBY.—Hartington Lodge (No. 1065).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Derby, on Wednesday, the 2nd inst., when the attendance was such as to clearly indicate the interest its members take in the support of the prominent position it has attained in the province. The junior members particularly were in strong muster, and their evident attention to, and acquaintance with the work, testified to the judgment and discretion exercised by the lodge in the selection of its candidates. The presence also of visitors evinced the good fellowship that exists between it and the other lodges in the town and neighbourhood. The initiation and passing ceremonies were worked in admirable form, Mr. Edwin Belfield and Bro. Barr being the recipients respectively of the favours of the W.M. on behalf of the Craft. The subsequent nomination of three brethren as joining members, and one gentleman as a candidate for Freemasonry, proved the popularity of the lodge, and we express our fraternal wish that it may so continue to be, being assured that the popularity of any Craft lodge is solely due to judicious management, and an attention to the great principles of the Order.

LISCARD.—Warren Lodge (No. 1276).—The annual installation meeting of the members of this lodge was recently held at the Queen's Arms Hotel, Liscard, when a large number of the Craft met to do honour to the new W.M. This lodge was formerly held at Seacombe, but, owing to the increasing numbers of the brethren connected with 1276, the accommodation was found to be too small, hence the committee resolved to remove—at first it was intended to the very commodious and centrally-situated Concert Hall but the committee were unable to come to terms as regarded the necessary alterations required to adapt the hall to the requirements of a Masonic meeting. Ultimately the Queen's Arms Hotel was selected, which is in every way admirably suited for the purpose; still many members would prefer, in deference to the recently expressed wish of the Provincial Grand Master, that as far as practicable, lodges should be held in buildings similar to the Concert Hall. However, on this occasion, the harmony and order of this lodge were very marked, owing doubtless to the admirable manner in which the duties of the lodge had been conducted by the retiring W.M., Bro. Skinner. The brethren met in considerable numbers to assist in the ceremony, amongst whom were a number of P.M.s. and W.M.s. from both Liverpool and Birkenhead. The lodge was opened, after a little delay, in due form; and the minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, the Installing Master, Bro. J. P. Platt, P.P.G.W. 537, proceeded to invest in a very solemn and impressive manner Bro. William Price, who appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Henry Skinner, I.P.M.; Henry Matthews, S.W.; John G. Parker, J.W.; J. H. Jones, Treas.; W. Danger, Sec.; G. Henderson, S.D.; M. Ellaby, J.D.; J. Taylor, P.M., M.C.; W. Williams, I.G.; T. V. Burrows, S.S.; G. Alister, J.S. The business being over, the lodge was closed down for refreshments, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided in Bro. Altree's best style. The talent connected with the lodge provided an excellent entertainment in the shape of singing, &c., the usual Masonic toasts bringing a most pleasant and enjoyable meeting to a termination.

LIVERPOOL.—Lodge of Emulation (No. 1505).—The brethren of this young and prosperous lodge met at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on Thursday afternoon, the 24th ult., to assist at the installation of Bro. Joshua Hocken, P.M. 673, Treas. 1505, the W.M. elect of the Emulation. Bro. W. E. Quayle, the retiring W.M., opened the lodge according to ancient form, and during the afternoon there were present Bros. H. Nelson, P.M.; H. Morris, P.M.; W. H. Carbin, S.W.; J. Capell, W.M. 1299, J.W.; H. Coulson, Sec.; R. Foote, S.D.; H. H. Smith, J.D.; M. Strong, S.S.; J. T. Callow, P.M., P.G. Treas., D.C.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O., Hon. Org.; W. H. Ball, Tyler; B. S. Riley, C. Wynne, P. Thomas, W. Sweetman, J. Orford, J. Worthy, W. Roan, W. Foulkes, C. Sunderland, W. S. Banks, J. Haydock, T. O. Garratt, C. Haigh, A. Winsloe, A. McKenzie, G. Atkinson, J. Little, J. Hodges, G. Murcott, E. Jones, J. Skelly, J. Hossack, T. Leah, R. F. Jones, W. Matthews, W. Walley, A. H. Peters, W. Parry, and others. The visitors included Bros. W. Pughe, W.M. 1620; G. E. Hanmer, P.M. 1086; J. L. Houghton, W.M. 504; D. Jackson, W.M. 673; T. Evans, 1182; J. Busfield, 216; the Rev. J. R. Jenkins, P.G. Chaplain; M. Corless, P.M. 673; R. Martin, P.M. 1182; J. K. Digges, P.M. 673; J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C.; J. Ellis, W.M. 667; H. Ashmore, W.M. 823, P.M. 1325; G. Kiddle, 1713; and others. After the transaction of some formal business, Bro. Quayle, the retiring W.M., proceeded to install Bro. Joshua Hocken as his successor in the chair of the lodge, a ceremony which was performed with great impressiveness. The newly-installed W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. W. E. Quayle, I.P.M.; the Rev. H. G. Vernon, P.P.G.C. Chaplain (re-appointed); J. T. Callow, P.G. Treas., P.M., Treas.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O., Hon. Org.; J. Capell, S.W.; H. Coulson, J.W.; R. Foote, Sec.; H. H. Smith, S.D.; M. Strong, J.D.; J. Irving, I.G.; W. H. Corbin, D.C.; W. S. Banks, S.S.; P. Thomas, J.S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. A cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Quayle for the excellent manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation, and the W.M. also presented him with a valuable P.M.'s jewel, in token of the estimation in which he was held by the brethren after an efficient year's service in the chair. The brethren subsequently sat down to a banquet, most satisfactorily provided by Bro. W. Vines, P.P.G.D.C., of the Canton, Victoria-street. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed during the evening, and "The Health of the W.M.," given by the I.P.M., was received with great enthusiasm. "The P.M.s. and Installing Master (Bro. W. E. Quayle)," was responded to by Bros. Quayle, Nelson, Callow, and Morris; "The Officers of the Lodge," by Bro. J. Capell, S.W., and the others; "The Musical Brethren," by Bro. J. P. Bryan; "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," by Bro. R. Martin, P.M. 1182; "The Visiting Brethren," by Bros. Pughe, Ellis, Jackson, Hanmer, Digges, and others. An excellent musical programme was furnished by Bros. Bryan, Forrester, Busfield, Waterson, Hill, Child, Ashmore, Quayle, and others.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Lion Hotel, on Thursday, the 17th inst. Amongst those present were Bros. Colonel Francis Burdett, R.W.P.G.M. of Middlesex, &c.; J. Hammond, P.G.S. of Middlesex, W.M.; Fox, I.P.M. 1326, S.W. and W.M. elect; Jessett, J.W.; E. Hopwood, P.M., P.P.G.S.B. of Middlesex, Treas.; W. Hammond, P.M., P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, Sec.; J. Hurst, I.P.M.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, J.D. (Freemason); Kent, I.G.; Hiscox, W.S.; Moody, A.W.S.; Raw, Hon. P.M.; S. Hill, Hon. P.M.; and Gilbert, P.G.T. of Middlesex, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Fisher, P.M. 834; Baldwin, P.M. 1423, P.P.G.P. of Middlesex; Hamilton, S.W. 1306; and Handel, Bewell, White, and Turner, of 1656. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. with the aid of his officers raised Bros. Bray, Cox, and Carpenter, passed Bros. Cole and Hanlon, and initiated Messrs. Bartlett, Russell, and another; the three arduous ceremonies being well performed. The W.M. having appointed Bro. W. Hammond, as S.W.; Hopwood, as J.W.; Hurst, as I.G.; and Baldwin, as D.C., proceeded to carry out the duties of installing his successor, Bro. Fox, into the chair of K.S., in a manner that left nothing to be desired; his rendering of the addresses being particularly good. The officers appointed and invested for the ensuing year were Bros. Jessett, S.W.; Ockenden, J.W. (by deputy); Hopwood, Treas.; W. Hammond, Sec.; Walls, S.D.; Kent, J.D.; Hiscox, I.G.; Moody, D.C.; H. Tagg, W.S.; Day, A.W.S.; and Gilbert, Tyler. Before the lodge was closed, the pleasing duty of presenting Bro. John Hammond with a Past Master's jewel was performed by the W.M. The I.P.M. having made a suitable reply, the lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was catered for by Bro. Murphy and assistants. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed the preliminary toasts briefly, but to the point. "The P.G.M. of Middlesex" was received with acclamation, and in reply, Bro. Colonel Burdett made some very interesting remarks upon the great progress of Freemasonry in Middlesex. In speaking of the Hemming Lodge he expressed the great pleasure it had afforded him to be present that day. It was very seldom that the whole ceremonies appertaining to the Craft were worked in one afternoon, but their I.P.M. had accomplished the feat by initiating, passing, and raising eight candidates for those degrees, and had also most impressively and ably installed his successor. This was an excellent example for the junior officers, and he trusted that they would profit by it. He was also pleased to see that they mustered so strongly, and that their staff of officers composed so many good working Masons. In conclusion, he thanked them for the very warm manner in which his health had been received, and he hoped that the lodge would continue to manifest the same high state of working excellence. "The D.P.G.M. and the rest of the P.G.O.'s, Present and Past," was acknowledged by Bro. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. "The Health of the W.M." followed. In response, the W.M. expressed the gratification he felt in having been thought worthy by the brethren to occupy the proud position of W.M. His predecessors had filled the chair most ably. He hoped to emulate their good example. As their representative he felt his duty to express to their R.W. P.G.M. the thanks of the lodge for the very high encomiums he had passed upon the general efficiency and quality of the lodge. In conclusion he said he looked forward to a very prosperous and happy year of office. "The Health of the Initiates" came next, and was duly acknowledged by the three newly-made brethren. "The Visitors" followed, coupled with the name of Bro. Baldwin, P.P.G.P. In response, that brother complimented the lodge upon its progress, and said he could not sit down without contributing his humble meed of praise for the manner in which the work of the lodge had been carried out that day. As a P.M. of the Lebanon, of which this lodge was the offspring, he was gratified at the position it (the Hemming) had achieved amongst the Middlesex lodges. In conclusion, on behalf of his co-visitors and himself, he returned thanks for the very hospitable manner in which they had been received. The toast of "The Past Masters" drew from the W.M. a very warm eulogy upon their respective merits. This toast having been duly honoured and responded to, the W.M. gave "The Treasurer and Secretary." Bro. Hopwood, the Treasurer, briefly said he was pleased to be in a position to state that the finances were in a good condition. This was greatly owing to the punctual manner in which the brethren generally discharged their dues, and to the economy which had characterised the terms of office of the different Masters who had presided over the lodge. He hoped that the lodge would continue to progress in the same satisfactory manner, and as long as they did him the honour to elect him as Treasurer they might rely upon their funds being carefully administered. The Secretary having also replied, the Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings.

LEICESTER.—The Albert Edward Lodge (No. 1560).—The opening meeting for the winter session of this lodge was held last week, in the Freemasons' Hall. This being the meeting for the election of the Worshipful Master for the year ensuing there was a fair attendance of members, and there were also several visitors from other lodges. Bro. John Hunt, the retiring W.M., occupied the chair of K.S., and there were also present Bros. J. G. F. Richardson, S.W.; the Rev. F. H. Richardson, P.G. Chap., J.W.; the Rev. C. Henton Wood, Chaplain; the Rev. W. Langley, Sec.; J. F. L. Rolleston; S.D.; Richard S. Toller, I.G.; W. Kelly, P.P.G.M.; S. S. Partridge, Prov. G. Sec.; G. Toller, jun., P.M. 523. Clement E. Stretton, I.P.M. 279; Thos. Macaulay, P.M.

1330, P.P.G.J.D.; Robert Waite, P.M., P.P.G.J.D.; J. Vaughan, P.M. 86 (Lancashire); Edward Potter, 523; Joseph Jessop, P.G.S.B., 279; and A. Palmer, P.M. 279. The lodge having been duly opened, the ballot was taken for Bro. the Rev. F. P. B. H. Hutton, as a joining member, and Mr. Wm. Jesse Freer, and the Rev. Wyndham Maden Hutton, as candidates for initiation. All were unanimously elected, and Mr. Freer, being present, was initiated in the most impressive manner by Bro. W. Kelly, assisted by Bros. G. Toller and Partridge. Bro. the Rev. W. Langley, Secretary, then proposed the following motion, notice of which he had placed on the circular:—That during the winter session of the lodge, a course of lectures on interesting Masonic subjects shall be given by eminent Masons, (such for instance as Bro. Hughan, of Truro; Bro. S. B. Ellis, of Leeds; and Bro. W. Kelly, of Leicester); and that a committee be appointed to carry out the necessary arrangements. Bro. the Rev. C. Henton Wood, Chaplain, seconded the proposition, which was received with very much favour, the only question being as to its practicability, which was discussed at some length, and ultimately the Secretary was requested to make inquiries with the view of seeing whether the suggestion can be carried out. The ballot then took place for the election of a Worshipful Master, and Bro. J. G. F. Richardson, S.W., was elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Captain P. P. P. Goodchild was re-elected Treasurer, and Bros. Dunn and Tanager were again nominated as Tylers. Bros. R. Toller and W. Langley were elected members of the Freemasons' Hall Committee, and Bro. C. E. Stretton, Charity Steward, on the Provincial Charity Committee. On the motion of Bro. W. Kelly, seconded by Bro. the Rev. C. Henton Wood, Chaplain, a cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Hunt the retiring W.M., for his services in the chair during the past year, and Bro. Hunt suitably acknowledged the compliment, and afterwards presented to the lodge a handsome loving cup as a "parting gift," in acknowledgment of the kindness which had been shown to him during his year of office. On the motion of Bro. G. Toller, seconded by Bro. Rev. F. H. Richardson, and warmly supported by Bro. Kelly, a very hearty vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Hunt for his handsome gift. The formal business of the lodge was then disposed of, and the brethren afterwards dined together, being joined by several visiting brethren, and at a later period by his Worship the Mayor of Leicester, Bro. Stretton, who had been unable to attend earlier, having had to preside at the annual dinner of the members of the Widows' and Orphans' Friendly Society. In responding to the toast of his health, which was very cordially drunk, Bro. Hunt said, "Brethren.—As you are aware that this is the last night I shall have the honour and pleasure of presiding over you as W.M. of the Albert Edward Lodge, I embrace this opportunity to thank you for your great kindness and indulgence, as well as your valuable assistance, during my past year of office. I should feel myself very much remiss if I did not gratefully acknowledge the valuable services especially received by me from the Right Worshipful the P.P.G. Master, Bro. Kelly, who so kindly undertook those duties that I myself was unable to perform; to Bro. Partridge for the kind, efficient, and masterly manner he conducted my installation; to Bro. Toller for his kindness, and advice in all things Masonic or otherwise; to Bro. Langley, my Secretary, if he will allow me so to call him, for his kind assistance as Deputy W.M., for not being resident in the town it would have made it very irksome, and put me to much personal inconvenience if he had not consented to undertake to manage for me, and to Bros. C. E. Stretton and Sculthorpe. I never expected at my late time of life to have had the honour of being elected W.M. conferred upon me by the brethren of this lodge, an honour and position I must say I much coveted, and the highest that the brethren can confer upon a brother in Craft Masonry. However, here I am, with thanks to the Great Architect of the Universe, at the termination of my labours. I can assure you that it has been one of my greatest pleasures to meet you in this hall for the transacting of our Masonic duties and labours, and enjoy your kind, social, and brotherly society afterwards at our festive board, and may I be granted a continuance of this pleasure. My year of office has been, I am happy to say, undisturbed by any unpleasantness of any kind whatsoever, and you have my best and most sincere wishes for the prosperity and happiness of the Albert Edward Lodge, and for an increase in your own domestic and personal comforts and pleasures. I must now congratulate my successor in office, the W.M. elect, upon his election and promotion to the high and honourable position to which he has been elected by the brethren of this lodge this evening, and I hope his year of office will be attended with as much enjoyment, happiness, and peace as mine has been, I regret that I am not sufficiently versed in the science of Freemasonry to install him myself, but feel assured that part of the ceremony, his installation, will be performed by an eminent and talented brother of the Craft in the most perfect and satisfactory manner. I have now a pleasing act to perform, and I trust it is one that will be acceptable to the brethren of the Albert Edward Lodge and meet with their approbation. As I have stated before, that this being the last evening that I shall have the honour and extreme pleasure of presiding over you in the capacity of W.M., I could not retire without presenting to the lodge some small token expressive of my good feelings towards the brethren of this lodge, and in grateful remembrance of the kindness and courtesy I have always received from them. Such gift I thought would be most suitable and useful in the form of a loving cup, which I now present to you. God bless you all and I hope you will like it; and may you long live to partake of the contents of this cup at your banquets; and, withal, may brotherly love continue. The cup was a very handsome one, very neatly and chastely engraved, it bore the usual Masonic emblems and a suitable inscription, recording Bro. Hunt's gift of it to the lodge.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge, which was very largely attended, was held on Tuesday, 22nd ult., at 2 o'clock, at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, and the proceedings were again marked by the complete success which has attended the lodge since its consecration. Bro. Lindo Courtenay, who was installed W.M. at the previous meeting, was in the chair of K.S. and most impressively fulfilled his duties, eliciting the admiration of all the brethren present. The officers present were Bros. W. I. Chapman, I.P.M.; J. B. McKenzie S.W.; W. Sandbrook, J.W.; A. Wadbrook, Treasurer; J. Atkinson, Sec.; T. Wilkinson, S.D.; J. Pye, I.G.; W. Savage, S.S.; H. P. Squire, J.S.; R. Burgess, Organist; W. H. Ball, Tyler. Mr. Henry Holden, unanimously elected, was initiated into the Order, and Bros. Webster, Williams, and J. G. Gough, were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., both degrees being given by the W.M. with marvellously telling effect. At the conclusion of the business, the brethren adjourned to dinner, and in the course of the evening the standard loyal, and Masonic toasts were given. A capital musical programme was given by Bros. R. Brough, W. Williams, J. Hill, Squire, W. Hildyard, and others.

GOSPORT.—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1705).—The first annual celebration of the constitution of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 24th October. Present: Bros. C. B. Whitcomb, W.M.; G. Grant, J.W.; G. F. Lancaster, P.M. 903, Prov. Grand Deacon, Treas.; J. W. Stroud, Sec.; J. Warden and A. J. Eades, Deacons; G. Des Geneys, D.C.; T. Batchelor, Prov. G. Org.; Org.; Capt. Balliston, R.N.; R. W. Mitchell, W. Smith, G. A. Wright, E. J. Smith, G. Darby, A. T. Cave, W. Brunwin, C. Johnson, A. Allen, and C. J. E. Mumby. Visitors: Bros. W. Payne, W.M. 342; H. J. Guy, I.P.M. 342; W. Hillier, W.M. 903; W. H. Townsend, I.P.M. 1428; T. P. Hall, W.M. 804; G. Pearman, Org. 487; S. W. Misselbrook, Org. 903; and about fourteen other brethren. The W.M. opened the lodge, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and the report of the Audit Committee, shewing a small balance in favour of the lodge, was received and adopted. Bro. G. F. Lancaster, P.M. was re-elected Treasurer. W. Bro. C. B. Whitcomb, having at the last lodge meeting been re-elected Master for another year, was saluted by the brethren, and then proceeded to invest his officers as follows: Bros. G. Grant, S.W.; J. W. Stroud, J.W.; G. F. Lancaster, P.M. 903, Treas.; G. Des Geneys, Sec.; T. Batchelor, S.D.; C. Johnson, J.D.; E. J. Smith, I.G.; C. J. E. Mumby, D.C.; G. Darby and A. T. Cave, Stewards; and L. Cauvin, Tyler. Bro. Lancaster gave the usual addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren; and the following brethren sang some appropriate music, viz., Bros. Grant, Stroud, Des Geneys, Batchelor, Prov. Grand Org.; Knight, E. J. Smith, and Bros. Pearman, Org. 487; and Misselbrook, Org. 903, as accompanist. The following vote of thanks, illuminated on vellum and richly framed, was presented by Bro. G. F. Lancaster, P.M., on behalf of the brethren, viz., "Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of England, Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 1705. Extract from minutes of meeting held on 26th September, 1878. Resolved unanimously; 'That the best thanks of this lodge be, and are, hereby heartily accorded to Bro. Charles Benjamin Whitcomb, W.M., for the very able, painstaking, and courteous manner in which he has, as first Master of the lodge, performed the duties of his office.'—J. W. Stroud, Secretary." A proposition for raising the initiation and joining fees having been unanimously approved, the lodge was closed. The brethren adjourned to the banquet, and after the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave the usual loyal and principal Masonic toasts in happy terms, and they met with a most hearty reception. In responding for the toast of "The Prov. Grand Master and his Officers, Present and Past," Bro. G. F. Lancaster, Prov. Grand Deacon, said, the brethren of Gosport had been most fortunate in having had the pleasure and benefit of witnessing the Prov. Grand Master engaged in Masonic work on several occasions recently in their town, and they could readily understand the warm esteem in which he was held all over the province, after their experience of his courteous and kindly bearing to all with whom he was brought in contact. They also knew, and could fully appreciate, the high respect felt for the Prov. G.M. (not only in his province, but throughout England) as an eloquent exponent of Masonic ritual. The D.P.G.M., Bro. Hickman, and the P.G. Secretary, were also entitled to their highest esteem for their genial qualities, and for their persevering efforts in the cause of Masonic Charity. For the rest of the P.G. Officers, Present and Past, he had no doubt they did all they could in their several localities to advance the interests of Freemasonry generally, and to uphold the dignity of Provincial Grand Lodge. He thanked them for their enthusiastic reception of the toast. Bro. G. F. Lancaster gave "The Health of the W.M.," and warmly eulogised his exertions to ensure a correct rendering of the ritual in the lodge, and his never failing attention to all his duties, which, with his kindly good temper, had so endeared him to the brethren as to result in his re-election. The toast was drunk with great applause, and the W.M. thanked the brethren most heartily, and promised to relax none of his efforts to raise the lodge to a high pitch of perfection. The W.M. gave "The Health of Bro. G. F. Lancaster, P.M. 903, and P.G.D., Treasurer," as a brother to whom the lodge was largely indebted for its existence; and presented him, on behalf of the brethren, with a handsome silver-mounted meerschaum pipe, and a smoking set, in Wedgewood ware, as a small tribute of their gratitude to him for the great assistance he had rendered to them as a founder of the lodge, in the arrangements for its constitution, and at each subsequent meeting. The W.M. also tendered him his personal thanks for the ready help he had received in carrying on his duties. Bro. Lancaster (who met with great applause, and was evidently unprepared for the gift) thanked the brethren in feeling terms for their kindness, and said he had simply done his duty to the lodge, and no more, and as to his exertions in starting the lodge it was by the mere accident of his being the Senior Past Master present at the meetings of the petitioners that put him in the chair on most of those occasions. He would still continue to do all he could for both officers and brethren, and again thanked them for their kind favours. The toast of "The Visitors" was responded to by the representatives of many lodges, and that of "The Officers," by Bros. Grant and Stroud, Wardens. "The Tyler's" toast, given by Bro. Cauvin, after one of his old Scotch songs, brought the proceedings to a close. The musical brethren, enumerated above, gave a choice selection of glees and songs during the evening.

INSTRUCTION.

WELLINGTON LODGE (No. 548).—The Fifteen Sections were worked at the Wellington Lodge of Instruction, No. 548, White Swan Hotel, High-street, Deptford, on Monday evening, 21st ult., at which a very numerous attendance of the brethren of the Mystic Art were present. The following were the officers: Bro. J. G. Milbourn, No. 13, W.M.; J. Shaw, P.M. 79, S.W.; J. J. Hutchings, S.D. 1531, J.W.; J. Pook, 13, S.D.; G. Waterman, S.W. 147, J.D.; E. Caterson, 548, I.G.; Jas. Griffin, P.M. 548, Preceptor; and G. Gibson, Hon. Sec.

SOUTHWARK LODGE (No. 879).—There was a strong muster of the brethren at the above lodge of instruction on Wednesday, the 23rd ult., when Bro. Kent, the esteemed Preceptor, worked the Fifteen Sections, assisted by several other brethren, and a cordial vote of thanks was accorded him for his admirable working. The W.M. also proposed a vote of thanks to those brethren who had so ably assisted him. There were several visitors, who afterwards became members, amongst them being Bro. Pulsford, P.M. 1158, and Bros. Bradstock, Robinson, and Noyes, 1327.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A lodge of instruction, in connection with the Wandsworth Lodge, was held on Wednesday, the 23rd ult., at the Spread Eagle Hotel, Wandsworth, when the following brethren were present: Bro. C. Digby, H. R. Jones, W. A. Morgan, W. J. Huntley, A. N. Newens, J. Sanders, W. Wardroper, J. J. Holland, A. Mason, J. Rowe, J. Featherstone, P. V. Denham, and A. A. Denham. Bro. C. Digby acted as W.M., and delivered the ritual in such an impressive and perfect manner as to call forth the united approbation of the brethren. Bro. Featherstone went through the ceremony of raising, Bro. Huntley acting as S.D.; Bro. Past Master Jones as J.D.; and Bro. A. N. Newens, as S.W. Upon the motion of Bro. Jones, seconded by Bro. Holland, Bro. A. A. Denham was appointed Secretary. The names of several brethren anxious to join the lodge of instruction were given in and accepted. The business was concluded by the lodge being closed in the Third Degree.

Mark Masonry.

LIVERPOOL.—Walton Lodge (No. 161).—The annual meeting of the above lodge of Mark Master Masons was held at the Skelmersdale Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, on Tuesday, the 1st ult. A large number of brethren were present, amongst the visitors being Bros. H. Williams, P.G.A.D.C.C., N.W.; John Hayes, W.M. 65; J. C. Fish, 65; and D. H. Newbiggin, 327. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. the Rev. Dr. Hyde, the W.M., P.P.G.C., after which Bro. J. C. Lunt, P.M., P.P.G.M.O., installed Bro. G. E. Hanmer, P.G. Purs., who appointed and invested the following officers for the ensuing year:—Dr. Hyde, I.P.M.; Wm. Archer, S.W.; W. Newsome, J.W.; L. Peake, M.O.; W. Nelson, S.O.; J. Parry

J.O.; J. C. Lunt, Treasurer; and Isaac Leece, Secretary. A candidate being proposed for the next regular meeting the lodge was duly closed, the brethren adjourning to the banquet room for substantial refreshment. The above lodge also held a meeting of emergency in the same hall, on the 16th ult., when Bro. Captain C. W. Reid, of 108, who had been balloted for some time previously, was duly advanced to the honourable degree of a Mark Master Mason, by Bro. G. E. Hanmer, the W.M.

COCKERMOUTH.—Faithful Lodge (No. 229).—The second meeting of this new lodge was held on Friday evening, the 25th ult., in the Masonic Hall, Station-street. There were present Bros. W. F. Lamonty, W.M. (Freemason); R. Robinson, S.W.; W. H. Lewthwaite, J.W.; Capt. F. R. Sewell, M.O.; R. W. Robinson, S.O.; T. C. Robinson, J.O.; H. Peacock, S.D.; R. Bailey, J.D., as Secretary, in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Black; W. Shilton, I.G.; F. Jackson, Steward, and Jos. Hewson, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Two candidates for advancement were absent, one of whom sent an apology, and promised to be ready next lodge night. The proof sheets of the by-laws not being ready, it was agreed that each member should be furnished with a copy thereof with the summonses for next meeting, so that the code could be at once adopted, prior to confirmation by the Grand Lodge and Provincial authorities. The W.M. gave notice that at next meeting he will move the lodge to hold a ball in the month of January, in conjunction with Skiddaw (Craft) Lodge, No. 1003, and Dyke's Conclave, No. 36, Red Cross Knights. The lodge was then closed in ancient form, the address also being given from the chair.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF CHESHIRE.

The annual Provincial Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Freemasons for Cheshire was held on Monday afternoon, the 21st ult., at the Masonic Rooms, Argyle-street, Birkenhead, where there was a large attendance of companions of the Order. Comp. the Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, M.E.P.G. Supt., took the first chair; Comp. J. Wood, P.G.H., the second chair; and Comp. J. Salmon, P.G.J., the third. Amongst others present were Comps. George Latham, P.G.S.E.; John Siddeley, P.G.S.N.; Edward Friend, P.G.P. Sojourner; F. Jackson, P.G. Treas.; C. H. Hind, P.G.R.; Henry Kenyon, P.G.S.B.; Andrew E. Cokayne, P.G.S.B.; Thomas Henry Kirk, P.Z. 1045, P.G.O.; Mark Alcock, P.G. Janitor; S. Gilbert, P.Z. 321; Saml. Jones, P.Z. 477; Wm. Bennett, P.S. 477; Enoch Evans, 477; J. G. Adams, H. 477; Thos. Barrow, 477; J. Higson Johnson, P.Z. 477; A. Samuels, P.Z. 477; Robt. Thomas, 477; H. Seaman, 477; J. Tomlinson, 321; Henry Bulley, P.G.H.; W. Hopkinson, 477; James Bishop, P.P.G.T.; J. P. Platt, P.G.H., 537; Thos. Coxhead, 721; W. Johnson, Z. 721; G. Robinson, P.Z. 428; Thos. Lockwood, S.E. 425; Chas. Dutton, P.P.G.H.; Fair, Z. 941; James Smith, P.Z. 185; W. Robinson, P.Z. 423; R. M. Townsend, S.E. 537; Rev. C. W. Spencer Stanhope, 357; John Hibbert, 1166; John Beech, P.Z. 361; George Fox, P.Z. 361; Robt. Ridyard, 477; James Marsh, 477; J. C. Robinson, P.Z. 425; J. Oswald Bury, Z. 425; A. E. Coveney, 605; Geo. J. Davis, 605; L. Ellis, Z. 537; E. W. Cross, 477; J. W. Jennings, 249; Wm. Gibson, 1045; Richard E. Mellor, 249; John Hamilton, E. 1045; Thos. Kent, 1045; J. Raitton, 477; W. Penk, 477; J. W. Newett Tanner, P.Z. 321; George H. Holden, H. 295; Eustace G. Parker, 1045; Thos. Gaskell, Z. 295; Thos. Thorburn, 537; Fredk. Thompson, 477; S. M. Davies, No. 16, G.R.C.; Wilmot Eardley, P.P.G.A.S., 321; Jas. Blackburn, H. 321; Thos. E. Gibson, J. 321; Thos. E. Tomlinson, 477; J. Siddeley, H. 1045; Josiah Hill, Z. 323; J. Dennis, H. 721; A. Russell, 477; T. Gregory, 605; J. Smith, 477; J. R. Simm, 605; J. B. Sparks, 216; R. Beales, P.P.G.A.S. 321; S. Spratley, P.P.G.J. 321; J. Sillitoe, P.Z. 605; J. Fothergill, P.Z. 758; W. S. Sutton, 537; W. Milner, 537; D. Fraser, P.Z. 605, Z. 477; J. Hooper, 477; R. Hutchins, P.Z. 321; F. T. Tapp, S.N. 287; J. F. Rounthwaite, 425; J. H. Hokaway, Janitor 477; W. Groatortex, P.Z. 287; and M. McNerney, Z. 605.

The P.G. Chapter having been opened in solemn form, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The P.G.S.E., Comp. Latham, reported that twelve chapters were represented, there being between seventy and eighty companions present; and that the Committee of the province had examined the books of fifteen chapters, and had found them kept with extreme accuracy. Royal Arch Freemasonry, the Committee said, seemed to have flourished in the province during the past twelve months.

The thanks of the P.G. Chapter were voted to the Committee for their labours, and they were requested to continue their services during the ensuing year, Comp. Jackson being appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Captain Cope, who is in ill-health.

The P.G. Superintendent said that, following the custom of previous years, he would address a few remarks to the companions. It was most gratifying to him to see such an influential attendance that day, exceeding as it did that of the previous year considerably. Royal Arch Masonry was evidently proceeding most satisfactorily in the province of Cheshire, and it was pleasing to witness the zeal and ability with which the affairs of the various chapters were conducted. He was sure they would all unite with him in endeavouring to promote the interests of Freemasonry in that province.

His lordship then proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—

Rev. C. W. Spencer Stanhope	...	Prov. G. H.
J. C. Robinson	...	Prov. G. J.
G. W. Latham	...	Prov. G. Scribe E.

John Siddeley	Prov. G. S.N.
Mathew McNeerney	Prov. G. P.S.
S. Meadows	Prov. G. 1st S.
J. Blackhurst	Prov. G. 2nd S.
C. H. Hinde	Prov. G. Reg.
John Siddeley (1045)	Prov. G. S.B.
R. M. Townsend	Prov. G. S.B.
W. Mathews	Prov. G. D. of C.
T. H. Kirk	Prov. G. Org.
Ferdinando Jackson, jun.	Prov. G. Treas.
Mark Alcock	Prov. G. Janitor.

The Treasurer's accounts, showing a balance in favour of the province of £68 6s. 4d., were submitted and passed. The sum of £63 was voted to the Masonic Institution for Girls, which sum, with previous contributions, will entitle the Most Excellent Grand Superintendent to become a Vice-President.

Lord de Tabley having selected Crewe as the town in which to hold the next annual meeting, the P.G. Chapter was closed according to ancient custom.

The whole meeting was eminently successful and marked by that enthusiasm and cordiality which the Masonic brethren of Cheshire have displayed so frequently; but it was in the arrangements and decorations of the banquetting room that perhaps the greatest spirit and taste were displayed, to an extent rarely equalled in the provinces. The decorations of the Masonic Rooms, in which the festive board was spread, were of the most artistic character, and many hours of anxious consideration, arduous toil, and no small expenditure of money must have been necessary to the proper carrying out of the elaborate scheme of ornamentation by Comp. S. Williams, Argyle-st., Birkenhead, and valuable help was given by Comp. Holtaway, Janitor 477. A first-class banquet was provided by Comp. Berry, Ranelagh Hotel, Birkenhead, who again sustained his good name as a purveyor of "creature comforts." Comp. Lord de Tabley presided at the banquet, which commenced at 4 o'clock and was numerously attended, and expressed himself as thoroughly delighted with the manner in which he had been received that day, as well as with the really effective style of the decorations of the room.

A MASONIC ORATION.

The following oration was delivered by Bro. the Rev. W. C. Lukis, M.A., F.S.A., Prov. G. Chaplain West Yorkshire, on the occasion of the dedication of a Masonic Hall at Shipley, reported in our pages of October 12th.

Brethren,—We have met together to assist in a stirring and interesting ceremonial, and our heartiest wishes accompany the performance of the act. In addressing the members of the Airedale Lodge on this auspicious occasion, I am not addressing a young lodge, but one that has already attained to a respectable and respectful age. It is composed of well-instructed brethren, many of whom are better qualified to teach me than I am to tell them anything which they have not already learned, and endeavoured to practice as true and loyal Masons. The Airedale Lodge is in the fifty-second year of its existence; its Warrant of Constitution bearing date 12th March, 1827. It stems in its origin to have risen, phoenix-like, out of the ashes of an old lodge, viz., the Duke of York's Lodge, No. 428, originally constituted at Doncaster in 1788, and removed to Bingley in 1807. In 1815 the Duke of York's Lodge at Bingley is supposed to have closed its career, and the Airedale Lodge sprang into existence, at Baildorth, in 1827; its originators being Bro. Wainman Holmes, of the Lodge of Hope, Bradford, and other brethren of the defunct Bingley Lodge. From Baildorth it finally settled here at Shipley, where we trust it will long continue to pursue an honourable and useful career. This wandering life will account for the circumstance that no dedication of the lodge should have occurred earlier. During the period between 1827 and 1877 its number has been twice changed, owing to the erasure of extinct lodges; the first time in 1832, when from 814 it was recognised on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England as No. 543, and the second time in 1863, when it obtained its present number, 387. It is not necessary that I should enter more at length into the history of the lodge and its vicissitudes, because that history has been compiled by Bro. P.M. Riley, and printed in a very handsome volume. I shall simply add what I believe will be felt by every member of the lodge, that the brother who must always be gratefully recognised as its founder and mainstay, and whose long and active services have contributed to its prosperity, is the venerable Bro. P.M. Wainman Holmes, who, to quote his own words, stated last year that "out of the fifty years that the Airedale Lodge has been constituted, I think I should be W.M. and Secretary at least thirty or more years (perhaps 40 years), and whatever I had to do I did it with pleasure, and particularly in my younger days, when Masonry was my 'hobby horse.'" I will venture to say that there is probably no other lodge in this province that can grasp the warm hand of its living founder at the end of fifty-one years. May the prayer of the lodge, uttered last year be fulfilled that the G.A.O.T.U., may make Bro. Holmes's closing years happy and contented. Before making a few general remarks I cannot forbear alluding very briefly to two points which come to light in the printed history of this lodge, because they indicate in a forcible manner that the brethren have been in the past, and continued to be at the present time, imbued with the true spirit of Masonry; that they have not only maintained a careful adherence to its ritual, but have practically illustrated its principles. Firstly, the brethren have, throughout the long career of their lodge, manifested the deepest sympathy in the sufferings and distress of sick and mourning members. Secondly, to the Masonic Charities the lodge has been a liberal contributor; and owing to the zealous exertions of its indefatigable Charity Steward, Bro.

F. W. Booth, P.M., a large increase of charity votes has been secured. This example is worthy of imitation on the part of all lodges of the province. You are no doubt, as in duty bound to be, firm believers in the great antiquity of the Craft, and you have been taught that as regards structural science, there was a period in the history of mankind—a period dark, dreary, and comfortless, when Masonry had not laid her line or extended her compasses; when men took refuge from storm and tempest, and the attacks of savage beasts in thickets of woods, and in dens and caverns of the earth; and that from these poor recesses and gloomy solitudes the Grand Geometrician of the Universe in pity drew them and instructed them to erect buildings of a rustic kind in artless imitation of simple nature. This remark of the author of the Fourth Section of the Second Lecture contains the element of a truth of which he was probably little conscious at the time. The earliest buildings of which antiquarians have any knowledge were not of the Tuscan order, as he states, however rustic that order may be, but were structures of cyclopean architecture, many of which in all their majestic proportions and solidity have survived through tens of centuries of civilization (in spite of civilization itself which is not always disposed to show a conservative reverence towards the works of former times), and remain to this day as footprints of Masonry. These rude monuments may be briefly described as constructions whose walls are composed of ponderous unquarried stones, selected with a certain amount of care and suitability, on which are placed, so as to form a ceiling, blocks of far greater dimensions and weight, the whole being hidden from sight by an outer covering of earth of small stones, often of considerable altitude, and constituting a chambered mound. In process of time, and from various causes, natural and regrettable, which need not be detailed here, these mounds fell away, or have been in many instances partially or wholly removed, and the denuded chambers now stand forth in imposing nakedness and grandeur, and proclaim to us the mighty power of united action, of the enduring nature of works undertaken with combined energy and resolution, even when those works have been accomplished with the aid of simple and mean appliances. In their exposed condition they are commonly called cromlechs, which are ignorantly considered, by some persons (happily an almost extinct family) to have been connected with the bloody rites of Druidic worship. These constructions, which have been observed in all parts of the world, are rude, yet, in a certain sense, skillful Masonic institutions of those natural dens and caverns in which men of the palæolithic age lived, died, and were oftentimes buried, and were intended for sepulchral purposes only. They are, however, standing, and imperishable witnesses to truths of considerable importance, for they tell of a belief in the G.A.O.T.U., the Almighty and Eternal Teacher of His people, of the immortality of the soul, and of a future life. They speak also of respect and reverence for chiefs and heroes, of brotherly and family affection, and of mystic rites of religion, which have been, from the earliest ages, inseparable from burial customs. May we not perceive in this parallel how the grand principles of the Craft are amply illustrated? If the origin of Freemasonry is, not lost in the mists of pre-historic antiquity as some sceptics suppose, it possesses similar attributes to those possessed by the monuments of which I have spoken. It can boast of an immemorial existence. It is universal in its distribution, and its chief glories are reverence for the Eternal Architect and Ruler of the Universe, loyalty to the throne, brotherly love, and truth, based upon a comprehensive faith. It teaches us that in our perishable frames there resides a vital and immortal principle, and that when we consign the mortal remains of a faithful and true brother to the cold bosom of the grave, it is with a holy confidence that the immortal principle is in the merciful hands of the Lord of Life. A Provincial Grand Master once remarked that if any brother wishes to raise to eminence in the Craft, he should give to the subject deep study, much thought, and constant antiquarian research, for Masonry is a well stored mine, in which treasures are deeply hidden. Research thus directed may never be able to decide to the satisfaction of the fraternity the conjectures that Julius Caesar and his generals were patrons and protectors of the Craft in England, that the Emperor Carausius held its tenets in the highest veneration, that Albain, the canonized martyr, presided over British Masons as their Grand Master, and that Athelstane was a promoter of the art in the same capacity; but, however interesting these investigations may be to the inquirer, we may rest assured that a wide field of study is open in the direction of those grand principles, which have exalted Masonry into a moral science, and have helped to humanize mankind. It is an inspiring reflection that our God-honouring institution advocates and upholds a morality of the highest kind, and a never failing charity in a cold unsympathizing world. The G.A. of the Universe has not placed us here and endowed us with various gifts that we may live for ourselves alone. The immortal bard has uttered this sentiment in these sublime words:—

"Heaven doth with us, as we with torches do,
Not light them for themselves, for if our virtues
Did not go forth of us, 'twere all alike
As if we had them not. Spirits are not finely touched,
But to fine issues."

With one other quotation I will conclude. In 1876, our very excellent and greatly respected Provincial Grand Master expressed a wish that there might be "on the part of the fraternity in his province an earnest desire to study the principles upon which our ancient and time honoured Order is founded," being well convinced, that by doing so, they would become better men, and better fitted for higher things than if they confined their attention to the mere routine work of the lodge. As, in the monuments of which I have spoken, the outer covering of earth hid from sight the massive and imperishable portion of the sepulchral structure, which, when its solid materials are brought into view, is a token of marvellous engineering skill; so should the external ceremonial of Masonry be regarded as the simple clothing which conceals from the superficial observer those everlasting principles of Heaven-born truth, which it is our duty to study and to teach. May the lofty purposes of Masonry, which have been so earnestly fulfilled in the past by the members of the Airedale Lodge, continue to animate them through a long future, causing them to work harmoniously, in obedience to the will of Him who would have all men to be steeped in the effulgence of His Divine love.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

The Sheffield Masonic Amateur Dramatic Society gave its opening performance on Thursday, October 24th, at the Freemasons' Hall, and when we say that it was a perfect success we do not exaggerate in the slightest degree.

This society was instituted by the Sheffield brethren to give a series of entertainments, in which their wives, sisters, daughters, and lady friends might participate; and all praise to those brethren in their practical determination to enlist the interests of the "fair sex" in Masonry—directly or indirectly. Each member of the society received a certain number of tickets—admission could be obtained only by such tickets—and, as was anticipated, the gathering proved to be a very select one, in fact, like a large family party.

A temporary stage was erected in the spacious banquetting hall, 50 seats were arranged, and as many tickets were speedily subscribed for.

At seven o'clock the curtain rose, when Bro. Thomas Blair recited a prologue written by himself expressly for the occasion, it was at once witty, sententious, and, we may say, epigrammatic; being delivered in an easy style, every point told and received marked applause.

"Charles the Second" was then presented, King Charles being most ably represented by Bro. Captain Mills. The Earl of Rochester was rendered by Bro. Reaney in a manner which showed careful study and great ability. Edward, a page, was played by Bro. Lieut. Pallin, most naturally, in fact, as if "to the manner born." Captain Copp proved a masterly conception in the hands of Bro. Gatty, whose facial powers alone are nearly sufficient to insure the success of any part he may undertake.

The "discreet" Lady Clara was earnestly, carefully, and admirably rendered by Miss Frederica Taylor; whilst Miss Marie Montgomery as Mary, "the fair maid of Wapping" (Copp's niece), left nothing to be desired.

The after-piece was "My Uncle's Will," in which Charles Cashmore was cleverly played by Bro. Joseph Brailsford, jun., Mr. Barker, by Bro. Gatty, was simply inimitable, his get up was a complete metamorphosis from Capt. Copp; the rapid changes in his mobile countenance again eliciting roars of laughter.

Miss Marie Montgomery, Florence Marigold, was simply charming; the pointed, yet graceful, delivery of the witty repartee which fell to her share was very clever, as was also her bye-play, especially in the scene with the hand-glass, and the photograph of her supposed rival, which brought down the house.

On the following evening was presented Tom Taylor's celebrated comedy of "Still Waters Run Deep." Mr. Potter found a careful and consistent representative in Bro. Scargill, who not only looked but played his part well. Capt. Hawkesley was entrusted to Bro. Gatty, and, certainly, he left nothing to be desired. John Mildmay fell to Bro. Capt. Mills, and received thorough justice at his hands. The minor characters of Dunbilk, Bro. J. M. While; Langford, Bro. Blair; Markham, Bro. Garnett; Gimblet, Bro. C. While; and Jessop, Bro. Styling; were all ably given.

The Mrs. Mildmay of Miss Marie Montgomery was easy and natural, from the indifferent, at the outset, to the loving wife, at the close.

Miss Frederica Taylor played Mrs. Sternhold in an exceedingly clever style; in the scene with Capt. Hawkesley she was fully equal to the occasion, infusing into the part a dramatic fire which fairly rivetted the attention of the audience.

The comedietta of "Cup of Tea" was to have followed, but by special desire "My Uncle's Will" was repeated, and a most wise decision too, for the very excellent manner in which that charming piece was played the previous evening it was no wonder; indeed, its repetition was inevitable, sooner or later.

The arduous duties of "prompter" were ably executed by Bro. Blair.

The band, under the superintendence of Bro. G. E. Webster, was a thorough success, it is not too much to say that it was very superior to many regular theatre bands it has been our lot to listen to.

The stage was very pretty; the costumes, from Messrs. L. Th. and H. Nathan, of Tichborne-street, London, were very much admired. The scenery, though modest, was excellent—in short the "mise en scène" was as near perfection as ever amateurs can hope to attain—this, and the selection of the two lady-professionals, reflects great credit on the managers, Bros. Reaney and Robertshaw; the former also acted as Hon. Sec. of the society, and infinite credit is due to him for his untiring zeal and energy, not only did he work "con amore," but he seemed to inspire all others around him similarly. It strikes us that but a few of the audience were prepared for the treat in store for them, they went to see "amateurs," and were not a little surprised to see the histrionic abilities which had been lying latent in their very midst.

Two more performances are announced to take place the end of this month, and we shall look forward to them with considerable interest; in conclusion, we congratulate the Sheffield brethren on their brilliantly successful entertainment, and we say, "go on and prosper."

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER.

Of which balances there is in the hands of the Trustees of the late Grand Treasurer a sum of £388 17s. 4d., and in the London and Westminster Bank and Bank of England £310 10s. 7d.

The Committee have likewise to report that they have received the following petitions:—

1st. From Comps. John Robert Willson as Z., Henry William Townsend as H., John Lind as J., and eight others for a Chapter to be attached to the United Service Lodge, No. 1428, Portsmouth, to be called "The United Service Chapter," and to meet at the Freemasons' Hall, Highbury-street, Postsmouth, in the County of Hants.
2nd. From Comps. Howell Davies as Z., Henry Adams as H., George Parry as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Tenby Lodge, No. 1177, Tenby, to be called "The Dinbych Chapter," and to meet at the Royal Gate House Assembly Rooms, Tenby, in the County of Pembroke.

3rd. From Comps. Robert Hudson as Z., Mark Douglas as H., George Moore as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the St. Helen's Lodge, No. 531, Hartlepool, to be called "The St. Helen's Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Regent-square, Hartlepool, in the County of Durham.

4th. From Comps. Richard P. France as Z., John Hayes as H., John Lamb Houghton as J., and seven others for a Chapter to be attached to the Downshire Lodge, No. 594, Liverpool, to be called "The Downshire Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, in the County of Lancashire.

5th. From Comps. Alfred Wallis Paul as Z., Robert Phillips as H., William Lloyd as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Mount Everest Lodge, No. 1525, Darjeeling, to be called "The Canning Chapter," and to meet at the Lodge Rooms, Darjeeling, Bengal, in the East Indies.

6th. From Comps. the Rev. Robert Bowden as Z., John Thompson Goodridge as H., John Piggott as J., and ten others for a Chapter to be attached to the Torbay Lodge, No. 1358, Paignton, to be called "The Torbay Chapter," and to meet at the Town Hall, Paignton, in the County of Devon.

7th. From Comps. Wesley Francis as Z., Thomas Joyce as H., William Sink as J., and fifteen others for a Chapter to be attached to the Natal Lodge, No. 1666, Pietermaritzburg, to be called "The Natal Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Temple, Longmarket-street, Pietermaritzburg, in the Colony of Natal.

8th. From Comps. James Richard Bishop as Z., Isaac Dawe as H., William Fenwick as J., and nine others for a Chapter to be attached to the St. Anne's Lodge, No. 970, East Loos, to be called "The St. Anne's Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, East Loos, in the County of Cornwall.

The foregoing petitions being in all respects regular, the Committee recommend that the prayers thereof be respectively granted.

9th. They have also received a petition from the Principals and other members of the Royal Victoria Chapter, No. 358, Ireland Island, Bermuda, West Indies, praying for a Charter of Confirmation, the original Charter being entirely decayed, and the Committee recommend that the prayer of the petitioners be granted.

The Committee have likewise to report:—

That Comp. Joseph Smith, Past Director of Ceremonies, of the Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England, was on the 30th of July last suspended, by order of the Board of General Purposes, "from all his Masonic functions and privileges for a period of two years." That the said suspension was reported to and approved by Grand Lodge, on the 4th of September last, and in accordance with Article 10, page 6, of the Royal Arch Regulations, Grand Chapter will proceed to declare Comp. Joseph Smith suspended from his Arch Masonic functions.

The President will therefore move:—

That Comp. Joseph Smith, P.D.C., be declared suspended from his Arch Masonic functions for the period while such Craft suspension continues in force.

Comp. Joseph Smith, being an elected member of the Committee of General Purposes of the Supreme Grand Chapter, is, by reason of his suspension, disqualified from attending such Committee, it will, therefore, be necessary that the Grand Chapter elect another companion to fill the vacancy thus caused.

(Signed)

JOHN CREATON,
President.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, was held on Thursday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall, Col. J. Creaton in the chair. There were also present Bros. J. A. Rucker, S. Rawson, H. Browne, A. H. Tattershall, Col. James Peters, Major E. J. Finney, Jno. G. Stevens, W. F. C. Moutrie, H. Potter, H. A. Dubois, John Boyd, Arthur E. Gladwell, H. Hacker, E. Letchworth, Thos. F. Peacock, Edw. Spooner, Geo. R. Shervill, Herbert Dicketts, Henry Venn, Thos. Cabitt G. Faulkner, F. R. W. Hedges, Secretary, and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the minutes had been read and confirmed, one petition of a candidate to be placed on the list for April Election was received. Two others were deferred, not having been received in time.

A proposition of the Chairman for the payment of £10 to the School of Cookery to enable some of the Girls of the Institution to attend that school was agreed to.

The following letter from Bro. John Caldwell was read and ordered to be acknowledged with thanks.

Sea View Cottage,
Starcroft, Devon.

To the W.M. of the Robert Burns Lodge, No. 25, held at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, London.

Dear Sir and Brother. As I find my health is so bad I fear I shall not be able to attend my lodge any more, so beg to resign myself in lodge, but beg to enclose a cheque for to be divided between the Boys' and Girls' Schools of £100 each, which I will thank you to acknowledge through the Masonic journals (receipt for the same) and the Exeter and Plymouth Gazette. Cheque for £200 forwarded to the Treasurer of the Grand Lodge, Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, to the account of the Robert Burns Lodge, No. 25.

Yours fraternally,

(Signed) JOHN CALDWELL, P.M. 61.

Oct. 29, 1878.

A letter was also read from Bro. Peter Matthews, dated Oct. 1878, and stating that failing health compelled him to give up his professional duties as dentist-surgeon, and retire into private life. He must, therefore, resign the office to the Girls' School, which he had held for twenty years.

This letter was also received with many expressions of regret and thanks for past services.

Bro. Gladwell said that as a Sub-committee had been appointed to revise the bye-laws of the Institution he should like to impress upon them the propriety of altering the laws as to the price to be paid for buying a girl into the school. At present the price was 170 guineas; but as the children were admissible from eight to eleven years of age, either the price was too low at eight years or too high at eleven.

The Chairman in reply, said that this subject would be taken into consideration by the Committee. The Chairman also stated that the Committee would meet on boxing day.

Bro. Dicketts proposed, and Bro. E. Spooner seconded, the admission by purchase of the daughter of Bro. Charles Jardine, a brother who was drowned in the collision between the Bywell Castle and the Princess Alice.

The Committee then adjourned.

THE ELECTION OF CITY REMEMBRANCER.

At the Court of Common Council on Thursday afternoon, on the motion of Mr. Deputy Taylor, the names of the candidates for this office were read. They were as follow:—Mr. Vincent Baines, Mr. A. B. Elliott, Bro. F. G. Faithfull, Mr. Wm. Griffith, Mr. W. Hardman, Bro. H. Howkins, Mr. Walker Hughes, Bro. W. G. Lemon, Bro. Macrae Moir, Mr. E. C. Nepean, Mr. Henry Paull, Bro. Captain Bedford Pim, M.P., Mr. John Proctor, Mr. C. H. Roberts, Mr. A. Turner, Mr. John Turner, Mr. Wheelhouse, M.P., and Mr. Yardley. The candidates were invited to take seats on the alderman's bench, and answer to their names by rising. This having been done except in two cases it was arranged, on the motion of Mr. Deputy Lowman Taylor, to reduce the number of candidates by show of hands, to six, and then further reduce them, by show of hands, to three. From the three two would be selected by poll, and a poll would finally decide the election. Bro. J. B. Monckton, the Town Clerk, read a letter from Mr. Paull, resigning his candidature, as he found it would involve his giving up many of his present engagements.

The election was then proceeded with, Bro. Alderman Hadley assisting the Lord Mayor to count.

The first show of hands resulted in the retention of the names of Bro. Faithfull, Mr. Hardman, Bro. Lemon, Bro. Macrae Moir, Mr. Roberts, and Mr. Yardley; the second further reduced them to Messrs. Faithfull, Moir, and Roberts.

Deputy Shephard and Mr. M'George were elected scrutineers, and the first poll was at once commenced, the result being declared by the Lord Mayor as follows:—Roberts, 154; Faithfull, 87; and Moir, 86. The second poll, to decide between the two former, followed immediately, when Mr. Roberts received 135, and Bro. Faithfull 55 votes.

Mr. Roberts having been declared duly elected, thanked the Court for the honour they had conferred on him, which he trusted they would never regret.

Bro. Faithfull also briefly thanked those who had given him their support, and the Court adjourned.

FREEMASONRY IN MADRAS.

The minds of the brethren of the mystic Craft are now being very much exercised in this presidency over a matter of no small importance to themselves. Who is to be their Grand Master is the burthen of their thoughts, and the question is causing them a very great deal of anxiety. The selection of a successor to the important position rendered vacant by the lamented death of the late Right Worshipful Bro. John Miller virtually rests solely with H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Grand Master of all English Masonry. But it has been customary for each district to recommend a candidate for nomination, and in deference to this prayer, their candidate has invariably been accepted. The advantages of this plan are manifest, as the candidate recommended is the one who obtains the largest number of votes from the brethren of his district, and is, therefore, the one above all others, that would be the most acceptable to the majority. This plan has ordinarily worked well. Somehow there has always been some one who was most popular, and before whom all other candidates withdrew. Now, however, there is a great commotion in their midst. There are two candidates, neither of whom is willing to withdraw in favour of the other. These are Major Saunders, the present Deputy Grand Master, and ergo, acting head of the Craft, and the other Dr. Cockburn, A.M.D., a comparative stranger to this district, but a very high and reputedly zealous Mason. The former candidate is a prime favourite of all the three Madras Lodges, as well as of a larger percentage of the Mofussil Lodge. He has intimately been connected with Masonry in this district for upwards of sixteen years, during the whole of which time he rendered good Masonic service, as testified by the subjoined review of his career:—

1862 Resuscitated and ruled Lodge Orther.
1864 do. Lodge Good Will.
1865 Re-elected Master of above.
1866 Ruled Lodge St. John.
1867 Re-elected Master of above.
1869 Resuscitated and ruled Lodge Astrea.
1871 Re-elected Master of above.
1876 Appointed D. District Grand Master.

The rival candidate, Dr. Cockburn, has, however, not yet done anything for the Craft in this Presidency, but brings a high reputation for zeal and bonhomie from Gibraltar, where he attained high rank. He is strongly favoured by the Masons in Bangalore and St. Thomas' Mount, who are very numerous, and who are briskly canvassing in his favour, and he is said to be also in favour with the Home authorities. How the matter will eventually be decided remains to be seen, and, in the meanwhile, the members of the Craft are on tenterhooks of excitement to learn who will head the poll.—Madras Times.

THE LATE BRO. R. W. LITTLE.

At the installation meeting of the Hemming Lodge, 1512, in reading the minutes of the emergency of the 7th May, the following resolution, fraught at present with so much interest in honouring the memory of a very popular and lamented brother occurs. "That condolence be expressed to the widow of our deeply lamented V.W. Bro. R. Wentworth Little, late D.P.G.M. Middx., honorary member of this lodge, sympathising with her in her domestic grief, assuring her of the high esteem in which he was held by the brethren, and offering the last services of the lodge in any undertaking that may be projected to do honour to his memory, for his Masonic ability, his genial, benevolent nature, his intellectual acquirements, his devotion to the best interests of the province, to Masonry in general, and to the success of the Orphan Institution for the daughters of Freemasons in particular." This resolution was followed by voting ten guineas to the Girls' School.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

The King of Bavaria has ordered for himself alone a performance of the Wagner Nibelungen Tetralogy at the Great Theatre of Munich. "Rheingold" is to be performed on the 11th, "Walküre" on the 12th, "Siegfried" on the 14th, and "Götterdämmerung" on the 15th of November.

Last week an important fragment of fasti consularis was discovered in the excavations on the Via Sacra. It contains fifteen names, and connects with that in the Capitoline Museum numbered XXVII. in the Corpus.

The Grosvenor Gallery Winter Exhibition will include a collection of drawings and sketches by the late French artist, Ingres. Two of Ingres' best known paintings, the "Sphinx" and the "Source," are now in the Paris Louvre.

With the end of the Long Vacation comes the annual show of chrysanthemums in the Temple-gardens. The cultivation of these pretty winter flowers has been brought to such perfection by Mr. Newton, the head gardener to the Inner Temple, and the exhibition has become so well known that the public avail themselves largely of the permission given by the Benchers to visit the gardens freely during the continuance of the show. The earlier varieties are now in full bloom. Some of the flowers have not yet arrived at perfection, but the show bids fair to be a very good one.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.—The Times has lighted up its "Chapel" with Mr. Rapiéff's system of the Electric Light.

There is reason to believe that the Corpus Professorship of Jurisprudence at Oxford, which Sir Henry Sumner Maine resigns at the end of this year, will be converted into a Professorship of Constitutional Law and Legal History.—Athenæum.

THE FREEMASON,

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1878.

ENGLISH AND FOREIGN FREEMASONRY.

We cannot fail to be struck with two great facts when we consider English and Foreign Freemasonry, namely, the altogether unpolitical character of the one, the quasi-political character more or less of the other. Of course, the remark does not equally apply to all foreign jurisdictions, though none are so wholly free from political leanings as we should like them to be, in greater or less degree, actually or by implication. And, no doubt, the remark does apply with greater force to some sections of the foreign Masonic community than to others just now, and because the fact is so undoubtedly and distinctly, we think it well to call attention to the subject. Our Royal Grand Master at his auspicious Installation, made that most true remark, and gave that ever sound advice, which all English Masons realize and abide by, "keep clear of politics." And it is happily the unchanging normal characteristic of English Masonry, its ceaseless law of life and action, to follow out that axiom both of prudence and of wisdom, closely and confessedly, in the letter and in the spirit. If English Masonry has some defects more or less patent, more or less hidden from vulgar gaze, political tendencies cannot honestly and properly be included among them by even the most carping of critics, the most captious of opponents, the most bitter of anathematizers. But abroad it is unfortunately not so, and in some special sections just now of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, (not so far from our own peaceful shores), the work and life of Masonry constitute an abject parody on Masonic profession and Masonic theory. Masonry thus becomes in their hands quite a different matter, quite a different personality, (if we may so say), from what we believe it to be, from what we see it to be, from what we hail it gladly as being among ourselves. It assumes other proportions, and "tumbles to," (excuse a slang expression), other proclivities! It ceases in fact to be Masonry. It may be anything you like to call it, but it is not Masonry. What has peaceful religious, loyal, reverent, English Masonry, to do with the "stump" of a political faction, the memories of the commune, the reveries of positivists, the vagaries of unbelievers, and above all, with the aspirations of factions? Masonic charity is in abeyance, Masonic order is disavowed, Masonic unity is forgotten, Masonic teaching is ignored, and in its stead, we have an association, whose professions are the professions of a nihilistic positivism, and nothing more and nothing less. With all this, as English Masons, we will have nothing whatever to do; we adhere to our ancient formulæ, we stand by our venerable laws, we acknowledge reverently, religiously, and truly T.G.A.O.T.U.; and we are loyal citizens, opponents of sedition and strife, illegal conspiracies, and secret political associations, and such as we are we hope those who come after us will be, still the same charitable, faithful, religiously-minded, patriotic, Confraternity, we have sought to be in our time and generation! Therefore we keep at home, and we keep to ourselves; and we decline to allow the honoured name of English Masonry to be associated with such childish and grotesque parodies on all the principles of our good old Craft, which, as honest and devoted, Masons, we are bound steadfastly to proclaim, and manfully to uphold, under all circumstances, and under all the changes and chances of this mortal life.

THE FETE AT THE TROCADERO.

Though for many reasons we are not anxious to dwell any longer on this subject, we yet think it well to remark that the report of the gathering fully justifies our prudential advice to our brethren on the subject. Had the invitation been simply addressed to members of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite alone, we should have said nothing, but as it was professedly addressed to English brethren generally, we thought it only right and proper to express our humble opinion and offer our humble advice, and all that has transpired fully confirms alike the doubts we expressed and the caution we recommended. From the various accounts which have reached us, the "order of the day" was as follows. The "Fete" took place at the Trocadero, on Thursday, 24th ult., professedly given by the Supreme Council of the Freemasons of the Scotch Rite to the foreign Masons at present in Paris. M. Cremieux, the Grand Master of the Order, presided. The fete began with the "Wedding March" of Mendelssohn on two organs. M. Crémieux then delivered a speech, which, after an interval devoted to music, was followed by another from M. Emanuel Arago. The meeting wound up with the "Marsellaise." We are told that there was a large attendance of English men and ladies, and that Bro. J. M. P. Montagu, a member of the English Grand Lodge, responded. Some reports estimate the number present at 4000, others at 450. We believe that there is some inaccuracy, or rather want of Masonic accuracy in these remarks, and when we receive, (if we do receive), any authentic account of the meeting, we shall be happy to publish it in our pages, and to call attention to those salient points in it which are in any way interesting or edifying to our readers. We have reason to believe that the Eminent Grand Commander of the Ancient and Accepted Rite in England, Lord Skelmersdale, our very distinguished brother, also spoke, and with considerable eloquence and effect. Our esteemed Bro. Montagu would return thanks, we think it well to remind our readers, not as a P.G. Officer of the English Grand Lodge, but as a dignitary of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. The English Grand Lodge was not represented on the occasion, as is indeed obvious, and thus Bro. Montagu, though a P.G. Officer of merit and distinction of our Craft Grand Lodge, was not its representative, but he either was accredited, or he acted in his individual capacity as one of the 33°, a member of the English Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. In the evening a grand banquet was given at the Continental Hotel.

THE LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

This Association, about which a good deal has been said, and probably will be said, "pro and con," is now before our Masonic public in working order, asking simply for "a fair field and no favour." Like all new associations, it has been attacked from various quarters, actively, determinedly, and to say the truth, somewhat unfairly, with great zeal, though we venture to think with little discretion. Much that has been said about it clearly proceeds from unintentional misrepresentation, or from complete ignorance of its real meaning and its actual utility. Its "raison d'être" may be summed up in a few words. Without dictation, without dogmatism, without officious interference, or unwise intermeddling, it seeks to give to some of our poor London candidates a better chance of success than personal prepossessions, or individual support, seem now likely or able to afford them. We do not think it needful to go through the various objections which have been raised to its formation, for most will be found not really to be objections at all, but in truth its merits and recommendations, to all who will take the trouble to think. But one objection has been made persistently, that it is a "dictatorial interference, an unwarrantable liberty on the part of a body of London Masons to ask their brethren for their votes." But how can this be? Do not some of us receive cards and circulars, signed by individual brethren, asking us for our votes? Are we not repeatedly pressed by circulars and personal requests by individual brethren to vote for this or that particular candidate, not because it is the most distressing case, or a distressing case above others, but because Bro. Buggin's supports it, because Bro. Higgin's gives it his name, because Bro. Popper has taken it up, and because Bro. Pipper is "much interested in it?" Now, surely, what an individual brother can do a committee of brethren can also do. Where is the difference in point of abstract theory, or concrete action? Practically and positively there is none, and its a proof of no little jesuitism, or perversity, or any thing else you like, to say that there is. The old adage "Defendit Numerus," might well be employed to shew that there is no possible harm in a carefully selected committee seeking to collect and combine votes and voting papers, it is, in fact, only the present system expanded, organized, and scientifically conducted. And as such,—if London candidates are to succeed in the future, it becomes the "necessity of the case." Let us take as an illustration the case of the "boy Watkins," an episode in the history of our Masonic elections, which we believe to be irresistible in its direct application, and the best reply to all crude and petty objections, as the safest explanation to all bona fide or peddling objectors. Watkins, the fourteenth boy on the list for the Boys' School election, and unsuccessful by ninety-eight votes, is one of nine orphan children. His mother has been unsuccessful in the Girls' School election also, having few friends. The poor boy has made six applications in vain, and this was his last chance. He had no distinguished brother to obtain for a first application 1600 votes. He had no private committee to secure his election; he had no "leading member of the Order" to issue a "personal card" in his favour, but a few zealous friends, hard working Masons, and Life Governors, mustered up for him about 300 votes, and the London Masonic Charity Association polled the rest, only taking up the case on its sheer merits, and also on its absolute necessity. The poor lad Watkins ought to have been successful, if some brethren had only been kind enough to remember that other candidates had five or six chances, he, poor orphan boy, had none. Here, surely, as we said before, is the best and truest answer to hasty objections, and perverse objectors. Here is the need, the apology, (if apology is required), of the London Masonic Charity Association, and bearing in mind how warmhearted and sympathetic our good London brethren are, we doubt not eventually, that they will see the need of the Association, and give to it hearty and active support.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even approving of, the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.]

LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The editorial comment appended to my letter of the 13th ult., which appeared in your issue of the 19th, although dissenting from my expressed opinions, is still in some measure satisfactory to me, since it gives me the right to demand from you the privilege of a reply. Such privilege is one which your well-known courtesy will hardly refuse, more especially when it is borne in mind that this subject is one of a nature very interesting to Freemasons, and also one on which free discussion, if conducted in temperate and gentleman-like language, cannot or ought not to lead to evil results. If the aims of the "London Masonic Charity Association" be directed towards the advancement of Masonry and of charity, publicity and fair criticism are not oracles from which its promoters ought to shrink; while if the reverse be the case, it cannot surely be contended that it is in the interests of Freemasonry that silence should be kept regarding its proceedings.

Your note to my last letter says that I have "misapprehended alike the raison d'être of the institution and the position of affairs." This is a very sweeping condemnation, but whether it be an exact statement of fact or not I do not propose to discuss. I leave it to such of your readers as may chance to have seen my letter to decide for themselves as to whether I did or did not mis-state the objects of the Association, and the reasons which have called it into existence. My conclusions may be wrong, but that is a matter of opinion. The question of misapprehension (and consequent misrepresentation) of the objects of the Association in my former letter is a question of fact, and this, as I have already said, I do not wish to argue.

I turn to another part of your paper, and I find a "Report of the London Masonic Charity Association," occupying a prominent place. This report is not signed by any Secretary, President, or Chairman, and I am left in doubt as to whether it emanates from the editorial pen, or whether it is the actual report of the Association as adopted by their Committee. The form and substance of the report strongly support the latter supposition, were it not that in some respects this otherwise official report replies in an argumentative manner to some of the objections raised in my letter.

So strongly marked is the phraseology in one or two places as to afford the most convincing and conclusive evidence that the writer had the manuscript of my letter before him when his "report" was drawn up. This compels one of two conclusions. Either my letter was submitted to the responsible Secretary of the Association: before it had appeared in print, in order that he might refer to, and answer it in his report; or this report was written in the office of the Freemason by the Editor himself or by one of his subordinates. The first supposition I dismiss as an impossibility. It involves a very grave charge of serious indiscretion on the part of your journal and its management, and such a charge would not be made by me if not capable of demonstration by absolutely irrefragable evidence. I am driven, therefore, to accept the second hypothesis as above set forth, and must conclude that the report of the London Masonic Charity Association was written in the office of the Freemason by some one at least equal in rank to the sub-editor.

If this be the fact, and I have shewn that it must be the fact, the same ought, in fairness, to be avowed, and explicitly set forth in your columns. It is due to the Craft generally that it should be known that the Freemason and the "London Masonic Charity Association" are virtually one and the same, so that the arguments of the former in support of the latter may be accepted by Masons in London and elsewhere, quantum valeant.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, faithfully and fraternally yours,

THOS. EDMONDSTON,
Master, 165th.

23rd October, 1878.

[As this correspondence is becoming purely personal we decline to continue it. Bro. Edmondston is again clearly in utter error as to the facts of the case.—Ed. F.M.]

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

With respect to the remarks of Bro. Edmondston, which I have seen, I beg to state that the "Report" accepted by the London Masonic Charity Association was drawn up without the slightest reference to his letter, and that all his remarks "thereat" constitute a tissue of absurdities perfectly beneath notice. I am sorry to write thus of a brother Mason. The "Report" was drafted on the evening of the Boys' School Election, and when Bro. Edmondston's letter had certainly not been read by me, and certainly was not referred to by me in the remotest manner.

THE DRAFTER OF THE REPORT.

THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

From some delays in the post my Freemason did not duly arrive, and it is difficult to write under the excitement of travelling, with a very extended journey still to perform.

I had certainly hoped that Bro. Lamonby would not have deserted his assumed character of historian, and it is a matter of regret that "Ecce Signum," who has written a letter should almost commence by remarks personal to myself, as his only argument or resource. Of course to use Sheridan's phrase "it is only the gentleman's way of saying that he differs from me in opinion," and such a brother as "Ecce Signum" might have written very much nonsense before I had troubled his repose with a criticism; yet when a gentleman claiming to belong to the Republic of Letters writes it is a different thing. Such a man is no more justified in writing nonsense in the Freemason than in the Times or Standard. Any discourtesy to Bro. Lamonby I utterly deny, having only criticised his history and claims to recognition for the Mark Association, and do not doubt he himself fully admits the truth of all I said.

I may further here remark that my reply to "Ecce Signum" is simply one of courtesy, he has no right to mangle in a discussion unless he seriously enters into that discussion. It would be bad management on my part, having started the fox, to hunt any stray hare that chooses to cross the scent, whilst even if accepted, in any learned society the speaker who wandered from the subject of discussion would soon be called to order.

Our Bro. Lamonby has failed to reply to my arguments, neither has any one else offered in argument to supply his place. I therefore claim to have shown, 1st that his account of the connection of the brethren of the Mark Association with King Solomon is untrue; 2ndly, that my statement that such an institution in the time of King Solomon was an impossibility is not disproved; 3rdly, that the same remark holds good, as to its connection with Melrose Abbey, Masons' Marks, and time immemorial.

I claim therefore the right to assert that his entire statement is a delusion, and to uninformed minds a snare.

I say this deliberately, for I consider the question of this so-called Mark Degree, one of the very highest importance requiring the fullest liberty of discussion, and believe a step inadvisably taken in this direction would leave an impassable gulf between Freemasonry on one hand and reason and philosophy on the other.

I am entirely without works of reference, or I could readily point my brother to a very careful speech of the Prince Imperial of Prussia not many years since, in which, in discussing the subject, he distinctly calls the attention of the Craft to the fact that there is but one portion of Masonry which has properly the right to be considered as such, and he further states that some of the ideas connected with Masonry in the minds of many, may require revision.

I have, therefore, some support when I claim for the brethren of the Craft Degrees, that their rite is the sole inheritor of what may be called ancient Masonry, and to the question, "what do I think of the Second Degree?" I would premise in replying that what is learnt from the First Degree is that the Mason's lodge retains all the characteristics of the ancient corporate or municipal institutions, and that such an institution never existed in the old eastern world.

As applied to Masonry, the First Degree teaches what I will not here describe, but which is based on everlasting truth and is dear to us all.

The Second Degree directs us—I will not say to what here, but its directions are clear and definite, and calculated to call out all the faculties which can adorn the world.

The Third Degree also indicates—I will not say what here—but also very important subjects.

There is nothing, however, in all this but what accords with philosophy, and the idea of the Great First Cause.

Looking at our Degrees, thus far they are unique, and, in a literary point of view, perfect. At the end, however, of the Third Degree we find the well-known and much abused story of King Solomon. It is, no doubt, a difficult subject, and in the absence of all other than inferential knowledge, the only mode of argument is that by analysis.

The name of King Solomon is a symbol, a name recognised and known—equally by the grand religions of the world, the Jew, the Christian, the Mahomedan—a name before which as a symbol all may bow who hold belief in the Great Architect of the Universe—the one eternal—the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob. Such, indeed, is the original idea which pervades Masonry.

I believe it would have been far better had Masonry adhered to this form, pure and simple. It has, however, (unfortunately), in my opinion, diverted this idea to a certain extent into something different, and this most glorious symbol we have so far degraded as to bring him bodily on the stage and make him talk of purely personal trivialities.

Pure hearts make right prayers, and many there are amongst us who have not in their hearts bowed the knee, but carefully treasure up the idea of the true symbol, and although what has been done in times past we may be bound by, the question now is, are we to go farther in this degradation of our sacred symbol? I ask our brethren to study the simplicity of our Second Degree; I ask whether they will consent to have it degraded by that with which it can have no possible relation, which is at utter variance with its spirit. I claim to have some literary knowledge of the Mark Institution; but thanking sincerely my brother for his invitation, feel that I could not conscientiously take it without feeling myself a traitor to the Craft.

Let me finally ask my brethren of our noble Craft Masonry to hold to their own, to assert its rights and dignities, and never to forget the true meaning of its oft abused symbol King Solomon. I warn my brethren also against all and every one who shall try to make of Masonry the travesty of a religion, and finally, to ask our friends, who propose to disfigure our cherished symbols with their "Beautiful" to offer us some better claim to do so than glib absurdity. Yet, properly understood, there is nothing in Masonry opposed to common sense.

This question was not raised by me, but by our esteemed Bro. Lamonby. I have merely given his history a logical sequence. Can we touch pitch without being defiled? Can we trifle with falsehood without being debased? How long will it be before our enemies say, "the sect that believes a lie?"

MASONIC MENDICANCY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A short time ago a man, professing to be a Mason, applied to me, as Almoner of the Royal Edward Lodge (892), for relief. He knew enough answers to Masonic questions to pass himself off as a Mason generally, but our W.M. was not satisfied, and pressing him rather closely, discovered that he was not a Mason. I wrote to the Secretary of what he called his lodge, and received the following answer:—"Keystone Lodge (363), Whitworth, Oct. 14th, 1878. Dear Sir and Brother, I have been abroad for the last three weeks and did not get your letter until last night. We have no such person on our books as John Fox, neither do we believe him to be a Mason. He has applied to us for relief, which was refused. I remain, yours fraternally, J. H. Scholfield."

The application for relief was in writing, as follows (which appears to be his general method, as he applied here for relief in a very similar letter about a year ago, under another name, which I cannot give you, having unfortunately lost his letter):—"Leominster Station, Wednesday night. Sir and Brother, I am sent to you as a 'Mason,' to beg the favour of your good offices in an unexpected difficulty, and I am ashamed to be obliged to trouble you in such a way. I have come from the North of England, and had arranged to meet a relative of mine here at the station, upon whom I had entirely depended for ways and means, for all immediate purposes. He has, however, failed to keep his appointment, and I am consequently detained in the utmost misery and suspense, completely penniless, weatherbound, and broken down. In this extremity if you could be of any service to me, just pro tem., I should feel it a great kindness, and would do my best to square the obligation soon as possible. Deeply regretting such an intrusion upon your sympathy and attention. I am, yr. ob. ser., John Fox, 363."

I have been careful, in above copy, in following italics, contractions, and pointing. I inclose originals of above letters, which please return. I have no doubt that there are a number of similar applications to the above, and that persons are making a living out of the Craft, and that a good means of stopping it will be to relieve no one who cannot produce a proper certificate, on the back of which all relief should be endorsed.

Yours truly,
Leominster.

WARNING TO THE CHARITABLE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The warning came too late for our lot. A man, calling himself a brother, called upon us, stating that he was in difficulty, not able to pay his lodgings, and that he was promised something to do in a week's time if he could get assistance to enable him to stay and to pay what he owed. The W.M., very charitably, recommended him to be assisted.

In giving a receipt for the money he described himself as J. Weir, Affability, 317, Manchester; 307, 275, S.C.; 531, Aufgehende Morgen, Rothe, Frankfort-on-Maine. He is a young man, about 5ft. 4in., with a foreign accent, stated that he was a Swiss.

I made enquiries of his being a member of the Affability, No. 317, which proved against him; "I beg to say he is not a member of our lodge," they stated further, "that the Charity Committee knew him, and reported not worthy of relief."

I am, dear Sir and Brother,

ANOTHER DUPE TO THE UNCHARITABLE.

FRENCH AND ENGLISH FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It was with some surprise I read the letter of Bro. Doctor Bedolle, P.M. 1329, in your issue of the 19th ult., and would like to be informed, first, is it lawful for any member under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of England, Ireland, or Scotland, to visit the Grand Orient after the decisions which were promulgated, no change for the better having taken place? If it be lawful, is it expedient for any brother to do so? Can he hope to stay them in their downward course, and bring them back within the old landmark? I doubt both the lawfulness, and expediency of such a step. Fraternally yours,

Waterford. JOHN DE RENZY, P.M. 297.

THE WRITER OF THE ARTICLE ON THE TWO GRAND LODGES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason"

Dear Sir and Brother,—

My attention has been called to a letter over the above signature, published in your issue of 14th ult., and which some zealous brother has had reproduced in the Montreal Gazette of a recent date, doubtless with the view of strengthening the position assumed by the brethren under Scotland in this city, through the attempt at ridicule by your correspondent in replying to my letter to the Craftsman of August last.

I desire the privilege of briefly replying to that communication through your columns.

Your correspondent makes an extract from my communication which, either from carelessness or design, is materially garbled, and does not fairly represent my argument. But as it is simply the question of fact which I propose in this letter to discuss, I shall let the injustice of his misquotation pass.

I asserted that Masonic jurists, wherever they had given a free and unprejudiced judgment on the question of concurrent jurisdiction had uniformly arrived at the conclusion that it was wrong in principle and inexpedient in practice, and, I added, "such is the universal testimony of Masonic juriconsults on this continent." To this, my brother "The writer of the Article on the Two Grand Lodges" replies—in a manner which I trust is peculiar to him alone—"I have never in my life read (begging Bro. Murray's pardon) such an audacious and utterly incorrect statement. If there is one thing Masonic juriconsults are agreed on, it is the absolute and inherent right of the lodge to adhere to its warranting authority, as indeed such must be from the nature of the case. I know of no American or Canadian juriconsult (of any authority) who has laid down such law." All that ever has been said is, that "for the sake of harmony, peace, uniformity, symmetry, &c., it would be better for such lodges by a friendly concordat to join the new Grand Lodge. But in all the American States, just as in Canada, the previous right of the original constituting Grand Lodge, and the equal privilege of the individual lodge to adhere to the sources of its Masonic life have never been questioned."

Now, sir, here are questions of fact which can be settled by any one taking the trouble to investigate the records available, and one would naturally have expected to find some definite reference to authorities in support of such a statement. But as the case stands my assertion is, at least, as valuable as your correspondent's counter one. But, to the proofs of the correctness of what I asserted, and again reiterate.

The Grand Lodge of Quebec was formed, and claimed recognition, on clear and well defined principles, and a more lucid and comprehensive statement of her position and pretensions, than that she gave to the Masonic world could not well be conceived; and one of the leading planks in her platform was, supreme and exclusive jurisdiction over every lodge and brother in her territory—defined to be the Province of Quebec. Nearly every Grand Lodge on this continent (and some in Europe) has extended recognition to Quebec on these principles, many of them specially endorsing their correctness; and Pennsylvania has withheld recognition, only because Quebec has not yet enforced her position as regards lodges still under England and Scotland in her jurisdiction. Surely such uniform testimony to the soundness of the pretensions of Quebec goes far to establish the correctness of my statement, as to the views of Masonic jurists on this continent, for by the advice and council of such brethren, learned in the law of Masonry, have these Grand Bodies acted.

But to come to Canada. Your correspondent states he knows of no Canadian authority of any note who holds such views of Masonic law. This is simply an admission that he knows nothing whatever of the history of the Craft in Canada, or of the Grand Lodge of Canada in particular. Here is an extract from the address to that Grand Body, in 1864, by M.W. Bro. Thomas Douglas Harington, then Grand Master—a distinguished brother, well known to the Craft here, and in England, though, perhaps, a total stranger to your correspondent.

"It was a great mistake we made in not determining a fixed date when there must be exclusive jurisdiction throughout Canada, and serving a formal notice to that effect on the Grand Lodges having subordinates here, that these last might be numbered and registered, and receive warrants from the Grand Lodge of Canada, or choose the alternative of dissolving. It was the natural sequence to the events occurring in and since 1855, and no compromise should have been entered into by us, except as to time."

"We are not absolutely the Grand Lodge of Canada, though declared and acknowledged so to be, while these few commentary fragments revolve in our system. They are theoretically under our control, but practically they are not. . . . I believe no dishonour could attach to the Grand Lodge of Canada, if, considering the practical trouble we have to encounter, were we even now to issue a notification with respect to these lodges, such as we should have done when we took our place among the other Grand Lodges of Freemasonry. It is a delicate subject, but a matter of real grievance, and certainly opposed to Masonic jurisprudence, and causes an important defeat in our otherwise perfect structure."

Bro. Harington is not one likely to make such statements without having good grounds for so doing. I could fill your columns with similar quotations from Canadian and American authorities, but will simply refer you to two, viz.: the recent deliverance of the Grand Lodges of New Brunswick and Illinois.

I shall only add a few comments on the general question of concurrent jurisdiction—a question which is likely to be of more world-wide importance ere long than superficial observers may be disposed to admit at present.

Your correspondent, in his opening paragraph, says he feels strongly where "the shoe really pinches," but he carefully avoids pointing out the sore place to your readers. It was this object I had in view in writing to the Craftsman, and, I humbly believe, I presented a case for the Grand Lodge of Quebec which cannot be gainsaid. Where the shoe really pinches is the power those lodges have, to act with utter disregard of the rights and prerogatives of the governing Grand Lodge of the jurisdiction; the power they have, and which, so far as Quebec is concerned, they have exercised too—to set at defiance her regulations for the admission, advancement, or rejection of candidates, the qualifications of candidates for office, the fees of entrance, &c., &c., as set forth in detail in my communication to the Craftsman. And while in fact these lodges in the Province of Quebec have for many years been virtually a law unto themselves, yet, as component parts of the Grand Lodge of England and Scotland they may legally—this right of concurrent jurisdiction being admitted—ignore the very fundamental principles of Freemasonry, supported by the authority of the Grand Lodge they choose to acknowledge, in defiance of the recognised Masonic authority of the province. Few would have believed it possible that such a revulsion of principle as we have lately witnessed in the Grand Orient of France could possibly have taken place; fewer still—among the Anglo-Saxon Masons at least—could have believed possible the recent disruption in the Grand Lodge of Scotland; yet both are facts; and it is impossible to say where the next deliverance may lead us to, and if this erroneous principle of concurrent jurisdiction is to be permanently admitted, it is hard to predict what the consequences to the Craft may be. I might profitably discuss at length the principles involved, but I fear I have occupied too much of your space already; permit me only to say that if "for the sake of harmony, peace, uniformity, symmetry, &c., it would be better for such lodges by a friendly concordat to join the new Grand Lodge." Surely it is a Masonic duty devolving upon the parent Grand Lodge so to instruct her daughter lodges, for the ignoring of such responsibility as those above recited cannot be the fulfilment of a Mason's obligation towards his brethren.

I have left much unsaid which I could have wished to say on this important topic, but must for the present forego further comment, merely adding that although only colonists, we on this side the Atlantic are not altogether unobservant of what transpires in the Masonic world, and there are probably not a few among us well qualified to judge of the soundness or otherwise of what is still supposed to be Masonic law.

I am, yours fraternally, ALEX. MURRAY, P.D.D.G.M., G.L. of Q.

THE LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

The fortnightly meeting of this Association took place at the office of the Association, Clifford's Inn, October 30th, at 11 o'clock, and we may observe that the Committee meets every fortnight at No. 1, Clifford's Inn, at 11. The routine business was transacted and the Committee adjourned to November 13th, at 11.

A special annual meeting of the Association will be held at Freemasons' Tavern, on Thursday, Nov. 7, at 4 o'clock, for much important business.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Liver, Lungs, and Kidneys.—A large number of internal maladies arise from obstructions over the removal of which these celebrated pills exercise the most perfect control. A course of them is strongly recommended as a remedy for almost all chronic affections—as liver complaint, congestion of the lungs, torpidity of the kidneys, and other functional disorders which cause much present suffering, and if neglected lay the foundation of innumerable diseases. Holloway's Pills, are especially adapted for the young and delicate; their gentle and purifying action placing them above all other medicines. In indigestion, nervous affections, gout, and rheumatism, these pills have raised themselves a universal fame. They expel all impurities from the blood, and thus restore cheerfulness and vigour.—[ADVT.]

It was a matter of course in this life (continued Bro. Stean, in response to "The Health of the W.M."), and though men might be enjoying themselves at the festive board and other entertainments they did not know the ground on which they stood. Sometimes when they thought their feet were firmest they slipped; but by supporting the Charities they left something behind for those that could not help themselves, and, therefore, it was their duty to use whatever exertions they could. In conclusion, he thanked the brethren most heartily for the manner in which they had responded to Bro. Terry's toast. He did not think he merited a quarter of what Bro. Terry had stated; still, knowing his kindness, he (the W.M.) was extremely grateful to him, as well as to the brethren. He hoped this day would be the commencement of a very prosperous career for Shoreditch.

Bro. Stean then proposed "The Health of the Consecrating Officers;" and, in the first place, apologised to those brethren for an oversight he had been guilty of in lodge. It had been his intention to propose that the Consecrating Officers should be elected honorary members of the lodge, but having forgot to do so he wished it to be understood that at the next meeting of the lodge he should bring that motion forward, and he trusted that it would be carried. He next had to thank the Consecrating Officers for what they had done that evening. He had heard consecrations before performed by many brethren, but he had never heard the ceremony more ably performed than it had been that evening. All the brethren were very much indebted to Bro. Terry and the other brethren who had assisted him. He was sure the ceremony had made a great impression on such brethren as had never heard the ceremony before. With the toast he should wish the brethren to drink "Success to the Masonic Charities," and as Bro. Terry would have to reply to that part of the toast he would call on Bro. W. Clarke to first respond.

Bro. W. Clarke, in responding, said he felt in rather a difficult position when called upon to return thanks for several brethren as well as himself, but he did so with a great deal of pleasure. If the part which he and the other Consecrating Officers had taken that evening had afforded any gratification to the brethren, it had afforded gratification to the Consecrating Officers, and for any trouble they had taken they were compensated by the grand reception the lodge had given them. If the brethren had enjoyed the ceremonies of consecration and installation, he had no doubt they had also enjoyed themselves at the festive board. But he was one of those Masons who thought that Masonry did not finish at the festive board, and, if it did, he, for one, would be the first to secede from it. He believed that Masonry had a destiny to fulfil, and he also believed it was fast fulfilling that destiny. He thought that every member of the Craft ought to endeavour, as far as lay in his power, to disseminate the beautiful principles, tenets and practices of Freemasonry. Could any one of them who had listened to the ceremony of that evening go away without some profit. He fancied he heard many, and many older brethren than himself sitting there, saying why should he dictate to them? But he did not do so, he spoke in all charity and all love. Could any of them leave that room without feeling the solemnity of what had taken place? If so, could they go into the world to-morrow, not only among their own brethren as Masons, but among those in the outer world without being actuated by what they had heard? If they could Masonry was but a mockery. He would say, each of them ought to go into the world and practise what they had heard, to show to the world that Masonry was not a myth; to show to the world that it was everything good and nothing bad; to show to the world that they were not ashamed to belong to the Craft, that they were not ashamed to be called Masons; that although there were some who railed against Masonry it was a glorious institution. Although he could not boast of being a Mason so very long he could boast of having since he entered into Masonry a love for his fellow creatures, a love for mankind, and a love for those around him he did not experience before. He was sure many of them must feel the same; and if they did, let them go into the world and practice what they felt. Then he was sure Masonry would be upheld throughout the length and breadth of the land. The appreciation of Masonry was becoming more and more spread every day throughout the world. They saw many and many joining its ranks, but he hoped they did not join it without profit, and with that profit he hoped they learned a lesson. He did love Masonry, and he came to this lodge upon the invitation of Bro. Terry to assist in the consecration of the new lodge. He delighted to take part in the performance of the ceremonies, and what he had done had been amply repaid by the kind reception the brethren had given him. He tendered the brethren the sincerest thanks of himself and assistant officers for the reception they had had.

Bro. Terry said when the W.M. was kind enough to couple the whole of the Consecrating Officers together in the toast, and then in the latter part to place "Success to the Masonic Institutions," he thought it would be far better that any observations relating to the Consecrating Officers should precede the few observations he (Bro. Terry) might have to offer to the brethren, as one of the Consecrating Officers, in reference to the Masonic Institutions. The day had been to him a very proud day; it had been an opportunity of ushering into the Masonic world a new child, a child which he was sure had been begotten with all kindness, all care, and all forethought. The brethren had witnessed its birth that afternoon into this Masonic world of ours with every hope as well as every prospect of being successful, and with every wish on the part of those present at its birth that it should become so. He was not new at consecrating lodges; this was the 107th lodge that it had been his honour and pleasure to assist in consecrating, and, therefore, he assured the brethren that if, as the W.M. had said, the ceremony had been performed to his and the brethren's satisfaction, it would be a very poor compliment to himself (Bro. Terry), if after securing their patience and their time he was unable to render the ceremony worthy of their acceptance. The gratification he had in consecrating the lodge was increased by the honour he had had of installing in the chair a brother like Bro. Stean, who had filled the various offices in Masonry, and with whom he had worked for many years. When the W.M. stated in the course of his observations that he hoped the day would come when every chair of the lodge might be endowed as Vice-President of one or other of the Institutions, that was all that he (Bro. Terry) could take exception to. It was not what the W.M. meant. What the W.M. meant to convey was that he wished to see the brethren Vice-Presidents of all the Institutions. The Masonic Institutions had achieved a very great success—during the last five or six years an unprecedented success—a success beyond any they had achieved before. Why was this? Since the advent of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to the throne of the Grand Master there had been an immense increase in the number of lodges. Before that time the Grand Master used to grant about forty warrants in a year; now there were ninety-eight or a hundred granted. With the increase in the number of lodges there had been a corresponding growth in the number of subscribing members to the Craft, and over and above all that had been this one thing, the very great desire of those who were initiated to do all they could to promote its interest and increase its dignity. That, he trusted, would be the guiding spirit of the fraternity. With the practice of other virtues let them practice charity—not in mere almsgiving, not in the bestowal of gifts only, but in the more kindly feelings of man to man, overlooking faults and giving a better colouring to things, which in the world they would not pass by. Let those things pass by, and the next day meet their brethren with outstretched hand. Some of these feelings guided the brethren of the St. Leonard Lodge. He knew it would be their desire that it should be so. And let him ask that some kind feeling should be given to the poor and distressed brethren. We could not all be in a state of prosperity; as the W.M. had said, we did not know how we might be treading. We knew that during the past fortnight a great change had taken place in a sister country, where many people who had thought themselves in affluence were now in poverty and distress. While we had the opportunity, while the privilege was accorded to us of being stewards of other persons' money as well as our own, and while we had been husbanding gifts, let us think of the poor who came and asked day and day, and hour by hour. Sometimes it was not in their power to extend relief. If the brethren only knew the cases that came officially before the managers of the Masonic Institutions, the letters which they received about those cases, cases which they could not help or relieve, which the laws and constitutions never provided for, they would go away with an aching heart and wishing that the power of aiding suffering humanity might be extended. The Boys' School, the Girls' School, and the Benevolent Institution, were all deserving of support. They had prospered and were prospering; and he hoped and trusted that in the coming year 1879, for which the Secretaries were putting forth their best exertions to accomplish as great good in the future as they had in the past, would have the kind support of the Craft to attain their end. He was proud to be able to announce that his own Institution—the Benevolent Institution—had succeeded in obtaining for its next festival on the 12th February, 1879, a Chairman in the person of the Right Worshipful Bro. Lieut.-Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, Provincial Grand Master for East Lancashire, and he (Bro. Terry) was looking forward to the occasion for a certain amount of success. Col. Starkie was the Provincial Grand Master of one of the largest Masonic provinces in England. He presided over seventy-eight or eighty lodges; and if those lodges would only give the Benevolent Institution £20 a piece £1600 would be collected at once. West Lancashire on one occasion gave £1700. He believed that when the list was called over on the 12th February next it would be found that £3000 would be brought up. He could not ask for a Steward from the St. Leonard Lodge, but he would ask the brethren to bear in mind when they found themselves in a state of prosperity, if they did not wish to bestow their money on the banquet table, to bestow it on the Benevolent Institution, and the Boys' and Girls' Schools. To whichever of those Institutions they took their money it would be thankfully received and faithfully applied.

Bro. W. T. Howe, G.P., then gave his name in as Steward for the Benevolent Institution on behalf of the Thames Valley Lodge, No. 1460.

The other toasts were then given, and the brethren separated.

The pleasures of the evening were greatly enhanced by the singing of some beautiful songs by Bros. H. Ashton, A. Hubbard, G. Musgrave, and F. H. Cozens.

CONSECRATION OF THE ALBERT VICTOR LODGE, No. 1773.

The already extensive list of lodges in the province of East Lancashire was increased on Wednesday, 23rd ult., by the creation and consecration of this new lodge, in the Pendleton Town Hall. The impressive and beautiful ceremony was performed by the R.W.P.G.M. (Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie), assisted by the Rev. W. Chayter, P.G.C.; and other provincial officers, amongst whom were—Bros. J. L. Hine, P.P.G.S.W.; Edwin Ashworth, P.G.S.W.; W. O. Walker, P.G.J.W.; J. A. Birch, P.P.J.W.; Chas. Heyword, P.P.G.R.; T. Ainsworth, P.G.R.; T. J. Hooper, P.P.G.T.; John Tunnah, P.G.S.; J. P. Salmon, P.G.D. of C.; J. H. Sillitoe, P.P.G.C. of C.; and others. About 60 brethren were present, and the following choir, viz., Bros. Kershaw, Dumville, Bailey, and Rowe, under the able direction of Bro. J. Randall Fletcher, the P.G.O., sang the anthems and glorias most effectively. At the conclusion of the consecration the first W.M., Bro. Samuel Statham, P.P.G., Treasurer, was installed, and the following officers duly invested, viz., Bros. J. Harrop, I.P.M.; Rev. F. H. Wright, S.W.; Waters, J.W.; W. Slater, Treasurer; D. Aquib, Secretary; Eli Winterbottom, S.D.; J. Almond, J.D.; Hardcastle, I.G.; W. Topham, Steward; and J. W. M. Heydon, Tyler.

The newly-installed W.M. expressed the thanks of the members of the new lodge to the R.W.P.G.M., for his attendance, and the services which he had rendered to them.

After the lodge was closed, about 50 brethren adjourned to the large hall, where a sumptuous banquet was served. The newly-installed W.M. (Bro. S. Statham) presided, and was supported by Colonel Starkie, the R.W.P.G.M., and other provincial officers.

The usual Masonic toasts were ably responded to. The R.W.P.G.M., in replying to the toast of his health delivered a most eloquent and forcible speech, which called forth the plaudits of the assembly; and the P.G.C., in proposing "Prosperity to the Masonic Charities," discoursed at some length upon the excellence of the institutions, and was exceedingly impressive in his remarks.

Other toasts followed, and during the evening the choir rendered good service by singing glees and songs in a very praiseworthy manner.

Too much praise cannot be given to the Committee for the admirable arrangements and to the assistance given to the W.M. during the formation of the lodge, Bros. Harrop, and Topham being indefatigable in their exertions to ensure the comfort of the brethren.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

A ceremonial of a very imposing character, connected with the mystic tie, took place at the Freemasons' Hall, Princes-street, Auckland, on Thursday, 12th Sept., when the members of Lodge Prince of Wales, No. 1338, E.C., held their regular monthly meeting; the chief business on this occasion being the installation of Bro. Dr. Dawson as W.M. for the ensuing twelve months. A very large number of brethren attended the meeting, so large, indeed, as to make the want of a large hall with fitting accommodation for Masonic purposes severely felt; a want which received unfavourable comment from the brethren present, but one which, we are glad to learn, is about to be supplied.

Many District Grand Lodge Officers and other visitors of distinction arrived before the opening of the lodge and during the evening, amongst these may be mentioned:—Bros. P. Pierce, P.M., P.G.M., I.C.; E. T. Wildman, P.M., D.D.G.M., E.C.; W. Loder, P.M., D.S.G.W., E.C.; C. T. Goldbro, P.M., D.G. Treas., E.C.; H. G. Wade, P.M., D.G. Sec., E.C.; W. J. Rees, P.M., P.G. Sec., I.G.; A. Brock, P.M., P.G.S.D., I.C.; M. Levy, W.M. 348, I.C.; J. Warren, W.M. 1530 E.C.; H. Rees George, 1710, E.C.; H. N. Montague, P.M. 817, E.C., and P.M. 277, S.C., P.P.G. Sec.; M. M. Irving, 33; H. Brett, Director of Music, P.G. Lodge, S.C.; and the following P.M.'s W. H. Skinner, 1338, E.C.; M. S. Leers, 942, E.C., 1338 E.C., and 380, I.C.; G. M. Milford, 348, I.C., and 1338, E.C.

The W.M. Bro. the Rev. C. M. Nelson, opened the lodge in form at half-past seven, and after the usual ceremonial and preliminary routine business, Bro. Dr. Dawson, S.W. of the lodge, W.M. (elect), was presented for installation to the W.M., who on this occasion, acted for the first time as Installing Officer, a duty hitherto performed in the most zealous and efficient manner by W. Bro. Leers, P.M. Bro. Nelson showed himself however, in no wise wanting in the high qualifications requisite for this important duty; the elegant, and indeed eloquent and impressive delivery of the ancient charges and important portions of the ritual of this ceremony, could not fail to enhance the beauties of Masonry in the heart of the listener, and those who had not previously visited Lodge Prince of Wales, must have indeed felt gratified at the highly efficient mode in which the working and business of the lodge was conducted.

During the evening some very excellent anthems were chanted by a choir, consisting of Bros. Brett, Skinner, Harker, Willocks, Irving, Rogers, and Montagu, Bro. Rees, P.M., acting as Organist.

After the conclusion of the installation and ceremonial the board of Installed Masters was closed, and the brethren of lower grades were re-admitted, and the newly-installed W.M. then formed his lodge as follows:—Bros. F. W. E. Dawson, W.M.; Rev. C. M. Nelson, P.M. and Chap.; R. C. Dyer, S.W.; W. Rastray, J.W.; W. H. Skinner, P.M., Treas.; M. S. Leers, P.M., Sec.; E. S. Willcocks, Director of Ceremonies; S. Rogers, Organist; Major-General J. W. Gossett, S.D.; W. S. Collins, J.D.; J. W. Gossett, jun., I.G.; C. Porter, Tyler.

The brethren having duly saluted the W.M., W. Bro. Nelson then impressively addressed the newly-appointed officers and the brethren generally on their respective duties, and the installation ceremonial being thus concluded, the lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet table, well supplied by Bro. Hood.

The manner in which all the wants of the inner man had been anticipated and provided for by mine host, was the theme of general commendation. After the weight on the board had been considerably diminished, the good things had disappeared, and grace was said, the exhilarating glass was circulated in strictest moderation, and the toasts of the evening received due attention, interspersed by mellifluous strains from the vocalists previously mentioned, in solos, glees, and other concerted music.

The W.M. proposed the following toasts in rapid succession, prefacing them with appropriate remarks:—"The Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England"; "The M.W. Grand Masters of Scotland and Ireland, Sir M. Shaw Stewart and the Duke of Abercorn." Bro. J. Adams proposed "The District Grand Master, E.C., Bro. G. S. Graham, the P.G. Master, S.C., Bro. F. Whitaker, and the P.G. Master, I.C., Bro. G. P. Pierce."

W. Bro. Nelson then proposed, in a most eulogistic address, the toast of the evening, "The W.M. of the Prince of Wales Lodge, Bro. Dawson." He alluded in feeling terms to the Masonic career of Bro. Dawson side by side with himself in the lodge, and but one step removed from him, and felt convinced that the welfare of the lodge could be in no better hands, and concluding by exhorting the newly-appointed officers to support the Master by the due and earnest fulfilment of their duties.

The W.M. replied very appropriately and feelingly, expressing grateful thanks for the kindness extended to him.

Bro. W. H. Skinner, P.M., gave "The Installing Master," and took occasion to allude to the excellent way in which the ceremonies of the evening had been conducted.

Bro. Nelson expressed his sincere acknowledgments. "The Past-Masters of the Prince of Wales Lodge" was then given by Bro. R. C. Dyer, S.W., and suitably acknowledged in a few most pertinent remarks by Bro. Leers, P.M.

This worthy brother then eloquently proposed "The Visiting Brethren," coupling with the toast the name of Bro. Past Master Montagu, of Sydney, a brother of high distinction in the Craft, by whose presence the lodge was honoured that evening.

Bro. Montagu, in reply, stated that he could wish one of two things; either that the hour was much later, so that he might be spared the necessity of unworthily representing the number of distinguished brethren who were standing up in response to the toast, or that it were much earlier, so that he might have time to express the feelings he experienced at the honour so distinctly conferred on him. He experienced on this occasion the full benefit of the Masonic tie. For the first time in the many years since he had been admitted to the Craft, he found himself in a peculiar position. On other occasions, when travelling through the neighbouring colonies, accompanied by his treasured certificate, he had been so well known—through his position as a journalist and by brethren who had sat with him in lodge and could vouch for him—that he did not require to use them. On this occasion, coming a stranger to a strange land (except by letters of introduction), in the hurry of departure, he left his certificates behind, and hence had to work his way into lodge. He had satisfied the closest but very necessary, scrutiny; but once within the sacred circle of the mystic tie, the bonds of fellowship and brotherhood were cast around him in close embrace, and friends were secured where before everything seemed drear and cold. Next to benevolence and charity, hospitality was the great Masonic principle; and it became the brother who had tasted of its benefits to repay the debt by standing forth as the champion of Masonry, whenever the breath of envy or malice attacked the purity of its principles. Bro. Montagu concluded by congratulating the brethren of this lodge on the excellence of its working, judging from the conduct of the officers on this occasion.

"The Officers of the Lodge Prince of Wales" was then given by Bro. E. T. Wildman, D.D.G.M., in one of the best speeches of the evening, supporting his well-merited praise of these brethren by the recapitulation of his own personal experience of their efficient conduct and general merits.

Bro. R. C. Dyer, S.W., responded. The following toasts also received able proposal and due recognition: "The D.G.L. Officers" (Bro. Wildman, D.D.G.M., in response); "The Brethren who rendered the Music"; "The Newly (late) Initiated Brethren," by Bro. Rastray; and "The Poor and Distressed Masons." "The Host and Hostess" concluded the proceedings, and the brethren separated after a most agreeable evening.

Obituary.

BRO. JAMES JOHNSTONE.

The late Bro. James Johnstone, sole proprietor of the Standard, who died at Hooley House, Coulson, on Monday last, the 21st ult., was initiated into Freemasonry, and passed to the Second Degree some twelve years ago. For private reasons he then temporarily retired from the Craft, but in 1875, being anxious to continue his progress and take the Third Degree, he went specially for that purpose, with his friend, Bro. A. E. T. Watson, to Llandudno, and was duly raised in the Lodge of St. Tudno, No. 755, of which lodge the last named brother was a member. Soon after this the project of the Bayard Lodge, No. 1716, was originated by Bro. Lieut.-Col. H. S. Somerville Burney, and Bro. James Johnstone, together with Bros. Leeson (I.P.M.), Frank Richardson, Sir Thos. Dyer, Bart., A. E. T. Watson (W.M.), was amongst the founders of this prosperous Masonic community.

Unfortunately, continued illness prevented Bro. Johnstone's frequent attendance at lodge; but if unable to attend to the outward ceremonies and observances of the Order, his life and actions were in strict accordance with the principles of the Craft.

Masonic and General Tidings.

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by the Prince and Princess of Denmark and the members of their respective suites, made an ascent in the captive balloon at Paris on Sunday afternoon.

The Publisher will be glad to receive from any brother who may possess it, a copy of the Freemason for September 25th, 1869. The sum of one shilling will be sent on receipt.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Manchester Lodge of Instruction, No. 179, at the Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, this (Saturday) evening at 7 o'clock. The chair will be taken by Bro. C. Koester, P.M. 435, Preceptor.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Hardwicke, R.W. G.M. Cambridgeshire, laid the foundation-stone of the nave of St. Barnabas Church, Mill-road, Cambridge, on Saturday afternoon.

The "Masonic Magazine" (price 6d.) for November, may be obtained of all booksellers and at the office, 108, Fleet-street, London.

The Consecration of the Vale of White Horse Lodge, No. 1770, took place on Thursday, at the Savings' Bank, Faringdon. The principal officers installed by Bro. James Terry were Bros. J. Blandy Jenkins, P.M. 945, W.M.; C. Luker, S.W.; C. E. Belcher, J.W. An account of the proceedings will appear in our next.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked by the members of the Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, No. 55, at the Bedford Hotel, Southampton Buildings, Holborn, on Tuesday next, the 5th inst. The chairs of W.M., S.W., and J.W., will be occupied respectively by Bros. John Bingemann, R.P. Tate, and J. S. Brown.

ROYAL ARCH MASONRY.—At the last meeting of the Chapter of Concord the following were elected as officers for the year ensuing:—Ex. Comps. Morris Miles, W. J. Hickman, and C. A. Dyer, to the chairs of the three Principals; J. E. Le Feuvre, P.Z., Treas.; J. R. Weston, P.Z., S.E.; C. John Phillips, S.N.; James Cole, P.S.; and Biggs and Vane, J. and Assistant do.

We are asked to correct an error that appeared in The Daily Telegraph of Tuesday last. The paragraph in question should have read Devon and Cornwall Foresters, Court, not Freemasons.

The Consecration of the Kirkdale Lodge, 1756, takes place on Friday next at the Skelmersdale Hall, Kirkdale, Liverpool, at 2 o'clock. The R.W. Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale will be present. Bro. Edward Johnstone, is the W.M. designate.

Bro. Alderman Knight is spoken of as a probable candidate for the Parliamentary representation of the borough of Southwark.

The Liverpool Town Council have resolved to present an address to the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise on Nov. 14, when they will visit Liverpool previous to their departure for Canada.

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales are expected to leave Paris on Sunday evening for London.

The funeral of Bro. James Johnstone, the late proprietor of the Standard, took place at Coulston, near Caterham, on Saturday, and was attended, in addition to relatives and friends, by nearly all the members of the editorial staff, the heads of the business departments, and by a considerable number of the employees, who voluntarily showed this mark of respect to their late employer's memory.

An appropriation banquet in connection with the Second Tottenham, Edmonton, and Enfield Masonic Charitable Association, was held at the Seven Sisters' Hotel, Page Green, Tottenham, on Thursday evening. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

The annual dinner in connexion with the Islington Lodge of Instruction, No. 1471, will be given on Tuesday week, the 12th inst., at the Three Bucks, Gresham-street, London.

Two stained glass windows have been placed in Sandringham Church by the Prince of Wales. The subjects are "Christ Stilling the Tempest" in memory of the Rev. W. Lake Onslow, M.A., R.N., late rector; and "David Slaying Goliath," in memory of the Prince's late equerry, Col. Grey. The windows have been executed by Messrs. Heaton, Butler, and Bayne, of London, under the superintendence of the architect, Mr. Arthur W. Blomfield, M.A.

The Echo states that a telegraphic message, dated Simla, 1.55 a.m., Wednesday, was received in London at 11.47 p.m. on Tuesday. As the clerk said, with pardonable confusion, "Why this message was sent off to-morrow."

In answer to an application by the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, the Prince of Wales has expressed his willingness to allow his Indian collection now at the Paris Exposition to be exhibited in the Edinburgh Museum of Science and Art.

At the regular meeting of the Zetland Chapter, 236, at York, on Wednesday, the three Principals' chairs being respectively occupied by Comps. the Earl of Zetland, M.E.Z.; Sir James Meek, as H.; and the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett, J. Comp. J. Todd, P.Z.; was unanimously elected to the office of Treasurer, in place of the late Comp. W. Cowling, P.Z.; deceased.

The Abbey Lodge of Mark Masters, No. 225, was consecrated at Abingdon, on Wednesday last. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

Of which balances there is in the hands of the Trustees of the late Grand Treasurer a sum of £388 17s. 4d. and in the London and Westminster Bank and Bank of England £310 10s. 7d.

The Committee have likewise to report that they have received the following petitions:—

1st. From Comps. John Robert Wilson as Z., Henry William Townsend as H., John Lind as J., and eight others, for a Chapter to be attached to the United Service Lodge, No. 1428, Portsmouth, to be called "The United Service Chapter," and to meet at the Freemasons' Hall, Highbury-street, Portsmouth, in the County of Hants.

2nd. From Comps. Howell Davies as Z., Henry Adams as H., George Parry as J., and six others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Tenby Lodge, No. 1177, Tenby, to be called "The Dinbych Chapter," and to meet at the Royal Gate House Assembly Rooms, Tenby, in the County of Pembroke.

3rd. From Comps. Robert Hudson as Z., Mark Douglass as H., George Moore as J., and six others, for a Chapter to be attached to the St. Helen's Lodge, No. 531, Hartlepool, to be called "The St. Helen's Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Regent-square, Hartlepool, in the County of Durham.

4th. From Comps. Richard P. France as Z., John Hayes, as H., John Lamb Houghton as J., and seven others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Downshire Lodge, No. 594, Liverpool, to be called "The Downshire Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, in the County of Lancaster.

5th. From Comps. Alfred Wallis Paul as Z., Robert Phillips as H., William Lloyd as J., and six others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Mount Everest Lodge, No. 1525, Darjeeling, to be called "The Canning Chapter," and to meet at the Lodge Rooms, Darjeeling, Bengal, in the East Indies.

6th. From Comps. the Rev. Robert Bowden as Z., John Thompson Goodridge as H., John Piggott as J., and ten others for a Chapter to be attached to the Torbay Lodge, No. 1358, Paignton, to be called "The Torbay Chapter," and to meet at the Town Hall, Paignton, in the County of Devon.

7th. From Comps. Wesley Francis as Z., Thomas Joyce as H., William Sink as J., and fifteen others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Natalia Lodge, No. 1665, Pietermaritzburg, to be called "The Natalia Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Temple, Longmarket-street, Pietermaritzburg, in the Colony of Natal.

8th. From Comps. James Richard Bishop as Z., Isaac Dawe as H., William Fenwick as J., and nine others, for a Chapter to be attached to the St. Anne's Lodge, No. 970, East Looe, to be called "The St. Anne's Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, East Looe, in the County of Cornwall.

The foregoing petitions being in all respects regular, the Committee recommend that the prayers thereof be respectively granted.

9th. They have also received a petition from the Principals and other members of the Royal Victoria Chapter, No. 358, Ireland Island, Bermuda, West Indies, praying for a Charter of Confirmation, the original Charter being entirely decayed, and the Committee recommend that the prayer of the petitioners be granted.

The Committee have likewise to report:—

That Comp. Joseph Smith, Past Director of Ceremonies of the Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England, was on the 30th of July last suspended, by order of the Board of General Purposes, "from all his Masonic functions and privileges, for a period of two years." That the said suspension was reported to and approved by Grand Lodge, on the 4th of September last, and in accordance with Article 10, page 6, of the Royal Arch Regulations, Grand Chapter will proceed to declare Comp. Joseph Smith suspended from his Arch Masonic functions.

The President will therefore move:—

That Comp. Joseph Smith, P.D.C., be declared suspended from his Arch Masonic functions for the period while such Craft suspension continues in force.

Comp. Joseph Smith, being an elected member of the Committee of General Purposes of the Supreme Grand Chapter, is, by reason of his suspension, disqualified from attending such Committee, it will therefore be necessary that the Grand Chapter elect another companion to fill the vacancy thus caused.

(Signed) JOHN CREATON.
President.

The different Charters having been granted,

Col. Creaton said, with respect to the Charter of Confirmation to the Bermuda Lodge, he had to inform the companions that the original Charter had become so decayed, that it was necessary that a Charter of Confirmation be granted.

Comp. Glashier thought that however decayed the Charter might be, it should be in the hands of Grand Chapter before a new one was issued.

Comp. George Lambert said if Comp. Glashier would make a motion to that effect he would second it.

Comp. J. Lewis Thomas said that if the Charter was sent home before the Charter of Confirmation was granted the chapter would have no warrant to work under in the meantime. Having lived in the West Indies seven years, he could vouch for the fact of paper and parchment decaying very rapidly.

Comp. Dumas said the Charter to be granted would only be a Charter of Confirmation, and if the chapter had ten such they would only be able to work that particular chapter.

Comp. J. Lewis Thomas thought that Comp. Glashier, as an archaeologist, wanted to see the old Charter, and preserve it in his museum.

The Charter of Confirmation to the Bermuda Chapter was then granted.

Col. Creaton then said it was his duty as President of the Grand Chapter Committee, to lay before the Grand Chapter the last part of the report concerning the suspension in Grand Chapter of Comp. Joseph Smith, during the time of his suspension by Grand Lodge.

Comp. J. Lewis Thomas said Grand Chapter had no choice in the matter; they must follow the rules laid down by Grand Lodge.

Comp. Rawson said it was a mere matter of form. Comp. Joseph Smith was suspended by Grand Lodge, and Grand Chapter must declare him suspended from his Arch Masonic functions.

Comp. Thomas Fenn added, that all the M.E.Z. had to do was to declare Comp. Joseph Smith suspended from his Arch Masonic functions. Grand Chapter had no power to vote one way or the other.

Comp. Rawson then declared Comp. Joseph Smith suspended.

The Comps. then elected Comp. F. Adlard, P.Z. 7, a member of the Committee of General Purposes, in place of Comp. Joseph Smith, suspended.

Comp. John Hervey read two letters, apologising for absence from Lord De Tabley and Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, and Grand Chapter was then closed.

The first regular meeting of the St. Leonard Lodge, No. 1766, was held in the Town Hall, Shoreditch, on Wednesday evening last, but owing to the late period at which the report reached us, an account of the proceedings must be deferred until our next week's issue.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—This old and flourishing metropolitan lodge held its installation meeting at Anderton's Hotel, on the 29th ult. The brethren mustered strongly. Amongst the officers present were Bros. E. Mallett, W.M.; C. Dairy, S.W.; Rumball, J.W.; Morrison, J.D.; Heaphy, I.G.; M. Davids, I.P.M.; Carter, P.M., Treasurer; Stuart, P.M., Secretary; Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, W.S. (Freemason); Clark, A.W.S.; Peavor, P.M.; Hopwood, P.P.G.S.B. of Middlesex, P.M.; Themans, P.M.; Kennett, P.M.; Cobham, P.M. The minutes of the September meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. appointed Bros. Hopwood as S.W., Themans as J.W., Whitley as D.C., and Carter as I.G., and with their assistance proceeded with the interesting ceremony of inducting his successor, Bro. Charles Dairy, into the chair of K.S. It being his first essay Bro. Mallett has to be complimented upon the performance of his arduous, though pleasing task. The brethren below the chair having been duly admitted, and they having paid their homage, the following officers were appointed for the ensuing year by the W.M., who indulged in a few appropriate and kind remarks whilst investing them with the insignia of their respective offices:—Bros. Rumball, S.W.; Morrison, J.W.; Carter, Treasurer; Stuart, Secretary; Heaphy, S.D.; Walls, J.D.; Clark, I.G.; Titley, W.S.; Abrahams, A.W.S. The ballot was then taken on behalf of four gentlemen for installation, and, having been declared unanimous, the W.M. initiated the two that were in attendance, namely Messrs. J. B. Weedon and N. Nathan. The ceremony was performed by the W.M. in a manner that left nothing to be desired, and augured well for the "work" in the higher Degrees being well carried out. Before the lodge was closed the W.M. presented his predecessor with a Past Master's jewel. In his address he congratulated the W.M. upon the manner in which he had presided over the destinies of the Lodge of Faith during his year of office. He, the I.P.M., had been a most hardworking member of the lodge. He had zealously and efficiently filled for eight years the various offices that had been given him, and had fairly earned the distinction and comparative ease of a Past Master, and which dignity he hoped Bro. Mallett would live many years to enjoy. The I.P.M. having briefly acknowledged this address, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren and visitors, to the number of nearly 70, adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant, where an excellent banquet awaited them. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; Dr. Middlemist, P.M. 5; G. S. Whitley, P.P.G.A.D.C. of Middlesex; H. Potter, P.M. Robert Burns; Coulton, P.M. Royal Union; Adams, P.M. 1623; Gladwell, S.D. 172; Tully, Royal Etonian; Hurran, 101; Clarke, 147; Lanyon, 188; Lewis, 312; Andrews, 382; Butt, 957; Braby, 1158; and Stephens, 1623. Upon the withdrawal of the cloth the customary Royal and Craft toasts were done full justice to. The P.G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the G.O.s., Present and Past, was coupled with the name of Bro. Cottebrune, who modestly returned thanks. The toast of "The Initiates" followed. In introducing this toast the W.M. said it might justly be considered the toast of the evening. Their newly made brethren had been well recommended, and consequently the members of the Lodge of Faith hailed them as valuable acquisitions to their number. In concluding his remarks the W.M. strongly exhorted the initiates to bear in mind the principles eliminated in the lodge that afternoon, and to try and act up to those tenets in their communion with the outside world. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," Bros. Nathan and Weedon duly acknowledged the compliment. The health of "The W.M." followed, and in giving this toast, the I.P.M. took occasion to speak upon the interest evinced by Bro. Davey in the lodge from the first moment he entered it. He, the I.P.M., had worked shoulder to shoulder with him for nearly nine years, and during that time he had had many opportunities of estimating his manifold qualities, and in concluding his remarks he said he felt convinced that the brethren would experience every prosperity during Bro. Dairy's tenure of office. The W.M. having replied, immediately gave "The Past Masters." With this toast the W.M. enlarged upon the services rendered by two of that distinguished body, namely, Bros. Carter and Stuart, in their respective capacities of Treasure and Secretary. The lodge was fortunate in possessing so many old and tried Past Masters, who were not only willing but were thoroughly capable of doing good suit and service when ever required. This toast was acknowledged by the I.P.M. in a neat speech. "The Visitors" was responded to by Bro. Cottebrune and others, and "The Officers" by Bro. Rumball, S.W. The success of the proceedings was greatly and agreeably enhanced by the choice selection of vocal music, superintended by Bro. Edwin Moss, of the Foundling Hospital. The other were Bros. Collins, Treemeer and Upstone.

LODGE OF ASAPH (No. 1319).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Edward Terry (Gaiety Theatre), W.M., presiding. The meeting was numerously attended, as will be seen by the following list of brethren, who entered their names in the signature book:—Bros. George Buckland, S.W.; Edward Swanborough, J.W.; Charles Wellard, S.D.; Harry Cox, J.D.; William Meyer Lutz, I.G.; John Maclean, D. of C.; Edmund Rogers, Organist; Charles Coote, jun., Treasurer; E. Stanton Jones, P.M. and Secretary; Frederick Delevanti, Steward; William A. Tinney, I.P.M.; C. Coote, P.M., P.P.G. Org. Middx.

J. M. Chamberlain, P.M.; J. Weaver, P.M., P.P.G. Org. Middx.; Thomas A. Adams, P.G.P.; Edward Frewin, P.M.; Charles S. Jekyll, P.M.; Charles Harper, jun., Joseph Perry, John M. Ball, Henry Snyders, Henry J. Tinney, Julian Egerton, William J. Castell, William Graves, Joseph Horton, Henry Lazarus Gustavus, R. Egerton, E. Kendall, William Lewis Barrett, Arthur Thomas, Abraham Henson, William Smith, Charles Henry Stephenson, Robert Soutar, William Jones Hill, James Charles Hambleton, Victor Tussaud, Charles George Alias, John Henry Pearson, Charles Beckett, James R. Jekyll, Charles Harcourt, Walter Hopkins Smith, Henry James Carter, Robert Dobson, Jules Guitton, Andrew McElaney, Pietro Le Conte Castell, Charles Blount Powell, Lionel Brough, Charles Ernest Tinney, Edwin James F. Bell, William John Kent, F. R. Pritchard, Henry James Calcott, and J. Gilbert, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. J. M. Case, P.M. 1, P.G.D.; J. H. Jewell, P.M. 1223, and P.G.O. Kent; Luigi F. Lablache, 1609; W. E. Gage, 1351; Alfred R. Phillips, 1055; Hy. Whaley, 1670; Thomas Cutler, 1503; G. Loredan, 780; W. J. Lemmon, 1539; W. J. Compton, J.W. 104; Alfred Madell, 1201; E. J. Cobby, W.M. 134; W. E. Jeffreys, P.M. 185; Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, S.G.D., 1383; W. Robertson, 228; Rev. P. M. Holden, P.M. 1563; John Hodges, W.M. 1158; W. Winn, Harmony, Alex. T. Hollingsworth, P.M. 19; Neville Green, S.W. 1524; George Parker, P.M. 145; W. Drew, 773; Henry Gadsby, W.M. Orpheus; S. Talbot Smith, P.M.; Maybury, Edw. Ledger, 183; James Blyth, 173; Martin Muller, 238; Charles Morton, 157; H. Mackintosh, 4; Col. Francis Burdett, Prov. G.M. Middlesex; E. Emanuel, 1563; Walter Mitchell, W.M. 1558; W. A. Barrett, P.M. 1706; Herbert Allen, P.M. 181; Alfred Moore, W.M. 862; John Clarri-coats, Treas. 1572; J. Thornton, I.G. 1706; P. Whale, 101; J. Grutton, L. B. Wooldridge, G. E. Fairchild, H. J. Ashley, A. Morten, A. Castegnier, Jas. Scan-lair, E. Humphrey, and H. Massy (Freemason). The W.M., Bro. Edward Terry, after the opening of the lodge for the conduct of some formal business, on presentation duly made to him, installed Bro. George Buckland, S.W., and W.M. elect as Master of the lodge for the year ensuing. The following brethren were invested as officers of the lodge: Geo. Buckland, W.M.; Edw. Swanborough, S.W.; C. Wellard, J.W.; C. Coote, jun., Treas.; E. Stanton Jones, Sec.; Harry Cox, S.D.; W. Meyer Lutz, J.D.; C. Tinney, Org.; J. Maclean, I.G.; F. Delevanti, D.C.; C. H. Stephenson, W.S.; and John Gilbert, Tyler. Bro. Terry afterwards delivered the addresses, and at the conclusion was heartily applauded for the admirable manner in which he had performed the whole of the ceremony. Bro. Terry's year of office was thus concluded with the same ability as it had been conducted. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to Freemasons' Tavern and partook of one of the usual choice banquets which are provided for the Asaph Lodge at its annual gathering. After banquet the usual toasts were proposed. Col. Burdett responded to the toast of "The Grand Officers," and congratulated the lodge on having attained a position which all lodges might envy. He also congratulated the Craft on the progress it had made, and stated that since the Lodge of Asaph was consecrated in 1870 nearly 470 lodges had been added to the roll of the Grand Lodge of England. Before the end of the year he expected there would be 1800 lodges on that roll. Bro. Edward Terry proposed "The Health of the W.M.," a brother with whom he thought the whole lodge must have been delighted as he performed the duties of the lodge after he had been installed. The new W.M. was thoroughly acquainted with his duties, and would shed additional lustre on the Lodge of Asaph. The W.M. having said a very few words in reply, proposed "The Health of Bro. Edward Terry, I.P.M.," and presented him with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, and conveyed to him the thanks of the brethren, not only for the excellent way in which he had carried out the duties of the chair during his year of office, but also for the impressive and correct style in which he had installed his successor. Bro. Edward Terry replied. He said he had endeavoured to do his best, and he hoped that although he had had much work to do out of the lodge it had not interfered with his work in it. It was an arduous task to succeed the late I.P.M., who was a very fine worker. He had to thank the P.M. for the assistance they had given him in going up to the chair, and he heartily hoped that his son, who was now only a little more than two years old, would, at some time, govern a lodge. Bro. E. Stanton Jones, responded to the toast of "The Benevolent Fund of the Lodge of Asaph," and reminded the brethren that they ought to subscribe to it, as it was of great importance to them. Bro. Charles Coote, P.M., replied for "The Past Masters," Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, S.G.D., replying for "The Visitors," complimented the lodge on its position, and expressed the pleasure of the visitors at its state. It was exceedingly pleasing to the visitors to find that the Benevolent Fund of the lodge had reached the noble sum of £400 for the good cause of benevolence and charity. Bro. Jones afterwards announced that the subscriptions that evening to the Benevolent Fund amounted to £20 11s.6d. Bros. Edward Swanborough, S.W.; C. Wellard, J.W., and C. Coote, jun., Treasurer, responded for "The Officers," after which the brethren separated. A beautiful selection of vocal and instrumental music was given by the following brethren. E. S. Jones, P.M. and Sec.; C. Harper, W. L. Barrett, J. Egerton, W. Graves and H. J. Tinney, Instrumental. J. Hodges, W. Barrett, P.M.; Thornton, C. Beckett, G. Egerton, C. S. Jekyll, W. Winn, C. Bell, and C. E. Tinney, vocal.

ROYAL SAVOY LODGE (No. 1744).—The election meeting of this lodge was held on the 22nd ult., at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden. Bro. James Willing, jun., W.M. presided, and there were also present the following brethren:—J. Douglass, S.W.; F. H. Clemow, J.W.;

A. Treadwell, I.P.M., Treas.; W. M. Stiles, Sec.; J. L. Jones, S.D.; T. J. Hyland, J.D.; W. Cook, I.G.; A. Holt, W.S.; G. H. Deller, D.C.; J. W. Smith, Steward; W. Jaques, Organist; and Bros. Callaghan, Lloyd, K. Clemow, S. E. Hayes, E. W. Parkes, Smith, Bennett, Hixon, Phillpot, Tomkins, Read, Greenfield, Barham, Hammond and others. Visitors, Bros. T. O. Edmonds, Metropolitan, 1507; A. W. Fenner, Upton, 1227; F. Garbett, Perfect Ashlar, 1178; J. Gibbs, Perfect Ashlar, 1178; J. Stock, Perfect Ashlar, 1178; J. Osborne, Sir Hugh Myddelton, 1602; F. Rothschild, Finsbury Park, 1228; W. H. Rotus, Strawberry Hill, 946; J. Peace, Hornsey, 890; R. W. Hedges, Sec. R.M.I. Girls; L. Becks, P.P.G. Org. Middlesex, and I.P.M., Rothesay, 1687, and H. Jones, One and All, 330. The following was the business transacted. Bro. J. Willing was re-elected W.M.; Bro. A. Treadwell, I.P.M., was re-elected Treasurer; and Bro. J. Dolan was re-elected Tyler; Bro. James Smith was raised; Bros. C. Hammond and J. H. Bennett, were passed; and Messrs. P. Check, J. C. Smith, J. H. Vaughan and M. Zumpf, were initiated. Banquet followed, to which about 40 brethren sat down. The loyal and Masonic toasts followed, and the visitors in acknowledging the toast proposed and drunk in their honour highly approved of the working of the lodge. A very enjoyable evening was spent by all the brethren.

St. DUNSTAN LODGE (No. 1589).—This lodge met at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on the 18th ult., when there were present amongst others Bros. Dalwood, W.M.; Dodson, S.W.; Turner, J.W.; A. Tisley, Sec.; Woodbridge, S.D.; Manners, J.D.; Bull, D.C.; Clemow, W.S.; Wellsman, I.P.M.; Dwarber, P.M. The visitors were Bros. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex (Freemason), and Dickens, S.D.; (Dalhousie). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. most ably passed Bro. A. W. Jenkins, as a F.C., and initiated Mr. J. H. Puttick into Craft mysteries. There being no other business before the lodge it was duly closed and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave the preliminary Royal and Craft toasts, which were duly honoured. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Dwarber. In reply the W.M. stated that he had been in the parish of St. Dunstan 17 years, and during that long period he had always received the greatest courtesy and kindness from his fellow parishioners. He had endeavoured to further the interests of Freemasonry not only in the parish but out of it. Reverting to the kind words used by Bro. Dwarber, in proposing his health he said that his old neighbour was too practical and too sincere a brother to flatter, and, therefore, he received his words of praise in the spirit in which they were given. In conclusion he said he should continue to exercise the same amount of interest in furthering not only the cause of Freemasonry, but everything conducive to the interests of official life in the parish, ward, and City. The toast of "The Initiate" followed, Bro. Puttick in response briefly expressed his gratitude to the brethren for having given him an opportunity of becoming one of their number. He hoped to become a worthy though humble member of the ancient Craft, and he trusted that the St. Dunstan's Lodge would be long distinguished for its Masonic excellencies. "The Visitors" came next, coupled with the names of Bros. Dickens and Walls, who duly acknowledged the compliment. In giving "The Past Masters" the W.M. expressed his regret that the I.P.M. had been compelled to leave at an early period of the proceedings, but although absent in body he was with them in spirit. Their first Master was present, and in him they possessed the representative of a good hardworking Mason and an excellent Past Master. This toast having been heartily received Bro. Dwarber responded by stating that on behalf of his absent colleague, Bro. Wellsman, he returned his sincere thanks for the kind remarks passed by the W.M. in proposing his health and for the warmth manifested by the brethren whilst drinking it. In speaking of himself he should always be glad to do anything to keep the St. Dunstan's intact. As a representative lodge it was a great success, and he hoped that its local elements would for many years to come be sufficient to keep it flourishing. During his long career in Freemasonry he had invariably tried to do his best to further its glorious principles. In conclusion he said that as a Past Master of the lodge he trusted that his future actions would merit a continuance of the kind encomiums that had from time to time been passed upon him. "The Treasurer and Secretary" followed, and was responded to at length in the absence of the first-named officer by Bro. Tisley, who congratulated the lodge upon its prosperity financially and otherwise. "The Officers" and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a termination. In the intervals of the toasts and replies several of the brethren entertained the lodge with some vocal and dramatic selections.

IPSWICH.—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 959).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Golden Lion Hot., on Monday, 4th inst., when there was a good muster of members. Lodge having been duly opened, two brothers were raised to the Second Degree. Bro. W. D. Paine, the W.M. elect, having been presented, all the brethren below the chair were requested to withdraw, and Bro. Paine was installed into the chair of K.S., by Bro. the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, in a very impressive manner. On the brethren being re-admitted, the new W.M. received the usual salutes, and then proceeded to invest his officers, Bro. Sanderson going to the S.W. chair, and Bro. Ranking to J.W. A vote of thanks having been passed to Bro. Bennett, for the able manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of W.M. during the past year, the lodge was closed in due form. At half-past seven the brethren sat down to the banquet, the W.M. presiding. The customary loyal and Craft toasts were given, after which followed "The Health of the W.M. of the Prince of Wales Lodge," and "The Health of the I.P.M." The Tyler's toast brought a most harmonious meeting to a close. Bros. D. D. Steele, Abbott, and Grayston enlivened the evening with some excellent songs.

HANDSWORTH.—St. James' Lodge (No. 842).—The Fifteen Sections.—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the New Inn, Handsworth, on the 4th inst., and the very attractive programme brought together a large assemblage of the members, and the working of the whole of the Sections in one evening being an unusual event in the Midlands, invitations were issued to most of the leading Masons in the neighbourhood, the following being the visitors present:—J. Waterson, P.P.G.D., Staffordshire; J. W. Preston, P.P.G.S.W., Somerset, 42; G. Burnley, 925; F. M. Mole, S.W., 1411, Valparaiso; C. Walsh Graham, I.P.M., 696; C. Round, P.M., 347; W. Wood, P.M., 1163, P.P.G.W. Warwickshire; R. H. Vertegans, P.M., 74; T. Taylor, P.M., 418, P.P.G.S.W., Staffordshire; J. Rowley, P.M., 539; T. Mount Humphries, P.M., 539, P.P.G.S. of W. Staffordshire; T. H. Smith P.M., 468, 398; Thos. Howkins, W.M., 468, P.M., 398, P.P.G.D. of C. Warwickshire; J. H. Walton, P.M. 696, P.P.G.W.; W. J. Stubbs, P.M. 696, P.P.G.J.D.; Jos. Fenn, P.M. 74, P.G.R., Warwickshire; H. Harcourt, 74; J. Skinner, 74; H. R. Duddell, 925; C. Winn, S.W. 938; W. W. Morgan, Sec. 211; T. Hardy, P.M. 1016, 1551; G. E. Earnshaw, W.M. 587; A. T. Salt, W.M. 887, P.G.P., Warwickshire; and A. L. Gibson, 163. Many distinguished brethren in the province had sent letters of regret at their inability to be present, including the acting P.G.M., Bros. Æ. J. McIntyre, (G. R.); G. S. Tudor, D.P.G.M. and Frank James, P.P.D.G.M. The officers present, besides those named below as taking part in the working of the Sections, were the Rev. W. Randall, Chaplain; J. Jacobs, P.P.G.R. Staffordshire, Treasurer; B. G. Cale, W.M., 539, J.D.; E. W. Bradley, I.G.; and F. W. Payton, Steward. The lodge having been opened, circular read, and minutes of last regular lodge confirmed and signed, the work of the evening was commenced by Bro. Dr. Parkes, I.P.M., taking the chair, and working the Sections of the First Lecture, assisted in the First Section by Bros. J. Dreley, J.W.; Second, J. H. Parkes, W.M.; Third, E. R. Kimpton, Secretary; Fourth, J. F. Pepper, S.W.; Fifth, J. H. Parkes, W.M.; Sixth, J. F. Pepper, S.W.; and Seventh, E. R. Kimpton, Secretary. The lodge was then called off to refreshment for a few minutes, and, on being called on, Bro. J. H. Parkes, W.M., took the chair, and worked the remaining Sections with the assistance of the following officers:—Second Lecture, First Section, the I.P.M.; Second, the S.W.; Third, the Secretary; Fourth, the S.W.; and Fifth, the J.W. Third Lecture, First Section, the I.P.M.; Second, the J.W.; and last, the Secretary. Bro. the Rev. W. Randall, Chaplain, then proposed "that the thanks of this lodge and its visitors be given to those brethren who had just so ably carried out the working of the Fifteen Sections," this was seconded by visiting Bro. the Rev. E. C. Perry, and supported by Bro. Howkins, on behalf of the visitors, and carried with acclamation. It was proposed, seconded, and carried, "that a letter of condolence be taken by a deputation to Bro. J. Pursall, P.P.G.S.W. Warwickshire, who is highly esteemed in the provinces of Warwick and Stafford, and who unfortunately met with a serious accident on Friday, the 1st inst., on returning from the Lodge of Instruction, in Birmingham, of which he is the Preceptor." After "Hearty Good Wishes" from the visiting brethren, the lodge was closed, and adjournment made to the banquet room, where justice was amply done to the good cheer provided, perhaps with an improved zest after the long three hours spent in the lodge. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were enthusiastically received, and the visitors commented at much length upon the Masonic treat they had just been favoured with, and those who were well qualified to judge testified to the uncommon accuracy with which the work had been performed, while many Masons of long standing were fain to confess they had never heard them gone through at all, and had no idea of the beautiful explanations of Masonry they had now met with. Altogether this meeting was a most successful one, and will long be remembered as a red-letter day in the calendar of the lodge.

INSTRUCTION.

MANCHESTER LODGE (No. 179).—The Fifteen Sections were worked in this lodge on Saturday, the 2nd inst., when Bro. Koester, the respected Preceptor, presided, supported by several brethren. WHITEHAVEN.—Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter (No. 119).—The annual convocation of this flourishing chapter was held on Friday, the 1st inst., in the Freemasons' Hall, College-street. There were present Comps. W. Sandwith, M.E.Z.; Dr. E. W. Henry, H.; W. F. Lamony, J., P.G. Swd. Br. (Freemason); J. Barr, P.Z., P.G. Treas.; E. Tyson, Scribe E.; J. Rothery, P.S.; W. F. Hunter, 1st Asst. S.; F. Hodgson, Stewart; J. S. Braithwaite, D.C.; G. Fitzgerald, Janitor; J. J. Atkinson, Dr. Dick, J. W. Young, T. B. Roxby, J. Cooper, J. J. Coverdale, G. Glass, G. Sparrow, J. Spittal, W. Armstrong, J. R. Banks, J. S. Wilson, J. T. Ray, W. Pagen, T. Mandle, T. Atkinson, G. T. Archibald, W. B. Cowman, and J. G. Miles. There was one visitor, Comp. G. Dalrymple, Nithsdale Chapter, No. 52, Thornhill, N.B. Considering that there are nearly a hundred members on the roll, the muster was only small, but a number of companions sent apologies, whilst it may be added that the town of Whitehaven, like dozens of others on the same day, was in the throes of a municipal electoral contest. The chapter was opened shortly after two o'clock by the Principals, Comp. Barr officiating as H., in the temporary absence of Comp. Dr. Henry. There were three candidates ballotted for exaltation, viz., Bros. Edward Clarke, P.M. 1267, Egremont, P.G.J.D.; John Casson, 119, Whitehaven; and W. Holloway, 119. Three others had been previously ballotted for; Bros. Dr. Dodgson, P.M. 1002, Cockermouth, P.P.G.J.D.; Capt. Sewell, S.W. 1002; and W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. 1002, P.P.G. Org. Of these were present Bros. Capt. Sewell, Clarke, Casson, and Holloway, and they were duly exalted to the Sublime Degree of R.A.M., by the M.E.Z. The historical, symbolical, and mystical lectures were delivered respectively by Comps. Lamony, Sandwith, and Barr. The Scribe E. read the balance sheet for the past twelve months, which showed a balance £48 odd to the credit of the chapter, and the same was adopted unanimously. The Installing Principal of the day was then announced. M.E. Comp. John Bows, P.Z. 148, Elias Ashmole Chapter, Warrington, and Kendal Castle Chapter, 129, P.G. Scribe N., Cumberland and Westmorland, P.P.G.D.C. West Lancashire. The three Principals elect were severally installed in their chairs by Comp. Bows, in his usual finished and impressive manner, viz.:—Comps. Dr. Henry, M.E.Z.; W. F. Lamony, H.; E. Tyson, J. The other officers invested were:—Comps. J. M'Kelvie, Treasurer; J. Rothery, Scribe E.; T. Dixon, Scribe N.; T. Atkinson, P.S.; W. B. Cowman, 1st Asst. S.; J. T. Ray, 2nd Asst. S.; G. Fitzgerald, Janitor. On the proclamation being put, the sum of five guineas was voted to the Masonic Benevolent Fund. Comp. Dalrymple, Nithsdale Chapter, Thornhill, N.B.; was proposed and seconded as a joining member of this chapter. After a vote of thanks to Comp. Bows, the Installing Principal, the chapter was closed in solemn form. An adjournment was then made to the banqueting room, where a substantial repast was spread. The M.E.Z. Dr. Henry presided, and after dinner, two hours were very harmoniously spent in song, toast, and sentiment.

WIGTON.—St. John's Chapter (No. 327).—The annual convocation of this old established chapter was held on Saturday, the 2nd inst., at the Lion and Lamb Hotel, Wigton. The members present were Comp. H. Bewes, M.E.Z.; J. Gardiner, H.; Jos. Pearson, J.; W. H. Hoodless, Scribe E.; J. Lazenby, Scribe N.; and others.

After the minutes of the previous convocation were read and confirmed, the installation of Principals was proceeded with, and the impressive ceremony was, as usual, most effectively performed by M.E. Comp. John Bows, P.Z. 148, Elias Ashmole Chapter, Warrington, P.G. Scribe N., Cumberland and Westmorland. The new Principals were Comps. J. Gardner, M.E.Z.; Joseph Pearson, H.; and W. H. Hoodless, J.; whilst the other officers invested were Comps. J. Lazenby, Scribe E.; W. J. Carrick, Scribe N. (by proxy, he being very ill); H. Bewes, P.Z. Treas.; J. R. binson, P.S.; and J. Richardson, P.Z., Janitor. After the chapter was closed, the companions proceeded to join the funeral of their late lamented Comp. John Lemon, P.Z., of whom an obituary will be found in another column. Luncheon was subsequently partaken of at the Lion and Lamb, but there were no toasts, and all passed off in solemn silence, as befitted the obsequies of so old and revered a member of the chapter as the late Comp. Lemon.

NOTTINGHAM.—Abbey Chapter (No. 47).—This old chapter held a meeting on Tuesday, the 29th of October, at the Exchange Rooms. The companions present were Comps. C. B. Truman, M.E.Z.; M. Vowles, P.Z., acting H.; C. G. Wragg, P.Z., acting J.; H. R. Hatherley, P.S.; J. Comyn, P.Z., and others. The minutes of the last chapter were read and confirmed. The M.E.Z. then exalted, with the assistance of the two Principals, Bros. Marx, Lodge 1435; Norris and Gilbert, Lodge 47, in a most impressive manner. There being no other business, the chapter having been closed in ancient form, the companions sat down to an excellent supper at the Maypole Hotel, after which the usual Royal Arch toasts were given, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

EZRA CHAPTER. (No. 1489).—Held at the Metropolitan Asylum, Balls Pond-road, on Friday, Nov. 1st. The chapter was opened and the minutes of the previous convocation were read and confirmed. The companions present were J. E. Walford, M.E.Z.; W. Stephens, P.Z., H.; F. H. Miller, J.; T. Dixon, Scribe E.; J. High, Scribe N.; J. Garjen, P.S.; W. Grit, F.A.S.; E. Bishop, S.A.S.; W. Gray, W. J. Brewster, G. Haynes, and visitor T. B. Yeoman. The ballot was taken for Bro. Hawthorn; the ceremony of exaltation was then solemnly performed in a most impressive manner by Comp. W. Stephens, assisted by the various officers, and Bro. Hawthorn was then admitted into Royal Arch Masonry. Comp. Brewster proposed Bro. N. Elam, of the Fitzroy Lodge 569, for exaltation at the next meeting, seconded by Comp. Haynes. The chapter was then closed and adjourned till 1st Friday in January, and the companions sat down to refreshment, and a very pleasant evening was spent round the festive board, Comp. Walford, M.E.Z., giving the Masonic toasts in his usual hearty manner, and several songs were sang by Comps. Walford, Stephens and Dixon.

Knights Templar.

CHESTER.—Grosvenor Encampment.—The members of the above encampment met at the Grosvenor Hotel, on Saturday, 26th ult., amongst the knights present being Sir Knights C. Chandos Pole, P.G. Capt. of England; Henry Bailey, Sub-Prior of Cheshire, P.G. Expert England; Major Horner, P.G. Capt. of Lines England; P.E.C. Jacques de Molay, Lanc.; Wm. Ashley Clayton, P.G. Prelate Cheshire; Dr. Spratly, P.G. Marshal Cheshire; J. A. Hall, P.E.C. Jacques de Molay; S. Forrest, Jacques de Molay, and others. The encampment was opened by Sir Knt. E. Friend, E.C., and after the usual routine business, Comps. Marquis and F. A. Dickson were duly installed into the Order. Sir Knt. Dr. Spratly then impressively installed Sir Knt. Friend's successor as E.C., Sir Knt. Thorburn, who appointed his officers as follow:—Sir Knts. Friend, P.E.C.; J. H. Birley, Prelate; Townsend, Constable; Vanderkiste, Marshal; W. C. Deely, Treasurer; Stevenson, Reg.; Horner, Almoner; H. C. Lisle, Expert; Milner, Capt. of Lines; Sutton, 1st Standard Bearer; Fischer, and Standard Bearer; Frater Holloway, Equerry. The knights then partook of the bread of plenty and the cup of cheerfulness.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

COVENT GARDEN THEATRE.—Mr. Raphael Roche. —This talented young gentleman made his debut as a Pianist on Thursday week at M. Riviere's Promenade Concerts. The piece he selected for his first appearance was Sidney Smith's "Marche des Tambours" which was executed with force and facility, to the unanimous recall of the audience he replied by playing one of Chopin's Valses. Mr. Roche is the grandson of Moscheles, the great musical composer, and the talent he has inherited bids fair to place him high in his profession.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, W.—On Saturday last Bro. George E. Fairchild gave another of his Readings from the Poets and Humorists. The audience on this occasion was both numerous and appreciative. Our brother's talents have already been favourably noticed in our columns. The programme was long and versatile; "The Burial March of Lord Dundee" by Professor Aytoun, was rendered in a masterly manner. "A Visit to Niagara," by Mark Twain, was given with good humour, as also the "Great Winglebury Duel," and "Dick Swiveller and the Marchioness," by Dickens were highly appreciated. "The Little Hero," by Arthur Mathison (first time of reading) was delivered with much feeling. "The Stroller's Story," (also first reading) was rendered with great power. Last but not least "Floating a Finance," by L. Moseley, was read with excellent spirit, and the laughter which this reading drew forth, induces us to believe that none of the numerous audience are shareholders in the City of Glasgow Bank.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

A Quarterly Communication of the Grand Lodge of Scotland was held in Freemasons' Hall yesterday afternoon—the Grand Master Mason, Sir Michael R. Shaw-Stewart, Bart., on the throne. Bros. F. A. Barrow, Senior Grand Warden, and Lord Inverurie, Junior Grand Warden, were in their respective places. The other Grand office-bearers present were:—The Earl of Rosslyn, Past Grand Master; Colonel Campbell of Blythwood, Substitute Grand Master; Br. s. D. Murray Lyon, Grand Secretary; David Kinnear, Grand Cashier; Rev. A. Thomson Grant, Grand Chaplain; R. F. Shaw Stewart, Senior Grand Deacon; Wm. Hay; Architect to Grand Lodge; Thomas Halket, Grand Bible-bearer; John Coghill, Grand Director of Ceremonies; G. F. R. Colt, Grand Sword-bearer; C. W. Maxall Müller, Grand Director of Music; Robert Davidson, Grand Organist; W. M. Bryce, Grand Tyler; and others.

The Grand Master was supported by Colonel Mure, M.P., Provincial Grand Master of Ayrshire; Bro. Charles Dalrymple, M.P., P.G.M. of Argyllshire and the Isles; Bro. John C. Forrest, P.G.M. Middle Ward of Lanarkshire; the following representatives of sister Grand Lodges:—Bros. R. S. Brown, Kentucky; William Mann, Sweden; George M'Lean, Nebraska; Robert Nisbet, Utah; William Officer, Egypt and Pennsylvania; and Adam Thomson, Illinois; Bro. Neilson, Proxy Provincial Grand Master of Venezuela; and Dr. Falconer, Proxy P.G.M. of New South Wales. The Grand Lodges of England, Nova Scotia, Missouri, Louisiana, West Virginia, Iowa, and Saxony were also represented; and there was a large attendance of Grand Stewards, Masters, Wardens, and Proxy Masters and Wardens.

Apologies for absence were intimated from Captain Henry Morland, Proxy P.G.M. of all India, and others.

Grand Lodge having been opened in full form, presents were received with thanks from the Grand Lodges of Wisconsin, Massachusetts, and Prince Edward Island, being reports of the proceedings of these bodies. Communications were presented from Bros. Captain Henry Morland, Proxy Provincial Grand Master of all India; Dr. John Falconer, Proxy Provincial Grand Master of New South Wales; and by Bros. George M'Lean and Robert Nisbet, as representatives of the sister Grand Lodges of Nebraska and Utah respectively.

It was resolved that the existing arrangements regarding the Provincial Grand Lodge of all India remain undisturbed for the present.

Grand Lodge resolved that the fraternal relations be established with the Grand Lodge of Haiti and the Republic of Liberia.

It was ordered that charters be granted to lodges Manning, Tara, Manning River, New South Wales; and St. James, Saddleworth, South Australia.

Grand Lodge then proceeded to the election of Grand Officers for the next year, when the following were appointed:—

Sir Michael R. Shaw Stewart, Bart....	M.W.G.M.M.
The Earl of Mar and Kellie ...	Dep. G.M.
Colonel Campbell of Blythwood ...	Sub. G.M.
Lord Inverurie....	S.G.W.
R. F. Shaw Stewart ...	J.G.W.
D. Murray Lyon ...	G. Secretary.
David Kinnear ...	G. Cashier.
Bros. the Rev. Dr. George S. Burns
and the Rev. A. Thomson Grant...	G. Chaplains.
The Earl of Haddington ...	S.G. Deacon.
J. Caldwell ...	J.G. Deacon.
Wm. Hay ...	Archd. G. Lodge.
F. L. Law ...	Grand Jeweller.
Thomas Halket ...	G. Bible Bearer.
John Coghill ...	G.D. of Ceremonies.
G. F. R. Colt ...	G. Sword Bearer.
C. W. Maxwell Müller ...	G.D. Music.
Robert Davidson ...	G. Organist.
Captain Hills... ..	G. Marshal
W. M. Bryce ...	G. Tyler.
John Ness ...	Outer Guard.

The Grand Stewards were next reappointed, with one or two additions—Bro. James M'Lean to be manager of locomotive arrangements; and that board was empowered to appoint its own president and vice-president.

The meeting then proceeded to consider the proposed changes on the laws and constitution of Grand Lodge.

It should be here explained that at the August Communication a series of resolutions relative to the constitution was passed, but that protests were lodged against the vote. Thereupon Grand Committee ascertained that a large number of brethren holding proxies, and placed on the roll subsequent to the April meeting, had been present and had voted in August; and, as the business voted upon at the latter meeting was therefore illegal, recommended that the motions which were then disposed of by vote or withdrawn should be brought up and discussed at the November meeting. That was accordingly done yesterday. Upwards of fifty alterations on the laws were proposed, the greater part of them recommended by Grand Committee. There was little of general interest in them, except that power was given to the Grand Master to appoint the Depute and Substitute Grand Masters, an honour which, Bro. the Earl of Rosslyn remarked, had been conferred upon him during his tenure of office.

It was also resolved that, with the exception of the Grand Master, the Depute and Substitute Masters, the Secretary, and Cashier, and Tylers, no Grand officer shall hold office longer than two years consecutively, or be eligible for re-election until he be one year out of office. An abstract by the auditors was submitted of the accounts of the Grand Lodge from 6th November 1876 to 30th November 1877, from which it appeared that the ordinary income during that period had been almost £5000, and the discharge about £3500. An abstract of the accounts of the Masonic Benevolent Fund for the same period showed that the Committee had voted about £270 for charity. A vidimus of the affairs of the Grand Lodge showed the net amount of its property and funds (under deduction of debts heritably secured over Grand Lodge property) to be £13,574, and a similar statement as to the Benevolent Fund showed upwards of £5000. There had been 5365 intrants to Masonry. Grand Lodge was closed in ample form.

On Monday afternoon a number of the members of Grand Lodge waited on Sir Michael R. Shaw Stewart, the Grand Master Mason, in the Edinburgh Hotel, and presented to him a volume containing the requisition sheets that had been addressed to him from all parts of Scotland requesting him that he would permit the members of Grand Lodge to re-appoint him as their Grand Master, in order to give him an opportunity of completing the work of reform which he had commenced. The volume was very handsome, bound in real morocco, and mounted with clasps of gold. It contained a copy of the requisition, illuminated and finished in superb style, and bore a suitable inscription. The presentation was made by Col. Campbell, of Blythswood, the Sub-Grand Master, who was accompanied by a deputation of actual members of Grand Lodge, representing alike the north and south, east and west provinces of all Scotland. Colonel Campbell read the inscription and requisition, which contained an expression of gratitude to the Grand Master for the invaluable services he had rendered to Masonry in Scotland, "whereby at an important crisis, the honour and dignity of the throne have been upheld, and the financial affairs of Grand Lodge retrieved from approaching ruin." He remarked on the representative character of the signatures, and said that he was sure that when the Grand Master had that pledge of support from upwards of 400 leading members of the Craft, he must feel that in his responsible position he had the confidence of the brethren over whom he had the honour to preside. In their name he now handed over a token of respect, and esteem, and gratitude towards their Grand Master, for undertaking the arduous duties which he was so well able to perform.

The Grand Master, in replying, said that the circumstances under which had originated the movement with which that meeting was connected were very peculiar, and he was sure they all felt with him that they should not look into that matter at this time—(hear, hear)—they were all anxious to keep it out of sight. He thanked them for this renewed mark of their confidence, and expressed his earnest hope and belief that the members of Grand Lodge would now throw aside all harsh and local feelings. These had come up to the surface of late, but he was sure the root was not deep. He was certain that the brethren from Glasgow and other parts of Scotland had all been animated by the best desires for the good of Masonry, and that all that had been irritating would now at once fly away like down from a thistle. (Applause.) He concluded by urging the brethren to progress in doing all they could for the consolidation of Grand Lodge, and for the true interests of Masonry.

Madame Worrell-Duval's annual evening concert takes place at South-place Institute on Monday next. The list of artists includes the well known names of Miss Matilda Roby, Miss Bessie Stroud, Mr. Chaplin Henry, Mr. H. Horscroft, and others. We wish Madame Worrell-Duval a successful evening.

The "Hospital Sunday" collections in Liverpool this year amounts to £10,044, a slight increase on last year.

Bro. T. W. Boord, M.P., will deliver his annual address to his constituents in the Lecture Hall, Royal-hill, Greenwich, on the evening of Monday, the 25th inst.

The annual ball in aid of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum will take place at St. James's Hall, on Thursday, January 16th, 1879.

THE "PRINCESS ALICE" DISASTER.—The Secretary of State for the Home Department has granted the sum of £146 for distribution amongst the inspectors, sergeants, and private constables of the R Division of Metropolitan and Dockyard Police doing duty at Woolwich Dockyard and town, as a recognition of their praiseworthy exertions in connection with the late collision between the Princess Alice and the Bywell Castle.

Mr. Gladstone has fixed Saturday, November 30th, for his visit to Greenwich, and 2,500 tickets are being issued for that day.

Half of the village of Langsfeld, near Eisenach—viz., the Town-hall, school, post-office, and 60 houses has been destroyed by fire.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify her Majesty's intention of conferring the honour of knighthood on the Right Hon. Thomas Scambler Owden, late Lord Mayor of London.

Bro. Sir John Bennett has purchased a house at Chislehurst, to which he is removing from the house he has long occupied on Dulwich-common.

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales are expected to arrive at Sandringham to-day for the winter season, in time to celebrate the Prince of Wales's thirty-seventh birthday at the Royal Norfolk seat.

The late Mr. Edward Jones, of Port Hope, Ontario, Canada, has left a legacy of 3000 dols. to the National Lifeboat Institution of England.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—[Adv.]

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

A General Communication of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Leicestershire and Rutland was held under the auspices of the St. John's Lodge, No. 279, at the Freemasons' Hall, Halford-street, Leicester, on Wednesday, October 30th, the R.W. Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl Ferrers, Provincial Grand Master, in the chair, supported by Bro. Wm. Kelly, F.R.H.S., Past Provincial Grand Master; Bro. George Toller, jun., Past Grand Sword Bearer of England, acting as D.P.G.M. There were also present the Mayor of Leicester (Bro. Clement Stretton), P.P.G.J.W.; the Rev. Wm. Langley, P.P.G.S.W.; the Rev. C. H. Wood; W. Beaumont Smith, P.G.S.W.; W. Hardy, jun., P.G.J.W.; T. A. Wykes, P.G. Treasurer; S. S. Partridge, P.G. Secretary; Dr. Clifton, P.G.S.D.; S. Cleaver, A.D.C.; G. T. Willan, P.G.S.B.; W. Vial, P.G. Organist; M. H. Lewin, P.G.; J. Jessop, P.G.S.B.; J. Farndale and T. R. Pickering, P.G. Stewards; R. Waite, P.P.G.J.W.; G. W. Statham, W.M. 279; J. M. McAllister, P.P.G.S.D.; C. E. Stretton, P.P.G. Sup. of Works; J. W. Smith, P.P.G.P.; I. Hart, T. Colman, J.D.; S. A. Marris, Dr. Hunt, P.P.G.S.B.; Dr. Meadows, Dr. R. B. Smith, S.D. Hinckley; R. W. Johnson, W.M. Melton Mowbray; C. P. Newcombe, W.M. 1265; R. Boughton Smith, P.P.G.S.D.; Dr. T. Macaulay, P.M.; J. H. Douglass, P.P.G. Reg. Market Harborough, and many other Past Provincial Grand Officers and brethren.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened at 3 o'clock, and the formal business of the meeting was promptly despatched.

In the excellent report submitted by the Committee of General Purposes, and adopted, a touching allusion was made to the demise of the late Bros. F. Goodyer, P.P.G.S.W., Chief Constable of this county; J. B. Hall, P.G.D.C.; and Thos. Cooper, P.P.G.J.W., the latter of whom was initiated in the John O'Gaunt Lodge at the first meeting of that lodge, which was held on the 11th May, 1846, in the old Exchange, Market-place, by permission of the Mayor, Bro. Alderman Edward Weston, an old member of St. John's Lodge.

A pleasing feature of usefulness in the Masonic Craft, alluded to in the able report of the Charity Committee, was the election of a daughter of the late Bro. Dr. Bolton, and a son of the late Bro. J. B. Hall to the Masonic Schools, and the adoption of a scheme proposed by Bro. George Toller, jun., by which such usefulness in future might be considerably extended.

The Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was recommended for special support in this province during the ensuing year, and Bro. the Rev. W. Langley, M.A., P.P.S.G.W., was appointed to represent the P.G. Lodge as Steward at the next Festival.

A very satisfactory report on the P.G. Treasurer's account having been received, was duly adopted, and a vote of thanks accorded to Bro. Wykes for his past services.

Bro. Wykes was, at the same time, re-elected as P.G. Treasurer for the ensuing year.

The R.W. Provincial Grand Master appointed and invested his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—

Clement Stretton	Prov. G.S.W.
R. Winter Johnson	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. F. H. Richardson	Rev. C. H.
Wood	Prov. G. Chaplains.
T. A. Wykes	Prov. G. Treas.
C. P. Newcome	Prov. G. Reg.
S. S. Partridge	Prov. G. Sec.
F. Amatt	Prov. G.S.D.
S. E. Johnson	Prov. G.J.D.
R. Taylor	Prov. G.S. of W.
T. Macaulay	Prov. G.D.C.
G. W. Statham	Prov. G.A.D.C.
A. C. Smith	Prov. G.S.B.
W. Vial	Prov. G. Org.
J. M. Kew	Prov. G. Purst.
E. Fuller	Prov. G.A. Purst.
G. Odell	Prov. G. Std. Br.
Thos. Marson, M. A. Cooke, F. Wood,
B. Lawton, W. W. Wartnaby, J. A.
McDonald	Prov. G. Stewards.
Thomas Dunn	Prov. G. Tyler.
James Tanser	Prov. G.A. Tyler.

An invitation was tendered by Bro. A. Balmforth, W.M. 779, to the R.W. P.G. Master, to hold the next summer half-yearly meeting of P.G. Lodge at Ashby-de-la-Zouch, under the banner of the Ferrers and Ivanhoe Lodge.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed in due form, and a banquet followed, which was well attended, and at which the R.W. P.P.G.M. Bro. W. Kelly, F. R. Hist. Soc., presided, in the absence of the Provincial Grand Master; the S. and J. W's. chairs being filled by his worship the Mayor of Leicester, Bro. Clement Stretton, P.P.G.S.W., and Bro. R. Winter Johnson, P.P.G.J.W.

The charity jewel was presented to Bro. S. S. Partridge, on his having completed his second year's Stewardship as representative of the P.G. Lodge at the Boys' School Festival in 1877, and that of the Girls' Institution in 1878.

The installation of Bro. Capt. J. G. F. Richardson as W.M. of the Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1560, took place on Thursday, the 7th inst. A report will appear in our next.

Bro. Samuel Poynter's contribution to the Christmas number of the "Masonic Magazine" is a paper entitled, "How I was first prepared to be made a Mason."

An emergency meeting of the Eclectic Lodge, No. 1201, will be held at the Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, next, the 14th inst. A banquet will be given after the meeting in the Duke's Saloon, Holborn Restaurant, at which the lady friends of the brethren are invited.

THE SECOND TOTTENHAM, EDMONTON AND ENFIELD MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION.

A supper in connection with this Association was partaken of by the members and their friends on the night of the 31st ult. at the Seven Sisters, Page Green, Tottenham, in the large room. The Association has been working so well and successfully that seventy guineas were in hand, seven appropriations were, therefore, at the disposal of the members, giving seven Life Governorships of either of the Masonic Institutions.

This is one more instance of the value of such Associations, which we are happy to find are becoming very numerous. They do a great amount of good to the valuable institutions of the Order; they press very lightly on the contributors; and above all they give to the brethren and ladies who obtain Life Governorships through them, permanent voting power at the elections of the Institutions, which the annual subscriptions of a guinea or two guineas do not give. The Life Governorships and Life Subscriptions, together with the Vice-Presidents, are the great power which the provinces wield at the elections, and which have enabled them to carry so many more candidates than the metropolis, although London subscribes much the larger sum. London, however, seeing the disadvantage it labours under, has, at last, awakened to its fault, and instead of individual yearly subscriptions, the votes for which expire with the year, is obtaining by immediate payments of five and ten guineas, enduring votes. The associations, like the Tottenham, &c., &c., Association, are working this out, so that before long we may expect to see London placed on as firm a foundation as the provinces, with respect to the elections. The officers of the Tottenham Association are Bros. David Roberts, P.M. and Treas., 754, H. 403, P.P. G.S.B. Herts, President; John Maller, P.M. 754, Vice-President; J. H. Thompson, P.M. 1237, P.P.G.S.B. Middx., S.W. 1707, Treas.; J. Garrod, Hon. Sec.; W. Dance, P.M. 754; J. Wells, P.M. 754; J. Tanner, W.M. 1707, P.P.G.D. Essex; C. Oliver, Treas. 1707; G. Burford, S.W. 754; J. Farrin, J.W. 754; J. Ramsey, I.G. 1707; G. H. Jaffa, S.D. 1579; J. Everdell, I.G. 1579; J. H. Peach, 1237; E. Poore, 1237; G. Poulton, 1489; Committee.

At the supper, which took place on Thursday week, Bro. David Roberts presided, when he was surrounded by about sixty friends. After the supper, he announced that seventy guineas were in hand, and that seven appropriations would be made. He also announced that he was going to be Steward for the next festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and he should be happy if the ladies and brethren who obtained the appropriations would place their names on his list.

The toasts then followed. Bro. John Maller proposed "Success to the Association," which, he said, he was sure all who were present had at heart. When they looked at what had been done that evening, as well as what had been done at previous times, for the benefit of the noble charities of Freemasonry, it would be unnecessary for him to say another word about the Association. He would but add that he hoped all those who were not Life Governors of those Institutions soon would be.

Bro. Garrod, in replying, said that the Association was a success in every shape and way. The Society had been in existence eight months. It was commenced by the small payment of a shilling a week, and in eight months they had got together over £120. For the information of those visitors who were not acquainted with the object of the Association, he would say that draws took place for the purchase with the money of Life Governorships in the Institution, which gave the power to vote at the election of whichever Institution the successful drawer selected to give his draw to. The Institutions were a school for boys, a school for girls, and an institution for giving annuities to old men and women. The Association was very grateful for the support that had been given to it. It had now seventy-five members, composed of gentlemen, most of them Masons, residing in the neighbourhood, and ladies. Two ladies were Vice-Presidents.

Bro. F. Binckes, in proposing "The Health of the President and Vice-Presidents of the Association," referred to the great services which had been rendered by Bro. David Roberts and Bro. John Maller. Speaking for himself he said nothing gave him so much pleasure as participating in the great work of furthering Masonic Charity. Having done so to a large extent he knew how arduous were the duties which devolved on brethren like Bros. Roberts and Maller. Their posts were posts of honourable distinction, but they involved a large amount of responsibility. He did not know of any brethren who more capably and faithfully discharged those duties than the two brothers he had named. He afterwards explained the excellent work which had been done by associations like this in the great effort of Masonic Charity.

Bros. Roberts and Maller responded in a very few words, and some other toasts having been honoured, the brethren separated.

The two children of Captain Grinstead, the master of the steamer "Princess Alice," have, the Sunday Times states, been admitted into the Masonic Schools. The father was a Freemason, and his brethren have naturally interested themselves in behalf of his family. The admission of the two children, a boy and a girl, has been accomplished without prejudice to other candidates, the sum of £340 having been paid by the Mansion House Committee to purchase the two presentations. Serjeant Burton, of the Royal Artillery, who was drowned in the "Princess Alice," left three children, and he being also a Freemason it is intended to provide for them in a similar manner.

Reviews.

AMONG THE WELSH HILLS. By M. C. HALIFAX. Groombridge and Sons.

We have read this one-volume story with much pleasure. It is well and gracefully written, and will, we think, please many of our readers, who often wish to hear of a good and sound-teaching work of imagination.

Unfortunately just now such an "outcome" of trash is pervading the market, and astounding innocent minds that it becomes often a task of no little delicacy and difficulty to recommend to any one some of the passing and pressing works of the day, or to commend them to the notice and approval of the serious and the intelligent. But we have no hesitation in recommending "Among the Welsh Hills" to our readers.

REMINISCENCES OF THE WORCESTER LODGE OF FREEMASONS. By C. C. WHITNEY GRIFFITHS, P.G.S.W. Worcesterhire. Published by the Worcester Lodge for presentation only.

We have read this interesting little work and its supplement, thanks to the kind intermediation of a very worthy brother, with much pleasure. We wish all lodges could find so intelligent and careful an historian as Bro. Griffiths.

It seems that an "Ancient" lodge existed at Worcester about 1757, meeting at the Stonemasons' Arms, but it appears to have become defunct, and the Worcester Lodge, 280 (modern) dates from 1790 only.

There is in the records of the old Athol Grand Lodge, at Freemasons' Hall, a list of thirty-nine Masons, originally belonging to the Ancient Lodge in 1757, and the lodge is also mentioned in the Athol roll of 1813, though it is apparently certain that the lodge had ceased to meet, and Bro. Griffiths says that there is great difficulty in tracing those thirty-nine names at Worcester.

The history of Lodge 280 is the usual normal chequered history of lodge life and condition in England from 1790; and though it has had its times of depression and exaltation it has managed to survive the "encroaching hand of time," and is now, we understand, a most flourishing lodge. We wish it all success, and we thank Bro. Griffiths for the very simple yet effective account of lodge beginning and lodge progress which he has tersely and truly told.

A GUIDE TO THE MATRICULATION EXAMINATION. Groombridge and Sons.

This is a very useful little Guide Book for those who are seeking admission to or to study at the London University. It gives them a great deal of valuable information in a condensed form, and at a cheap rate, and we can confidently call the attention of all who are interested in the subject to it.

MAXIMS AND MISCELLANIES FOR MERCHANTS AND MEN OF BUSINESS. By HENRY TURNER, Wm. Tegg and Co., Pancras-lane. Second Edition.

We do not wonder that this well written pamphlet has reached a second edition, as it is both very interesting and very readable. The advice it tenders may be perused and digested by all engaged in business with advantage to themselves, to the due and honest course of trade, and, above all, to their customers. All may profit by it, old and young, employer and employed, the mature man of business and the young clerk, and we have no hesitation in commending it to the favourable consideration of all of our brethren occupied with commerce, or devoted to business and trade.

MASONIC MUSIC.

BEHOLD HOW GOOD A THING IT IS. A Masonic Anthem. By Bro. EDWIN J. CROW. George Kenaing, 198, Fleet-street.

We call the attention of the musical brethren of our lodges to this new Masonic anthem. We are all by this time favourable to the introduction of Masonic music in our ceremonies. This anthem tends to supply a want and deserves all encouragement.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The general Committee of this Institution was held last Saturday, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. W. Roebuck in the chair. There were also present Bros. H. Browne, John Boyd, Herbert Dicketts, J. G. Chancellor, W. F. C. Moutrie, Don. M. Dewar, Geo. J. Bow, A. Durrant, C. G. Rushworth, W. Hyde-Pullen, Charles Horsley, S. Rosenthal, F. Adlard, George Motion, and F. Binckes, Secretary, H. Massey, (Freemason).

The minutes of the previous meetings of the various Committees were first read and confirmed. In the House Committee's minutes was the report that there was not a single case of illness in the institution. The Audit Committee's report was accepted, and the chairman was authorised to sign cheques for accounts. It was referred to the House Committee to recommend the admission of a boy of the late Bro. Charles Jardine on the payment of 170 guineas by the Mansion House Princess Alice Committee.

Three petitions were received and the candidates placed on the list for election in April.

One outfit was granted to a boy who had left the Institution and obtained a situation, and £250 was ordered to be transferred from the general to the sustentation account.

A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. John Caldwell for his donation of £100 to this Institution on his resignation of the Robert Burns Lodge, No. 25, on account of failing health.

The Committee then adjourned.

Mittum in Barbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

THE YORK RITE.

I have read a letter of Bro. Mackey in relation to some remarks of Bro. W. J. Hughan, anent this "vexata questio," in the Masonic Newspaper of October 19th, and I am glad to have the opportunity of supporting Bro. Hughan's views on the subject. Like to himself, I am unable to say what is the "York Rite;" as the name is claimed by two conflicting systems—a High Grade system, and a Craft system.

All that we know of the "York" Grand Lodge is that it had a system of Three Degrees and the Royal Arch, and that late on in the last century the Grand Secretary seems to have added to it, sanctioned no doubt by the Grand Lodge itself, a Templar Grade! But I know of no real authority for the term "York Rite" in either category, and the Athol Masons, whatever Dermott might choose to say, had nothing to do with York! I confess that I am astonished, at this period of discussion and investigation, to find my very able Bro. Mackey ignoring what the researches of Bro. Hughan and others have made clear as to the position and history of the four Grand Lodges, of nearly, at one time, "concurrent jurisdiction." Bro. Mackey's statement that the name of the "York Rite" is given to the system of the Grand Lodge of 1717 is certainly very startling in its "naked simplicity," and it is quite new to me, as it must be to Bro. Hughan. That a so-called "York Rite" did exist, and was imported into America, and that Masonic writers have loosely talked of the "York Rite" I do not deny, but like Bro. Hughan I do not profess to know what it "is." With respect to the hard words Bro. Mackey uses in respect of Bros. Desaguliers and Anderson, I cannot agree either in their justice or their accuracy. It is quite clear to me that the Third Degree existed anterior to Desaguliers' and Anderson's time, and that all they did, was to methodize ancient formulae! It is true that we find no trace of the Third Degree, "nominatum," in the earlier records, quoted by Bro. D. Murray Lyon for instance, but that fact by itself does not necessarily disprove the existence of the Third Degree for the following reasons. Firstly, the brevity of the minutes. Secondly, the objection to publish the "apocrypha," and thirdly the fact, that not only was the Third Degree alone given at York in the annual grand assembly or Grand Lodge, but that "Master Masons Lodges," until a comparatively late period in the last century, were a separate institution and probably kept no minutes at all. I then quite agree with Bro. Hughan in refusing to give to our English system the name of the "York Rite," but prefer to call it, simply the "English Rite," if it is needful to use such an appellation. Properly it is simply the system of the English Grand Lodge.

MASONIC STUDENT.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION.

The usual meeting of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1056, was held at the Portugal Hotel, 155, Fleet-street, E.C., on Friday, the 1st instant. After the closing of the lodge of instruction, the members of the Metropolitan Masonic Benevolent Association, which was formed about three years since, by the members of the lodge, held their third annual meeting, when Bro. J. R. Stacey, the Preceptor of the lodge, was re-appointed President of the Association, Bro. White, Vice-President and Treas.; Bro. W. W. Snelling, Hon. Sec.; and Bros. Squirrell, Shelton, Webb, Abell, Denison, Larchin, Brock, Gush, Caton, and Rowlands, the Committee.

The Association during the three years of its existence had received the sum of £573 13s. 6d., which had been expended in purchasing for its members 112 Life Subscriptions or Life Governorships of the three Masonic Charities. Forty-two members had become Life Governors of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Association, Male Fund, twenty-four Life Governors of the Widow's Fund, fifteen Life Subscribers of the Boys' School, and nineteen Life Subscribers of the Girls' School, and twelve members had not yet determined to which fund they would subscribe. The expenses of printing, postages, &c., during the three years amounted to £9 4s. 2d. The balance-sheet of the Association having been read, Bros. Leggott, Morgan, Daniel, and Garratt were appointed Auditors, and a vote of thanks was passed to the officers for their services during the year.

By means of this Association any brother, lady, or lewis may become a Life Governor of any of our Masonic Charities by payment of the small sum of 1s. per week. Members may join at any time without payment of back subscriptions, and the honorary Secretary, Bro. W. W. Snelling, will forward a prospectus of the Association, post free to any one applying for same at the offices of the Association, 155, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Sydney International Exhibition is to be held next August under the auspices of the New South Wales Agricultural Society, and will take place in the hall at Prince Alfred Park. Medals and certificates are to be awarded in nine sections, including the fine arts, apparatus of the liberal arts, furniture and domestic articles, clothing, products of mining industry, forestry, chemicals, &c., apparatus and processes of the common arts, food, artisans' sections, and school work. Melbourne follows suit with an International Exhibition in 1880, and a similar display is projected by Queensland in 1881.

According to recently published statistics there are more deaf mutes, idiots, and lunatics in Switzerland, in proportion to the population, and fewer people are afflicted with blindness, than in any other European country.

NOTES ON ART &c.,

The Queen, in recognition of the services of the late Sir Thomas Biddulph, has decided to erect a statue to his memory at the west of Balmoral Castle.

A Statue is to be erected to Lord Beaconsfield at Hong Kong.

Palissy, the Potter, is to be commemorated by a statue to be erected near the Bois de Boulogne, at the expense of the Municipality of Paris. Palissy lived in the Rue Taranne during his residence in the French capital, but the reason for the present site for the statue being chosen is that he is supposed to have worked at the decorations of the Château de Madrid, constructed in the vicinity by Francis I.

The Liverpool Autumn Art Exhibition has proved very successful this year. Up to the end of the first fortnight in October, 27,527 persons had visited the Exhibition against 25,937 at the same period of last year, while 171 pictures had been sold, realising a sum of £3,028.

THE AMBER.—It is said that Shere Ali has some pretensions to be a man of letters, as he has translated "Robinson Crusoe" from the Urdu into Persian.—Academy.

Paris letters announce the death there of the Australian sculptor, Summers.

Dr. Robert Blakey, the author of several works on metaphysical and other subjects, and of some volumes on angling and sporting topics, has died in his eighty-fourth year. He was a contributor to the Encyclopædia Britannica. In 1835 he was appointed Professor of Logic and Metaphysics in Queen's College, Belfast, but relinquished this post on account of ill-health. Dr. Blakey was thirty years ago editor of the Northern Liberator, published at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

MM. Erckmann-Chatrian have written the libretto of an opera, La Taverne des Trabans, for the Paris Lyrique. M. Henri Maréchal furnishes the music. M. Gounod is also busy with his new opera, Maitre Pierre, founded on the story of Abelard and Heloise.

The members of the Badsworth Hunt have recently placed a stained glass window at the east end of "Darrington Church," Yorkshire, in memory of the late Mr. Barton, of Stapleton Park, in that parish, who was master of the hunt from 1869 until his sudden death in the hunting field on March 20, 1876. The window, which is a five-light one in the Perpendicular style, has been executed from designs by Mr. A. N. Bodley. The inscription below is:—"To the glory of God and in memory of John Hope Barton, this window is placed, in the year of our Lord 1878, by the members of the Badsworth Hunt, of which he was master."

Sanakrit is in future to be accepted instead of Greek for the Previous Examination at Cambridge in the case of undergraduates from Eastern countries. These have hitherto lost much time in learning Greek after coming to Cambridge, and so have hindered their University course only to acquire the rudiments of a language far less useful to them subsequently than Sanakrit.—Athenæum.

Within the last few days the cope stone of a Roman tomb, of pure white Italian marble, and of about the date of the fourth century, has been discovered on the north side of the churchyard of St. Helen's, Bishopsgate, about 4ft. below the surface. Within this structure there is a place for a cinerary urn, and near to it a Roman coin was found. It is said this remarkable relic will be presented to the Guildhall Museum.

Professor Nordenskiöld has succeeded in the first part of his attempt to sail round Siberia to China and Japan. He has doubled Cape Chôljuskin, which has hitherto proved an insurmountable obstacle to Arctic travellers, and when last heard of was well on his way towards Behring Straits, hoping to make the passage without being obliged to winter in the Arctic regions.

Diamond digging at the Dutoitspan fields has been unusually successful of late, and, besides several beautiful stones of 50 carats each, a large diamond, weighing 244 carats, was recently picked upon a claim belonging to a Captain Jones. The "water" of the stone is not of the first quality, being of a light "off-colour," but the gem is free from flaw, and will cut very full. This is the second largest diamond ever found in South Africa, the "Spalding" diamond, found in the river diggings some years ago, and weighing 288 carats, being the largest.

The Bavarian Government has decided on establishing a central meteorological bureau at Munich, and 34 observation stations at various points all over the kingdom. Besides attending to matters connected with the general advancement of meteorological science, the observers in charge of those stations will be directed to pay particular attention to the phenomena likely to have a special interest for agriculture, forestry, and hygiene. The central station at Munich, is already in operation, and has been placed under the direction of Dr. Wilhelm Bezold, the Professor of Physics at the Royal Technical School. The selection of the provincial stations and observers is almost completed, and will be very shortly announced. It is intended that experimental observations should be made at all the stations during November and December in order to accustom the observers to their work. With the New Year the regular work of systematic observations will commence.

On the site of the lacustrine village near Estavayer, laid bare by the lowering of the waters of the lake of Neuchâtel, have been found amber ornaments belonging to the age of stone and a beautiful golden buckle of the age of bronze. Four canoes, besides the one found last week, are visible.

THE FREEMASON,

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1878.

ONCE AGAIN.

Once again, as the "whirligig of old time" meets us in the way, we are assembling in our good and pleasant lodges. All is rubbing up, and smartening up. Secretaries are issuing circulars, and Tylers are getting "paraphernalia" ready, and even now many brethren have answered the summons, and have gathered around their W.M., in goodly force, in genial spirits, and with Masonic zeal. It cannot, however, be, but that we miss some, whose presence enlivened, whose friendship cheered our "lodge life," when last we parted, hoping to meet again. No year passes over our heads, indeed, but sees gaps in our ranks, and names wanting on our "rolls," and as to-day, after a long recess, we meet together once more, and greet one another, let us hope, with true fraternal warmth, we look in vain for some who once were ever to the "fore amongst us," not only, indeed, those who "set the table on a roar," but those kind and pleasant "socii atque sodales," who have been so bound up with the history of our lodge, such good mates, and such honest sharers with ourselves, of the rubs and gaities, the crosses and the comforts of life. They are not now any more amongst us,—their places know them no more, they have left us, not to return, their journey is ended, their work is done. He must be a very thoughtless man, and we will add, a very bad Mason, who is not touched with such realities, or affected by such a condition of affairs. Though this may be the normal condition of this, our "sublunary state," it is not the less both trying and often startling to us, as it ought to be, in the highest degree. We form friendships, we make us friends, we interchange sympathies, we link ourselves together in the pleasant chain of a goodly brotherhood, and some of our cheeriest hours, many of our simplest pleasures are found in a little happy circle of true-hearted mates and companions. No, man is a gregarious animal, and it is not good for him to be alone. He wants friendship, sympathy, intercourse with his kind, interchange of thought and opinion, the play of fancy and of wit, the evocation of intellect and conversation. In all this geniality of life, man may fairly play his part, and share his lot, despite the assertions of a mistaken asceticism, notwithstanding the suggestions of an ill-founded love of segregation and separation from the duties and transactions of life. And here to-day, as brethren meet in their lodges, hence we need to be on our guard against the temptation of our Masonic social system. If our meetings are a social gathering, and only that to us, they are not all they ought to be, all they might be. We must not surrender to the materialistic teaching of the hour, all that is touching or sentimental, all that is ennobling in aspiration, all that is elevating in moral perception. Amid the charms of sociality, we must not forget the "higher claims" of better things. Still, as of old, still as ever, in everything of earth, "Latet anguis in herbâ," and we should not, in the most successful gatherings of our warm-hearted sodality, put out of sight or out of mind, the most important and more enduring requirements of charity and sympathy for brethren and fellow mortals, the old and decayed of our Order, the widows of our companions, the orphan children of our brethren. May our Masonic season of 78-79 witness to us of pleasant meetings and harmonious assemblies, may it banish the mischief maker, the tale-bearer, the slanderer from our midst, and may it serve to increase the store of human happiness, and cement the concord of our Masonic family.

ROMAN CATHOLIC INTIMIDATION AND INTOLERANCE.

It is with feelings of mingled sorrow and indignation that we call attention to a letter elsewhere on this subject. It is, indeed, a mournful parody in this age of light, and in this land of liberty, on those professions and principles which are supposed to govern the world at large, and nations in particular. But we cannot profess, much as we deplore the fact, to be astonished or startled at it. It is, in fact, the natural corollary of the argument and the teaching of Ultramontaniam, just now very rampant in some portions of the world, and not at all particular in the allies it associates with, or the aid it invokes. In fact, when we come calmly to consider it, we see how consistently Rome has acted, and ever does act in all matters which concern it as a body corporate, as a system of influence, and we must add imposture. In the first Bull against the Freemasons, in 1738, not only were all Freemasons to be delivered over to the "Inquisition" and the "Secular arm," but the "houses of those persons were to be pulled down where the Freemasons met." And so say the Ultramontanians of Mullingar. It is just now Rome's pleasant little game to profess to support liberty of conscience here, and to endeavour openly to suppress it elsewhere; as with us to claim the full and sacred right of educating its own people, but in another country to seek to shut up all schools which are not Roman Catholic. Like the old Roman god Janus, it is "Bifron." Just as in its previous history, owing to the pernicious teaching of the Jesuit school, the assassination of heretical kings has been approved of and encouraged, so to-day it claims to be superior even in its temporal authority, to all national laws, all sovereign authorities, which do not acknowledge the material and spiritual "Regale" of the Bishop of Rome. And, therefore, though not astonished with these proceedings at Mullingar, we are deeply pained at them, while we equally sympathize with our brother Freemasons in that town, and trust that Bro. D'Arcy's appeal may not be made in vain to the sympathy and liberality of English Freemasons.

ENGLISH AND FOREIGN FREEMASONRY.

In our last week's impression we touched upon certain differences which seemed to form an impassable gulf between English and many Foreign Freemasons, namely in respect of political tendencies, but there are others still greater in connexion with belief in God, the foundation stone of all true Masonry, which we must not lose sight of, nor pass by. Not only is belief in God erased from some Constitutions in so marked a way as to leave no doubt of the object and the aims of the act, but even when belief in God is professed, it is accompanied by conditions, restrictions, and qualifications, repugnant to the honest minds of English Masons. For instance, at the congress of Geneva the "Rite Ecossais" declared that "Freemasonry proclaims—as it has proclaimed from the beginning—the existence of a creative principle, under the name of the Great Architect of the Universe," in French, a "Principe Createur," &c. Now this, in relation to special discussions, and philosophical subtleties, cannot possibly be satisfactory to any who have studied the question or who realize the exact meaning of words! The "Principe Createur," is not synonymous with the G.A.O.T.U.; indeed the congress of Geneva says as much when it adds, "under the name of T.G.A.O.T.U." Do our readers perceive the difference? It is in fact a specious substitution of an "Anima Mundi" of the machinery of necessitarian deism, as it is called, for the honest faith of our fathers in a personal God! A man may say he believes in a "Principe Createur" which practically only presupposes a machinal "Force Superieure," "Superior Force," and yet not be able to say as we do that we "trust in God," or pray to God, or that he accepts His divine and inspired Word as the rule of man's feet, the square of man's actions, and the light of man's pathway here below. Hence we apprehend, that just as prayer is not used in the "Rite Ecossais," as we know, any more than in the Grand Orient, any real acknowledgement of the Most High is altogether unknown. If the lodges are still closed in the name of T.G.A.O.T.U. it is merely as a "formula," inasmuch as the "Prin-cipe Createur," and the "Force Superieure," do not admit any reference to the "true and ever living God Most High." Here is another and most essential difference as between English and some portions of foreign Freemasonry, and as we always dislike "daubing the wall with untempered mortar," we think it well that we should realize this fact, and remember distinctly this state of things, otherwise we are like people walking in the dark, and unless we take care, we may be forced by the ignorant or credulous into a quasi recognition of systems which we are bound to disavow, if true to the great and goodly principles of our excellent cosmopolitan fraternity.

ROMAN CATHOLIC INTOLERANCE AND INTIMIDATION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Perhaps you will record the following piece of intolerance and interference with private rights on the part of the Roman Catholic Priesthood.

The Freemasons are just commencing to build a Masonic Hall in Mullingar (of which they sadly stood in need), and as soon as it became known they were about to do so, the Roman Catholic clergy commenced a series of sermons in their churches against the work, they prevented the people from working at the building and from supplying materials; they injured some of the brethren in their business, and directed the greatest ruffians in the town to throw it down when finished, and they held meetings to prevent it being carried on, at which very violent language was used.

They pretend it is an insult to their religion to have a Masonic Hall in a town where nine-tenths of the population are Roman Catholic, but they really wish to show their detestation of civil and religious liberty.

However, the work must proceed, and all that we require are funds, we wish our English brethren would assist us with money, and that you in your valuable paper would advocate our cause.

Yours fraternally,

G. J. NORMAN D'ARCY, 31st,
Prov. G. Sec., Meath.

BRO. MURRAY'S LETTER.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

I have seen Bro. Murray's letter in the last Freemason, and am struck, as all must be, by the bad taste and worse temper which it betrays from first to last. I was originally induced to call attention to Bro. Murray's "Deliverance," in consequence both of the presumptuous ignorance of Masonic law, national and international, which, as you know, I have long carefully studied, for which it was most conspicuous, and a subsequent acquaintance with Bro. Murray's peculiar style of writing only convinces me the more how unfit he is to "lay down the law" on a subject of which he is evidently absolutely ignorant, and of which he has positively to master the ABC.

It is one of the great nuisances of the present day, as you well know, that persons affect to dogmatize on what they do not themselves comprehend, lecturing every one else on a subject which they have not studied, either in its extent, or bearing, or historical reality, or after consequences.

Bro. Murray commences his letter on the "abuse—the plaintiff's Attorney" principle, by stating that I have "garbled" his arguments. What there was of "argument" I printed in my first letter, and recommended that the whole letter should be printed, which it was. I took the words as printed from the Craftsman, carefully studying text and context, and only leaving out what was not necessary to Bro. Murray's argument and did not affect it in the slightest degree. I sought earnestly not to do him injustice, and any assertion that I in any way "garbled" his statement, is alike unmasonic and untrue. I cannot help it, if he does not understand his own argument as he sent it to the Craftsman, that surely is no fault of mine. I deeply regret, as displaying the "animus" which has marked all his correspondence, that he commences his letter with a statement absolutely contrary to the fact. I repeat my assertion, that no Masonic writer of repute has ever upheld Bro. Murray's view of the case. To give us Bro. Harrington's name, as the answer to my protest, is valueless to us in England who have studied the subject. I was not aware that Bro. Harrington was an authority upon anything, except perhaps the reality of "Masonic schism."

Bro. Murray knows as well as I do where the "shoe pinches." The recognition of the right of the Grand Lodges of England and Scotland as to "prior occupation," and in respect of lodge adherence to its constituting authority by the Grand Lodge of Canada, is fatal to all the claims and all the "anathemata" of the Grand Lodge of Quebec.

Indeed, I go further, and say, that so serious is the principle at stake, that it certainly will not be disposed of by angry threats or illogical and unmasonic circulars, but will be peacefully and manfully fought out on Masonic principles. Three, if not four of the American Grand Lodges, as well as the Grand Lodge of Canada itself, are in favour of the English as opposed to the Quebec view of the discussion, and I fancy a good many more will follow suit, when they fully understand the matter at issue. And here I leave the matter to-day, not wishing to go into "extraneous questions," and above all unwilling to prolong a controversy, which can only be regarded with feelings of much regret by all who value the honour and good of Masonry, as above personal interests, or party prepossessions.

I am, dear Bro. Kenning, yours fraternally,

THE WRITER OF THE ARTICLE.

BRO. EDMONDSTON.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I sent you a few lines last week on the foolish and unprecedented and uncourteous remarks of Bro. Edmondston, to whom you have accorded full and unrestricted space, but think it well to supplement them to-day. I need hardly point out that the "Report" about which Bro. Edmondston seems so "puzzled," was sent from the London Masonic Charity Association, having been approved at the Committee meeting on the 16th ult., and that it was what it professed to be—the First Report of the Association, based on the action and returns of its Sub-Committee appointed to attend the elections. As the drafter of it, I can safely say that was written without the slightest reference to Bro. Edmondston's letter, though it had reference to another correspondence of which I have no reason to suppose that Bro. Edmondston knows anything. It was commenced at Freemasons' Tavern, between the close and declaration of the poll, the portion relative to the Girls' School having been drafted on the Saturday before. The report was therefore directed to two points; one, the recent elections, the other, certain objections with which the Committee had been dealing in another correspondence. I beg once more to repeat, to put an end to such unfair remarks, that that report had as much to do with Bro. Edmondston's letter as it had to do with any other report in the Freemason, and that now I have read Bro. Edmondston's letter "in extenso," which I had not done when I drafted the report, I may add that I certainly should not have alluded to it in any way whatever. I think that Bro. Percival, the Treasurer, and a "Member of the London Masonic Charity Association" have completely executed that duty.

I only wish to protest against Bro. Edmondston's remarks, who, because he sees that the report is an answer to all the nonsense which has been spoken about the London Masonic Charity Association, attacks the Freemason, which published his letter in full. It is no doubt true that one of the Secretaries of the London Masonic Charity Association, as everybody knows, is the Editor of the Freemason, but what has that to do with the question?

THE DRAFTER OF THE REPORT.

A QUESTION TO BRO. BEDOLFE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I note that our intelligent Bro. Bedolfe is now in Paris. Can he tell us in your columns whether the Bible is still preserved in any lodge under the Rite Ecossais. I see that he does not mention "prayers," and as he is silent about the Bible, I fear that that Sacred Book has no longer any "abiding place" in the Rite Ecossais, just as it has in the lodges under the Grand Orient.

Yours fraternally,

DILEMMA.

BRO. BEDOLFE AND THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

When Bro. Bedolfe, P.M. and P.Z., rushed into print on the 12th ult., with a long and laboured diatribe against the degree of Mark Master Mason, my fixed impulse was to treat his effusion with the silent contempt it merited. As Bro. Bedolfe now exults in the fond imagination that I have "failed to reply to his arguments," I must now, perforce, in self-defence, have a fling at him. Mind, though, Bro. Bedolfe was close upon two months preparing his elaborate critique.

First of all, I ought to explain to your irascible correspondent, as also to "Ecce Signum," that I am not in holy orders, but simply Chaplain of a Mark Lodge, which institution does not make the sacred and learned calling a sine qua non for a Chaplaincy; neither does the Royal Arch for Third Principal. Again let me explain that I do not intend carrying this communication to the same ridiculous length of verbosity as Bro. Bedolfe. I have not the time, and if I had, I am afraid the matter would be utterly wasted on a sceptic, who, I grieve to say, has so far committed himself as to hold intercourse with the interdicted Grand Orient of France, forgetful of the resolution passed by the Grand Lodge of England some months ago. I trust the members of his lodge and chapter will bring him promptly over the coals for so grave an irregularity.

But, revenons à nos moutons. The only point in Bro. Bedolfe's epistles needing any reply is his assertion that the antiquity of the Mark Degree is a myth, and incapable of proof. That I willingly admit, in the ocular demonstrative sense he drives at; but, I would ask Bro. Bedolfe whether that self-same argument does not hold equally good with Craft Masonry, including the Royal Arch? The evidence of antiquity, allowed, is only inferential; and I opine our brother's opposition to the Mark Degree savours too much of malice. Where can Bro. Bedolfe, or anyone else, produce better evidence as to the origin of Craft and Arch Masonry, than that freely accepted re the Mark Degree. Why, sir and brother, the Royal Arch (of which I see your correspondent is a P.Z.), was comparatively unknown in England till towards the last three decades of the eighteenth century, and, was, in fact, tabooed and discountenanced for years by the Grand Lodge of Moderns, just in the same way as the United Grand Lodge refuses acknowledgment of the Mark Degree now. Then again, in Ireland, Scotland, and America, the Mark Degree is the stepping-stone to the Royal Arch, and therein we cannot find a more appropriate corollary to the Fellow Craft and Master Mason's Degrees.

Bro. Bedolfe's sneer at the late Bro. Oliver's veracity is amusing, to put the mildest and most charitable construction upon it, and I will only add, that I think that ninety-nine out of every hundred Masonic students in England, where the Mark Degree is presented, will stand the old doctor, in preference to the erratic obscurity Bro. Bedolfe appears to delight in making himself. The fact is, Bro. Bedolfe, before you pooh-pooh the history of Mark Masonry, you had better take up Craft Masonry, ab initio, and I suspect the task will turn out one beyond your capabilities.

Let me lastly assure Bro. Bedolfe, that he will hear no more from me on the subject, which, sir and brother, with all due deference to your editorial self, I may submit, may be carried beyond the bounds of prudence, in even a Masonic newspaper.

I am, yours fraternally,

W. F. LAMONBY, W.M.
Lodge 229, M.M.M.

MARK MASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason"

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Like many other Mark Masons I have been much amused at the virulence and lack of knowledge displayed by your correspondent "W. Viner Bedolfe, M.D., &c." in his attack on Bro. Lamonby, as well as his impatience under the criticism of "Ecce Signum." If Bro. Bedolfe had been a Mark Mason his original remarks might have been worth attention, but I presume that Bro. Lamonby regarded with equal indifference and equanimity the not very politely worded assaults of an outsider, if, indeed, he read them at all. It is truly amusing to see one who manifestly takes a pride in being able to sign himself a P.M. and a P.Z. expressing disbelief in the history of every branch of Masonry save the "Craft," and claiming for the "Craft" alone any historic value. We are all as anxious as possible to prove for Masonry an existence from "time immemorial," and yet although we have had for a century and a half many able heads and pers engaged in the task we have completely failed to make out a plain case. I can scarcely suppose that Bro. Bedolfe is prepared to affirm the fables of Anderson and Preston, and as far as I can see all the efforts of Fort, Findel, Hughan, and others have proved nothing whatever beyond the beginning of the 18th century, save that the operative Masonic guilds, like all other guilds, received persons as patrons or "honorary" members. It is plain from existing minutes that "Mark Masonry" was practised very shortly after the "revival" in 1717; then why should Bro. Bedolfe call the Craft legends, teachings, and workings "noble," and stigmatise the Mark ditto as untrue, absurd, &c.?

As Bro. Bedolfe has by his dictatorial and pragmatical style taken upon himself to a certain extent the role of censor, it might be well to remind him that the first duty of the preacher is to appear before his audience with clean hands, and after your correspondent's gross infraction, by his own showing, of the direct commands of our M.W. Grand Master to hold no Masonic communication with the Grand Orient of France, I would respectfully suggest to Bro. Bedolfe, M.D.—Physician heal thyself.

Fraternally yours,

A P.M. OF A TIME IMMEMORIAL MARK LODGE.

ORIGINAL RESEARCH.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The last memorandum with which you favoured me, having stated that enquiries has been made as to when "Original Research" would be published, I beg to say for their information that it will not be until next spring when I trust it will appear, not as a pamphlet, but as a book, for presentation, in boards, clear type, good margin, that it will contain about twenty chapters, and the two ancient pictures formerly mentioned. The chapters will of course facilitate references, and give a bird's eye view of its contents. The price should increase with these advantages, but remains stationary at one shilling. This information should attract subscribers, and all whose sole faith is in God, the Grand Architect of the Universe, will be gratified to learn that the science restores the lost knowledge of the keys not only to the Masonic Order, but to all orders of educated men who have the moral courage to think for themselves.

Fraternally yours,

WM. N. CRAWFORD.

The British Consul at Jeddah states that in the season 1877-78 there were 42,718 pilgrims landed at that port, an increase of nearly 4000 over the preceding year, but this was more than counterbalanced by a falling off in the number at Yembo and Let. The Haj having fallen on a Friday, the Mahomedan Sabbath, it was expected that the assemblage at Mecca would have eclipsed that of preceding years, but it was not so. The concourse at Mecca on the great feast day was estimated to have exceeded 180,000 souls.

A reporter of the New York Herald has visited Mr. Edison, with a view of learning something about that gentleman's electric light. He says that "the light is to be of the batwing, fifteen-candle power character. To kindle it a little spring is touched, and instantly the electricity does its work. The amount of light can be regulated in the same way as can that from gas. To turn off the light the spring is again touched, and instantly all is darkness." The reporter also says that the present gas fixtures will be used to hold the wire.

CONSECRATION OF THE IVANHOE LODGE, No. 1779.

The new Masonic Hall, Sheffield, was on Tuesday, Oct. 29th, the scene of a busy gathering, the occasion being the consecration of a forth lodge in the town, under the novel title of the Ivanhoe.

We may remark en passant that a little novelty in lodge nomenclature is to be heartily welcomed.

W. Bro. Tew, J.P., D.P.G.M. of West Yorkshire, assisted by nearly the whole of the P.G. Officers, performed the ceremony of consecration in his usual impressive style, whilst the effect was further enhanced by the admirable manner in which Bro. C. Harvey, P.G.O., and his staff rendered the musical portion.

The Rev. Bro. W. Collins Lukis, P.G.C.; delivered the following oration, which commended itself specially to the brethren for the very intelligent and thoughtful spirit in which the author dealt, though at no great length, with two prominent subjects of discussion in the Craft.

I shall occupy your time for a few moments only, because another interesting ceremony is about to demand your attention. I shall, therefore, allude to two topics merely, which, in my estimation, and I am confident in your estimation also, are of vital importance to the present well-being and future interests of the Craft. One relates to Masonic faith and its fruits; the other to lodge practice; and I am encouraged in the course I propose to take by the reflection that the founders of this new lodge are well-educated men and able Masons, who have a desire to maintain, and hand on to others, the principles of the institution in all their truth, purity, and fulness. By them, I trust, I shall be acquitted of any intention to sermonize. 1. The Freemasons of the United Kingdom were startled a short while ago by the revolutionary decision of a certain continental Grand Lodge to change the fundamental faith of the Order. This action is of so fatal a character to the best interests of Masons, whether in their individual or in their corporate capacities, that it is wise in our assemblies to direct attention to it. I think, sir, that it is wise to make especial reference to it, on an occasion like the present, because if new lodges are to be continually added to the roll—if the splendid institution to which we owe allegiance is to prosper now, and in the future, that prosperity and permanent stability must rest upon loyalty to the grand principles which has so long a time symbolized in our midst, and have been the guiding star of the Craft. We have been taught that Masonry is an universal temple, of which true and faithful brethren are the lively stones which externally contribute to its beauty. But we have been taught also that its internal and real glory is due to the Supreme Divine Architect, who is enthroned over all, and fills the temple with the effulgent light of His attributes. If, however, the outside world is to be convinced that the principles of Masonry are of divine origin, and pure, and its requirements just, it will be by our clinging to this faith, and practising out of the lodge that which we are taught within it. My brethren, I trust we are all proud, in a proper sense, of the high distinction which proclaims us to be the polished stones of the human family, who possess liberty of belief in that license, and wholesome regulations which join us together in a harmonious bond for active usefulness without offence to the conscience of any one. All of you, no doubt, remember what was the one especial virtue which shone forth in the lives of ancient believers, of whom their vigilant enemies remarked "behold! how they love one another!" These men endeavoured to practise what they had learned. Heaven-taught love was their distinguishing characteristic. Virtue, honour and mercy, or in one word brotherly love, divinely inspired, is ours. Love, and its practical exercise, commended them in the eyes of their adversaries, and if Masonry is to fulfil the work for which it is intended, it will be by a firm adherence to the ancient landmarks of the Order, by a close conformity, by modest and correct demeanour both within and without the walls of the lodge, and by a careful maintenance in their fullest splendour, of those truly Masonic ornaments—benevolence and charity. But in order that Masons may attain to all this, it is desirable that they should have the opportunities of acquiring that knowledge which will fit them to do so; and this leads me to the second topic. It has been truly said, with respect to Masonic education that intelligent men cannot be carried through the various degrees without receiving impressions of mental and moral, social and relative obligations; that to this end, at each step of their advancement, they should be instructed in those principles which will assist them in the building up of their manhood; and that it is only where there is any neglect in the teaching that individuals fail to comprehend the elevating and advancing character of the institution, and never grow into a living Masonic temple. One word then on the subject which relates to a section of Masonic work which is too often made a secondary consideration, and is allowed to take in the minds of many candidates a lower place than bodily refreshment. I allude to the too frequent omission of the Ancient Charges and Lectures on the Tracing Boards, including the Fifteen Sections of the Lectures. The Charges are, perhaps, less often omitted than the Lectures, but is it not a rare thing in country lodges to hear the First and Second Tracing Boards explained? and is not their omission, in many instances, owing to a desire not to curtail the expected social gathering? I am aware that liberty to omit them is accorded, if time will not permit; but I presume that this liberty was not intended to make any part of Masonic instruction in the lodge subordinate to refreshment. These Lectures, delivered intelligently, accurately, and modestly, are of inestimable value to young and old Masons alike, and it is a grievous loss when they are persistently omitted. They set forth most clearly the true principles of Masonry, and the significance of much that is very puzzling to beginners. They qualify men for office, and especially for the highest and most responsible position in the lodge. I will not take up any of your time by presuming to enumerate the numerous methods by which so detrimental a practice as that to which I have alluded may be obviated and dislodged; they will naturally suggest themselves to your own minds. But I will conclude with the expression of my belief that the founders of this new lodge are deeply impressed with the truth, that the prosperity of a lodge does not depend upon its numbers, but on the high moral and intellectual tone which should pervade the body. May the title and the device of the shield borne on your banners, by its simple argent field, ever serve to remind you who have adopted them of honour and purity, the alleviation of distress, and chivalry in the protection and defence of innocence. Be assured of our earnest hope that, both with regard to the present intended rulers of the Ivanhoe Lodge, and their successors in office to the end of time, the words, (with our interpolated word) of the Lady Rowena, when conferring the reward of chivalry upon the victorious son of Cedric the Saxon, may be always true: "Upon brows more worthy could a wreath of [Masonic] chivalry never be placed."

The ceremony of consecration being ended, that of installation was next taken in hand by Bro. Ensor Drury, P.M. 296, P.G.W.; and his manner of performing the duties of Installing Officer is too well known in the province to require commendation.

The first W.M. is Bro. A. Hay, P.M. 139, P.G.S.B.; a veteran in the Craft, whose genial disposition has always secured the respect and friendship of young and old alike. Under such auspices the Ivanhoe may be fairly expected to be as prosperous as the sister lodges. Bros. Gatty and Radford, were appointed S. and J. Wardens respectively, Bros. Wright, Jos. Brailsford, Owen Gilbert Hay, J. A. Brailsford and Cooke, were appointed to the other offices.

About eighty brethren afterwards dined in the banquetting room of the hall.

DEDICATION OF A MASONIC HALL AT SHIPLEY.

The following is a copy of the address presented to the M.W. Pro Grand Master, the Right Hon. Earl of Carnarvon:—

Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master—The brethren of this lodge, being animated with a desire to promote the interests of Freemasonry, have caused these premises to be erected for their convenience and accommodation. They are wishful, should the various arrangements meet with your lordship's approval and that of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, that the building should be solemnly dedicated to the purposes of our Order, according to the ancient usages of the Craft; and that your lordship will formally declare it open on this auspicious occasion. My lord, with sentiments of the heartiest welcome, the Worshipful Master and brethren of the Airedale Lodge, No. 387, humbly beg your lordship to accept their most sincere and grateful thanks for the honour your lordship has condescended to do them by consenting to be present and take part in the ceremonies of this day. The reality and worldwide usefulness of Freemasonry is sufficiently testified by its continual spread throughout all lands, and is especially identified in our own favoured country by the results of those labours which proceed from brotherly love. In this visit of your lordship we are proud to recognise and acknowledge a noble example of that first grand principle of Freemasonry, which cannot fail to support and animate us in all our Masonic duties. Although occupying so deservedly high and distinguished a position, no doubt your lordship finds a pleasure in being present; and associated as your lordship's noble name will henceforth be with this lodge, it will also continually remind us, as members, to take especial care that the Airedale may be always worthy of the distinguished honour conferred upon it. One and all the brethren of this lodge feel (so magnanimous has been your lordship's kindness) that no words can adequately express their sentiments of gratitude towards your lordship, and they pray that by the providence of the Great Architect of the Universe your lordship may long be spared to devote to Freemasonry that love and attachment to our illustrious institution, which, we believe, have entirely influenced your lordship to come amongst us, in so generous a manner, on this occasion. We most cordially wish your lordship health, prosperity, and happiness; and trust that this visit to Airedale will not be the least pleasurable of your lordship's Masonic experiences; but that your lordship will always be able to look back upon the proceedings of this day with feelings of unalloyed satisfaction.

In response to the toast of "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master," which was most enthusiastically received with loud and continuous cheering, his lordship said:—Worshipful Sir and brethren—It is with no common feeling of satisfaction I find myself here to-day; and it is also a great satisfaction to meet with so hearty a welcome. If there was one circumstance that could have pleased me more than another it is the pleasure of having my health proposed by one of the oldest members of the Airedale Lodge; by one whom I am quite willing to accept as a representative brother. I thank the Airedale Lodge most heartily for their invitation; I thank the representatives of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire who have attended here to-day; and I thank all those representative brethren who have come to join in the interesting ceremony of to-day and to assist in giving me so hearty a welcome. I, too, share the regrets that have already been expressed of the lack of accommodation; but I rejoice to see so many here present. My knowledge of Yorkshire is, as yet, small, yet it is such as to teach me that no plainer, franker speaking people lived than Yorkshire people, none who could give so hearty a welcome.

The county possessed some of the best temporal gifts which God could send. Brethren, I cannot lay claim to an extended age in Masonry, as some around me can, but since I have been enrolled in its ranks I have taken considerable interest in its welfare. I can truly say I have never known the Craft in so prosperous a position. We are wealthy, we are powerful; we are free from internal strife; and that is a condition of which all who are in authority ought to be justly proud. May I qualify that remark, however, with one word of counsel, in a homely saying, "that times of prosperity are times of anxiety and watchfulness." Our strength lies not in the number, or the wealth of our members; it rather lies in our maintaining intact the great principles of Freemasonry, in standing steadfast to its great and good landmarks, in acting in whatever sphere we move, in our corporate and private capacities, honestly and honourably to its precepts. I am glad to have made your acquaintance to-day, and I shall carry away with me a lively recollection of to-day's ceremony and of your truly fraternal welcome. I trust the day may not be far distant when I may have another opportunity of speaking to you (loud cheers), not then as a half stranger, but as an old friend. One reason that takes me away so soon and so hurriedly to-day is that I am going to see your late Provincial Grand Master, the Marquis of Ripon. He is an old and dear friend of mine. No one felt more deeply the loss we sustained by his secession from our Order than I. After many periods of doubts and anxiety did he decide on the action he took, and although I have no sympathy with his action, yet I believe he acted honestly and conscientiously to his convictions.

I am sure, brethren, it will be a source of satisfaction to him to know, as it is to me, that though his Masonic brethren disagreed with the action he took he had not forfeited their esteem. Allow me again to thank you, and I hope soon to meet you again. (Loud and continued applause.)

His lordship again rose, and said: I rise to give you the sentiment "Success to the New Hall." To no one could that task be more acceptable. May all the good omens which form a part of that strikingly interesting ceremony in which we have to-day taken part be accomplished in this lodge. May the oil of kindly feeling and brotherly goodwill ever make smooth the differences and dissensions our natures are prone to; may the grain, the symbol of plenty, indicate the combined growth and prosperity of your lodge; and may the salt, which symbolises "the feast of reason and the flow of soul," make your Masonic meetings pleasant and attractive. Accept my every good wish for your prosperity.

The toasts of "The Visitors," "The Worshipful Master," "Past Masters," "The Building Committee," "The Secretary," "The Musical Committee," and last of all "All Poor and Distressed," brought this red-letter day in the annals of Airedale Lodge to a truly harmonious and happy termination.

LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

A special general meeting of this Association was held on Thursday, at Freemasons' Tavern, Col. Creton in the chair. There were also present Bros. C. J. Perceval, Treasurer; Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, and A. Tisley, Secretaries; J. H. Southwood, Arthur E. Gladwell, Charles Atkins, E. Mallett, Thomas Smith, and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bros. E. J. Jolliffe, Aldersgate Lodge; W. P. Webb, J.D. 138; and W. Dudson, were elected members of the Association.

An alteration was made in the bye-laws to the effect that when the funds in the hands of the Treasurer amounted to £50, a donation should be given to one of the three Institutions, the votes for which were to be in the name of the Association. Another alteration was made as to the day of annual meeting. The annual subscriptions to be payable on the 1st of May. Another alteration was made, giving members of the Association power to make suggestions.

At the election of officers Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford was elected Chairman of the Association, on the motion of Bro. Perceval, seconded by Bro. Mallett. Bro. Perceval was re-elected Treasurer, on the motion of Bro. Woodford, seconded by Bro. Gladwell. On the motion of Bro. Southwood, seconded by Bro. C. Atkins, Bro. Erasmus Wilson, and the Rev. Dr. Brette, were re-elected Vice-Chairmen. Bro. Tisley was re-elected Secretary on the motion of Bro. Woodford, seconded by Bro. Southwood; Bro. James Willing was elected second Secretary. The Auditors elected were Bros. Gladwell and Southwood.

The following brethren were appointed the Committee:—A. J. Altman, C. Atkins, J. W. Baldwin, A. Barfield, G. Graham Bell, T. Benskin, W. Bristo, A. Brookman, W. S. Chapman, H. W. Dalwood, J. Faulkner, W. H. Froom, J. Glaisher, E. J. Goodacre, C. G. Gumpel, C. G. Hill, Dr. Jabez Hogg, J. Hollocombe, C. Horsley, G. Jones, G. Kenning, C. Lacey, S. F. Littell, E. Mallett, J. G. Marsh, H. Massey, W. Maxwell, T. Murley, W. J. Murris, J. Newton, J. B. Poole, T. Preston, Dr. F. W. H. Ramsay, H. H. Riach, S. Rosenthal, W. H. Saunders, W. D. Slyman, T. Smith, A. Treadwell, F. Tyerman, G. F. J. Warne, J. H. Watts, E. B. Webb, J. Webb, J. White, S. White.

Bro. Perceval reported that as Treasurer he had in bank £18 3s. 2d. and £3 he had received that day.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman for presiding concluded the proceedings.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Methuen has been presented with a handsome pair of candelabra by the brethren of Wilts, on the completion of his 25th year of office as Provincial Grand Master of Wiltshire.

Obituary.

BRO. J. BOND-CABELL.

Bro. J. Bond-Cabell died at his residence, Cromer Hall, on Friday, in his 71st year. He had been ailing for some time, but not sufficiently to prevent him from leading an active life. On the previous Sunday serious symptoms set in, and Mr. Cadge was summoned, and notwithstanding that gentleman's assiduous care, Bro. Cabell died on Friday from congestion of the lungs. He came into possession of the Cromer Hall Estate on the death of his uncle, the late Bro. Benjamin Bond-Cabell, R.W.G.M. of Norfolk, in 1874, and he also took possession of the property that is situated in the neighbourhood of Chapel-street, Marylebone—property which the late Bro. Benjamin Bond-Cabell declared should not be tenanted during his life-time, he having had some dispute with the parish authorities respecting certain improvements. Bro. J. Bond-Cabell greatly improved the Cromer Hall Estate, and was foremost in supporting the various enterprises that were started with a view of benefiting the neighbourhood of Cromer. He held a high position among the Freemasons of Norfolk, was a D.L., and as a J.P., a constant attendant on the Cromer bench; he was also Chairman of the Cromer Gas and Waterworks Companies, and a liberal subscriber to religious and philanthropic societies. Deceased was born in Edinburgh in 1807. He married in 1838, Margaret, eldest daughter of H. Dewar, Esq., by whom he had five children, four of whom survive him—B. J. Cabell, Esq.; Margaret, wife of H. Hamilton, Esq.; Mary, wife of H. Jameson, Esq.; and Miss Georgina Cabell. The funeral took place on Wednesday at Cromer Cemetery privately, Rev. F. Fitch, vicar, officiating; nevertheless many personal friends showed their esteem by attending—these included Sir I. F. Buxton, Mr. Upcher, Mr. Mott, Mr. Cremer, Colonel Duff, M.P., Mr. T. F. Buxton, Mr. R. Gurney, Rev. Feilden, Rev. Beauchamp, Rev. Richards, Rev. Simpson (Overstrand), Rev. Mills, Rev. Sayers, Dr. McKelvie, Mr. Fluder, Mr. R. S. Baker, Mr. Jas. Cooper, Mr. T. W. Field, Mr. B. Rust, Mr. Hugo Greenwell, of London, Mr. Keith, Mr. John Arnold, and others. A large number of inhabitants and deceased's tenants also assembled to pay the last tribute of respect.—Norwich Argus.

BRO. JOHN BOSWORTH.

It is our painful duty to record the death of Bro. John Bosworth, P.M., Treas. of the Granite Lodge, 1328, which took place on the 17th ult., very suddenly, from apoplexy. He had been complaining of a shock to his nervous system from a railway accident, in which he unfortunately was early in September, but it did not prevent his attending to his professional duties up to the very minute of his death, which was instantaneous. He was initiated into Masonry in 1858, in All Soul's Lodge, 170, Weymouth, and exalted to the Royal Arch in the chapter attached to his lodge in 1859, and served the office of W.M. in 1861, and M.E.Z. in 1863. He was also P.P.G. J.W. in the Province of Dorsetshire. Bro. Bosworth did not confine himself to Craft Masonry, but was a distinguished member of the Weymouth Rose Croix Chapter, and Knights Templar Encampment in that town, in 1862. He also took the Mark Master Masons' Degree in 1865. During a lengthened stay in Colchester, he joined the Angel Lodge, No. 51, and was elected W.M. and subsequently Treasurer of that lodge. The Masons of Malta, both Royal Arch and Craft, will long remember his five years' sojourn there, when he became an active and zealous member of the lodge and chapter of St. John and St. Paul, No. 349. On returning to England he joined the Granite Lodge, which had not been long in existence, and twelve months ago was elected Treasurer, which office he filled to the great satisfaction of the members. Bro. Bosworth was one of those members of the Craft who had lived up to its tenets, and who devoted himself in a quiet unobtrusive way to the benefit of others. It may be truly said of him, "He did good by stealth, and blushed to find it fame."

BRO. GEORGE WOODLEY.

Star of the East Lodge, No. 880.

Brethren who annually visit the "hyacinthine isle," as E. A. Poe calls the Island of Zante, in the Mediterranean, will miss a familiar face; Bro. George Woodley is no more, he departed this life in the middle of last month, and thus a distinguished and useful Masonic career has been cut short, for our late brother was scarcely in his fortieth year.

The Woodley's hail from Devonshire, but have been long established in the Ionian Islands, and are looked upon by the Greeks as one of their own family.

Our lamented brother was a special favourite with the people, and his loss is much felt. His benevolence was proverbial, and the Star of the East Lodge will not only lose a good worker but an officer which will be difficult to replace.

BRO. JOHN GREEN.

We regret to record the death of Bro. John Green, of Church-street, Whitby, for many years identified with the public life of the borough. Bro. Green expired on Sunday afternoon, at his residence, Albion-terrace, after only a few weeks' illness. For many years in succession Bro. Green has been nominated as Parishioners' Churchwarden, and his regular attendance at the Parish Church for the performance of his official duties was only one among other indications that he did not regard as a sinecure any office which he undertook. He was first elected Churchwarden by the Whitby Vestry in 1853, and held office until 1854, when he retired. He was elected again in 1868, and continued in office until his death.

Bro. Green was also an ex-Town Commissioner and a member of the Burial Board, and in these and other capacities he had served the public well, without party spirit or sectarian feeling. He was likewise President of the Whitby Union Mill Provident and Industrial Society Limited.

As a Freemason and a member of the Lion Lodge, Whitby, No. 312, Bro. Green was honourably distinguished among the brethren. He was initiated into Masonry in the Lion Lodge in 1848, and was thus one of its senior members. In 1860, after fulfilling the duties of the subordinate, offices with fidelity, he was elevated to the highest position that of W.M., by the suffrages of his brethren. In that arduous situation he displayed superior qualifications, and exemplified high Masonic excellence. He was subsequently Treasurer to the lodge; and the counsel and aid of few Past Masters have been more constantly valued than those of Bro. Past Master John Green.

The funeral took place on Wednesday, 30th ult. Despite the heavy rain, a large number of deceased gentleman's fellow townsmen followed the cortege, to pay a last tribute of respect to his memory. There was also a very numerous gathering of the members of the Lion Lodge, including the W.M., Bro. John Stevenson, many of the Past Masters, and most of the officers for the present year, who walked in procession to the cemetery, and rendered the last Masonic honours to their departed brother at the tomb. The bearers were mostly Past Masters of the Lion Lodge, viz., Bros. J. Stevenson, W.M., P.M. (and deceased's brother Churchwarden); T. Turnbull, J.P., P.M.; W. Stonehouse, P.M.; S. Reed, P.M.; J. N. Lawson, P.M.; W. H. Marwood, P.M.; W. H. Falkingbridge, P.M.; and Bros. T. Smailes and T. Wilson, two brethren of very long standing in the fraternity to which the deceased consistently adhered and was sincerely attached. The other members of the Craft stood uncovered on each side of the footpath as the coffin was borne into the chapel, and from thence to the grave. The Rev. George Austen, Rector of Whitby, read the burial service in the chapel and at the grave in a very impressive manner, and many seemed moved by the unostentatious solemnity of the proceedings.

During the funeral the flag on St. Mary's Church tower was lowered to "half-mast high," and the sound of the mourning peals issued forth from the belfry.—Whitby Times.

BRO. JOHN LEMON, P.M. and P.Z., No. 327.

We regret having to announce the death of Bro. John Lemon, one of the oldest and most prominent members of the Craft in the county of Cumberland. Bro. Lemon was initiated in St. John's Lodge, No. 327, Wigton, on April 3rd, 1833, in his 24th year, and was W.M. of his mother lodge on several occasions. He was exalted in St. John's Chapter, attached to St. John's Lodge, No. 327, Wigton, on Feb. 22nd, 1834, and was First Principal many times. He was a P.P.G.S.W. of Cumberland and Westmorland, and up to last September, during a period of twelve years, was the able and energetic P.G. Treasurer, when in consequence of failing health he tendered his resignation, much to the regret of every member of the province. On the formation of the Provincial Chapter for Cumberland and Westmorland, last year, the Earl of Bective, P.G. Supt., appointed Bro. Lemon P.G. Reg. Bro. Lemon, as head of the firm of Lemon and Pattison, was long in business in Wigton, as a woollen manufacturer, and about two years ago he withdrew from commercial pursuits, to settle down in Penrith, and pass the remainder of his days with his daughter. Thoroughly broken down in health, our late brother passed peacefully away on the 30th ult., at the age of 68 years. His remains were brought to Wigton, on Saturday, the 2nd inst., and the interment took place at the cemetery there. The Chapter of St. John on that day held their annual convocation, and, after the ordinary business had been disposed of, the companions, accompanied by several others and brethren from different parts of the province, followed their late revered brother to his long home. Bro. Lemon was the very personification of good-heartedness and geniality, whether in Masonic or business circles, a thorough gentleman, whether in deportment or disposition; and every stranger who met him for the first time, ever afterwards had lively recollections of his kindness and bonhomie. It may be added that Bro. Lemon was one of the Stewards of his province, on the occasion of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, in 1875. His portrait, in chromo, was also published some years back, and most of the lodges in the province possess a copy.—Fale.

BRO. KENNING'S INTERNATIONAL BANQUET.

Bro. Mucklé, one of the guests, and Editor, we believe, of the "Philadelphia Ledger," alludes to it in the "Ledger" of October 19th., in complimentary terms, so that by that time all our good American brethren and friends were perfectly safe at home again, after their long and interesting tour. We wish them all health and happiness. As we have before mentioned, a most interesting and successful home-gathering took place to welcome the wandering Knights of St. Mary's Commandery. We have also heard from Bro. C. E. Meyer.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Wrongs made Right.—Every day that any bodily suffering is permitted to continue renders it more certain to become chronic or dangerous. Holloway's purifying, cooling, and strengthening Pills are well adapted for any irregularity of the human body, and should be taken when the stomach is disordered, the liver deranged, the kidneys inactive, the bowels torpid, or the brain muddled. With this medicine every invalid can cure himself, and those who are weak and infirm through imperfect digestion, may make themselves strong and stout by Holloway's excellent Pills. A few doses of them usually mitigate the most painful symptoms caused by undigested food, from which they thoroughly free the alimentary canal, and completely restore its natural power and action.—[ADVT.]

Masonic and General Tidings.

THE ROYAL PRINCES AND THE A. AND A. RITE.—On Wednesday last, the 6th inst., their R. Highnesses the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold were advanced to the Thirty-third Degree, at the head-quarters of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, 33, Golden-square, W., in the presence of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, 33°, Grand Patron of the Order. The ceremony was performed by Lord Skelmersdale, 33°, the Sovereign Grand Commander, assisted by the other members of the Supreme Council 33°. A full report will appear in our next.

The consecration of the Brixton Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 233, takes place this (Saturday) afternoon, at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, at half-past three precisely. The ceremony will be performed by V.W. Bro. F. Binckes, P.G.J.W., G. Sec., assisted by Bro. Donald Dewar, G. Asst. Sec. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next issue.

The Shipwrights Company and Bro. Sheriff Burt requested the National Lifeboat Institution to allow one of its lifeboats to take a part in the Lord Mayor's procession. Some years ago Bro. Sheriff Burt took an active part in the formation of the Lifeboat Station at Swanage, on the coast of Dorset.

The discovery of a new island in the Polar Seas is announced by the following telegram from Tromsø:—"E. Johannessen, who has just returned there, reports that he penetrated a considerable distance to the east, beyond Novaja Zemlja. On September 3, in longitude 66 East and 77-35 North latitude, he discovered an island which he has named "Ensomheden" (loneliness). It is about ten miles long, and level, the highest point not exceeding 100 feet. It was free from snow, with poor vegetation, but an immense quantity of birds. The sea was free from ice towards the north, and south, but drift ice was seen towards the south-east. There was evidence that the Gulf Stream touched the west coast of the island; the Stream runs in a strong current round the north coast towards the south-east. Everything about the ice was favourable for navigation so long as the vessel did not go too near the mainland of Siberia." The newly-discovered island lies, therefore, somewhat to the south-east of the region visited by the Austrian Expedition of 1873-4.

The Supreme Council of Italy (See at Torino) of the Thirty-third and last Degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, nominated by acclamation on the 12th of October, His Imperial Highness the Prince Rhododanakis, of Scio, 33°, Sovereign Grand Commander of the Supreme Council for Greece, and an honorary member of that for Scotland, for Ireland, for the southern jurisdiction of the United States, &c., to be an honorary member of that Council for life.

YORKSHIRE WEST.—We should have been happy to report the proceedings of the installation of our esteemed companion Sir H. Edwards, as P.G. Superintendent, but as no companion has had the courtesy to send us either an official or even a published report, we are unable to do so.

The arrangements for the visit to Liverpool of the Governor-General of Canada, and their Royal Highnesses the Princess Louise, the Duke of Connaught, and Prince Leopold, are nearly matured. The Royal party will arrive on the morning of 14th inst. They will proceed to the Adelphi Hotel for a brief rest, and will then proceed to the Town Hall, where addresses will be presented to the Marquis of Lorne. The Royal party will drive to the landing-stage, where the Dock Board's steam tender, the Vigilant, will be waiting to convey them on board the Allan steamer Sarmatian. The tender will remain in attendance on the Sarmatian until she is just about to leave, and will convey the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold back to the shore.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Carnarvon, on Tuesday night, inaugurated the lecture season of the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution by the delivery of a lecture on "Imperial Administration."

Will any brother kindly send the Editor of this paper a copy of Loomis' "Masonic and Musical Journal" for October, 1877.

Although the "Princess Alice" Fund at the Mansion House reached the high figure of £37,000, it has all been expended or be-poken. Besides the grants to widows, widowers, and dependent relatives, several admissions into orphanages have been purchased for children at a cost of between £15,000 and £16,000.

The installation meeting of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642, will be held at the Ladbroke Hall, Ladbroke Grove-road, Notting-hill, on Thursday next, Bro. Samuel H. Parkhouse is the W.M. elect.

On Sunday, prior to his departure from Paris, the Prince of Wales presented to Inspector Giles, of the London Police, and to Sergeant Wright, of the Royal Engineers, valuable gold watches as mementoes of his appreciation of their zeal and of the valuable services rendered by them during the Exhibition. The gifts were, says Galignani; rendered doubly welcome by the kind and gracious words with which the presentation was accompanied, and by the fact that the portrait of his Royal Highness has been set in the back of each watch.

Colonel Henderson has issued a notice warning publicans that all Christmas draws for geese, &c., are illegal, and that offenders will be prosecuted.

The Subject of the Crayon Portrait, with a biographical sketch, in next week's Whitehall Review will be Lady Zetland.

Mr. Henry Labouchere's portrait and biography appears in this day's Touchstone.

Bro. T. J. Sabine, P.G.S.B. Middx., was elected, after a sharp contest, on Friday week, to represent the Pavilion Ward in the Town Council of Brighton, although the opposition against him was very marked, having come forward as an independent candidate, our brother was returned at the head of the poll. It was generally anticipated that the poll would be a close one, but the result was a great surprise, and created considerable excitement when announced.

A Provincial Grand Lodge of Wiltshire was held at the Town Hall, Swindon, on Friday. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

BRETHREN AND MUNICIPAL HONOURS.—Bro. W. J. Lunt, P.M. and Treas. of the Everton Lodge, No. 823; Bro. T. H. Sheen, S.W. of the Merchants Lodge, No. 241; and Bro. Joseph Ball, of St. John's Lodge, No. 673, were, on the 1st inst., successful in their candidature for municipal honours in the Town Council of Liverpool. There are now about a dozen brethren who occupy places in the Council, as members for various wards in Liverpool.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW LODGE.—As we briefly announced last week, the consecration of the Kirkdale Lodge, No. 756, was fixed to take place at the Skelmersdale Hall, Liverpool, yesterday (Friday) afternoon, by Bro. the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., R.W.P. G.M. West Lancashire. A report of the interesting proceedings will appear next week.

We are asked to state that the meetings of the Doric Chapter of Instruction No. 933, are held regularly at Comp. Yetton's 248, Globe-road, Mile End-road, every Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

The members of the Nelson Dramatic Club will give their fifth performance, under the immediate patronage of the Right Hon. W. N. Massey, M.P., and Bro. Capt. Charles Mercier, on Saturday next, the 16th inst., in aid of the funds of St. John's Hospital for Diseases of the Skin, Leicester Square. The performance will commence at 7 o'clock, at St. George's Hall, Langham-place, Regent-street, and will terminate about 10.30.

At the annual meeting of the members of the Lincolnshire Agricultural Society, held at Lincoln on Friday week, the Marquess of Exeter was unanimously elected chairman of the society for the year ensuing. The meeting concluded after voting cordial thanks to the retiring chairman, Bro. W. H. Smyth, R.W.G.M., Lincolnshire.

The Post Office authorities state that information has been received from the French Post-office that the French packets leaving Bordeaux on the 5th of each month will for the present cease to call at Rio de Janeiro on the outward voyage. Under these circumstances, no mails for Brazil will be made up in London for conveyance by these packets until further notice.

GERMAN FREEMASONRY.—The Prussian Masonic lodges celebrated on the 5th inst. the twenty-fifth anniversary of the initiation of the Crown Prince of Germany, now Grand Master of the German Freemasons. The Tribune, of Berlin, states that when the Crown Prince was presented for initiation in 1853 by his father, then the Prince of Prussia (heir presumptive to the throne), there appeared in the Vossische Zeitung an article commenting on this event. The President of the Berlin police had the editor before him, and used all possible threats for the purpose of making him name the author of the article. The editor said that he should first have the author's consent. On the following day he informed the president of police that the Prince of Prussia was the author of the article. The story is characteristic enough of much that exists in Prussia.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Mr. Samuel Phelps, the tragedian, died on Wednesday, at Epping, from congestion of the brain.

The Prince of Wales will be the guest of Mrs. Gerard Leigh at Luton Hoo from December 2nd to the 6th. There is said to be three days' shooting, a county ball on the 5th, and visit to Luton, with the inspection of two of its chief manufactories, on the 6th.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The November meeting of the above lodge was held on the 1st inst. The members present were Bro. Henry Legge, W.M.; Edward Jones, I.P.M.; Thomas Cobu, P.M.; Rickwood, J.W.; George Kenning, P.M., Treas.; George Abbott, P.M., Sec.; Lucas, S.D.; Wm. Cotter, Henry Morris, H. A. Carter, Thos. Fisher, R. J. Dait, C. E. Sparrow, Jno. Guy, J. Cook, Wm. Regan, Charles Arkell, H. A. Pratt, J. Fraser, Thomas Agutter, and George Borr. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. Norris, Fraser, and Pollett were passed to the Second Degree. A ballot was taken for Mr. W. S. Cobb, Mr. Geo. Cook, and Mr. Jas. E. Groves, and proved unanimous in their favour. Mr. Wm. Simms Cobb and Mr. George Peter Cook being present, were initiated in the First Degree. Notice of motion was given that five guineas be contributed from the lodge funds to the Wentworth Little Memorial Fund, and three guineas to the Chambers Testimonial Fund.

ROYAL STANDARD LODGE (No. 1298).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Wellington Club, Islington, on Tuesday, the 5th inst., when there were present Bros. W. H. Cohen, W.M.; Gladwell, S.W.; Hunter, J.W.; Bigley, Sec.; Allison, Treas.; Buderus and Stevens, Deacons; and the rest of the officers. Visitors: Bros. A. W. Duret, W.M. of the Amherst Lodge, and Bro. Max. Sabel, of the Athenæum Lodge. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes read and confirmed, after which the ballot was taken for Bro. Wesley Marshall of the Lodge Commercial, Glasgow, No. 360, as a joining member, which proved unanimous, and the brother returned thanks to the lodge for the favourable election. The lodge was opened in the Second and Third Degrees, and Bro. Charles Bogler was duly raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. After the closing of the lodge, the brethren adjourned to a cold collation in the adjoining room, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. The visitors, Bros. Duret and Sabel, expressing the pleasure it gave them to be present to witness the good working for which this lodge is celebrated.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—This lodge met at the Club House, Kennington Oval, on the 5th inst., when there were present Bros. H. Reeves, W.M.; T. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, S.W. (Freemason); Kohler, J.W.; H. Higgins, I.P.M.; Stuart, P.M., Secretary; Honeywell, P.M. 889, Organist; Speedy, S.D.; Webb, J.D.; Robinson, D.C.; Stokes, W.S.; Stranger, A.W.S.; Koch, P.M.; Everett, P.M.; Drysdale, P.M. The visitors were Bros. Middlemas, W.M.; Crichton, Parsons, P.M. 749; and J. Wright, P.M. 1158, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. ably passed Bros. Baldock and Boyce, and initiated Messrs. Swainsbury and Silvester into Craft mysteries. The consent of the lodge was unanimously given to the W.M. and Wardens to sign a petition, which was presented by Bro. Wright, for a new local lodge, to be called "The Newington." A notice of motion having been given that the initiation fee should be increased to ten guineas, and the joining fee to five guineas, the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was well served. Upon the removal of the cloth, the customary royal and Craft toasts were given from the chair, with commendable brevity, and duly honoured. In proposing "The Health of the W.M.," the I.P.M. said that as he had already, on previous occasions, spoken of Bro. Reeves's good qualities, he was at a loss to invent something new. However, he would say, that the W.M., by his attention to his duties, had won the respect of them all. His office as I.P.M. had at present been almost a sinecure, for their W.M. was so well posted up in his work that he required no prompter. In conclusion, he said that as brevity was the order of the evening, he should not further dilate upon the toast, but would only request them to receive and drink the W.M.'s health most cordially. "The Visitors" followed, and was duly acknowledged by Bros. Parsons, Wright, and Middlemas. The latter brother's speech, by the brilliancy of its point and the vivacity of its humour, was highly appreciated by the brethren. In proposing "The Initiates," the W.M. said he was greatly pleased that two out of their four candidates for initiation had put in an appearance. He was exceedingly gratified with the attention which their two newly-made brethren had paid to the "working" of the Degree, and he trusted that they would profit by its teaching. He hoped that the proposed increase of fees would not materially interfere with that steady influx of candidates which had for years past been an agreeable characteristic of the Kennington Lodge. In concluding his remarks, he expressed a hope that the quality of the members coming into the lodge would be as good as heretofore, and that number 1381 would continue to prosper and maintain its undoubted high state of Masonic excellence. The initiates having replied, the W.M. gave with great warmth "The Past Masters," "The Treasurer and Secretary," and "The Officers." These toasts were heartily received by the brethren, and were briefly acknowledged by the representatives present of those important officials. The toasts were agreeably interspersed by the musical contributions of Bro. F. Honeywell and others.

ROYAL KENSINGTON LODGE (No. 1627).—A meeting of the above lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, on the 1st November, to initiate Mr. Wyndham Fitzherbert, Mr. Charles Waters, and Mr. William Harvey, which was done, in his usual impressive manner, by W. Bro. Hyde-Pullen, after which the installation of Bro. Gordon Leith, and appointment and investiture of his officers took place. A numerous and select party were invited to the banquet, including W. Bros. Farley Leith, G.C., M.P.; Wigram, Philips, Philbrick, G.C.; Hervey, Glanville, Lawson, Monkton, Ramsden, Reeves, Hadley, Darcy, C. G. Peters, Sir Charles Bright, E. B. Bright, and others. After the health of the W.M., Bro. Gordon Leith, had been given and responded to, W. Bro. Farley Leith, G.C., M.P., and P.S.G.W. Bengal, proposed "The Health of the Installing Master, W. Bro. Hyde-Pullen," and, in very flattering terms, alluded to the admirable manner in which he performed that interesting ceremony, which he considered also to be a peculiar compliment to himself, if he might be so egotistical to say so, as it was his youngest son whom he had installed that evening; who, he was proud to think, had followed in the footsteps of his two brothers, who had both been Past Masters of the most distinguished lodges in Freemasonry—the University Lodge, and Lodge of Antiquity. "The Health of the Guests," and other usual toasts were drunk, and the brethren separated after passing a very harmonious evening.

ALDERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—The second lodge meeting of the season was held on Monday evening, November 11th, at the Castle and Falcon Hotel, Aldersgate, the Rev. P. H. Ernest Brette, D.D., W.M., presiding, supported by the following brethren: Bros. J. D. Allcroft, M.P., I.P.M.; Chas. Hogg, M.D., S.W.; A. J. Altman, J.W.; George Kenning, Treas.; Thomas Jones, Sec.; W. H. Froom, S.D.; H. Alder Smith, M.D., I.G.; S. White, W. S. Chapman, and Thomas Benskin, Stwds., also, Bros. Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B.; A. Brookman, Samuel Benton, M.D., W. Landell, John Jackson, and the following visitors: H. G. Picken, United Military, No. 1536; J. Mellish, Moria, No. 92; John Larkin, Fidelity, No. 3; C. E. Soppett, Royal Kensington, No. 1627; Joyce Murray, 1706; A. C. Protheroe, Neptune, No. 22; and J. C. Parkinson, Prince of Wales, P.G.D. After the lodge was opened in due form with solemn prayer, the reading and confirmation of minutes, Bro. Henry Matthews, of Temple Lodge, No. 101, was unanimously elected a joining member. At the request of the W.M., the bye-laws of the lodge were read by the Secretary. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Hyde-Pullen delivered an explanation of the Second Tracing Board, with his accustomed ease and earnestness. The lodge being resumed in the First Degree, the brethren proceeded to elect the W.M. for the ensuing year. The brethren eligible were Bros. Dr. Brette, J. D. Allcroft, Dr. Charles Hogg, S.W.; George Kenning, Treasurer; W. W. Landell, and A. J. Altman, J.W. Bro. Hogg having declined on account of ill health, Bro. A. J. Altman was elected to the chair of K.S. in the Aldersgate Lodge for the following year. Upon the motion of Bro. Hogg, seconded by Bro. Allcroft and Dr. Alder Smith, the lodge unanimously voted a Past Master's jewel to Bro. Brette, as a mark of esteem and regard, and in recognition of his services during his year of office. The lodge then proceeded to the election of Treasurer, when Bro. Kenning was unanimously re-elected. Bro. Steedman was also re-elected Tyler. Bro. Landell begged the lodge to accept a portion of the ancient Egyptian monolith known as Cleopatra's Needle (recently placed on the Thames Embankment), set in silver, as a mark of his affection for the present W.M., and attachment to the lodge, and also in commemoration of his entrance upon his fifty-eighth year in Masonry. The acceptance of such a unique gift was unanimously acknowledged. The lodge being closed in due form and with solemn prayer, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, under the care of the W.M. The banquet, which was admirably served by Bro. Benskin, was followed by some effective speeches from the W.M., Bros. Allcroft, Parkinson, Hogg, Altman, and the visitors. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed, and received with more than ordinary enthusiasm. Bro. Brette throughout his connection with the lodge, and particularly during his office as W.M., has aimed at the continuance of the high tone and purpose with which the founders of the lodge were actuated in the preservation of brotherly regard, the growth in Masonic knowledge and the sacred cause of charity. In proposing his health Bro. Allcroft challenged the brethren present (fifteen members and seven visitors) to show their regard to the W.M. by giving him a substantial list of donations to carry to the festival in February next, when Bro. Brette will act as Steward for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The response was one hundred guineas, fifty of which were given by Bro. J. D. Allcroft, M.P., I.P.M., to qualify the lodge as Vice-President in honour of the present W.M., Bro. Rev. Dr. P. H. E. Ernest Brette. £13s. was also contributed to the charity box. The brethren separated at an early hour, to meet again in February next.

SAINT LEONARD LODGE (No. 1766).—The first regular meeting of this new lodge was held in the Council Chamber of the Town Hall, Shoreditch, on Wednesday, 6th inst. Bros. L. Stean, W.M., presided; supported by G. T. Barr, S.W.; C. F. Barham, J.W.; C. Stevens, Treas.; J. Cox, Sec.; E. Benjamin, S.D.; J. A. Jones, J.D.; A. A. Clement, I.G.; H. J. F. Gale, D.C.; R. Marshall, S.; and Bro. Speight, Tyler. Besides the members of the lodge the following brethren were amongst the visitors: Bros. R. R. Harper, S.W. 813; Henman, 1243; H. Sarson, 76; Roberts and Smith, 193; and Mendy, 177. The lodge having been opened in ancient form, and the usual routine business transacted, the following gentlemen were duly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft: Mr. James Funstan, the Rev. H. G. Henderson, Mr. H. Waynfirth, Mr. D. King, Mr. F. Mathews. The following brethren were also unanimously elected as joining members: Bros. Dr. E. G. Pottle, 869; G. Pumber, 177; J. B. Burnard, 1662; W. Snelgrove, 907. It was then proposed by the W.M., and seconded by the S.W., that W. Bros. James Terry, P.G.J.W. for Herts; James Clarke, P.G.D.C. for Suffolk; and W. T. Howe, G.P.; who had taken the principal offices in the consecration of the lodge, should be elected honorary members. The resolution was carried with a clamour. Bro. W. basley was appointed to represent the Lodge as Steward at the forthcoming festival in aid of the Benevolent Institution, to be held in February next. It was resolved that Bro. G. C. Young, 820, be elected an honorary member of the lodge, and W.M. thereupon appointed Bro. Young to the office of Organist. After several propositions for initiation and joining had been announced, the lodge was closed. The brethren then adjourned to the banquet, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, the newly initiated brethren were greeted with a hearty reception, the visiting brethren were cordially welcomed, and the W.M., in response to the toast of his health, said some good words on behalf of the Charities. The proceedings were of a very interesting character, and augured well for the future success of the St. Leonard Lodge.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners Lodge (No. 249) held its monthly meeting on Thursday evening, the 7th inst., at the Masonic Hall, under the able Bro. Barnett, W.M., efficiently supported by his officers. The Three Degrees were worked; the W.M. giving them in a very impressive manner. After the lodge was closed the brethren sat down to refreshment, and a very comfortable and agreeable evening was spent.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge (No. 540).—The monthly meeting of the above lodge was held at the Swan Hotel on Wednesday evening, Oct. 30th, and there were present Bros. Dr. Rhys Williams, W.M.; Capt. Colburn, S.W.; R. H. Coombs, J.W.; R. B. Stafford, acting S.D.; H. Thody, J.D.; Dr. Carter, I.G.; Col. Stuart, I.P.M.; Dr. Prior, P.M., Sec.; J. Sergeant, P.M., Treas.; Ald. J. R. Bull, P.M.; S. Cookson, P.M. acting Organist; Rev. C. Breton, Chaplain; and the following were amongst the large number of brethren present: Green, P.M., Billson, Finlinson, G. P. Nash, R. Boughton Smith, Jessopp, Thompson, Ayres, Foster, Chibwall, Verey, Whittaker, Kilpin, Jarvis, Moore, H. Young, Glubb, Pick, and others. The lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for R. A. Bosanquet, Esq., of Dingston Court, Monmouthshire, and Mr. J. E. Page, of Bedford, both unanimously elected, and they were initiated, the W.M. performing the ceremony in his usual able manner, being well supported by his officers. Bro. Alexander, who some five or six years back was initiated in the Stuart Lodge, and since then has been residing in Ceylon, was present this evening as a visitor, and was proposed as a joining member by Col. Stuart, who also (to the great delight of the members) proposed his eldest son for initiation in December. Bro. Capt. Green, P.M., proposed and Bro. Sergeant seconded, that a sum of £10 to be voted out of the lodge funds to the mother of a brother of the lodge, who was seriously ill and quite unable to do anything towards the support of himself and mother, carried unanimously. This was the second sum voted to the same brother. The election of W.M. for the year ensuing took place at this meeting, and Bro. Colburn, S.W., was unanimously elected. Bro. Sergeant was also unanimously elected Treasurer, and the old and respected Tyler, Bro. G. Reynolds, was re-elected unanimously. Some other items of business were then disposed of, and after a long evening spent in the lodge, 30 brethren sat down to an excellent supper, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

COCKERMOUTH.—Skiddaw Lodge (No. 1002).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 5th inst., there being present: Bros. J. Black, W.M.; Capt. F. R. Sewell, S.W.; T. Bird, J.W.; R. Robinson, P.M. and Treas.; Dr. D. J. G. Pearson, P.M.; W. Shilton, P.M.; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Org.; T. C. Robinson, Sec.; R. W. Robinson, as S.D.; H. Peacock, I.G.; Jos. Hewson, Tyler; R. Harrison, J. Pearson, J. Fowler, W. Paisley, Jos. Nicholson, Isaac Evening, Jos. Borrowscale, and others. Bro. T. Weatherston, Lodge of Perseverance, No. 371, Maryport, was also present as a visitor. After the minutes of the last ordinary and emergency meetings had been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Paisley and Nicholson were regularly passed to the degree of F.C. After reducing to the First Degree, Bro. Borrowscale was presented with his Grand Lodge certificate. Bro. W. F. Lamonby, P.M., gave notice of motion that Skiddaw Lodge hold a concert and ball in conjunction with Faithful Lodge, No. 229, M.M.M., and Dyke's Conclave of Red Cross Knights, No. 36, in the month of February, and that a committee be appointed to carry out the arrangements. Bro. Black, W.M., also gave notice of motion, that no brother be considered eligible for the chair without he is able to work at least one of the Degrees, and deliver one of the charges. Bro. Capt. Sewell, S.W., intimated his intention to second the motion when it came before the lodge. Mr. Thomas Mason having been proposed as a candidate for admission into Masonry, the lodge was closed in form.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Claustentum Lodge (No. 1461).—At the last meeting of this lodge named after the Roman station near its quarters at Woolston, Southampton, Bro. G. W. Tilling the W.M. presiding after one brother had been passed, and another raised, presentations were made of a Secretary's jewel to Bro. Walter Bowyer, P.M., Secretary, and of a Treasurer's jewel to Bro. Capt. R. W. Evans, Treasurer, each bearing a suitable inscription, in recognition of their past services to the lodge. There was a very full attendance of brethren and visitors, including the W.M., P.M.s. and officers of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, and representatives of the Southampton and New Forest lodges. This being the evening for the election of the W.M. for the ensuing year, the present S.W., Bro. R. R. L. Rosoman, was unanimously elected to that position, and Bro. Andrews, J.W., to the office of Treasurer. During the proceedings considerable gratification was expressed that the position of the lodge, which has been established only six years, had enabled it to undertake the erection of a lodge-room, for which the W.M. elect has given an eligible site, the numbers of the brethren and the readiness with which they have undertaken this necessary work leading to the hope that it may be accomplished before the election of another Master.

YORK.—Eboracum Lodge (No. 1611).—The installation meeting of this young and prosperous lodge took place on Monday, 11th inst., at the lodge room, Queen's Hotel. The W.M., Bro. T. B. Whytehead, Prov. G.D.C., occupied the chair, the following officers of the lodge being present: Bros. T. Cooper, I.P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; Geo. Balmford, P.M., P.P.G.O., Treas.; J. S. Cumberland, S.W.; C. G. Padel, J.W.; Jas. Kay, Sec.; T. D. Smith, as S.D.; J. T. Seller, J.D.; M. Millington, I.G.; G. Simpson, M.C.; T. Humphries, Asst. Sec. The room was quite filled with members and visitors. Bro. J. S. Cumberland (the W.M. elect) having been presented, was duly installed, according to ancient custom, by W. Bro. T. B. Whytehead, the working tools being given by Bros. T. Cooper, P.M.; G. Balmford, P.M.; and P. H. Rowland, P.M. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. T. B. Whytehead, I.P.M.; T. Cooper, P.M., Lecture Master; Geo. Balmford, P.M., Treas.; C. G. Padel, S.W.; J. T. Seller, J.W.; Rev. R. P. T. Trueman, Chaplain; Jas. Kay, Sec.; T. Humphries, Asst. Sec.; M. Millington, S.D.; T. D. Smith, J.D.; G. Simpson, M.C.; A. T. B. Turner, Asst. M.C.; G. H. Simpson, Org.; J. Bleakin, I.G.; P. Pearson, Tyler; W. Hill and G. H. Hebblethwaite, Stewards. The W.M. then presented to the lodge, on behalf of the J.W., a handsomely framed portrait of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, in Masonic regalia, and on behalf of the Organist, a volume of Masonic songs, set to music, and hearty votes of thanks were accorded for these valuable gifts. On the motion of Bro. T. B. Whytehead, seconded by Bro. T. Cooper, the W.M. (Bro. Cumberland) was elected to represent the lodge on the Benevolent Committee for the province. Bro. T. Cooper, P.M., announced his intention of representing the lodge at the next festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in February. After the closing of the lodge the brethren supped together, and the usual toasts were duly honoured. Amongst the Installed Masters present we noticed Bros. Sir James Meek, P.M. 236; J. Todd, P.M. 236; C. Norman, P.M. 123; J. W. Woodall, P.M. 200; R. W. Hollon, P.M. 236; W. Lawton, P.M. 236; H. Rymer, W.M. 1337; W. Paley, P.M. 837; W. Beanland, P.M. 302; W. Walton, P.M. 734; C. Foster, P.M. 1311; T. B. Shaw-Hellier, W.M. 295; W. H. Prince, P.M. 298; F. M. Herring, P.M., and others.

WEST DRAYTON.—Unity Lodge (No. 1637).—The installation meeting of this distinguished lodge was held on Saturday, the 9th inst., at the De Burg Hotel, West Drayton. The lodge was opened by Bro. Varley, W.M., and a ballot taken for Bro. George Penn, W.M. 1642; as a joining member, which proved unanimous in his favour. Bro. Wm. Stephens, P.M. 1365 and 1489. The W.M. elect was presented and duly installed into the chair of K.S. by his particular friend Bro. Penn (Bro. Varley most kindly allowing him that privilege), which was rendered in a most impressive manner, although the first time he, Bro. Penn, had attempted that duty. The W.M. received the usual congratulations, and was duly saluted by the brethren when he invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Varley, I.P.M.; Davis, P.M. 382, S.W.; W. Grist, J.W.; E. C. Woodward, Treas.; W. Coombes, P.P.G.S.B., Secretary; the Bros. Cooper, Deacons; Atkins, I.G.; Slyman, D.C.; Penn, Steward; and Dutton, Tyler. Before closing the lodge, the W.M. intimated his intention of representing the Unity Lodge, as Steward, at the forthcoming Festival for Aged Masons. At the banquet the W.M. presided, and proposed the usual loyal and Craft toasts. Letters were read from the Provincial Grand Master, Col. Burdett, and other Grand Officers. Bro. Murlis responded for "The Visitors," and Bro. Penn for "The Charities;" all the officers seem to be well up in their duties, and no doubt a most prosperous year will follow.

HAMPTON WICK.—Wolsey Lodge (No. 1656).—This lodge met, for the first time since the recess, at the White Hart Hotel, on Monday, the 4th inst. The officers present were Bros. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. of Middx., W.M.; Baldwin, P.P.G.P. of Middx., acting S.W.; Bond, P.P.C.P. of Surrey, J.W.; the Rev. F. J. Champion de Crespigny, P.P.G.C. of Middx., Chap.; J. Hammond, P.G.S. of Middx., Hon. I.P.M.; Nuthall, Treas.; Ockenden, J.W. 1512, Sec.; Honeywell, P.M. 889, Hon. Org.; Hurst, P.M. 1512, J.D.; Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middx., I.G. (Freemason); Scott, W.S. The visitors were Bros. E. Hopwood, P.P.G.S. of Middx.; Argyle, J.W. 946; Bugler, 975; and Hone, 1628. The minutes of the last regular and two emergency meetings were read and confirmed. The ballot having been taken for four candidates for initiation, and having been declared unanimous, the W.M., with the assistance of his officers, initiated the only one in attendance, namely, Mr. R. Drummond. Bros. Emms, Handel, and Bonell were passed to the degree of F.C., and Bro. Abbett was raised to the degree of M.M. The work was performed with the W.M.'s usual ability. Great praise was due to Bro. Honeywell for his artistic and effective organ interludes, which greatly increased the effectiveness of the ceremonials. Bro. B. Sharp, W.M. elect, was to have been installed, but in consequence of his serious illness he was prevented from attending. The W.M. having mentioned this, appointed and invested Bro. Bond as S.W., and Bro. the Rev. C. de Crespigny as J.W. The other officers were re-appointed for the remainder of the year. Some minor business having been transacted, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to a collation. Upon the cloth being withdrawn, the W.M. gave the preliminary Royal and Craft toasts, and they were duly honoured. "The R.W.P.G.M., the D.P.G.M., and the rest of the P.G. Officers, Present and Past," having been warmly proposed, was received with excellent "fire," and briefly acknowledged by Bro. Walls. "The Health of the W.M.," in the absence of the Hon. I.P.M., was given by Bro. Honeywell in a few well chosen sentences. In his remarks he congratulated the lodge upon the great progress it had made, and also complimented the members upon their good fortune in possessing so able and experienced a Master as Bro. Hammond, whose zeal and energy in all the cause of Masonry was not to be surpassed by any brother in the province. The W.M., in reply, said that Bro. Honeywell had proposed his health in so flattering and kind a manner that he scarcely knew how to find language sufficiently adequate to express his thanks. It had given him a great amount of gratification as a founder and first Master to watch the steady progress which the Wolsey had made in the short space of time that had elapsed since its consecration. He was acting as Master for the second year, but, as they knew, it was not of his own seeking. He was truly sorry that illness should have been the means of preventing Bro. Sharp, W.M. elect, from attending to be installed in March last, and he still further regretted that that illness had continued with but little intermission to the present time. However, had the W.M. elect even been sufficiently well to put in an appearance that day, he believed that it would have been quite out of his (Bro. Sharp's) power in consequence of his chronic malady ever to have presided over them. In conclusion, he hoped that their absent brother would at some future time be spared to come amongst them in improved health, and if he did he would find that the brethren had not forgotten the services he had rendered at the formation of the lodge. The remaining toasts were "The Initiate," "The Visitors," and "The Officers."

INSTRUCTION.
UNION WATERLOO LODGE (No. 13).—The 18th ult. was a gala day among the Masons at Woolwich, it being the day announced for the working of the Fifteen Sections. The lodge of instruction usually meets at the Earl of Chatham, Thomas-street, but when it was known that the Preceptor, Bro. G. Macdonald, P.M. 1158, who had been absent from the lodge for some months through severe indisposition, would preside, the Committee expecting a larger attendance of members than the room would accommodate, engaged the Masonic Hall in William-street. Their expectations were verified, for upwards of eighty brethren assembled to listen to and take part in this long but beautiful ceremony. Bro. Macdonald opened the lodge shortly after seven, and for upwards of three hours the brethren paid a rapt attention to the eloquent and able work which was apportioned amongst the following brethren, viz. Bros. Shaw, E. Stevens, Davies and Andrews, P.M.s. Bros. Milburn, Rowlee, Belfrage, Masters, Deeves, Hassell, Brown. These names are a sufficient guarantee of the excellency of the working, and when each individual worker was up to the highest standard of merit it would be invidious to award extra praise to any particular one. A vote of thanks to Bro. Macdonald and the other workers was carried with acclamation, and duly responded to by him on their and his own behalf, and the lodge was closed at 10.30.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 6th inst. Bro. W. J. Huntley being the W.M., with Bros. J. Frost, S.W., and J. Featherstone, J.W. There were also present:—Bros. H. R. Jones, W. F. Wardroper, J. J. Holland, J. G. Carter, and others. The Three Degrees were rehearsed, Bro. Wardroper going through the First and Second, and Bro. A. A. Denham through the Third. Bro. J. Frost was voted as the W.M. for the ensuing meeting. This lodge of instruction is looked upon as a great boon to the Masonic brethren in the district, there not being one nearer than that held at the Prince's Head, Battersea.

FINSBURY PARK LODGE (No. 1288).—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held at Finsbury Park Tavern, Holloway, on Wednesday, the 6th instant. There were present Bros. Dickinson, P.M., Preceptor; Press, W.M.; Oldis, S.W.; Campbell, J.W.; Eldridge, P.M., S.D.; Edmunds, J.D.; S. Goode, I.G.; H. B. D. Dunn, Secretary. The lodge being opened, the minutes were read and confirmed. Bro. J. H. Bastable was a candidate for initiation, and the ceremony was rehearsed. Bro. Dickinson, P.M., worked the First, Second, and Third Sections of the Lecture. Bro. Oldis was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, officers in rotation. Bro. J. H. Bastable, of No. 1695, was elected joining member. Bro. Dickinson, P.M., re-elected Preceptor; Bro. Pigot, P.M., Treas.; and Bro. H. B. D. Dunn, Secretary, for the ensuing year, and the lodge was closed. There were present Bros. Past Masters Eldridge, Dickinson, and Wright, also Bros. Press, Oldis, Campbell, Edmunds, S. Goode, Bastable, Fenner, Pelikan, and Dunn.

Mark Masonry.

ST. MARK'S LODGE (No. 1).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 5th inst., at the Freemasons' Tavern. There were present:—Bros. H. A. Dubois, P.M., Worshipful Master; Chas. Horsley, P.M., acting as I.P.M.; Thos. Cubitt, P.M., as S.W.; J. G. Marsh, P.M., as J.W.; W. Stephens, S.O.; Dr. Whiteway Wilkinson, J.O.; H. C. Levander, P.M., G.R., Treasurer; E. H. Thielley, I.P.M. Secretary; Major W. E. Williams, J.D.; Herbert Santer, I.G.; Harrison, Tyler; J. B. Lambie. The business before the lodge was very limited, the W.M. presented Bro. Chas. Horsley, P.M., with a Past Master's jewel for his valuable services as W.M. during his term of office, 1876-77, which presentation was eloquently acknowledged by our learned brother. Letters of apology were read from absent members, and the lodge was closed in due form. The brethren dined together, presided over by the W.M., under Bro. Best's palatial roof.

LIVERPOOL.—West Lancashire Lodge (No. 65).—The members of this lodge met at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on the 6th inst., at 6.30 p.m., to witness and assist at the installation of the W.M. for the ensuing year. The officers present were:—Bros. John Hayes, W.M.; H. S. Alpass, P.M.; Henry Jackson, P.M.; J. R. Goepel, P.M., Treasurer; R. H. Evans, J.W.; W. H. Cooper, Hon. Sec.; A. C. Wylie, M.C.; R. Reader, S.C.; W. P. Jennings, S.D.; H. W. Parry, P.M.; Walter Erwin, S.S.; Peter Ball, Tyler. Members:—Bros. Jenaway, Corbett, Blott, Pryde, Roberts, Poyser, Howarth, T. F. Cooper, Jas. C. Fish. Visitors:—Bros. W. Roberts, No. 11; Jas. Pemberton, P.P.G.J.D., W.M. No. 11; Geo. Morgan, P.M. No. 11; S. Mathieson, P.M. No. 11; and G. E. Hamer, Prov. G.S.D., No. 161. The lodge having been opened in due form the minutes of the last meeting were read and declared carried. Bro. John Hayes, W.M., then proceeded to install his successor Bro. R. H. Evans, who had been unanimously elected at the last meeting, into the chair of W.M., in such a most creditable and impressive manner as to meet with the hearty approbation of the brethren. Bro. R. H. Evans, W.M., then proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. W. H. Cooper, S.W.; A. C. Wylie, J.W.; J. R. Goepel, Treasurer, (thirteenth time); H. Jackson, P.M., D.C.; R. Reader, Sec.; Thompson, M.O., by proxy; W. P. Jennings, S.O.; H. W. Parry, J.O.; W. C. Erwin, S.D.; T. F. Cooper, J.D.; W. Corbett, Reg. M.; J. Jenaway, I.G.; W. O. Blott, S.S.; J. Pryde, J.S.; M. Howarth, A.S. Bro. Goepel, P.M., proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Hayes, Installing Master, for the very able manner in which he had discharged the duties of his office, and said he had never before seen or heard the ceremony so impressively given. Bro. Jackson in seconding the proposition, said it was the first time he had witnessed the ceremony given in such a full and perfect manner, and it would be a long time before he forgot it. The vote of thanks was carried unanimously. Bro. Hayes responded in a few appropriate words. On the motion of Bro. Jackson, P.M., seconded by Bro. Cooper, S.W., a vote of thanks was also unanimously passed to Bro. Goepel, P.M., Treas., for which Bro. Goepel returned thanks. The lodge was soon afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet which had been provided by Bro. Chaplin, House Steward. On the removal of the cloth the usual patriotic and Masonic toasts were given, interspersed with some capital songs, and a happy evening was then spent in peace and harmony.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

YORK.—Hilda Chapter, Rose Croix.—A meeting at this chapter was held on Friday, 1st inst. Present:—Bros. Thos. Cooper, M.W.S.; W. H. Marwood, P.S., 31°, as Prelate; T. B. Whytehead, 1st Gen.; S. Middleton, 2nd Gen.; J. S. Cumberland, G. Marshall; M. Millington, Raphael; A. T. B. Turner, Herald; P. H. Rowland, Org.; G. Simpson, D.C.; Rev. W. C. Lukis, Capt. Hanly, and others. Visitor: Bro. S. B. Ellis (Talbot Chapter, Sheffield). Several letters of apology were read from brethren unable to be present. Bros. A. Gerald Duncombe, of the Falcon Lodge, Thirsk, and Alderman Terry, of the Eboracum Lodge, York, were duly perfected, and after the closing of the chapter, the members spent a social and harmonious evening.

Punctually at twelve o'clock on Wednesday night, as arranged, her Royal Highness the Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne left St. Pancras Station by special train for Liverpool, whence they embark for Canada.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WILTS.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Wiltshire was held yesterday week at the Town Hall, Swindon, under the presidency of the Right Hon. Lord Methuen, R.W. Prov. Grand Master. Previous to the meeting of the lodge, the receiving lodge, Royal Sussex Lodge of Emulation, No. 355, met under the Mastership of Bro. J. Campbell Maclean, M.B.

Grand Lodge was opened at two o'clock, when the following brethren were present:—Bros. Rt. Hon. the Lord Methuen, P.G.M. Wilts; Gabriel Goldney, M.P., V.W.D. P.G.M. Wilts; Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P., P.G.M. Berks and Bucks; Rt. Hon. Lord H. T. Thynne, M.P., P.G. Supt. Wilts; Case, P.G.D. Eng.; Col. Basevi, Gloucester; W. H. Poynder, Walter Long, W.M. 632; Fred H. Goldney, Past G. Steward Eng., P.G. Treas. Wilts; Henry C. Tombs, P.G.D., P.P.S.G.W., and P.G. Sec. Wilts; E. Trinder, P.G. Sec. Gloucester; Gen. H. Doberty, 33°, P.P.S.G.W. Somerset, P.P.S.G.D. Wilts; Henry Calley, W.M. 1533; Henry Kinner, P.P.S.G.W.; John Chandler, P.P.S.G.W., and P.G. Dir. Cer. Wilts; G. L. Lopes, P.G. Steward Eng.; J. Stokes, P.P.S.G.W.; W. F. Gooch, P.P.S.G.W.; T. H. Chandler, P.S.G.W.; John Toomer, P.P.J.G.W.; Arthur Law, P.G. Chap.; W. Nott, P.P.J.G.W., Charity Organisation Secretary; J. H. Calley, E. J. Sewell, Cotswold Lodge; R. de M. Lawson, P.P.S.G.W.; J. W. Whatley, P.P.J.G.D.; T. Young, Past G. Steward, Eng.; Wm. Affleck, P.M. 355; F. H. Phillips, W.M. 626; Geo. Pike, W.M. 1478; F. Gardner, W.M. 335; E. T. Payne, P.G.D. Eng., P.P.S.G.W. Wilts; Bakwin, Bromley, Feavours, and Fudge, of No. 335; Armstrong, Braid, Bryant, Colbron, Cornwall, Deacon, Edmonds, Goodwin, Green, Liddiard, Plummer, Pocock, Skuray, Wentworth, Whitehead, of No. 355; Bartlett, Buttifant, Calkin, Cross, Fletcher, Harman, Harwood, Norwood, Rumbold, Tucker, and Wiltshire, of 586; Bailey, Daly, Eyres, Hearne, Headley, Holbrow, Lapham, Milson, and Sudlow, of No. 626; Bishop, Foley, C. Gauntlett, S. Gauntlett, Lavington, Mann, and Norris, of 632; Badham, Burman, Burt, Gibbs, Tuckey, Rawlins, Raymond, and Sterne, of No. 663; Barker, E. Brown, Dean, Durnford, Howse, Kent, Ludgate, Powell, Reese, Turner, Tyrrell, and White, of No. 1295; Chisman, Crockett, Cross, George, Toone, and Vincent, of No. 1478; Carter, Drury, Lewis, and Lucy, of No. 1533.

After lodge had been opened, Bro. H. C. Tombs, P.G.D., Prov. G.S., read the minutes, which were put to the meeting and approved. He also read the following letters:

Darmstadt. 27th October, 1878.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

H.R.H. Prince Leopold desires me to express the regret he feels at not being able to be present at the forthcoming Prov. Grand Lodge at Swindon. It would have been especially gratifying to H.R.H. to be present, when your P.G. Master, an old and trusted friend of our Royal Family, receives the honourable recognition that he has so well earned from the brethren.

Perhaps you will kindly be an interpreter to the P.G.M. of his Royal Highness's feelings.

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

R. H. COLLINS.

Henry C. Tombs, Esq.

Erlestone Park, Devizes, 23rd October, 1878.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am very sorry that I shall be unable to attend the Provincial Grand Lodge on the 8th of November next, when the testimonial will be presented to our Prov. Grand Master, Lord Methuen. It will, however, be a pleasure to me to contribute in some degree to the festivity on that occasion, and I hope that a couple of haunches of havier venison will be acceptable for the banquet. If so, please to let me know, where and to whom they should be addressed. I purpose to have the havier shot on Monday next, the 28th October, so that the venison may be in good order for the table by the 8th November. The haunches shall be sent off on any day you may suggest after Tuesday, the 29th inst. I have filled up the card sent me, stating that I am unable to attend the banquet, and I beg to enclose it as you probably file the cards.

I am, dear Sir and brother, yours fraternally,

(Signed) S. WATSON TAYLOR.

Bro. H. C. Tombs, P.G.D., &c., &c.

Bro. Tombs also read a letter from Bro. John Hervey regretting his inability to attend on account of his health not having been very good of late. The letter also stated that he more regretted his inability to attend because he was present at Lord Methuen's installation 25 years ago, and he desired Bro. Tombs to convey his congratulations to his lordship on his silver wedding.

Bro. F. Goldney, Prov. G. Treasurer, presented the report and accounts of the province which was very satisfactory, showing a large balance in hand. There was also a balance of £57 12s. 6d. to the credit of the Charity Fund.

Bro. H. C. Tombs said that as a Charity Committee's report which would be presently submitted to the meeting showed that there was a balance of £57 12s. 6d. available, the Committee had come to the conclusion that it was desirable that the province should vote fifty guineas to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, to endow the chair of the Provincial Grand Master with a Vice-Presidentship of that Institution. Bro. Nott, the Secretary of the Organisation had expressed his willingness to take the Stewardship of the province for the next festival of the Institution next February, and the sum would be placed on his list.

The Treasurer's accounts of general lodge funds showed a balance in favour of the Provincial Grand Lodge of £31 8s. as against £14 for last year. Some of the lodges, however, had not sent in their accounts or paid their Prov. Grand Lodge dues. The balance standing to the credit of the charity account was £57 18s. Donations to the Charities are made from this account every year so as nearly to exhaust it. The balance of £57 18s. this year was reduced by a vote of fifty guineas being made to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

Bro. William Nott then read the following report of the Provincial Charity Organization Committee presented to the R.W. the P.G.M., Officers, and brethren, in P.G. Lodge assembled at Swindon, on Friday, the 8th Nov., 1878.

"The Secretary of the Provincial Charity Organization Committee begs leave on its behalf to present a short statement of its work during the past year.

"The case of the widow (Mrs. Elizabeth Gundry Burt) adopted by the Committee as mentioned in last year's report, received the full support of the province at the election in May, when she was placed fourth on the list of successful candidates, with 998 votes. To attain this highly satisfactory result, however, a very considerable number of votes was borrowed from other provinces in the full belief of being able to repay them at the next election in May.

Your Committee has had no local case for the Boys' School brought before it, but it has adopted as a candidate for the Girls' School the case of Ada Mary Cook, daughter of the late Bro. Henry Cook, of the Royal Sussex Lodge of Emulation, No. 355, Swindon. There were only four vacancies at the October Girls' School election, and consequently a very large number of votes was required to secure the election of a candidate. Your Committee, feeling it impossible to attain to anything like this number, lent the greater part of the votes at its disposal to three other provinces, with which this province is in friendly union, and in each case the candidate for whom our votes were lent was successful. The repayment to us in April of the votes so lent will give a very good chance of our candidate's success at that election if your Committee is as well supported as it has been this year, and if there is an average number of vacancies in the school to be filled.

"The votes from the lodges in the province and from their members and friends handed over to the Committee during the past two years have been as follows:—

Royal Masonic Institution for Boys ...	395	376
Royal Masonic Institution for Girls ...	209	341
Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons ...	250	187
Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Widows of Freemasons ...	140	228

being an increase of 138 votes—or nearly 14 per cent.—in the past year.

"This indicates a steady progressive increase in the support given by the Masons of Wiltshire to the great Masonic Charities, which your Committee trusts will go on from year to year without diminution, and, if possible, keep pace with the greater need of funds in which those Charities are placed by the rapidly increasing demands upon them.

"WILLIAM NOTT,

"Hon. Sec. to the Committee."

On the motion of Bro. Gabriel Goldney, D. Prov. G.M., seconded by Lord H. Thynne, this report was put to the meeting and carried unanimously.

Bro. Gabriel Goldney, Dep. Prov. G.M.; then rose and said, the brethren were about to perform a duty that he was quite satisfied would meet with the approbation of all present. They were there with closed windows and borrowed lights, with all the mysteries of their Craft, and the insignia of their institution; but they were about to perform an act which he was sure would be in sympathy and harmony with the feelings of the outside world, who, he believed, if they had it in their power would appreciate the object in view and the means taken to carry it out quite as much as the brethren there assembled. The brethren were about to shew their lasting testimony of feelings of esteem, regard, admiration and gratitude for the services which had been rendered to them by their Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master. He would ask Bro. Tombs to request the Committee and the Grand Deacons to introduce into Grand Lodge a testimonial which they would heartily respectfully, and with every feeling of kindness and love, wish to offer to the Provincial Grand Master.

The brethren named then retired and returned in a few minutes, bearing two massive silver candelabra of the value of 600 guineas, and a handsome address in illuminated writing on vellum, framed and glazed, and placed them on the table in the centre of the lodge.

Bro. Gabriel Goldney, then addressing the Provincial Grand Master,—all the brethren standing at the time—said, that he was deputed on behalf of the lodge, and on behalf of the Freemasons of the Province of Wiltshire, to offer to his lordship the testimonial now before him in recognition of the feelings which they entertained with respect to the good his lordship had done, not only for Masonry in the Province of Wiltshire, but for Masonry in general, by having accepted and acted as the Provincial Grand Master for the last five and twenty years. He knew of nothing which they could give that would adequately represent the brethren's feelings for his lordship's kindness, but as Masons they could offer their respectful thanks to him for what he had done. The testimonial, however, which they now presented would show to others who came after them, the value the brethren set on his lordship's presidency over them. The candelabra and address, now in lodge, the brethren asked his lordship's acceptance of. There were some people who professed not to wish for praise and renown, but praise and renown, were frequently not the only reward that persons had. Philosophers professed not to wish for praise or renown, and yet they wrote their names on the papers or books which they wrote, that they might be handed down to posterity. He was sure that no man ever earned feelings of respect and kindly sentiments towards him from those amongst whom he lived, as well as among Masons, than his lordship had in his position of a country gentleman and as Provincial Grand Master. His kindly friendships, his liberality of feeling, as well as his liberality of means in general, were acknowledged by every person who came in contact with him. He trusted that his lordship's life might be long spared, and that they might for many years have the advantage of seeing his lordship preside in that chair, and the brethren knew perfectly well that while he did so Masonry would flourish in the province. The brethren had already heard from the Treasurer's report the great increase which had taken place in the Freemasonry of the province; now, in the year before last, the number of brethren had increased from 300 to 350, and in last year from 350 to 450, and he doubted not that in future years a similar state of progress would be witnessed. The charitable funds of the province had likewise increased, and they had been able to dispense those funds in a praiseworthy manner. He believed that the increase in the number of Freemasons of the province, and the increase in the charitable funds was mainly due to the interest which his lordship always took in these matters, to his own personal dignity, to his well-known character, and to the kindness, firmness, and forbearance ever displayed by him to the brethren, more especially in the chair of Provincial Grand Lodge. Masonry had now attained to such an elevated position as to encourage people in the principles it professed. His lordship had assisted in raising it to its high position in the lodges of this county, and he trusted, as he had said before, that Masonry in that province would long have the advantage of his presidency over it.

Lord Methuen, in reply, said, brethren, I rise, I assure you, with very great difficulty to express to you but a very small amount of that deep gratitude I feel to you all for the very kind appreciation you have shown of my humble efforts in favour of Masonry which you have shown towards me this day. I am one of those who never, until I rise, think of what I am going to say, and, therefore, if I but inadequately express my feelings you must not attribute it to a want of gratitude on my part, but to a want of power to express myself as I would wish to all of you this day. When I behold those magnificent candelabra, and consider not only their pecuniary value, but their artistic quality, when I see that magnificent testimonial which you have presented to me, I cannot help saying to myself, what is it that I have done to render myself worthy of so much kindness on the part of the Freemasons of Wiltshire? I am sorry to say that although I may to some little extent have benefited the Craft during the time that I have had the honour to preside over this province, I am sure that the amount of generosity and kindly feeling that has been evinced towards me this day is as multiplied by it ten or even a hundred-fold. It is more than anything I had to expect of you. For many generations I trust those splendid specimens of your generosity and kindness will go down to those who I hope and trust will have the same feelings towards the Masons of this province that I have myself, which is, and always has been, one of the kindest and most heartfelt sympathy for all of you. It would not do for me to detain you longer by any further observations on what is to me the happiest and, I can assure you, the very proudest moment of my connection with Masonry, not only because this testimonial comes from the brethren belonging to the province over which I have the honour to preside, but also because those brethren belong to that county in which so many of those of my family who have gone before me, though they have not been Masons, have lived. It is, I assure you, a double gratification to me to know that that splendid testimonial is one which sprung from the hearts of Masons. It will ill become me, with a vivid memory of what occurred twenty-five years ago, if I omitted to mention the great encouragement to Masonry, and the great kindness to me by one who, I am sure, we are all delighted to see among us here this evening. The Masons of Wiltshire may take my word for it, that the seed was sown by the present Provincial Grand Master of Berks and Bucks—that he laid the foundation stone of that edifice which was placed in my hands, and directed me how to carry out the whole work of Masonry. But for him, I feel convinced, that the Masons of Wiltshire would not at this moment have been doing that honour to me, for which I hardly know how to thank them sufficiently. As I said before, it would ill-become me to sit down without assuring the Masons of Wiltshire that but for Bro. Sir Daniel Gooch I should never have been in the proud position that I am in now. I tender you all by best and sincerest thanks for the great honour that you have done me, and for the liberality, generosity, and kindly feelings you have evinced for me. I trust that for many years I may continue to have the pleasure of presiding over the interests of Masonry in this province.

Bro. H. C. Tombs, Provincial Grand Secretary, then read the address from the illuminated vellum.

Bro. F. H. Goldney, the Provincial Grand Treasurer, afterwards said that he had prepared a history of Freemasonry in the Province of Wiltshire. To save time he would not read it, but he begged to present it to Lord Methuen, and he would afterwards have it printed for distribution. The history had been some little trouble to get up, as the records of Freemasonry in the province were few, and scattered before the time that his lordship undertook the government of the province. Bro. Goldney then presented the manuscript to Lord Methuen.

Lord Methuen said, the thanks of the brethren were due to Bro. Goldney for his attention to the interests of Masonry by devoting so much time to the compilation of the work just placed in his hands, and he had no doubt that there would be few Masons in the province who would not be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of possessing such a valuable work.

Bro. Sir Daniel Gooch said, that if it would be any assistance to Bro. Goldney he had a few particulars of Freemasonry which came into his hand when he was Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and they were quite at the service of Bro. Goldney.

The Prov. Grand Registrar, Bro. A. J. Braid, P.M. 355, read his report, showing a brief analysis of the various lodges' positions.

Lord Methuen then declared all the offices in Provincial Grand Lodge vacant, and appointed the following brethren Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

John Toomer, 355	Prov. S.G.W.
General H. E. Doherty, 335	Prov. J.G.W.
H. Crockett, 1478	Prov. G. Chap.
Fred. H. Goldney, 626	Prov. G. Treas.
W. Nott, 663	Prov. G. Reg.
H. C. Tombs, 355	Prov. G. Sec.
J. Campbell Maclean, 355	Prov. S.G.D.
Walter Long, 632	Prov. J.G.D.
W. J. Mann, 632	Prov. G.S. of W.
John Chandler, 355	Prov. G.D. of C.
F. H. Phillips	Prov. G.A.D. of C.
T. E. Liddiard, 355	Prov. G. Swd. B.
G. Whitehead, 355	Prov. G. Org.
F. Baldwin, 355	Prov. G. Purst.
W. Affleck, 355	Prov. G.A. Purst.
W. Fletcher, 386	Prov. G. Std. B.
John Savory, 355	Prov. G. Tyler.

Lord Methuen afterwards said that from the numerous reports received from the lodges in the province, the position of Wiltshire Freemasonry was very satisfactory. It appeared that the members of the Craft had increased in number and that there was an increase in the subscriptions to the different Charities of the Order. All this was a matter of gratification to him. The Treasurer's report showed that there was a considerable amount of money in hand, and this was highly satisfactory to the Provincial Grand Lodge. He was glad to hear from the Provincial Grand Secretary that some steps were about to be taken relative to the Boys' and Girls' Schools, so as to prevent the election of several children belonging to the same family, when there were so many children equally deserving thereby prevented from gaining admission. He had made some remarks already, which he would not repeat, as to lodges sending up their dues, but he had no doubt that the Secretaries would see that the dues should be sent up in ample time to give the Grand Treasurer, and Grand Secretary an opportunity of completing their accounts before the meeting of the Grand Lodge. He must mention another subject. When they met last year there was a fear that the country might be involved in war. He was happy to say we had escaped that calamity and he hoped by the blessing of God we might long be spared that most dreadful alternative of arms. He had to thank all the officers and brethren of the province who had attended to do him honour on this occasion. He had no doubt that the interests of Masonry would be considerably furthered and increased by the interchange of those little courtesies which passed between the lodges of this province and the lodges of other provinces. He thought it was his duty especially to thank a brother who was not present—Bro. S. Watson Taylor—for the very liberal supply of venison he had sent to the Grand Lodge, and for the very kind letter which accompanied the present. All the brethren tendered their best thanks to Bro. Frederick Golding, for preparing and presenting a History of Freemasonry in the Province. After again thanking the brethren for their kindness, and begging them to excuse any deficiency he had exhibited in the performance of his duties, his lordship resumed his seat.

It was suggested that Bro. Goldney's pamphlet should be printed at the expense of the province, after which, on the motion of Lord Methuen, seconded by Lord Henry Thynne, this suggestion was unanimously agreed to.

Bro. F. H. Goldney, observed that it had been his intention to print the pamphlet at his own expense, and present it to the brethren.

Lord Methuen said he thought it quite right that the pamphlet should be printed at the expense of Grand Lodge.

Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet in the Corn Exchange, under the banner of the R.W. Grand Master. At the conclusion of the banquet, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and honoured.

The above report of the proceedings of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Wiltshire would be imperfect if we omitted to mention that the arrangements of the day were very satisfactory, and reflected great credit on the Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. Tombs, and all the brethren engaged with him, in the arduous task of making the brethren comfortable and happy.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

The above Provincial Grand Chapter was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Surrey-Street, Sheffield, on Wednesday, October 30th, at 4 o'clock p.m., under the banner of Chapters Paradise, 139, and Loyalty, 296. Comp. Lieut.-Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, Prov. Supt. E. Lancashire, presided as Prov. Grand Superintendent, and was well supported by the officers and companions of the province.

The Prov. G. Chapter was opened by M.E. Comp. Lieut.-Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, D.L., Prov. G. Supt. East Lancashire, and the officers of Prov. G. Chapter. The roll of Prov. G. Chapters was called. The roll of Present and Past Prov. G. Officers was called. The minutes of Prov. G. Chapter held at Huddersfield on Wednesday, November 7th, 1877, were presented for confirmation.

Moved by Comp. John Wordsworth, P.Z., 154, seconded by Comp. W. W. Widdop, P.Z. 275, and resolved: "that the minutes be taken as read."

Moved by Comp. W. B. Alderson, Z. 154, seconded by Comp. Robert Arnison, P.Z. 296, and resolved:—"That the minutes be confirmed."

M.E. Comp. S.N. announced that M.E. Comp. Lieut.-Col. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., D.L., P.Z. 61, was at the door asking to be admitted for the purpose of being installed.

M.E. Comp. Lieut.-Col. Starkie directed that the Prov. G. Superintendent should send in his patent.

The patent being examined and found in order, he directed the following deputation to retire and introduce the Prov. G. Superintendent, viz:—Four Stewards, D. of C., Std. B., and seven P.Z.s.

The Prov. G. Superintendent having entered was placed in the West, his patent was read by the Prov. G.S.E., having expressed his willingness to discharge the duties of the office, he was duly installed and placed on the throne.

The Prov. G. Superintendent then appointed E. Comps. Ensor Drury, P.Z. 139, 296, H., and Isaac Booth, P.Z. 61, J., who were accordingly installed and addressed by E. Comp. Lieut.-Col. Starkie.

The Prov. G. Superintendent also appointed and invested the following officers:—

Henry Smith, P.Z. 302, 387, 495	Prov. G.S.E.
C. Mandall Hartley, P.Z. 243	Prov. G.S.N.
Alfred M. Matthews, P.Z. 302	Prov. G. Prin. Soj.
Jno. Turner Rhodes, P.Z. 290	Prov. G. 1st A.S.
Thomas Pickles, P.Z. 258	Prov. G. and A.S.
John Fisher, P.Z. 61 (elected)	Prov. G. Treas.
Charles L. Mason, P.Z. 304	Prov. G. Reg.
R. E. Collinson, P.Z. 837	Prov. G.S.B.
Wm. Beanland, P.Z. 302	Prov. G.S.B.
Wm. F. Smithson, P.Z. 289	Prov. G.D. of C.
Edwin John Crow, M.B., P.Z. 837	Prov. G. Org.
Adolphe E. Powolny, P.Z. 304; Wm. Boddewig, P.Z. 296; John F. Moss, P.Z. 296; Edwin Woodhouse, P.Z.

521, 275 ... Prov. G. Stewards.
Joshua Lee, P.Z. 290 ... Prov. G. Janitor.

Moved by E. Comp. W. W. Widdop, P.Z. 275; seconded by E. Comp. Thomas Perkinson, P.Z. 61, and resolved unanimously, "That E. Comp. John Fisher be re-elected Treasurer for the ensuing year, and that the best thanks of the Prov. G. Chapter be accorded to him for past services."

In reply to the salute of the companions, Sir Henry Edwards said: "Companions, no one could stand in the position I at the present moment occupy, as Provincial Grand Superintendent of this province, without feeling some emotion."

It is now approaching four years since I was installed Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire by Lieutenant-Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, and today I have been placed by him at the head of this chapter, in the position so lately occupied by our departed Comp. Bentley Shaw. Deeply do we all regret that the space of four years should have witnessed the retirement of one distinguished Provincial Grand Superintendent and the death of another, and the necessity for the installation of myself in their room. To fill both these high offices does indeed create no little sentiment of emotion, feeling the double responsibility of high duties to perform, viz., to sustain the dignity of this Grand Chapter as well as Provincial Grand Lodge, to maintain the honour of Freemasonry, to preserve the ancient landmarks of our Order, and to enforce mildly, yet courageously, the discipline of the Books of Constitution. To us it is a real pleasure to leave outside the doors of this chapter all those differences which create dissensions, more or less, with persons engaged with politics, or with religious opinion, or the business occupations of the world, and to meet Royal Arch Masons, all of one mind, all of one voice, and all of one heart, in the performance of a solemn ceremony as that which the Prov. Grand Superintendent of East Lancashire has now so perfectly and eloquently performed. No sooner had I felt the necessity of complying with the commands of the Prince of Wales than I applied to my gallant brother and companion to undertake this ceremony of installation. You have greeted him most warmly with the honour due to his rank, and on behalf of myself and this Grand Chapter we thank him heartily and sincerely for the admirable manner he has performed the ceremony, and the exhortation he has given us. His name will never be forgotten by the Freemasons of East Lancashire, and I am quite sure the Masonic work which he undertakes in that large province will bear good fruit—and amongst the fruits of that work is a course of public usefulness outside the lodge as well as in it, and which East Lancashire warmly appreciates. The ostensible object of Royal Arch Masonry, the end and aim of this branch of our symbolic system, the study of its history—revealed and traditional, is to bring us into more intimate connection with certain canonical books of the Holy Scriptures. Numberless authorities well known have amply explained this order in Freemasonry. It inspires its members with most exalted ideas, and leads to the exercise of the purest reverence for the eternal Ruler of the universe, the elemental spring and primordial source of religious principles, the very fountain of the virtues, Faith, Hope, and Charity. It is an Order of which every Master Mason ought to become a supporter, to the best of his time and means. This was an earnest desire of my lamented predecessor in this chair, expressed at Huddersfield, the last time he officially appeared amongst us, and he added, "We meet for no unholy purpose, but for wise and judicious action in a good cause."

The number of chapters altered about this province afford ample opportunities for effecting the consummation of Comp. Shaw's last wishes, and now my own. I hope the chapters in this province will be carefully worked, and that they will co-operate as well with me, their new chief, as they did with the old, for peace, unity, and love. And now, brethren, I thank you once again for your cordial reception of me to-day, I thank you for having come long distances to be present at my installation as Provincial Grand Superintendent of Royal Arch Masons of West Yorkshire. I assure you I shall never forget to-day, any more than I shall forget my installation as Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire, and, lastly, my acknowledgements are due to the two chapters in Sheffield, under whose banners this ceremony has been conducted, for the excellency of their arrangements, and for their hospitality to the chapter of this province. I wish the whole of the chapters in this province every prosperity.

E. Comp. Sir Henry Edwards, Prov. G. Sup., proposed a vote of thanks to Colonel Starkie for his eminent services as Installing Z.

E. Comp. Ensor Drury seconded the motion, and it was carried with acclamation.

E. Comp. T. W. Tew, P.Z. 495, P.P.G.H., proposed "That the sum of one hundred pounds be given from the funds of Prov. G. Chapter to the Bentley Shaw Memorial Fund."

E. Comp. John Fisher, P.Z. 61, Prov. G. Treasurer, supported the resolution, and it was carried unanimously.

E. Comp. Dr. Blackburn, P.Z. 337, renewed his invitation for Prov. G. Chapter to meet at Uppermill in May, 1879.

M.E. Comp. Superintendent promised to give in his consideration, and fix the meeting at an early date.

The chapter was then closed in due form shortly after 6 p.m.

Thé à la fourchette was served in the banquet hall, at 6.30, and upwards of 130 companions partook of it, provision being on a most liberal scale.

The Prov. G. Superintendent presided, Royal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured and addresses given, varied by songs and instrumental music.

We are happy in being able to state that the subscription for the Bentley Shaw Scholarship, Girls' School now reaches the handsome sum in the whole of £380.

THE ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED RITE.

ADVANCEMENT OF THEIR ROYAL HIGHNESSES THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G., AND PRINCE LEOPOLD, K.G., TO THE 33°.

A special meeting of the Supreme Council Thirty-Third Degree of England, Wales, and the Dependencies of the British Crown, was held at the head-quarters of the Order, 33, Golden-square, London, on Wednesday, the 6th November, for the purpose of advancing to the Thirty-Third Degree, and last Degree of Freemasonry, their Royal Highnesses the Duke of Connaught, and Prince Leopold, when the following members of the Supreme Council were present:—The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Sovereign Grand Commander; Captain N. G. Philips, Lieutenant-Grand Commander; Major-General Henry Clerk, Treas. General; J. M. P. Montague, Grand Chancellor; Lieut.-Colonel Shadwell Clerke, Grand Secretary General; H. D. Sandeman, Grand Secretary, F.C.; Colonel A. W. Adair, S.G.I.G.; General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., S.G.I.G.; Colonel George Vernon, Past L.G. Com., as well as the following members of the Thirty-Third Degree.

C. J. Bannister, D.I.G. N. District; S. Rawson, D.I.G. S.E. District; Gen. H. E. Doherty, C.B., D.I.G. S.W. District; C. Fendelow, D.I.G. W.C. District; J. Percy Leith, D.I.G. East Indies; R. W. H. Giddy, D.I.G. South Africa; Raphael Costa, Charles Gooldeen, Lt.-Col. Hutton Gregory, C.M.G.; W. Hyde-Pullen, Asst. Sec. to Supreme Council.

Letters of regret at their unavoidable absence were received from the Earl of Carnarvon, 33°, Past Sov. G. Com.; the Earl of Limerick, 33°; Sir Michael Costa, 33°; Dr. Robert Hamilton, 33°, owing to absence from England and also from H. C. Vernon, 33°, Past L.G. Com.; and Albert H. Roys, 33°, owing to ill health.

At 4 o'clock H.R.H. The Prince of Wales 33°, Grand Patron of the Order, arrived from Marlborough House, accompanied by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, and H.R.H. Prince Leopold, and were received by Lord Skelmersdale and the other members of the Supreme Council Thirty-Third Degree, and conducted to the Council Chamber, where the Thirty-First and Thirty-Second Degrees were conferred; after which the Supreme Council adjourned to the hall, where their Royal Highnesses were introduced by Col. Shadwell Clerke, 33°, and General Studholme Brownrigg, 33°, and were advanced to the Thirty-Third and last Degree in due and solemn form. The Ceremony being most impressively performed by the Sovereign Grand Commander Lord Skelmersdale, H.R.H. the Grand Patron, investing his Royal brothers personally.

Their Royal Highnesses were then duly proclaimed by their style and titles, as "Sovereign Grand Inspectors-Generals of the Thirty-third and last Degree of Masonry, and honorary members ad vitam of the Supreme Council of England and Wales, and the Dependencies of the British Crown," and were saluted accordingly, and after some congratulatory remarks from the Sovereign Grand Commander, Lord Skelmersdale, which were suitably acknowledged by their Royal Highnesses, the Supreme Council was closed.

It is worthy of remark, that this is the only occasion on which our three Royal Illustrious brothers have met together in Masonry, H.R.H. Prince Leopold having been absent from ill-health on the occasion of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales in the Albert Hall, in April, 1875.

H.R.H. Prince Leopold, it may be remembered, has recently served the office of M.W.S. of the Oxford University Chapter, Rose Croix, while H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught is at the present moment M.W.S. of the Studholme Chapter, Rose Croix, and has presided in person at two of the three meetings held this year.

LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

A special general meeting of this Association was held on Thursday week, at Freemasons' Tavern, Col. Creaton in the chair. There were also present Bros. C. J. Perceval, Treasurer; Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, and A. Tisley, Secretaries; J. H. Southwood, Arthur E. Gladwell, Charles Atkins, E. Mallett, Thomas Smith, and H. Massey (Freemason).

An alteration was made in the bye-laws to the effect that when the funds in the hands of the Treasurer amounted to £50, a donation should be given to one of the three Institutions, the votes for which were to be in the name of the Association. Another alteration was made as to the day of annual meeting. The annual subscriptions to be payable on the 1st of May. Another alteration was made, giving members of the Association power to make suggestions.

The Chairman then said, that after careful consideration he had felt compelled to tender his resignation as Chairman of the Association, and the reason he had come to this conclusion was that being a trustee of all the Masonic Charities it involved his taking the chair usually, or, at all events, frequently, at their large meetings. He thought, therefore, that being Chairman of this Association was incompatible with his position as Chairman of those meetings. That was the principal reason that induced him to ask the brethren to relieve him of his Chairmanship when they were electing officers to-day. Another reason he had was that his Masonic engagements in connection with the Charities were very numerous. When he told them that it usually happened that four or five days a week he had something to do in connection with the Charities they might imagine that he did not want to increase the number of his attendances. He had every good opinion of this Association, and he was quite sure that it was a proper thing to do, and he had very little doubt it would grow up to be successful. If it was not for such an Association he was quite sure that the London candidates would stand very little chance of success. He had to thank the brethren for the honour they did him by electing him as their Chairman, and it was only for the reason he had mentioned that he asked them to relieve him of the office of Chairman.

Bro. Woodford said he thought all the brethren would be struck with the reasons which had led Col. Creaton to offer his resignation, and they would all feel, no doubt, that it was perfectly true that acting so often as Chairman at all the elections to the satisfaction of the Craft some brethren might make invidious remarks as to his being Chairman of an Association formed for the aid of London candidates. All in that room would scout such an idea, knowing Bro. Creaton perfectly well; but there were ill-natured people in the world who might make those remarks, and they respected the feelings of Bro. Creaton so much that they would not like him to be subjected to any such remarks on any occasion. As Col. Creaton had prepared them at a former Committee meeting for the announcement he had made, he (Bro. Woodford) would now move "That this Association while quite appreciating Bro. Creaton's motives for tendering his resignation, accepts it with sincere regret, returning to him its best thanks for the most efficient services he has rendered to it as its first Chairman."

Bro. Southwood seconded the motion.

Bro. Perceval said Col. Creaton had said he did not intend to sever himself from the Association, and though he resigned its chairmanship he should still be a member of it. As Col. Creaton had said, unless this Association was formed, there would be a very poor, poor chance for a London candidate being returned. He begged to call attention once more to the two last cases, which earnestly called for help and assistance, and he should go to some little expense in advertising them, week after week, in one of the Masonic papers. The two cases were those of Frost and Giles, one with three votes and the other with ten. The last London case to come in had 1000 votes. This next election the Association would have three candidates, and he thought they might try and get them all in.

Bro. Woodford said if ever there was a case which showed the necessity of an Association like this, it was the case of Watkin, who had been up six times. His father was a very worthy man and a working Mason. The mother had nine children, and she was utterly penniless. She had been unsuccessful in obtaining influence to secure the election of a girl to the Girl's School, and was unsuccessful at the last Boys' election through one of those little accidents that would occur at every election. That was the poor boy's last chance, and the result would be that he would have to be, in all probability, sent to a district pauper school if he was to be educated.

The election of officers and committee then took place, the result of which we recorded last week.

The vote of thanks to the Chairman on his resignation was then put and carried unanimously.

The Chairman, in acknowledging the vote, said he was very much obliged to the brethren, and he was sure it was a great deal more than he deserved; but he knew the vote was passed in the most friendly and kind spirit, and in that spirit he accepted it with thanks.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman for presiding concluded the proceedings.

Bucolics are the same all the world over, and ruricus expectat dum defuist amnis was not quite an absurdity. Here is the last story of Hodge—a German Hodge, by the way. A hurricane blew down his wall, whereupon he appealed to his landlord to build it up again. "Certainly," replied the landlord, "if you will pay the expense of it." "Expense!" echoed the rustic; "why, I thought you could do it for nothing. You're a free mason, are you not?"—Whitehall Review.

Reviews.

GESCHICHTE DER FREIMAUREREI. By J. G. FINDER. Leipsic, 1878.

We have received this goodly cooking and well printed work, with its emblematically appropriate cover, (to use a Germanism), and we rejoice to note that it has reached a fourth edition. In it Bro. Findel brings the history of Freemasonry down to our own epoch. We have been always amongst those who hailed the appearance and recognized the value of Bro. Findel's meritorious and exhaustive labours. We are not going to claim perfection for Bro. Findel's work, (for that we could not conscientiously do); we are not about to assert that he is infallible, (for that would, of course, be a great absurdity), but we ask ourselves this question, "who else has done more to advance that great desideratum—a critical and consistent history of Freemasonry, than Bro. Findel?" and, therefore, we are bound to be most lenient as regards slight errors, and unavoidable shortcomings. We believe this fourth edition is a just tribute, at any rate, in Germany, to most important and careful labours, to a work which must place Bro. Findel in the foremost rank of Masonic historians. But having said this, we are bound, as honest reviewers, to point out a few blemishes, in an otherwise most praiseworthy publication, and one to which "nathless," to use an old English expression, we wish heartily and fraternally every possible success.

1. We do not think that Bro. Findel has for some reason kept himself quite "posted up" in the progress of Masonic archaeology in England. He is not correct as to the age of the MS. Constitutions; for it is now pretty clear, on the high authority of Mr. Bond, that supposing you can reduce the age of the Masonic Poem to the early part of the 15th century (though a good deal may still be said for its late 14th character), the age of Cooke's MS. is not late 15th, but early 15th. The argument about Caxton's printed Polychronicon is now found to be of no importance in the discussion, as the transcriber of Matthew Cooke's MS. evidently took his reference from a MS. Polychronicon; there is the fact moreover that the "Maistre d'Histoire" the "Master of History" (Cæstor) is alluded to by the same transcriber which would render the earlier date of Matthew Cooke's MS. certain.

2. We are somewhat astonished that Bro. Findel does not realize the real history of Molash's Register, though he gives a note, which says little. The more so, as to Mr. Walbran's sagacity was owing the discovery of the MS. which contains a list of the "Loyge Latamorum" attached to Christ Church, Canterbury.

3. We are also struck with the omission of any reference to Bro. Fort's remarkable work, or Steinbrenner's useful little volume.

4. Bro. Findel seems to have departed from his usual habit of fairness as regards the Freemason, owing, we fear, to some difference of opinion on a subject of open discussion. He is now doing what all true German criticism repudiates, namely, laying down what is "subjective" as "objective" using his own subjective opinions, to impress upon others, his assertion of what he deems to be Masonic objective truth. He is eminently unfair to the Freemason. Perhaps if Bro. Findel saw as much of contemporary literature as we do, he might be more contented than he seems to be with Bro. Kenning's useful paper. We fear, that from his point of view, the Freemason is not likely to improve, inasmuch as the Freemason represents the opinions of the English Order most fairly, and the Freemason is acting in accordance with the true principles of English Freemasonry. We, ourselves, do not expect to agree with Bro. Findel, but we venture to think, without any unfair or invidious comparison, if any impartial critic put the Freemason and Bauhütte side by side, while it would declare of the former that its end was definite, its teaching simple and distinct, its reviews readable, and its criticism most impartial and Masonic, that the Bauhütte, as the French writer puts it, with every allowance "aboutit au rien." We venture to assert on the contrary that in the history of Masonic literature, no more carefully conducted paper is to be found, or one which gives the Craft a more readable journal, or is better posted up in all the literature and needful criticism of the day than the Freemason. But we part from Bro. Findel as good friends, and we wish his fourth edition all success.

ROME'S RECRUITS.

Whitehall Review, York Street, W.

It is impossible in the Freemason to say much on a point or publication like this, which impinges on that great Masonic truth absolute "Liberty of Conscience." The array of those who have joined the Church of Rome and "burnt their boats" is a very long one, and to all of us probably very startling, but still, despite our natural inclination to say a good deal, we will adhere to our old Masonic toleration, (how unlike some good folks we know), and, as the immortal bard says, "Mum's the word."

XVI CHARTERS OF ROCKE ABBEY. By SIDNEY OLDALL ADDY. Sheffield.

We are indebted to a zealous fellow-student for the knowledge of this useful and valuable little pamphlet. The publication of such Charters, though apparently dry reading, is very important, inasmuch as we find in them, as the Editor truly observes, much, very much, to interest the archaeologist, historian, and student, Masonic or non-Masonic. We have read them with great pleasure in the Latin, and only wish that, as for many they are a "sealed book," Bro. Addy had given us a paginal English translation.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Henniker, S.G.W.; will preside at the festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement on the 29th.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY.—At a general assembly of Royal Academicians held at Burlington-house, Mr. Frederick Leighton, R.A., was elected President.

A Revolution in Dancing Circles is promised in Paris this winter. Quadrilles and cotillons are to disappear, and to be replaced by stately ballets, such as were danced in the times of the three last Louises, and which will be regularly organised and rehearsed by the guests. Indeed, dancing altogether is to be far more central than usual, and short dresses will be worn for balls as well as in the street. Talking of Paris fashions the latest novelty in feminine foot-gear consists of high boots of white Russia leather, encircled at the top by a band of dark fur. Such dainty bottines would scarcely bear half-an-hour's experience of London mud.

The Standard says the Admiralty has decided upon the use of steel in construction of five new gunboats, to be built at Pembroke Dockyard. Two will be of 250 tons and 168-horse power, mounting one heavy gun. These will be called the Bouncer and Insolent. The remaining three will be of 455 tons and 360-horse power, and will carry four guns. They will be named Bullfrog, Cockchafer, and Espoir.

Dramatic Composition in Germany is far from flourishing, for the triennial Schiller-prize for the best drama is again not to be awarded, none of the prizes sent up for competition being worthy of the prize.

Mr. J. J. Mechi, of Tiptree Hall, says that the Dantzic sewage lands have this year produced crops of all kinds exceeding those on the good lands; potatoes, 16½ tons per acre; white carrots, 14½ tons per acre. Our Metropolitan Board of Works, some seven years ago, granted the whole of the sewage of London north of the Thames for fifty years to a company under an Act of Parliament. Mr. Mechi hears that a committee of the board are now inquiring why that contract has remained for seven years a dead letter.

The Cutlers' Company have made the following reply, under date November 8, to the letter of the joint honorary secretaries of the Committee of Livery Companies of London on Technical Education:—"I am directed by the Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Cutlers to acknowledge the receipt of the report of the Executive Committee of Livery Companies of London on Technical Education, and to express the hope of the Cutlers' Company that the scheme proposed by the committee for the extension and improvement of technical education may prove successful. I am at the same time desired to state that my company is not prepared to join in the combined action suggested by the committee. Their doing so would, in the opinion of the Cutlers' Company, tend to the promotion of a vast general scheme of education, rather than one suited for cutlers in the various branches of the trade, and would be somewhat calculated to interfere with perfect freedom of action on the part of the Cutlers' Company. The company is fully impressed with the importance of promoting, so far as possible, technical education in all branches of trade and manufacture represented by the various City Guilds, and I am requested to state that a special committee is now engaged in working out the details necessary to enable the company to take independent action in the matter, with a view to the encouragement of the production and manufacture of superior articles in cutlery in its various branches, and to the promotion of the interests of the cutlery trade in general.—I am, dear Sirs, yours faithfully, W. C. Beaumont, Clerk."

Shakespeare is greatly relished by the Chinese in California, and Othello has lately been played at a Mongolian theatre in San Francisco. Some slight innovations, however, were introduced to suit local tastes, for instance, the plot of the tragedy was made to turn entirely upon the identification of Desdemona's handkerchief, which is recognised to slow music in the last act by a four-bittee laundryman.

The Bishop of Manchester in preaching at Oswestry, read a letter from a young lady giving him the following account of her day, and asking him where there was any time in it for religious work:—"We breakfast about ten. Breakfast occupies the best part of an hour, during which we read our letters, and pick up the latest news in the papers. After that we have to go and answer our letters, and my mother expects me to write her notes of invitation, or to reply to such. Then I have to go into the conservatory and feed the canaries and parrots, and cut off the dead leaves and faded flowers from the plants. Then it is time to dress for lunch, and at two o'clock we lunch. At three my mother likes me to go with her when she makes her calls, and we then come home to a five o'clock tea, when some friends drop in. After that we get ready to take our drive in the park, and then we go home to dinner, and after dinner we go to the theatre or the opera and then when we get home I am so dreadfully tired that I don't know what to do."

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Health's Defences.—None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the late autumn and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, diphtheria, or quinsy will attack those most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin adjacent to the affected part, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well-known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even depressing the system in the slightest degree.—[Advt.]

ENGLISH AND FOREIGN FREEMASONRY.

In the discussions and considerations to which this passing question has given rise to, it seems to us well to remind our readers how purely non-political and non-sectarian English Masonry really is, and how it stands on that one goodly platform, which proclaims to men and the Masonic world the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. We do not propose to-day to enter into any of the considerations which relate to the past history of English Freemasonry, to earlier teaching or distinct proclivities. We take the Union of 1813 as a "stand-point," (to use a Germanism), and there it is we find a rallying centre, for all loyal Cosmopolitan Masons. For acceptance of belief in the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man necessitates a good deal more than acquiescence in Deistic formularies or nihilistic subtleties. Theism, remember, is not Deism, inasmuch as the former pre-supposes a personal God, the latter a mere "anima mundi." Thus it will be seen at once how definite, and yet how tolerant is the foundation truth of English Freemasonry. We accept all brethren, even of differing creeds, who, like us, can reverently acknowledge "our Father which is in Heaven," who can be fellow-workers with us in all those deeds of humanitarian beneficence and charity, which the Sacred Word enjoins, or even "humanitarianism" applauds. But beyond that we cannot and do not go. To some minds we go too far, to some we do not go far enough; but Freemasonry like truth rejoices in a "via media," and rejects none who can conscientiously say we believe in, accept, trust in, worship T.G. A.O.T.U., the common Master, Sovereign, and Providential Arbiter of mankind. Now we know that it is exactly this question which has been assailed by the positivists, the nihilists, the materialists, as well as the Ultramontanes of the day, for extremes always meet. In the Grand Orient of France, unfortunately, the views of a thoroughly destructive party have got the upper hand, and it is much to be feared that when the question arises in the "Rite Ecosais" "can Atheists be admitted?" owing to their having already tampered with the strictness of their own tolerant and enlightened profession of faith, they will have no logical course open, but to still further explain away their moderate avowal even of a "Principe Createur." Neither to positivism, nor nihilism, nor materialism, much less to Ultramontanism, will such an avowal be satisfactory, and it will be seen that nothing will suit the movement party, but to make a "tabula rasa" of all declarations, which avow not only belief in a personal God, but belief in God at all, unless indeed we are contented with the subterfuge of a "Principe Createur," a "Force Supérieure," which may mean anything or nothing, and is only a Jesuitic evasion of a grave difficulty. We hope that our forebodings may not be fulfilled, but we have great fears for the future, we confess. Knowing what has been for some time going on better than most people, we cannot but feel the outlook to be dreary and disheartening in the extreme. But we have this one consolation, the great family of Anglo-Saxon Masonry remains true to the ancient principles and the "good old ways." It moves on, heedless of censure or criticism, of doubt or disavowal, of the dilemmas of positivism, of the violence of unbelief, and adheres faithfully and firmly to the Rock of Ages, upholding as before the world its unchanged and unchanging belief in the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man.

THE PROGRESS OF MASONIC LITERATURE.

We have often alluded to this subject before, and we recur to it now with mingled feelings of pleasure and pain. If on the one hand it be true that we see before us many valuable works issuing from the Cosmopolitan Masonic Press, day by day, we cannot also but feel how much labour is thrown away, how many sacrifices are made in vain, when we realize the paucity of Masonic readers, the unproductiveness of Masonic literature. It is somewhat humiliating to us as an Order, is it not? the undoubted fact, that almost all Masonic literature is carried on unremuneratively, and that owing either to the apathy or indolence of Freemasons admirable serials and papers "go down" constantly, because simply "starved to death" for want of sympathy and support. Neither do the greater works fare better than the "lighter array," nor are the standing works of reference more eagerly sought after than the ephemeral pamphlets of the hour. Why is this? How can this "paradox" almost, be accounted for, that an intelligent fraternity disregards its own literature, nay, and deprecates its "own honest wares of literary ability and effort, which otherwise in the wide open market might find purchasers and readers. We cannot explain it, we never could explain it, except on this one supposition,—that Freemasons are too busy to read Masonic literature, and that the "sociability" of Freemasonry has the principal attraction for the large majority of its members. We are not, however, going to make a complaint against "Masonic sociability," inasmuch as it is a good thing in its way, but we think it right to mention the fact, the non-popularity of Masonic literature, and leave it simply to the appreciation of the intelligent, and the consideration of the educated in our esteemed Order. We are glad to-day to mention, with feelings of just pride, Bro. Fort's "Antiquities of Freemasonry," a very remarkable book, Bro. D. Murray Lyon's "History of the Lodge of Edinburgh," Bro. Findel's "History of Freemasonry," as modern Masonic works of great merit. When it is boldly stated, as it sometimes is, by the ignorant, and accepted as a fact by the credulous, that Freemasonry has no literature, we can boldly call the attention of the "Maligner" to works like these, which would reflect credit on any association, simply as literary works of high excellence, but which, owing to the difficulties attendant on all Masonic history, criticism, and "Belles Lettres" are not sufficiently appreciated, though they are worthy of all gratitude and commendation. We trust sincerely that we too ere long shall boast of "reading Masons" amongst us, and that that mighty wave of intellectual study and advance which is sweeping before it the "dry withered leaves" of often too easily contented days, may bear us Freemasons on its "crest" to share in the student labours of our enquiring epoch, and to develop the benefits and importance of Masonic literature.

THE LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

We have thought it well to add a few words of explanation in our pages, which the necessary condensed report in last Freemason did not permit, and to call attention to a fuller report in our columns this week. It will be seen that our esteemed and gallant Bro. Col. Creaton who was the first chairman of the Association, has felt that a question had arisen, which he could only truly answer, by ceasing to take an official and active part in the administration of an association of which he perfectly saw the need, and is prepared to uphold the value. He is, as our brethren and readers are aware, very often Chairman of the Quarterly Courts, and especially of the Courts for Elections, and if had, we believe, been remarked, that there was something a little incompatible in any one brother filling two such positions at the same time. We probably should laugh at any such idea, but our gallant brother felt that as chairman of a meeting pledged to absolute impartiality, and as the rules of the institution properly preclude any of the officials taking any part in elections, he should in this, as he was sure to do, set a good example, and so, though very reluctantly, he resigned the chairmanship of the London Masonic Charity Association. We shall all commend his clear sense of what is due to Masonic impartiality and his abstract and concrete realization of duty. We may add, that the London Masonic Charity Association continues its unpretending and useful course despite many party and foolish prepossessions and objections assiduously made, though practically equally unreal and illogical, and will seek at the next election, as it did at the last, to assist the most friendless candidates with good effect, as it cannot understand on what Masonic principle, Masonic orphans, because they have few friends, are to be left out in the cold.

THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason"

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I should not have sought to intervene in this discussion, which, like all Masonic discussions, seems only to generate personalities, did I not feel that silence might be construed as indicative both of weakness of a cause and abscence of facts of history. I am not concerned with Bro. Bedolfe's line of argument, it is his own and not mine, and I am only responsible for what I say myself.

But I cannot concur with Bro. Lamony historically, in any sense whatever. There is no analogy in the least, in my humble opinion, as between the antiquity of the Craft, or even of the Royal Arch, and the present system of Mark Masonry. For while "inducies" abound of the antiquity of Craft Masonry, the Mark Degree, as at present constituted and worked, is most purely modern.

That a Mark ceremonial existed towards the end of the last century I freely concede, but it is doubtful even, if that is in any sense the present system. The Mark system does not take its name from "Mason Marks," but from "St. Mark," to whom Mark lodges were originally dedicated, something like the St. Lawrence Association and others. It is no doubt true that the old operative Masons used Marks, but I have never been able to trace, (much as I have tried to do so), any connexion between the present Mark system and the old operative Marks. At the same time, the old "St. Mark lodges" may have been an affiliated Masonic guild, who preserved a system of "Mark Masonry," properly so called. In the Scottish lodges all "Fallows of Craft" seem to have had a "Mark," and I do not think it worth while to doubt that the Mark system may perpetuate the memory of the old usage, though it may be a fair question how far Mark Masonry, as it is called, really upholds the old teaching. It is a point, however, in the discussion, not to be lost sight of, that many of the old Mark lodges may be traced back to the end of last century.

Bro. Lamony's views as to Craft and Royal Arch Masonry might easily be proved to be erroneous historically, if time and space permitted, but I do not fancy he is very much in earnest about them, and only uses them as "side issues," and on the "tu quoque," and "ad hominem" principles. Historically, as I feel sure our Bro. Hughan will agree with me, the present system of Mark Masonry must be pronounced absolutely modern.

I am, yours fraternally,

MASONIC STUDENT.

THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

If Bro. Bedolfe will persist in gratifying his "Cacoethes Scribendi" and dilate upon subjects foreign to his understanding, wherein he does not hesitate to ascribe to those whose opinions differ from his own, "a want of common sense and truth," he must be prepared to find that there are those who—although they may not be blessed with truth and common sense to the sublime extent as himself (?)—are yet "truthful and honest" in their convictions.

I regret that any remark of mine should for one moment have disturbed the placid disposition of my worthy brother, but I fear that his own personalities must be held in a great measure responsible for anything which to him may bear that appearance.

Bro. Bedolfe questions my "right to mingle in a discussion unless I seriously enter into the same." It would be well he should bear in mind that the Press like Masonry is "free" and is open not only to discussion (which by the bye should be wholesome and void of acerbity) but also to the criticism of a discussion, and this Bro. Bedolfe must be prepared to meet, particularly when endeavouring to raise a discussion he resorts to hunting up ancient matter, and then stoops to charge the expressions of an honest brother with "want of truth, common sense and bad grammar;" but Bro. Bedolfe appears to think the "world of Freemasonry his own," and that his opinions, upon a matter of which he pleads entire ignorance, alone should prevail, and most erroneous and presumptuous indeed are those who differ from him. I should be very sorry to argue the point which Bro. Bedolfe seems desirous to raise with a person of so little equanimity of temper, yet I feel it a duty when I see Bro. Bedolfe sneeringly ridicule a Masonic Degree of which I feel proud to be a member; to throw back those sneers and ridicule, and ask him how it is that as he would not be such a "traitor" to the Craft in joining the Mark Degree, he yet has the gross indiscretion (I was about to say effrontery) of disobeying the commands of our M.W. Grand Master, by fraternizing with the Grand Orient of France. Such conduct appears to me to be very questionable, to say the least of it, and, again, as to the word "traitor," applied, of course, not only to myself, but to thousands of honest Craft Masons, I urge it is meet that Bro. Bedolfe should modify that expression, as I consider by using it even as an innuendo, it is both unmasonic and unmanly, but as I feel it scarcely likely Bro. Bedolfe will eschew his respectful expression, I will be the first to give him the hand of fellowship in remitting to you, dear sir, a cheque for ten guineas for one of the Masonic Institutions, on the behalf of the "Mark Degree," if Bro. Bedolfe will do the same on the part of the Craft. I deem this much more sensible than impassioned arguments upon unknown matters, and I am sure there appears room in the Subscriber's List, for the names of those which would add lustre to the roll; rank and title is, no doubt, great, but true Masonic charity is greater.

Bro. Bedolfe's explanation of the Second Degree is as meagre and wanting as the Degree itself, and to his appeal to brethren to "study its simplicity" I, as one of his brethren, and who takes, perhaps, as equal an interest in Craft Masonry and its ancient landmarks as himself, beg to say that I fail to find a "basis for a study." Simplicity requires little study.

I will leave it to Grand Lodge to decide as to whether by joining the Mark Degree I am a traitor to the Craft, to whom Bro. Bedolfe should appeal for my expulsion, and as a concluding remark, I will simply add, that I hope never to be such a traitor to English Craft Masonry as to so far forget myself in visiting and prying into the lodges of the Grand Orient in direct disobedience of the M.W.G.M.'s commands, and against my own conscience in particular.

I am, dear Sir, yours in faith and fraternally,

ECCE SIGNUM.

THE SCOTTISH RITE IN FRANCE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As I am in the habit of attending the meetings of a French lodge belonging to the Scottish Rite, will you kindly inform me if its members would be admitted in English lodges? Since the necessary rupture between the Grand Lodge and the Grand Orient of France, I naturally asked the members of the lodge I attend whether they held themselves in obedience to the Grand Orient. Their reply was, that they had nothing at all to do with it. But as I know that the lodge admits and initiates Free-thinkers, &c., and also allows "la liberte absolue de conscience," I cannot see any difference between them and the Grand Orient, i.e., in principles.

It will be a great pleasure to me if, through you or any of your readers, I may be able to state on official authority that true Masonry requires a belief in God, that the words "Great Architect of the Universe" signify God only, and not any "être supreme" that each candidate here forms according to his own ideas. It is continually asserted here that Masonry is universal, and that, therefore, it is unreasonable to admit only those who believe in God. I stand almost alone regarding these matters and I seek good authority to affirm what I, as an English Mason, have so often asserted to be the vital principles of Freemasonry.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

B. DE M. DOWSON,

Late Member of the Westminster and Keystone, No. 10. Canons, S. France.

AN APPEAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me once again to call your attention to a few facts on behalf of the London candidates for the Boys' and Girls' Schools, whom the London Masonic Charity Association are endeavouring to rescue from being periodically left out in the cold. I venture to call upon our London brethren in particular, and Masonic brethren in general, to assist the efforts of our much needed organisation. I may state our Association is collected fortuitously from the different lodges scattered over the metropolis; in many cases perfect strangers to one another, until banded together, on recognising the urgent necessity of preventing our elections becoming mere matters of personal friendship and individual interest. To these brethren thus diversely met, at the expenditure of considerable time, trouble, and money, whose only hope of reward is the knowledge of endeavouring, if not succeeding, to help the poor and needy, the fatherless and widow, to this body, I say, let the votes of the London brethren be intrusted, rather than to any individual, however good and excellent, for, in the former case, there should be something of "wisdom in a multitude of councillors," whereas, in the latter case, one of our opponents' great objections to us, the loss of individuality, is doubled by being swallowed up in another individual. If these few words, the essence of the thoughts of one whose sole aim and object is to act on the square to one and all without distinction, shall have brought any brother to carefully consider the privilege he has obtained for himself; and the right way, even if he does not join our Association, of using the power which that privilege obtains, I shall be well repaid for any trouble I may have taken in the matter. I would earnestly recall to the minds of your readers the distressing cases of the boys Watkins and Green at the October election, with their last chance of succeeding, who were unsuccessful, and left out to starve in the cold; the former is certainly the most distressing case—one of nine left on a penniless mother for support—has now no resource but a parochial school, and may be pronounced literally friendless. The other case of Green, though only one of five children, there is in this family a paralyzed father, utterly unable to work for his living, now existing on the last two or three hundred pounds of his capital. Yet such distressing cases as these are allowed, for the want of a little thought or care, to go to the wall for the sake of others on the first, out of several possible applications; and others, again, who are really not the objects for which these Institutions were intended. If this is to continue to be the case, the provinces and individuals, for the mere sake of the glory of saying "I never take up a case but what I am sure to succeed, if not the first the second time;" or, "I never have to apply a second time," I would ask, in all fraternal feeling, whether it is fair, Masonic, or equitable, to sacrifice even one candidate on the altar of their self-esteem when both candidates could be equally benefited by a right use of the voter's power. I once more call the attention of the London brethren to the next April election, and to the fact that there will be three London Candidates "in periculo mortis," at their last gasp, and that if they wish London not to be disgraced in her own eyes, as well as those of the provinces, they will save these from perishing, not necessarily at the head of the poll, but within the limited number. The names are Frost with ten votes, Giles with three, and Nicholls with 1013 votes, to bring forward. Brethren, let it not be said, as at the last election, that London, with three candidates on their last legs, was only able to save one.

I trust that I have said nothing offensive to any one; it has not been the intention of

Yours fraternally,

C. J. PERCEVAL.

Treasurer L.M.C.A.

CONSECRATION OF THE KIRKDALE LODGE, No. 1756.

There was an exceedingly large gathering of the Masonic fraternity at the Skelmersdale Hall, Kirkdale, Liverpool, on Friday week, the 8th inst., when the Kirkdale Lodge, No. 1756, was duly and solemnly consecrated, according to the impressive rites of our Order.

Considerable disappointment was felt by the brethren at the inability of Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, Dep. G.M. of England, and P.G.M. of West Lancashire, to be present and perform the consecrating ceremony, but a severe cold caught in the course of his journey to London for Masonic purposes on the previous day rendered it impossible for his lordship to leave Lathom House. A telegram of apology for non-attendance was received by Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Secretary, who, at very short notice, took the place of Consecrating Officer, and performed his important duties in a manner which elicited universal admiration.

The proceedings were announced to begin at two o'clock, and shortly after that hour there were about 100 brethren present, these including Bros. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., acting as Consecrating Officer; the Rev. J. Rees Jenkins, P.G. Chaplain, acting as P.M.; H. R. Robertson, P.G. J.W., as S.W.; J. T. Callow, P.G. Treasurer, as J.W.; G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., acting as P.G. Secretary; S. E. Ibbas, P.P.G.S.B., as I.G.; J. Wells, P.G.D.C. as M.C.; J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C., as Assistant M.C.; E. B. Harding, P.P.G.S.D.; R. C. Mellor, P.P.G.J.D. (N.W. and Salop); H. Williams, P.G.S.; J. Hayes, P.G.S.; J. Wainwright, P.G.A.D.C.; J. E. Jackson, P.G.S. of W.; J. Lunt, P.P.G.D.C.; J. Peters, P.P.G.S.W. (N.W. and Salop); D. W. Finney, P.G.S.; J. P. McArthur, P.M. 1086; G. J. Townsend, W.M. 1086; J. R. Ross, S.D. 1289; S. Johnson, 249; J. R. Japha, S.D. 203; R. E. Mitton, 1356; James Ellis, P.M. 1086; J. Johnston (W.M. designate of the new lodge), P.M. 203; J. P. Bryan, 1035; A. Morrison, W.M. 1570; J. Ashley, 1356, and 1609; A. McDougall, 203; D. Saunders, 1609; J. B. MacKenzie, S.W. 1609; J. S. Beauford, S.W. 32; W. H. Ball, P.G.A. Tyler; W. Sephton, P.M. 1086; Thomas Evans, P.M. 1570 and 1356; S. Bushell, 667; H. Gribbon, 1356; R. P. Gill, S.W. 216; J. Blake, C. 216; John Latta, J.D. 241; T. Clark, P.M. and Treasurer 673; A. Woolrich, S.W. 1356; Dr. D. Costine, J.W. 216; J. Queen, 667; P. Armstrong 724; E. McCabe, Sec. 203; G. E. Hamner, P.M. 1086; J. T. Alston, S.W. 203; G. S. Willings, P.M. 667; T. W. Serjeant, P.M. 203; T. Armstrong, P.M. 203; T. Horne, P.M. 1356; E. Paull, Treas. 1356; J. Keet, Sec. 1356; S. Wyld, P.M. 1403; J. Baxendale, P.P.G.S. of W.; J. W. Williams, W.M. 1356; H. Ashmore, W.M. 823; P. Neill, P.M. 203; B. W. Rawson, P.P.G.S. of W.; H. James, P.M. 203; J. Winsor, 241; Dr. T. Young, 1473; and others.

After the lodge had been opened in the Three established Degrees, Bro. Alpass, the Presiding Officer, gave an admirable and thoroughly practical address to the brethren of the new lodge, strongly urging them to work in harmony with the other lodges which meet in that building; gave them sound advice as to the admission of joining members, and strongly insisted upon the necessity and desirability of exercising that virtue which must be denominated the distinguishing characteristic of a Freemason's heart—charity, both towards those benevolent institutions of the fraternity which existed in London, as well as nearer our own doors.

The P.G.C. having offered solemn prayer, the acting P.G. Sec. read the petition and warrant of the new lodge, which is to meet on the fourth Wednesday in each month.

The P.G. Chaplain (Bro. the Rev. J. Jenkins), then delivered the following oration:—

Brethren, we are assembled here to-day for the very important work of establishing and consecrating a new centre, whence will be disseminated more widely in this district those principles of love and charity, which form at once the foundation and keystone of the Masonic structure, and this duty being about to be intrusted, to some extent, to new hands, guided by brethren of experience in the Craft, it were not amiss, I think, if we briefly examined the first principles of our Order, and if I were to offer some few words of counsel as to those moral duties, for the discharge of which we, as Freemasons, are all responsible. We are instructed in the work of the First Degree that Freemasonry is founded upon the purest principles of piety and virtue, civil, social, religious, and moral. We are led to understand by this that the good Mason must be a true and loyal subject, paying due obedience to all lawfully constituted authorities, and supporting them on every occasion when properly discharging their official duties; that nothing shall be powerful enough to weaken our family affections, or draw us away from the proper discharge of those domestic duties which render British homes the national pride of our people. That not only must we be not revilers of religion, but, whatever the faith we hold, lovers of our brethren, and faithful servants and worshippers of the Great Architect and Ruler of the Universe, who must be worshipped in spirit and in truth. And although no true religion can impose on us absolute withdrawal from the world, and from the many good and beautiful things that the Most High has given us for our use, yet all true religion and, therefore, Freemasonry, and even nature herself, teach us to be temperate and discreet in the use of those pleasures which are so enticing to us in our present state, and which when used to excess tend to lead us into practices which would place us outside the pale of those who may be called moral; but by a prudent and well regulated course of discipline to preserve our mental and corporeal faculties in their fullest vigour, that we may be able to utilise to the fullest possible extent, to the honour and glory of our God, and the best welfare of our fellow creatures. Thus the very first principles of our Order are calculated to fix upon our minds, by continual repetition, the high duties which are laid upon us as children of the Most High, as citizens of the world, as heads of our respective families, and as individuals, and are intended to strengthen us in our purpose of discharging those duties with the most unremitting care and attention. Thus it is that we should bear ourselves in our conduct with the world, lest we bring discredit upon this most honourable fraternity, and bring a stain upon this heritage which has been handed down to us pure and unsullied. We should also be similarly careful as to our conduct within the lodge. There are those essential rules laid down for our guidance in the Ancient Charges of the First Degree, to which we should always pay the strictest attention and obedience; but there is one consideration which I must, in conclusion, bring under your notice, it is nowhere referred to in the charges I have spoken of, nor could we expect that it should be, because I by pre-suppose that state of mind which although seldom found ought always to exist in each one of us. We all confess to the beauty of the various charges and addresses which are used in conferring the several degrees, but their truest beauty is not realized nor their highest object attained unless we think continually of the various lessons they inculcate, there is always a dangerous tendency from continually hearing the same things expressed in the same words, to overlook the deep importance of the things spoken, and the frequently hearing them from various persons induces us to criticise the manner in which they are delivered rather than cull the high maxims taught for our guidance and edification. The most successful Master is not the one who initiates the greatest number into the Craft, nor the one who displays the greatest powers of rhetoric, but he who by the modesty of his demeanour, and by the example of his own conduct convinces all that his words and actions are living illustrations of those high and noble sentiments and precepts which it is his duty to utter; without this appreciation of moral beauty both on the part of those who speak and of those who hear our ceremonies are empty and worthless forms, they are as the sounding brass and tinkling cymbal of Holy Writ, but with the fullness of living reality in them, as I have already described, illustrated by exemplary actions they will have their proper influence on the lives of all and so bear their proper part to fit and prepare us for that solemn time when entering the dark deep valley of the shadow of death, we shall need to be sustained by a reasonable hope that on rising from the tomb of transgression we may shine like the stars in that Grand Lodge above, where the world's Great Architect lives and reigns for evermore.

The remainder of the ceremony was of the usual impressive character, and the musical portion was most efficiently given by Bros. D. Saunders, 1609; H. Ashmore, W.M. 823; J. Busfield, 216; J. Quier, 667; J. P. Bryan, 203; and Gilfillan, Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O., presiding at the harmonium.

Bro. Robertson, P.G.J.W., afterwards most efficiently installed Bro. E. Johnston as the first W.M. of the Kirkdale Lodge, and the officers invested were Bros. W. Gick, S.W.; H. Ferguson, J.W.; R. E. Mitton, Treasurer; and J. Grierson, Secretary.

The brethren subsequently sat down to a banquet, most satisfactorily provided by Bro. Casey, and during the evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given.

CONSECRATION OF THE KING HENRY VIII. LODGE, No. 1757.

This new lodge for the Province of Herts was consecrated on Monday afternoon, at the Town Hall, Hemel Hempstead, by the Right Worshipful Bro. Thomas F. Halsey, M.P., Provincial Grand Master of Hertfordshire. The following brethren were present, those who are Provincial Grand Officers occupying their respective positions in the lodge:—Bros. W. Oswell Thompson, C. Haddock, H. Baldwin, G. P. Bernard, G. Finch, Thomas Woodman, Geo. Young, T. Thomas, Tyler; J. Middleton, Tyler; H. D. Martin, Acacia, 1314; Lawler, Moria; F. T. Edgington, 1321; R. B. Bateman, J.D. 591; W. H. Borne, P.M. 198 and 504; D. C. Foster, P.M. 504; G. Hisley, 1479; W. H. Hobson, 504; G. Young, S.W. 979; W. Norris, 840; T. F. Knight Smith, J.W. 1441; W. Bonsor, W.M. 1580; W. Smith, H.D., M.A., J.D. 1538; W. D. Coliven-stark, P.M. 1668; A. H. Tattershall, P.M. 140; T. Kent, P.G.J.D., and W.M. 1479; J. Terry, P.G.J.W., 1580; J. L. Mather, P.G.D.C., 1580; T. J. Carter, P.G.S.D., 403; A. E. Ohney, P.M. 504; H. Hallis, P.M. 167; H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason).

The following brethren performed the musical portion of the ceremony:—Bros. Knight Smith, T. Lawler, Martin, George Young, George Young, jun., Dr. Smith, and Walter Norris. Bro. James Terry, Prov. G.J.W., delivered the oration.

After Bro. Halsey had consecrated the lodge he installed Bro. the Rev. W. Oswell Thompson, Vicar of Hemel Hempstead, P.M., and Provincial Grand Chaplain, as Worshipful Master of the lodge. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. Samuel Haddock, S.W.; Henry Balderson, J.W.; Dr. Bernard, Treasurer (pro tem.) and Secretary; Rev. George Finch, P.M., P. Prov. G. Chaplain, S.D.; Thomas Woodman, J.D.; and George Young, I.G.

Bro. Halsey performed the whole of the ceremonies in admirable style, and with a fluency which displayed perfect mastery of the noble art. Before resuming his seat on the right of the W.M., he said he hoped the lodge would have a long career of usefulness. Propositions for joining were then given in, and the W.M. proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the R.W. Prov. G.M. for Hertfordshire, for so readily, kindly, and efficiently conducting the important duties of Consecrating Master. He also hoped that the Prov. G.M. would allow his name to be enrolled as an honorary member of the lodge. Bro. Haddock, S.W., seconded the motion, which was then passed and carried unanimously.

Bro. Halsey, in acknowledging the compliment, said he had to thank the brethren heartily for the kind manner in which they had received his humble services. It had afforded him great pleasure to assist in the consecration of the lodge in that, the last important town in the province. He had long regretted that there was no lodge in the town with which he was so closely connected, in which he had spent the greater part of his days, and where he was likely to live the remainder of his life. He hoped the lodge would be a success. There was every reason why there should be a lodge in the town. It gave him double pleasure in installing the present W.M. as the first Master of the lodge, having been a contemporary of the W.M. in Masonry at Oxford, and having kept up a close Masonic connection with him through a London lodge since the days of their youth. He knew the W.M.'s efficiency in the Craft, and that he was likely to start the lodge with great credit.

The Prov. Grand Master was then elected an honorary member of the lodge, which he said he was most happy to accept.

The lodge was soon after closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. The loyal and Masonic toasts followed.

In giving the toast of "The Pro G.M., &c.," the W.M. said that when they came to this toast they seemed to be getting very near home, and could realize the toast themselves more than the previous toasts. They had a brother amongst them who was a Grand Officer, and who was in a special degree connected with Grand Lodge of England. Bro. Wilson, who had taken a very active part in the Masonry of Hertfordshire, was a Grand Pursuivant of England, and he was a brother well known to all of them, and was highly esteemed. The Earl of Carnarvon was a good Oxford Mason, and a member of the same lodge there as he (the W.M.) had the honour himself to belong to. Belonging to the same lodge he (the W.M.) knew him to be a good Mason in every way. He was most diligent in his attendance at Grand Lodge, as all the brethren knew, and performed the duties of the M.W.G.M. in His Royal Highness' absence.

Bro. Wilson, Assistant G.P., replied, and said that it was most important that the Craft should be represented by Grand Officers in whom they had confidence, and on whom they could rely for their government. For Lord Carnarvon he could say that all the brethren knew that no one was more competent than he to discharge the duties of Pro Grand Master. Every brother who had the honour and privilege of attending Grand Lodge knew that Lord Carnarvon attended there as presiding officer very frequently, and that he presided over Grand Lodge and ruled it in the spirit of Masonry. They knew he had Masonry at heart and that he was desirous of furthering its objects and making it honoured. Lord Skelmersdale also had his heart in Masonry, and was always ready to do all he could to promote its interests. The other Grand Officers did the same, and had worked diligently, faithfully and zealously, or they would not have attained their high positions. On his own behalf, as one of those Grand Officers, he thanked the W.M. heartily for having coupled his name with the toast. He was pleased to visit this lodge and receive the brethren's hospitality. The ceremonies had been performed by the Prov. G.M. in most admirable style, and he had been much pleased with the opportunity of witnessing them. Every brother must have been delighted with the way in which both the consecration and the installation had been performed, and they were all deeply indebted to the Prov. G. Master, as well as to those brethren who had assisted him. Bro. Terry had given them a splendid oration, and had delivered it most eloquently. The treat they had all had was highly valued by all the brethren, and for the reception which he himself had received he had to thank the brethren sincerely.

The W.M. next gave "The Health of the Prov. Grand Master," and said that this lodge having been consecrated that evening was the junior lodge of the province, and, therefore, a very special obligation was thrown upon it of behaving itself, as, indeed, there was upon all who had the eyes of the world upon them. Young people who appeared in the world always had the eyes of the world upon them. In public life the last person who appeared on the scene grew in publicity in a special degree; and he could not but think that what occurred in the world without was the case within the hallowed world of Masonry. Therefore, the new King Henry VIII. Lodge, No. 1757, most especially at that moment, was drawing the eyes of publicity upon it. When it had been consecrated and dedicated, as it had been that afternoon, by the Right W. the Prov. G.M. himself, he thought they must all be filled with that zeal for Masonry in recognition of the efficient way in which the ceremonies had been performed, that they should drink the toast he now proposed with the greatest enthusiasm. It was a most acceptable toast. All the brethren of the lodge were well tried and earnest Masons, and he trusted that great results would accrue from the establishment of the lodge. He was sure that the R.W. Prov. G.M. would not have cause to look upon the King Henry VIII. Lodge as the least of the lodges he had to rule over. Therefore, in full hope of the future usefulness of the lodge and its future advantage to the Craft, as well as of future honour to themselves, he asked them to drink "The Health of the Right Worshipful the Prov. Grand Master," especially remembering that he was the Consecrating Officer of the day.

Bro. Halsey, in reply, said, it was with very great diffidence that he rose to return thanks for the honour which had been done him in drinking his health. He could only say with regard to what the W.M. had been kind enough to say as to the part he (the Prov. G.M.) had taken in the performance of the duties of the day that his duties had been very light, and they had been doubly light, if he might use the expression, by the efficiency of the other brethren who had also borne a most important part in the ceremonies. He could not omit to mention a brother who was a most important officer on these occasions, and that was the Director of Ceremonies. Also there were the musical brethren, because a good deal of the ceremony was musical; and if at the consecration of a lodge they were not provided with good and efficient brethren to manage that part of the ceremony the proceedings must fall somewhat flat. However, he ventured to think that at any rate, the proceedings that day had gone off very satisfactorily, and so as to warrant them in believing that the lodge would in due course fill an important place in the town. He was confident there was scope for its operation in the neighbourhood and in the province of Hertfordshire. He could repeat what he said in the lodge room that it had given him great pleasure to find a lodge launched in a town with which he was so closely connected for various reasons, and in which he had spent the greater part of his life, and expected to spend the remainder. He had often thought there was scope for a lodge there, and raw material out of which to mould a perfect stone; and he did not see why this lodge should not enjoy a lengthened career of usefulness. He certainly must express his gratitude to the brethren of this province generally who had supported him in encouraging the progress of Freemasonry in the province during the four years he had had the honour of presiding over it. Of course it never could be a very large province, or one that could vie with either of the divisions of Lancashire or Yorkshire. It was a rural province. Considering that this was the third lodge that had been consecrated during his Prov. Grand Mastership he thought it showed a progress of which no province need be ashamed. He was reminded by the Senior Grand Warden that this was the eleventh lodge in the province, it was consecrated on the 11th of November, and November was the 11th month in the year. It was a peculiar coincidence. He thought the lodge entered the world under the most favourable auspices and most prosperous omens, and he trusted it would go on and meet there for a long time to come, with increased numbers on the anniversary of that day. He tendered the brethren his most cordial thanks for the honour they had done him, and he wished the W.M. health and strength to carry out the business of the lodge.

Bro. Dr. Wilson Iles, Prov. G. Sec. proposed "The Health of the Deputy Prov. G.M. and the Prov. G. Officers," to which Bro. Dawson, Prov. G.S.W. responded.

Bro. Halsey proposed "The Health of the W.M." It was through his instrumentality that the success of the day had been achieved, and by which the lodge would during the ensuing year realise the hopes which were entertained of it. From what they had seen of the energy and talent of the W.M. in getting up the lodge with the assistance of other brethren, and the manner it had been carried out, they were entitled to predict a glorious future for the lodge. He might speak with confidence of the knowledge of the W.M. of Freemasonry, and of his Masonic acquirements, because, as he had already mentioned, for many years he had been in close connection with the W.M. in Freemasonry. He felt sure that during the ensuing year the lodge would attain a position which it ought to take among the lodges of England, and he trusted the W.M. would receive support from the brethren.

The W.M., in reply, assured the brethren that there was no part of his duties which he performed that day with more uncomfortableness than he did in replying to this toast. If there was anything he hated it was having his health drank. When it was proposed as the Prov. G.M. had just proposed it, coupled with a wish for the success of himself and of Lodge 1757, he could not but feel he ought to be ashamed of himself if he did not try to respond to it most heartily. He could not but think that the Prov. G.M. and brethren had done him too great honour in calling him to preside over this the youngest lodge in the province. Being already a Past Master in the Craft he did not in any way seek the honour of presiding over this lodge; but when he found it was a wish and desire that a lodge should be formed in Hemel Hempstead, and when he found in answer to full enquiries that it was with the full concur-sence of the Master of the province himself, he thought he should be erring in his duty to Masonry generally if he refused to accept the honour imposed on him. It was therefore with the strongest desire to fulfil his duty that he entered on the Mastership of the lodge. No Mason ought to say he did not want to perform a duty which ought to be performed. If a Mason did he ought to be turned out as a coward at once. He (the W.M.) could not flinch from the duty he was asked to assume, and he trusted he should be able during his year of office to perform his duty not only with success to Masonry in general but also with advantage to the lodge. The lodge was deeply indebted to those who were concerned in the formation of it. The brethren connected with the neighbourhood deserved more than he did, and if he could in any way further their wishes Masonically he would wish to do so. Therefore, anything he could do to promote the success of the gathering that day he had been very glad to be able to do so. He thought that Masonry always flourished where it was advanced by those who had no other feeling in their hearts for it but a desire to do it good. Sometimes it was the duty of his calling, he might say its privilege, and he should be very much ashamed of himself if he did not say it was his pleasure, to say things which were not always so tasteful to people as they desired, and, therefore, at the present time he said that Masons themselves often failed in realising the full importance of the Order to which they had attached themselves, and the principles of which they were pledged to advance. He did not, however, think that those who were associated with him in this lodge would fail in their appreciation of the high duties of Masonry which might occasionally be observed in the Masonic world. He did not mean to say that there was a failure of duty anywhere, but they all knew that those who joined the Masonic Craft had not always the interests of Masonry at heart. At some times Masons were tainted with the charge that they met for good dinners, and good company, and so forth, and, therefore, it gave them some pain if they could not say, no, no Mason would ever so disgrace his professions or ignore the principles to which he was pledged. In the province, so well presided over by so thoroughly good a Mason as Bro. Halsey, who had his heart in Masonry, they had an example set them of what Masons ought to be, and in the starting a new lodge there, they had every possible augury for a successful future. He ventured to hope that those who had already joined the baby lodge of the province, and all those in the neighbourhood who wished them good will and a happy future would in every possible way work with them, as he was quite sure they would, to advance the principles of Masonry in the province, whether connected with this, the youngest, or with the oldest lodge in the province.

The W.M. next gave the toast of "The Visitors," and "The Officers of the Lodge."

Dr. Wilson then proposed "The Charities," and after the Tyler's toast had been honoured, the brethren separated.

CONSECRATION OF THE BRIXTON MARK LODGE, No. 234.

The consecration of the Brixton Mark Lodge, No. 234, was performed on Saturday last by Bro. Frederick Binckes, P.G.J.W., G.S., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell. There were present on the occasion Bros. Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M. for Middlesex and Surrey; Thos. Poore, Charles Palmer McKay, Henry Lovegrove, George Clark, Charles T. Pearce, George Clark, jun., James Stevens, P.G.J.O.; J. K. Pitt, P.P.A.D.C., W.M. 193; Don. M. Dewar, G. Assist. Secretary; Fred H. Cozens, P.G. Org.; Charles Palmer, P.G. Steward, P. Prov. G.J.O.; H. A. Dubois, P.M., W.M. No. 1; M. S. Latham, P.M., P.P. G.S.B.; Henry Baldwin, D.C. 139; H. C. Levander, G. Reg.; Pullman, J. B. Shackleton, W. G. Brighton, James Curtis, James Pinder, W.M. 205; Potter, Tyler; and H. Massey, P.M. 22 (Freemason).

After the lodge had been consecrated Bro. James Stevens advanced Bro. G. Clarke, jun., to the Mark Degree, and Bro. Thomas Poore was then installed by Bro. Binckes as W.M. of the lodge, and the following brethren were invested as officers for the year:—Charles Palmer McKay, J.W. 139, S.W.; Henry Lovegrove, J.W.; George Clark, jun., M.O.; James Curtis, S.O.; Barker, J.O.; H. Baldwin, Secretary; Dr. Pearce, J.D.; and Bro. Potter, Tyler.

When all the work had been completed, the Consecrating Officers received a vote of thanks, and they were elected honorary members of the lodge, along with Col. Burdett, to whom a vote of thanks was also passed for his kindness in attending at the consecration.

Propositions for advancement and joining were subsequently given in, and after the lodge was closed the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed in due course.

Bro. H. C. Levander, G. Reg., in responding for the Grand Master, said it was the earnest desire of Lord Skelmersdale and all the Grand Officers who were associated with him, to do all they possibly could for the advancement of this Order. The brethren had had the pleasure that day of witnessing the consecration of a new lodge. Speaking for himself, it gave him a great deal of satisfaction to see Bro. Poore, whom he had known a long time, installed in the chair of a new Mark lodge. They trusted that this would be a most successful lodge. It was the first in that neighbourhood, and it had been commenced under good auspices. No doubt with such an energetic W.M., assisted by such well-known officers, the lodge would be a marked success, and with the wish that it would be, he begged to conclude his observations.

The W.M. in proposing "The Provincial Grand Master," said all the brethren were desirous to do all honour to Col. Burdett, a brother whose genial manner rendered him a great favourite with all of them. Col. Burdett always seemed to enjoy himself among the brethren, and he was always ready to come among them.

Col. Burdett, in reply, said it always gave him pleasure to come among the lodges he ruled over. When he came among Mark lodges he found himself received in the most kind and pleasant manner. It was because the brethren were so kind and gracious that whenever the opportunity was offered he took advantage of it to come among them. The province had become a very large and efficient one, and had acquired great influence in the Order. They had been assisted by the Grand Master and Grand Officers generally. The province was increasing month by month. He believed this new lodge would become a very influential one, and hold a position in the province of considerable importance. The province for a long time had to strive against difficulties, but they had been nearly overcome.

Bro. Dewar, replying for the Deputy Grand Master, said, in his position as Assistant Grand Secretary it gave him great pleasure to see a new lodge so well started as the Brixton Lodge had been. It had been much wanted, and any assistance he could give to it or any other Mark lodge he should be most happy to render.

Bro. Shackleton said he had been lately at the Consecration of the St. Leonard Craft Lodge, as well as at the present Mark lodge. In both a most experienced Past Master was placed in the chair. It was the best criticism of the esteem in which Masonry was held when a number of brethren were found ready to serve under the gavel of an experienced P.M. He thought that if Past Masters would take the chair and become first Masters of new lodges it would be the best thing that could possibly happen for a lodge, because the P.M.s. were brethren of experience and could give the other brethren instruction in the business of the lodge, which would lay a good foundation for the lodge to work upon. They had an instance of this in the lodge just consecrated, and he believed if they came there that day twelvemonth they would see great progress in Mark Masonry.

Bro. James Stevens proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who, by his long experience in Mark Masonry, had become a shining light in Mark Masonry, and a brother to whom they all looked not only for a full and proper explanation of the ceremonies, but for instruction in the Mark Degree. The repute in which he was held both in Craft and Mark Masonry would induce the brethren to give him that support which might probably lay the foundation of a most successful lodge in this district, which was now quite virgin ground. There was no Mark lodge in this district, and he was quite certain that Bro. Poore would not leave a stone unturned towards making the district famous for Mark Masonry.

The W.M., in reply, said he would do everything he possibly could during his year of office to promote the interests of Mark Masonry. He had had the pleasure and satisfaction of receiving a vast amount of Mark instruction from Bro. Binckes. He had the pleasure of being installed by him in the Panmure Lodge, and that made a great impression on him. He had seen the beauties of Mark Masonry, and it verified in some cases, and explained in others, what he heard when he was installed as Master of the Panmure Lodge. No pains should be spared on his part to make the Brixton Lodge a success. He agreed with Bro. Shackleton that a P.M. should be the first Master of a lodge, whether in the Craft or in the Mark. It gave the brethren an opportunity of performing their duties carefully. When he handed over the Brixton Lodge to his successor he hoped it would be a strong one which had made its mark in the province.

The W.M. next proposed "The Consecrating Master, Bro. F. Binckes," to whom he was indebted for all his Mark information. He believed it to be Bro. Binckes' greatest delight to further the interests of Mark Masonry.

Bro. Binckes, in reply, said Bro. Poore did him no more than justice when he said he had at heart, very nearly and dearly, the interests of Mark Masonry. It would be impossible for him, in the position he occupied, and had occupied for twenty years, to be indifferent to the progress of this Degree. When he first came into it it was in a very different position to what it was at the present time. He did not claim to have done much towards furthering that progress, but he did not hesitate to say he had watched it with interest and anxiety, and its present position was the best reward he had for any pains he had taken with it. It was now out of the reign of criticism; it was an established fact, a body that could boast of a very good organisation. It had the surest of all good bases of prosperity, good funded property, and it could give the best evidence that could be given, not hostages to fortune, but invested funds which they would not only take care of and increase, but which they would devote to good objects. With reference to observations of the previous speakers he was pleased to say that opinions he enunciated some years ago, not then so popular as they were now, with regard to Masters of lodges, were being adopted. It had always been his opinion that the first Master of a lodge should be an experienced Past Master, not only for the security it gave in the first year of a lodge's existence that its interests would be preserved, but a P.M. was one on whom they might rely and who would watch over the interests of a lodge as long as he was spared. It was all very well for young brethren to complain that they had to toil for a number of wearisome years to make themselves acquainted with the various details of office. In some it was called a legitimate ambition to leap into the chair. For himself he liked a good training. He went through that training himself, and he would advise all brethren not to be too eager for office, because he was satisfied that the experience which time alone could give—he did not care how gifted a man might be—whatever office he was called upon to fill he would fill with more satisfaction to himself and more advantage to those with whom he was associated if he brought to the discharge of his duties great experience.

He installed Bro. Poore as Master of a new lodge. After some years he again had installed him, and he could bear his testimony that Bro. Poore had discharged all his duties efficiently. Some time ago he (Bro. Binckes) undertook to discharge the duties of Installing Master in the country, when he was really unable to go through a sudden emergency. The only brother he could fall back upon was Bro. Poore, and Bro. Poore went down to Bury St. Edmund's and achieved such popularity there, that whatever popularity he (Bro. Binckes) before possessed he sacrificed it. The brethren there said that Bro. Binckes sent a representative, but the representative exceeded the original. This reminded him of the old lines.—

To teach his grandson draughts then

His leisure he'd employ,

Until at last the old man

Was beaten by the boy.

He was rejoiced to see the prosperity of the Order. Lodges were springing up in all directions and the brethren were taking great interest in the Degree and there were many who could do the work very well. It was only a few years ago that only two or three brethren could be depended on to work the ceremonies; but now there were a large number of accomplished Mark Masters ready to perform the duty, and whom he was glad to reckon in the foremost ranks. He thanked the brethren for the compliment they had paid him, and he again expressed the pleasure it had given him to install the W.M., as it had given him an opportunity of making some fresh additions to the many acquaintances he had formed during the last five and twenty years. He loved Masonry, and he loved Mark Masonry because it was a part of pure and ancient Freemasonry. He also loved it because outside it showed itself on all occasions not only desirous and determined, but willing and prepared to give practical effect to its professions by assisting the Masonic Charities with which he hoped his name would always be associated.

The toasts of "The Advanced Brother," "The Press," and "The Officers," were also given and responded to.

The W.M. proposed "The Charities," and said he did not see what so young a lodge could do for them, but he hoped before long it would do something, and that they might send up a list for the Boys' Festival.

Bro. Binckes, replying, said he did not know why he should be selected to respond to this toast, because there was hardly a brother round the table who did not deserve to be associated with it. The W.M. had said he did not see what so young a lodge could do for the Charities. He would tell them. Let them at once see if they could not make up a guinea as a nucleus. As the toast had been proposed, do not let it be an idle sentiment or an empty proposition.

This advice was acted on, and the guinea was at once subscribed, and voted to the Boys' School. The charity box was then started, and the amount collected directed to the Mark Benevolent Fund.

Bro. Binckes then explained that at the next meeting of Grand Mark Lodge, a scheme would be submitted for the education of the Mark Masters' sons. £1000 having been invested, it was now proposed to devote half of the annual subscriptions in future to this fund to assisting Mark Masters to educate their sons in their own neighbourhood. It was not designed for indigent or necessitous Mark Masons only or primarily, but for those men who were Mark Masons, who though able to educate their families were not sufficiently well to do to take advantage of the superior education which many grammar and foundation schools in their localities offered.

"The Visitors" toast was then given, and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday afternoon, at Freemasons' Hall, Col. Creaton in the chair. The other brethren present were Bros. R. H. Giraud, C. Cottelbrune, James Brett, W. L. Clarke, S. Ranson, J. M. Case, A. H. Tattershall, Wm. Hale, J. Newton, Wm. Stephens, W. Hilton, Dr. Jabez Hogg, C. G. Dilly, William F. Nettleship, Thomas Cubitt, Raynham W. Stewart, James Terry, Secretary; and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, Bro. James Terry read a letter from Bro. Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Provincial Grand Master for East Lancashire, stating that he would have much pleasure in presiding at the next festival of the Institution, on the 12th of February, 1879. Bro. Terry also stated that a Committee had been formed in East Lancashire for the purpose of promoting the success of the festival, and that he had already been invited to attend a meeting in East Lancashire with respect to it. He had already twenty-six Stewards from that province, and he believed that the list which would be sent up from East Lancashire would be the largest of any province at the next festival. Bro. Terry afterwards informed the brethren that the lady who was an annuitant of the Institution in the West of England, and who, at the last meeting of the Committee, resigned her annuity, because she had succeeded to some property by the death of a relative, had, in reply to a letter which he had sent her announcing the expression of the feeling of the brethren on the step she had taken, written back to him, enclosing £5 for himself. He had, however, of course, declined to accept it, but had told her that it might be applied to the Institution. To his letter she had sent a reply, expressing her pleasure that the money should be so applied, and enclosing a further sum of £5 to be added to it for the benefit of the Institution.

The Committee, thereupon made up the ten shillings requisite to give the lady her qualification votes, and directed the Secretary to inform her that the sum would be credited to her, and that she would have her votes for her liberal donation.

Bro. Terry read a letter from Miss Norris, Matron of the Institution, thanking the brethren in her own and in her father's name for increasing her salary.

One petitioner was placed on the list. There was but one petitioner, and Bro. Terry said that on that day twelve-month previously there were twenty.

A letter was read from Bro. E. J. Barrow, in reference to the Institution proving against the separate estate of the late Bro. Samuel Tomkins, after which the Committee adjourned.

H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD AND THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

By special dispensation granted by the Great Prior of England (the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale), an emergency meeting of the Cœur de Lion Preceptory, of the Province of Oxford, was held on Monday, the 11th inst., at 33, Golden-sq., London, for the purpose of installing H.R.H. Prince Leopold, K.G., into the Commander's chair of this distinguished preceptory. At a few minutes after 4 o'clock His Royal Highness, accompanied by the Eminent Commander, the Rev. Thomas Cochrane, Grand Prelate of the Order, was received by the Sir Knights assembled under the Arch of Steel.

The Eminent Commander, having Sir Kt. Hyde-Pullen, P.G. Supt. of Works, as Constable; Sir Kts. F. Richardson, as Marshal; the Rev. John Robbins, D.D., Grand Almoner and Chaplain, as Chaplain; Colonel Somerville Burney, Past Grand Commander of Essex, as Captain of Guards; then proceeded to open the preceptory in due form.

The special dispensation issued by the Great Prior of England for holding an emergency meeting of the Cœur de Lion Preceptory for the installation of His Royal Highness in London, instead of at Oxford, was then handed by the Great Sub-Prior to the E.C., and by him handed to the Grand Chancellor of the Order, by whom it was read in full. It having been announced that the Very High and Eminent the Great Prior of Ireland, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, K.G., was without awaiting admittance, a deputation of the Great Officers of the Order was appointed to conduct His Royal Highness into the Preceptory, where he was received with all honours under an Arch of Steel, and took his seat at the immediate right of the Eminent Commander, who had the Great Sub-Prior of England, Sir Knight Colonel Shadwell Clerke on his left. H.R.H. the Great Prior of Ireland having been saluted in due form, the ceremony of installation was immediately proceeded with. His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, K.G., the E.C. elect, was presented to the E.C. by the Very Eminent Prior of Suffolk and Cambridge (Captain N. G. Philips), the Senior Provincial Prior present.

The ceremony of installation was then performed in a very able manner by the Eminent Commander Sir Knight the Rev. Thos. Cochrane.

His Royal Highness after having been duly proclaimed and saluted, briefly expressed his acknowledgements to the members of the Cœur de Lion Preceptory, for the honour they had done him in placing him in that high and responsible situation, which he would endeavour to fulfil in as able a manner as it had been by his predecessor.

His Royal Highness then appointed the following companions as his officers:—

The Rev. T. Cochrane	Pro C.
Colonel the Hon. W. E. Sackville	West
Reginald Bird (D.P.G.M. Oxford)	Constable.
Walter Thompson, P.C.	Marshal.
The Rev. G. M. Brock-Arnold	Treasurer.
J. E. C. Bodley	Chaplain.
Fentham Hedges	Registrar.
J. Sanders	Sub-Marshal.
John Potts	Chamb.
Joseph Reade	Dir. of Cer.
E. S. Lucas	Capt. of Guards.
R. Usher	Almoner.
W. W. Harrison, P.C.	Standard Bearer.
James Cavaw	Organist.
Tomlin	Aide de C.
Horatio Symonds	1st Herald.
W. Stephens, G. Norwood	2nd Herald.
	Equeries.

His Royal Highness then received congratulations from H.R.H. the Great Prior of Ireland, and the Very Eminent Priors present, and it is worthy of note that "Hearty Good Wishes" came from South Africa, British Burmah, Bengal, Suffolk and Cambridge, Essex, Dorset, Kent, Sussex, &c., &c.

Amongst the distinguished Sir Knights present we noticed the following Very Eminent Priors:—Captain N. G. Philips, Suffolk and Cambridge; Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, Sussex; J. M. P. Montagu, Dorsetshire; R. W. Hoskins Giddy, South Africa; and the following Very Eminent Past Provincial Priors:—Colonel Somerville Burney, Essex; Major-General H. Clerk, Kent; H. D. Sandeman, Bengal; Colonel Duncan, British Burmah; and the following Past and Present National and Great Officers of the Order:—Sir Knights A. Stavelly Hill, Q.C., M.P., Grand Chancellor; C. Goolden, K.C.T., Grand Treasurer; Raymond Thrupp, Grand Registrar; the Rev. John Robbins, D.D., Grand Almoner and Chaplain; Hyde-Pullen, Past Grand Superintendent of Works; Col. Francis Burdett, P.P. England and Ireland; the Rev. F. K. Harford (Canon of Westminster), P.P.; Frank Richardson, P.P.; John Potts, Joseph Reade, Lott, Organist; and others.

All business being ended, the preceptory was closed in ample form by the Illustrious and Eminent Commander, H.R.H. Prince Leopold, and their Royal Highnesses the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold, accompanied by the Great Officers of the Order, then retired under the Arch of Steel.

Great praise is due to the Great Sub-Prior, Colonel Shadwell Clerke, and the other "authorities" at 33, Golden-square, for the admirable manner in which all the arrangements were carried out, which tended so materially to the perfect success of the meeting, and to the comfort of all those Sir Knights who were privileged to be present on this, which will long be remembered by them in general, and the members of the Cœur de Lion Preceptory in particular, as a red-letter day in the annals of Knights Templar.

Obituary.

BRO. J. RIDLEY, 823.

The remains of Bro. Joseph Ridley, late of Penrith, who died at his residence, 7, Great Homer-street, Liverpool, were on Tuesday, the 5th inst., interred in Anfield Cemetery, Liverpool, in the presence of about 600 friends and acquaintances. The burial service was read in a very solemn and impressive manner by the Rev. F. B. Tyrer, Vicar of All Saints, Great Nelson-street, and at the close a number of Sunday School children sang the hymn "The home over there." Among those who were present to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased were Bros. H. Ashmore, W.M., 823; J. Houlding, I.P.M.; J. S. Cuthbert, S.W.; J. Beesley, J.D.; R. Brough, O.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; R. Ellis, and many members of the Everton Lodge, 823, to which the deceased had belonged for some years.

BRO. FRANCIS FELLOWS.

We are sorry to announce the death of Bro. Francis Fellows, W.M. of the Henry Muggeridge Lodge, No. 1679, and S.E. of the Lion and Lamb Chapter, No. 192, of consumption, which melancholy event took place on Monday 11th inst., at his residence, Montague Road, Dalston, leaving a widow and three children to lament his loss. We hope to give a fuller account next week.

BRO. F. PEPYS COCKERELL, G.S. OF WORKS.

It is with sincere regret that we announce the death of Bro. Frederick Pepys Cockerell, for several years and at the time of his death Grand Superintendent of Works. Bro. Cockerell was the architect of Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. The World says of our lamented brother, "Many will note with regret the death of Mr. Frederick Pepys Cockerell, which took place suddenly last week in Paris. The son of the late Professor Cockerell, R.A., the well-known architect, Mr. Cockerell followed in his father's footsteps, and both professionally and personally was highly esteemed."

ST. MARY COMMANDERY'S PILGRIMAGE.

We publish with much gratification the following extract from the Philadelphia Chronicle, of October 30th, just received.

The international reception given the "Anglo-Saxon Masons" by Bro. Kenning, of the Freemason, will never be forgotten. We were the recipients of his good feelings towards the American Freemasons. Around his private board, spread in the magnificent dining-hall of the Freemasons' Tavern, were assembled the leading Masons of Great Britain. Those celebrated in the annals of the Craft, the historians, the editors, the financiers, the legislators, the ministerial, the legal, the brightest members of the Grand Lodge of England, the first Grand Lodge of the world, were here met at the invitation of that accomplished gentleman and Freemason, the proprietor of the leading Masonic newspaper of the world, to do honour to a company of American Masons, representatives of the Mary Commandery.

Bro. Kenning will be known as the publisher and proprietor of the most successful Masonic publications, "The London Freemason," "The Masonic Magazine," "The Scottish Freemason," "The Rosicrucian," and the American brethren cannot speak too highly of the able manner in which the entire reception was conducted, and in which he was aided by Bros. Woodford and Hughtan.

Late at night, or early in the morning, we left for our hotel, thus bringing to a close, in a most happy manner, the Masonic Pilgrimage of Mary Commandery, No. 36, K.T., to Great Britain and Ireland in 1878."

The Committee desire to say that much of the success of the pilgrimage is due to the great assistance rendered by W. Bro. James H. Neilson, Sirs Wm. J. Hughtan, T. B. Whythead, S. B. Ellis, R. S. Brown, O. Ternan, and others.

At the suggestion and recommendation of the Committee, votes of thanks were tendered to a number of brethren for attentions shown the pilgrims, and a number of foreign brethren elected honorary members, among whom were mentioned Bros. George Kenning, Wm. J. Hughtan, T. B. Whythead, S. B. Ellis, O. Ternan, D. Murray Lyon, R. S. Brown, and others.

The Installation Meeting of the Royal Naval College Lodge, No. 1593, was held on Tuesday last, Bro. Captain Valentine F. Johnson was installed in the chair of K.S. A report will appear in our next.

Lieut. J. J. F. Hume, 2nd Middlesex Militia, eldest son of Colonel J. J. Hume, Bengal Staff Corps, has passed his examination for the line. Lieut. Hume was prepared for his examination by Bro. A. W. Hume, P.M., Allison Tower, Dulwich-common.

Miss Emily Mott announces her sixth annual concert to take place on Thursday next, at St. George's Hall, the principal singers, in addition to herself, being Madame Blanche Cole, Mrs. Osgood, Madame Patey, Mr. Shakespeare and Mr. Maybrick.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The ninth Anniversary Banquet of the Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1275, will be held at the Mire Restaurant, London-street, Greenwich, on Thursday Dec. the 5th.

The annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, No. 256, will be held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Friday evening, the 29th inst.

In the province of Dumbarton the oldest Freemason in Scotland is to be found. The brother is Alexander Cameron, tailor, doing business at the Cross of the village of Renton. That gentleman has reached the patriarchal age of 96 years—indeed, he attained that age in April last. He joined the Freemasons when he reached his majority—21 years of age—and has been an ardent and enthusiastic member from that till this—a period of 75 years.

A review of Bro. Montgomery Rankin's new poem "Bjorn and Bera" will appear next week.

The Consecration of the Leopold Mark Lodge, No. 235, will take place on Monday week, the 25th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Reading, at one o'clock p.m., precisely. The ceremonies of consecration and installation will be performed by Bro. Frederick Binckes, P.G.W.

At the meeting of the Great Priory of Knights Templar for Canada, on the 11th ult., Bro. Emra Holmes, K.C.T., Past Grand Provost of England, was proposed by Col. McLeod Moore, G.C.T. Great Prior of Canada, and elected by Great Priory, as representative near the Great Priory of England, of the Great Priory of Canada, in the room, we believe, of the late Bro. Woof, F.S.A. Bro. Holmes, was also elected, in conjunction with Col. Shadwell Clerke, Great Sub Prior of England, and Bro. Whythead P.E.C., of York, a member of the Grand Master's Council.

On Thursday, the 7th inst., a large company of magistrates, aldermen, town councillors and officials of Falmouth, met at the Royal Hotel for the purpose of, making a presentation to the Mayor, Bro. Thomas Webber a well known Mason and member of the Prov. G. Lodge of Cornwall. The presentation took the form of a silver tea and coffee service, accompanied by an elaborate address brilliantly illuminated on vellum by Messrs. Lake and Lake of Truro. The address was presented in token of the great esteem in which Bro. Webber was held whilst filling the office of Mayor for five different years.

Heavy falls of snow took place on Monday night in the North and North-Western counties. At Leeds the snow-fall is described as the heaviest known for years, and it was accompanied by a tempest of thunder and lightning.

The Morning Post states that at the next half-yearly communication of Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons, which will be held at the Freemasons' Tavern on the 31st of December, under the presidency of the Grand Master of the Degree, Lord Skelmersdale, a scheme will be proposed for the purpose of educating the sons of Mark Masons. Without going into the details of the scheme, which of course will require deliberation, we may mention that its broad basis is that half of the annual subscriptions to the fund of benevolence shall be applicable towards aiding Mark Masters in educating their sons in their own neighbourhoods. The scheme is not meant for indigent or necessitous Mark Masons only or primarily, but is designed as well for those Mark brethren who, though able to educate their families, are not sufficiently well to do to secure for them the superior education that is offered by many of the old grammar and foundation schools in their particular provinces.

To prevent disappointment the publisher will be glad to receive early orders for the Christmas number of "The Masonic Magazine" containing Anthony Trollope's new and original story. Price, post free, one shilling and two pence. Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, No. 507, on Friday week, the 29th inst., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell. Brethren desirous of taking part in working the sections should address the Secretary, Bro. Watts, 13, Bramah-road, Brixton.

CHARITY AT THE MANSION-HOUSE.—Mr. William J. Soulsby, private secretary to the Lord Mayor, who has acted as secretary to all the various funds, gives us the following accurate particulars of the sums forwarded to the Mansion-house for charitable purposes during the last three years:—In Mr. Alderman Cotton's mayoralty £45,636 was subscribed—namely, to the Inundations Relief Fund, £18,700; the Goliath, £1,502; the Warspite, £6,446; the Eastern War Sufferers, £17,250 and the Thunderer, £1,738. In Sir Thomas White's year £542,523 was collected—viz., for the Indian Famine Fund £515,200; the St. John (New Brunswick) Fire Relief Fund, £7,062; the Welsh Miners' Fund, £4,674; the North Sea Fishing Disasters, £7,491; and the Inundations Fund, £8,094. In Sir Thomas Ouden's mayoralty £75,629 was received—namely, the Eurydice Fund, £5,712; the Princess Alice, £37,788; the Haydock, £1,128; and the Abercane, £31,000. In the three years, £663,788 was thus subscribed. This is entirely exclusive of the Hospital Sunday Fund, which is also received and disbursed at the Mansion-house; but adding the amount of this latter fund, £78,680, the three years' aggregate is increased to £742,468.

The Prince of Wales has concluded arrangements for renting Maeslinch Castle, Radnorshire, the residence of the late Mr. Walter de Winton, and his Royal Highness will occupy the mansion the early part of next year. When the Prince resides at Maeslinch he will be the first member of Royalty who has visited Radnorshire since the days of King Charles II.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

WOOLWICH.—Union Waterloo Lodge (No. 13).—The first meeting of the members of the above lodge since the installation of Bro. John Moore, W.M., took place on Wednesday, the 13th inst., at the Masonic Hall, William-street. Bro. G. Davies, P.M., in the chair, assisted by the following officers: Bros. Thos. Hutton, S.W.; N. Brown, J.W.; H. Syer, Sec.; G. W. Collier, S.D.; T. Hosgood, J.D.; A. Deans, I.G.; H. Harding, Org.; and B. Norman, O.G. Amongst visitors were H. Wetherill, P.M., Leinster, I.G.; B. Green, 1077; G. W. King 77; W. Lacey, 700; W. Tucker, 813; S. Jones, 511; and C. Jolly, 913. (Freemason.) The only business before the lodge after the confirming of the minutes of the previous meeting, was the raising of a brother to the Sublime Degree, which was happily effected. The lodge was then resumed to First Degree and B. Moore having arrived and taken the chair, introduced the subject of our unfortunate brother (Capt. Grinstead's) children, and the petition of the widow for the reception of them into the Masonic Schools was duly signed, as was the petition of the late Past Master John Henderson's widow to become an annuitant on the funds of the Order.

WHITTINGTON LODGE (No. 861).—This lodge met on Monday last for, amongst other business, the installation of a new Worshipful Master. Bro. Alfred Moore, W.M., presided, and there were also present:—Bros. W. J. H. Jones, P.M.; James Weaver, P.M., Sec.; Thomas Kingston, P.M., Treasurer; C. Walker, P.M.; W. A. Blakemore, S.W.; J. Fairbrother, S. Golden, S.D.; A. Bolton, I.G.; W. Knell, D.C.; R. P. Pate, J.D.; E. Sedgwick, C. Brothers, J. S. Brown, T. Richardson, W. Devine, J. Collison, D. J. Ross, T. P. Lee, R. Evans, W. W. Coates, J. E. Thompson, C. H. Pike, A. C. More, J. Stabler, J. Guignard, J. Irving, W. Jones, J. Gilbert, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. J. F. West, 753; Thos. Gates, 1599; J. W. Collier, 1366; Howard W. J. Vaughan, 1503; D. R. Wise, 452; A. Henry Gellbody, 1045; John Soaper, 55; W. F. Rogers, J.D. 704; W. A. Finney, P.M. 1319; A. W. Surr, J.W. 1612; Jas. Kew, 179; Samuel T. Kingston, Augustus Walton, 1257; J. A. Bayley, 180; J. Canham, 199; and H. Massey, P.M. 619; (Freemason.) After the lodge had been opened, the report of the Audit Committee was read and adopted. The balance sheet of the Benevolent Fund, of which Bro. James Weaver is the Treasurer, showed a balance in hand of £22 18s. 6d. The W.M. passed to the Second Degree Bro. William Jones, and initiated Mr. Richard Thomas Rosenberg. This work having been completed, the W.M. then installed Bro. W. A. Blakemore as Master of the lodge for the ensuing year, and did the whole of the work in a most efficient manner. After Bro. Alfred Moore had been invested as I.P.M., the following brethren were appointed as officers of the lodge to assist the W.M.:—Bro. Packer, S.W. (Bro. Jones, P.M., was invested for him in his unavoidable absence); Godden, J.W.; Thomas Kingston, P.M., Secretary; Tate, S.D.; Poulton, J.D.; Knell, I.G.; Sedgwick, D.C.; Brothers, W.S.; Gilbert, T. Bro. Alfred Moore then delivered the addresses, and was heartily cheered when he resumed his seat. Bro. W. J. H. Jones, P.M., proposed a vote of ten guineas to be placed on the list of Bro. Kingston, who is to be the Steward of the lodge for the next festival of the Benevolent Institution. The vote was seconded by Bro. C. Walker, P.M., and carried unanimously. A gift of five guineas was also made to a brother, who is now bed-ridden in the Benevolent Institution. The vote was moved by Bro. W. J. H. Jones, P.M., and seconded by Bro. Godden, J.W. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet at Freemasons' Tavern. After dinner the loyal toasts having been disposed of, Bro. Alfred Moore, I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said the majority of the brethren present had known the W.M. from his babyhood in Masonry, and they could not but have observed the assiduity and zeal with which he had carried out every duty in the various posts to which he had been appointed in the Craft. Even before his appointment he (Bro. Moore) found very frequently that Bro. Blakemore was ready to take office when officers were absent, and that was a very good and pleasing evidence of what they might expect of him in the future. His anticipations had not proved incorrect, for when Bro. Blakemore was appointed to office, and during the whole time he had been in office, there could be no doubt he had met with the approbation of all the brethren. He (Bro. Moore) had every confidence that as Bro. Blakemore had conducted himself before, so would he conduct himself in the future, and continue to make himself regarded and loved by all the members of the lodge. He trusted that Bro. Blakemore would be long spared to be associated with the Whittington Lodge and to do good for Freemasonry. The W.M. said, in response to Bro. Moore's speech, he could say that he had always exerted himself ever since he had been in the lodge to obtain the promotion he had had conferred on him that evening. He was very gratified at having attained that position, and he hoped that he should always have the same good feeling of the brethren that had raised him to that position. The W.M. then said that he had hoped to place a P.M. jewel on Bro. Moore's breast, which had been voted by the lodge, but the manufacturer had not sent it in time to be done now. Bro. Rosenberg responded to "The Initiates'" toast, and Bros. Kew, Wuest, Collier, Rogers, Tinney, and Kingston, to that of "The Visitors." Bro. Alfred Moore, I.P.M., in responding to the toast proposed in his honour, said, that many years ago, long before he was a Mason, he was invited to a most enjoyable ball at Freemasons' Tavern, which was given by a lodge of Freemasons. He had not been in the room long before he came to the conclusion that Masons' daughters were very nice girls. He then thought that if the daughters were nice girls the fathers must be good too. He therefore resolved that sooner or later he should like to join the fraternity. Many years afterwards he did so. He need hardly say he enjoyed his dance very much, and the only peculiarity about it was that some of the gentlemen wore funny little aprons, which appeared to him to be very much in the way. As ladies told him he was not an indifferent waltzer, it seemed that one could dance more freely when the muscles were not encumbered by aprons. The dance was right, and everything went happily as a marriage bell. But when they went to supper he was surprised to see at various little tables the names of different gentlemen, with curious cabalistic initials after their names, and he thought the printer had made a mistake, and meant it for M.P., but looking at the brethren entitled to the initials P.M., he was certain they were not Members of Parliament, and he suggested that the P.M. was meant for Past Meridian. He was again wrong, and asked a gentleman, who had five or six eligible unmarried daughters. He was at last told it was Past Master, and he was as wise as he had been before. He thought it should be for 'toast Master, for every one was toasting the others round the table, more or less, generally more, and making certain signs. He little thought at that time he would ever have the letters P.M. placed after his name. They were, however, now so placed, and he considered it a great honour, more especially when he was a P.M. of such a lodge as the Whittington, because the Whittington Lodge partook of the name of that man who was a really working man, and this lodge was a lodge of working Masons. Nobody could aspire to the chair of this lodge unless he was prepared to do his duty thoroughly, properly and satisfactorily. He felt very much pleased at having arrived at that state, wherein he might call himself a P.M., but, at the same time, he felt that as a P.M. he had with other P.M.s, a responsibility. There could be no doubt that no office could be filled in a lodge by a brother without his feeling that if he was to do the duties properly responsibility fell upon him. There was no more important office than that of P.M. It might be assumed by some brethren, that when a brother had passed the chair he was getting into the serene and yellow leaf, that he was indeed Past Meridian, that he was not wanted. But the brethren might believe him, the P.M.s of this lodge were worthy P.M.s. The whole of the the Masonic structure was made up of parts. They had the foundation stone in their initiates; they had a higher part of the building in their Fellow Crafts, the main part of the building composed of Master Masons; they had the pillars, either Doric, Corinthian or Ionic, with capitals, corner and other beauties represented by the higher orders of officers; and with such parts the structure could be no ordinary structure. Without them, however beautiful the structure was, it could not be said to be complete without windows. He ventured to think the P.M.s. were the windows, because it was through them the light of Freemasonry was shown through the body of the lodge. Therefore, he said, they had a responsibility as P.M.s. to keep their windows clean, and he hoped that the light of Freemasonry which shone through them would recommend itself to all who came after them. He sincerely thanked the brethren, and he trusted to meet them very very frequently in future. Bro. Godden, J.W., responded to the toast of "The Officers," speaking for all the officers, and having a personal acquaintance with them, they would do their best to bring the W.M.'s year of office to a successful issue. Every officer of the lodge would do his utmost to carry out the proper working of the lodge, they had hitherto assisted as well as they could, they had done their best with the other Master, and the W.M. might rest assured that they would continue to do so. Bros. Weaver, W. J. Jones, Kingston, and Walker responded for the "P.M.s.," and the other toasts having been honoured, the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren separated after spending a delightful evening.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, Wandsworth, on Wednesday, the 20th inst., Bro. J. G.

Carter, P.M.; (in the absence of the W.M. Bro. W. A. Morgan) being in the chair. There were also present: Bros. Beddy, S.W.; A. B. Walker, J.W.; H. Francis, S.D.; F. Wardroper, J.D.; J. J. Holland, I.G.; H. R. Jones, P.M.; P. V. Denham, J. Tucker, F. Reid, H. Wilson, J. Frost, H. F. Goodchild, M. Marshall, Field, Chamberlain (Corinth, 1122, Nagpur, Bombay). Bro. Tucker, was raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. and Bros. Marshall and Field passed, Bro. J. Frost, the Secretary, was presented with a jewel and a purse of five guineas for his past efficient services as Secretary.

SOUTHERN STAR LODGE (No. 1158).—The usual half-yearly meeting of this very popular lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall on Tuesday, 12th inst., when a large muster of the brethren of the Mystic tie assembled to do honour to the occasion. The members were Bros. Vant Veer, Green, Block, Hoskins, Cannon, Edis, Austin, Cole, Davis, Pritchard, Beecroft, Garman, Webb, A. Wright, Fowler, Clayton, Durnell, Horsely, Kinsey, Russell, and others. The visitors were Bros. Noad, 237; Jordan, 141; Stewart, 141; Wilton, 169; Whitley, P.M. 946, P.Z., &c., Aylin, 975; Everett, 177; Proleym, 11; Phillips, 11; Goddard, 116; Wells, 51, and others. The officers were Bros. Allen, W.M.; Smith, S.W.; Harris, J.W.; Wicks, J.D.; Fortune, S.D.; Holloway, I.G.; Bro. Stewart, the S.D., being absent from illness. The Past Masters were Bros. T. Pulsford, Sec. (who was obliged to leave early through ill-health); G. Macdonald, C. Wise, A. Wright, J. Wright, H. Power, and J. Walter, I.P.M. The lodge was opened at 4.30 p.m., in the Three Degrees, and the W.M. proceeded to pass Bro. Denford to the Second Degree, and on the lodge being resumed to the First Degree, Mr. Henry Firmian and Mr. David Whybro were duly initiated into the mysteries of the Order, and a word of passing praise is due to Bro. Allen for the very masterly way in which he performed that ever beautiful ceremony, as well as to those two gentlemen for the admirable manner in which they had gone through the trying ordeal. The Master, on rising for the third time, was then informed that one petition from a suffering brother was ready for his signature, and Bro. Walter, in a few appropriate remarks, proposed that it should be recommended to Grand Lodge, which, being seconded by Bro. A. Wright, was referred to the Master for his signature, and to be forwarded to the proper quarter. The Master then closed his lodge, and the brethren adjourned to banquet in the large hall, Bro. Oliver, Masonic Hall, being caterer. Having done ample justice to the good things provided, the cloth was cleared, and the usual toasts were given. The Master, in giving the toast of the Queen, took occasion to say he should be very brief in what he had to say, time being short. It is needless to say that the toast was received with enthusiasm, a verse of the national Anthem following, sang by Bro. Edis. "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M." following, the same brother sang one verse of "God Bless the Prince of Wales," which was heartily joined in by the brethren. "The R.W. Earl of Carnarvon, M.W.G.P.M." following, Bro. Fowler sang "The Village Blacksmith," and his fine voice was heard to good advantage in the large hall. "The Initiates" were then given, and Bro. Walter sang "Welcome, ever Welcome, Friends," and gave great satisfaction. On the newly-made brother replying, Bro. Edis charmed the brethren by his spirited rendering of the "Rhine Wine." The W.M. coming next, Bro. Walter said you are all aware for what purpose the I.P.M. once more resumes the gavel, it is to give the toast of "The W.M." and I do it this evening with a deal of pleasure. You are all aware how well he has discharged the duty of his high office, both in the lodge and at the festive board, and I know that a hearty response will be given to the toast of "Bro. Allen, our W.M." The manner in which the toast was received was very flattering indeed to the Master, who, in a few well chosen words (after a recitation from a visiting brother, called "The Bashful Man") expressed his thanks for the kind feeling expressed towards him. The toast of "The Visitors" was given, and after Bro. Whitley had amused the brethren with his adventures as "Sarah's Young Man," he also responded for them. "The Past Masters" toast being given, Bro. Walter Wise, A. Wright, and J. Wright, responded, the latter in his usual graceful and eloquent manner. "The Officers" toast being given, and responded to by Bro. Smith, S.W., "The Tyler's" toast brought the proceedings to a close.

ECLECTIC LODGE (No. 1201).—On Thursday, the 14th inst., at two p.m., an emergency meeting of this lodge was called for the purpose of initiating the following gentlemen: Messrs. Richard Bradshaw, Charles Ireland, James Parr, and Alfred W. Field, the three latter being in attendance, were duly initiated by the W.M., Bro. Arthur E. Taylor, who subsequently passed to the Second Degree Bros. A. J. Mash and R. Mash.

SPHINX LODGE (No. 1329).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday last at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, under the presidency of Bro. H. Martin, W.M. The brethren present were Bros. Bickerton, Sugden, P. A. Nairne, Bickerstaff, Britten, White, Gross, Robins, Rev. R. J. Simpson, Strong, Smallman, Reynolds, Andrews, Wells, Godson, Goss, Stubling, Asman, Voisey, Walker, G. A. Smith, Hook, Angus, E. H. Turner, Trimman, Jas. Turner, Irvine, Yaxley, Walliter, Bryant, Stevens, Canton, R. White, Stride, C. Browne, Gadston, Clough, Wright, Chapman, Wragham, Alexander, Sawyer, Goldschmidt, Thue, J. Smith, Ball, Luck, Allen, Robinson, Grummond, Tonkins, Forbes, Collins, Clark, Turney, G. W. Marsden, Stokoe, Wilson, Purmewan, Edmonston, Bridges, Larham, Lekorsignol, Brown, Heller, Tyrell, Bradley, Hastie, A. Middlemass, D. Rose, Allworth, Colvin, Hilton, Payne, Richards, Vickery, Garner, Whiby, Wingham, Kynaston, Copeland, Cornes, Farmer, Grafton

Carpenter, Cave, Simpson, Knox, Herrmann, Legg, Duckett, Thornhill, Marr, Reynolds, Temple, Longhurst, Rowan, Woodward, Kitson, Hutchings, Bristow, Greenwood, Mercer, J. A. Smith, Cowley, Brinsley, Schofield, Devereux, Mansell, Welch, J. White, Fairer, Moore, A. Legg, Barsdorf, Stuart Baker, Black, T. E. Webb, T. E. Webb, jun., Baldry, and H. Massey (Freemason.) After the opening of the lodge, and the termination of some formal business, Bro. P. A. Nairne, P.M., installed Bro. Bickerton as Master of the lodge. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. Martin, I.P.M.; Lyon, S.W.; Bryant, J.W.; Reynolds, Treas.; Andrews, Sec.; J. R. Richards, S.D.; A. Goulston, J.D.; P. A. Nairne, P.M., D.C.; A. Stabbing, Org.; Andrew Middlemass, I.G.; H. Forbes and J. J. Bristow, Stewards; and Harrison, Tyler. The new W.M. then commenced his year of office by initiating the following gentlemen: Mr. Charles Hollingworth, jun., Mr. Charles Lye, Mr. Charles John Bradley, Mr. George Plumbly, and Mr. Edmund Bickerton. In consequence of the lamented death of a much respected member of the lodge, Bro. Salter, the brethren appeared in mourning, and the following motion of Bro. Andrew Middlemass was unanimously adopted: "That the lodge, deeply sympathizing with Mrs. Salter and her five children in their bereavement, resolve to support her petition to Grand Lodge and the Board of Benevolence, and that the sum of ten pounds be voted for her present relief." A vote couched in such sympathetic terms was nothing more than might have been expected from the brethren of the Sphinx Lodge, whose tender feelings on all occasions of distress are well-known among members of the Order. In addition to this vote several brethren have warmly taken up the case of a son of the late Bro. Salter, who will be a candidate for the next election of the Boys' School, we hope with success. The business of the lodge being over, the W.M. closed down, and the brethren adjourned to the large hall, where a banquet, which did the highest credit to the purveyors, Bro. Oliver and Bro. Oliver, jun., was partaken of. When the toasts were proposed, Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C., responded for "The Grand Officers," and in doing so said he was sorry there were no other Grand Officers present, because if Bro. Hervey had been there he would have responded to the toast far better than he (Bro. Simpson), whose remarks would be very brief. He wished that Lord Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale had been present, for they would have seen in the first place a most flourishing lodge, attended by a number of sympathetic visitors, ruled over by a Master who had for the first time gone through his duties in a style that even seven-and-twenty years' experience he (Bro. Simpson) had seldom if ever seen exceeded, and on a trying occasion, not before thirty or forty brethren but before 120, many of whom were old and experienced Masons. They would also have heard the other officers of the lodge perform their duties in a manner worthy of Masonry, and they would likewise have heard a touching and beautiful speech from Bro. Middlemass in a cause which always elicited all the tender emotions of Freemasons. Lord Carnarvon represented three great positions; he was a great statesman, a great Mason, and a good man; Lord Skelmersdale was a distinguished nobleman, a good Mason, and a good man; and when either of these noblemen presided in Grand Lodge they acted in a business-like way which must satisfy all Freemasons. He (Bro. Simpson) had been much impressed with the old initiation ceremony that evening and seeing five of our fellow men introduced into the fraternity. He remembered well the occasion when he went through the ceremony himself, and he might fairly say to the initiates that they had entered among a body of whom they would never be ashamed, for if they carried out the noble principles and the grand precepts which had been handed down to them they would never regret it. He had ventured to say to them in private what he would again say in public, and what he was sure would be endorsed by all Masons, that the social gatherings of Masons, though they hailed them and were happy to have them, that their insignia, whatever they might be in their different grades, valuable as they might be as symbols of authority and power, were all of them mere figments compared with the grand true principles which as men and Masons they professed to hold and carry out in their actions. They were but the sign of the thing signified; and surely in the present day, when we found profession and practice in the commercial world so unhappily divorced, it was well for us to bear in mind that Masonry proposed to men a high standard, and if the initiates had been a little taken aback on hearing the high standard which Masonry proposed to them, he ventured most humbly and kindly to say that it was well for men to aim at a high ideal, though that ideal be very much above their practice, rather than a low standard. He was bound to say that long as he had been a Mason—and he was older than many of the brethren present—he never heard the principles of Masonry, especially well enumerated as they had been that evening, without himself being in thought and mind carried to the reflection of what we might become on this earth. In that respect they had had a very great pleasure that evening. They had seen five brethren admitted into Masonry, and not the least interesting characteristic of the ceremony had been that the W.M. of a lodge had initiated his own son, and his own very intimate friend, perhaps possibly a future relation. Without going too pointedly into the degrees of consanguinity, they found that one man was both a son and a brother. He (Bro. Simpson) felt deeply grateful to the W.M., and to Bro. Nairne, and to the brethren of the Sphinx Lodge, for giving him the great pleasure, and privilege, and honour of being present, and an opportunity of spending his half-holiday in so pleasant a way among many brethren. Every one present could join him in saying, without anticipating the toast which would be presently given, that he hoped the W.M. and officers of the Sphinx Lodge would have a most happy and prosperous year, and that the new initiates might find in their first year of as-

cession to Freemasonry those happy precepts which they had heard that night carried out into action, not only in the lodge, but in general life itself. Bro. H. Martin, I.P.M., having proposed "The Health of the W.M.," Bro. G. T. Bickerton, in reply, said he had had very many heavy weights upon him from time to time, but undertaking the post of Master of the Sphinx Lodge was the heaviest. The brethren, however, told him to take it quietly, and he would get on all right. The brethren would all rejoice, as he did himself, on such a large number being present. He would ask the brethren for their sympathy, and his brother officers for all the assistance they could possibly give him. Working together, he and the officers would endeavour to make the year 1878-79 a prosperous year. He was very glad it had fallen to his lot to initiate five gentlemen, especially as some of them were near and dear to himself. It seemed strange no doubt that a son should be a brother, still he had told his boy this—that if he made him a brother he must not lose sight of this fact, that he (the W.M.) was his father. All the initiates responded to the toast given in their honour, and Bros. Alworth, Ross, and Duckett, replied on behalf of "The Charities," and in very feeling terms referred to the death of Bro. Salter, and the vote on Bro. Middlemass's motion. He then advocated the cause of the Masonic Institutions, and begged the brethren to support them. From time to time it filled him with pride and satisfaction to think that the body to which he had the honour to belong maintained such institutions. The Boys' and Girls' Schools were not by any means pauper schools, but exactly what the members of the Masonic Order would wish them to be. Bro. P. A. Nairne replied for "The P.M.s.," Bro. Lyon, S.W., for "The Officers," Bro. Goss for "The Musical Brethren," and Bro. Forbes, Brinton, and Middlemass, for "The Stewards." The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close. The enjoyment of the brethren was greatly enhanced by some excellent singing, given by Bros. W. M. Goss, J. H. Walker, J. H. Asman, R. S. Godson, A. Stribling, and R. J. Voysey, all of whom are members of the lodge.

[The above report is necessarily imperfect, on account of the disadvantageous position in which our reporter was placed. Before the banquet, Bro. Goldschmidt drew the attention of the Secretary to the fact that our representative's name did not appear on the plan of the tables, and the Secretary's answer was, "Oh, no, he's a reporter," in a tone which left the inference to be drawn that a reporter was not entitled to the courtesy usually displayed to a visitor. This may be the prevailing view of Vestries and Boards of Guardians, but during many years' experience of Masonic lodges the Sphinx Lodge is the first we have found, that by the mouth of one of its invested officers, has given expression to it. With this exception the hospitality of the lodge was unbounded, and our reporter was treated with the same hearty welcome as the other visitors.]

ROYAL NAVAL COLLEGE LODGE (No. 1593).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich, on Tuesday week, the 12th inst. There was a numerous attendance of the members, and a goodly assembly of visitors, which augurs well for the success of the young lodge. The brethren present included the following distinguished officers of the Craft: Bros. J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.; C. A. Murton, P.G.D.; Nettleship, P.G. Sword Bearer; Ralph Gooding, M.D., W.M. of the Grand Master's Lodge No. 1; W. Bristow, P.M. 14; A. J. Bristow, W.M. 14. A. Southwall, Southern Cross, 393; Douglas H. Greenie, Loyalty, Bermuda, 358; Alfred W. Warry, St. John and St. Paul; J. G. Loughborough, St. Georges, 140; G. Brown, St. Georges, 140; Stieble, Ravensbourne; Alfred Hendricks' Unity, 1637; William Heckley, 660; D. Walter Burney, St. Patricks, 50, Dublin; Robert C. Grand, Emulation, 21; W. G. Barnes, Grenadiers, 66; S. Dibbin, Universal, 181; Lees, United Service, 1428. The lodge was opened in due form at 5.15, and on the minutes being confirmed the W.M., Bro. R. Kalley Miller, requested Bro. Blakey, P.M., to initiate four candidates for Freemasonry. Soon after 6 p.m. the chief business of the evening was opened by Bro. Kalley Miller, who proceeded to instal Bro. Captain V. F. Johnston, R.N., as W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year. This having been accomplished in the presence of a full board of Installed Masters, the brethren were called in and they saluted with the usual formalities the second Installed Master of the lodge. Bro. Johnston proved himself a worthy successor to the able Installing Master, his careful and spirited working giving promise of a good year of office. The W.M. immediately appointed his officers for the year. Bros. G. W. Armstrong, S.W.; Albert Escott, J.W.; George C. Pulsford, S.D.; George A. Warleigh, J.D.; Rees, I.G. The Treasurer, Bro. Pink, had been re-elected and was duly invested. Bro. E. M. Roe, was also re-appointed Secretary and invested amidst many signs of approbation. At the rising of the W.M. Bro. Kalley Miller, P.M. 1593, proposed a vote of £10 10s. to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, which was duly passed. Bro. Miller also requested the lodge to accept from him a cheque for twenty guineas, to be devoted to the other charities. Bro. Miller's generosity was warmly acknowledged by the brethren present. These first contributions to the Masonic Charities from the R.N. College Lodge may be considered as an earnest of future endeavours to do more in that direction. A sum was also voted to relieve a distressed brother. About forty brethren next sat down to a grand banquet. The customary Royal and Masonic toasts were given and received with marked enthusiasm. The highest pitch of feeling was however attained when the worthy Treasurer, Bro. W. Pink, proceeded to invest Bro. R. Kalley Miller with a Past Master's Jewel. Bro. Pink performed his task with great tact and ability, and the worthy P.M. suitably acknowledged the gift, assuring the brethren of the high honour he esteemed it to have been the first W.M. of a lodge which might include the whole Navy of England amongst its members, and declaring that the jewel now presented would be ever valued above all others. "The Initiates," "The Visitors," and "The Officers," were duly honoured with toasts. An important and agreeable evening was brought to a close at 11 p.m.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1642).—A meeting of the above lodge was held at the Iadbroke Hall, Notting-hill, on Thursday, the 14th of November. The business being unusually heavy for the day of installation. Bro. William Stephens, P.M., performed the ceremonies of passing and raising three candidates to these degrees, Bro. P. M. Murlis initiated a candidate to the mysteries, and Bro. George Penn then installed his successor, Bro. P. Parkhouse, in a most impressive manner, when the following officers were appointed and invested, Bros. E. M. Lander, S.W.; S. Smout, sen., J.W.; the Rev. P.M. Holden, Chaplain; G. Penn, Treas.; W. J. Murlis, Secretary; the Rev. Darby Reade, S.D.; Smout, jun., J.D.; Fry, I.G.; Schofield, Tyler. Bro. P. M. Stephens gave the addresses to the W.M. and Wardens, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, at which the Worshipful Master presided. Upon the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and Craft toasts were duly honoured. Bros. of the Kensington Lodge, and spoken to in most flattering terms. The principal toast of the evening was that of "The Retiring Master," Bro. George Penn, who was presented with a valuable Past Master's jewel, also an elegant drawing-room clock, and a pair of vases, accompanied by a vote of thanks, engrossed on vellum, in acknowledgement of the valuable services he had rendered to the lodge, and the courtesy evinced at all times by him, especially during the year in which he had presided as Worshipful Master. Before the brethren separated a large list was announced for the Boys' School, fifty guineas having been voted by the lodge to be placed in Bro. Penn's list, who is acting as Steward at the forthcoming festival. Jno. Boyd and Cubitt, returned thanks for the Grand Lodge of England. Bro. Binckes, Past Grand Steward, and Secretary of the Boys' School, for "The Charities." An unusually large number of visitors being present, the duty of responding to that toast was given to Bro. Harding, KENSINGTON LODGE (No. 1767).—On the 16th inst. the members of this lodge met for the first time after the consecration, at the Courtfield Hotel, Earl's Court. Bro. Read, W.M. presided, and after the minutes of the consecration meeting had been read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for sixteen joining members, and for Mr. William Dunstan and Mr. Arthur Joseph Barclay, for initiation. These gentlemen were thereupon initiated by the W.M. in his usual correct and masterly style, the impressiveness of which ceremony, and the pleasure of assisting at it, were considerably enhanced by the introduction of harmonium solos by Bro. Oliver, the Organist, and parts of the musical service composed by Bro. James C. Baker, No. 241, sung by the brethren. Three propositions for initiation were afterwards made, and Bros. Barfield, P.M. and Treas., and Cole were made Hon. Members of the lodge, as by their own personal exertions they contributed much to the obtaining of the Warrant of Constitution, as well as assisting in the necessary preliminaries connected therewith. After the lodge was closed, the brethren adjourned to a recherché banquet, provided by Bro. Silcock, the proprietor of the Courtfield Hotel. Bro. Cruttenden, P.M. Hyde Park Lodge, 1425, and P.P.G.D.C. Kent, in responding for "The Visitors," congratulated the members of the lodge on the very successful manner in which they had commenced their career, and expressed the pleasure that he had experienced in listening to the musical part of the service, an entirely new feature to him, and which he had been informed by the Organist was a mere trifle to what was intended hereafter to be done. Other visitors expressed themselves in similar felicitous terms, and we have every reason to believe that the Kensington Lodge, now fairly launched, will continue to prosper, and prove an ornament to the Craft.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41) A regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, 7th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Bath, at which the following brethren were present: Bros. F. Wilkinson, W.M.; F. J. Brown, P.P.G.S.W. Somerset, I.P.M.; John Rubie, P.M.; acting S.W.; P. Braham, J.W. and T. P. Ashley, P.M., Chaplain, and acting Treasurer; W. Hunt, Sec. pro tem, Thos. Ames, acting S.D.; C. W. Radway, J.D.; J. S. Turner, P.M., acting D.C.; W. Baldwin, Org.; Cap. Robinson, I.G.; Holmes and Mercer, Stewards; Bigwood, Tyler. Past Masters: Thos. B. Moutrie, Robt. Carey, S. Geo. Mitchell. Members: John Brewer, Sydney S. Paxton, Thos. Edwd. Wilson, John Clewens, H. B. Smith, Edwd. C. Davies, R. B. Cater, Wm. E. Peach, E. Stiles. Visitors: W. H. Dill, P.M. 906, P.P.G.P. Somerset; J. A. Innes, 639 E.C.; F. D. Gardiner, 53; Wm. E. Reeves, P.M. 906, P.P.G.O. Somerset; H. J. Walker, P.M. 53. The lodge was opened at 7.45, and the minutes of last regular lodge were read and confirmed. Ballot was taken for Wm. Fredk. Willis and Mr. Henry Lane Brown, successfully. A letter read from R.M.B.I. as to the appointment of Stewards to attend the festival to be held in February next. A petition for relief was presented from the widow of a deceased brother, and the sum of one guinea was voted from the funds. The candidate, Mr. W. E. Smith, being present, was duly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry, the ceremony being impressively performed by the W.M. The Working Tools were presented by Bro. Braham, the charge was delivered by Bro. Moutrie, and he newly initiated returned thanks in suitable terms. The E.As. having retired, the W.M. announced there would be a P.G.L. of Wilts, held on Friday, 8th, at Swindon Old Town, for the purpose of presenting a testimonial to the Prov. G. Master, Lord Methuen, on his having held the dislinguished office twenty-five years. The brethren were invited to attend. A letter was read from Mr. H. S. Cooper of London of a private nature; Bro. Carey, kindly undertook to attend to it. Bros. Parton and Chivers were raised to the Sublime Degree by Bros. Ashley and Moutrie, the Working Tools being presented by Bro. Braham. Bro. R. B. Cater proposed and Bro. J. S. Turner seconded Bro. J. Robinson as joining member. Bro. Caray proposed a vote of thanks to the visiting brethren, coupling the names of Bro. Gardiner and Bro. Dice, which was carried with acclamation. Both the brethren suitably responded. Bro. Gardiner, W.M. of Lodge Rectitude, Corsham, cordially invited the brethren from Bath to visit his lodge in May or June. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in perfect harmony and solemn prayer at 10. 15.

HERTFORD.—Hertford Lodge (No. 403).—The 50th installation meeting was held on the 12th inst. at the Town Hall, Hertford. Among the brethren present were Bros. S. Austin, P.M., P.P.G. Sup. of Works, W.M. elect; J. Terry, P.M., P.G.J.W.; J. R. Cocks, P.M., P.P.G.J.W.; R. T. Andrews, P.M., P.P.G.J.W.; C. Drummond, P.M., P.P.G. Sup. of Works; E. A. Simpson, P.M., P.P.G. Sup. of Works; J. D. Medcalf, P.M., P.P.G.J. Deacon; T. S. Carter, P.P.G.S. Deacon; H. Campkin, P.M., P.P.G.S. Deacon; W. P. Willson, P.M., P.P.G.A. Dir. of Cer.; C. C. Diet, P.M., P.G.D. Devon; W. Warrenner, M.D., S.W.; J. E. Cussans, P.M. The visitors were Bros. J. Waller, P.M. 449, P.P.G.D.; R. Freer Austin, and others. This being the 50th installation meeting the brethren of the lodge thought it advisable to place the oldest P.M., Bro. Austin, in the chair of K.S. Bro. Terry, installed the W.M. in his usual effective manner, and called the attention of the brethren that Bro. Austin had been nearly fifty years a member of the lodge, having been initiated in October 1829, a fact unparalleled in the history of Freemasonry. It is proposed to celebrate the jubilee about October next, when a large gathering is expected. The W.M. appointed as his officers Bros. the Rev. Lewis Deedes, P.P.G. Chaplain, S.W.; the Hon. Baron Dimsdale, J.W.; R. B. Craft, S.D.; J. Harrington, J.D.; J. R. Cocks, Treasurer; R. T. Andrews, Sec.; J. E. Bernard, I.G.; F. Taylor and R. Harrison, Stewards; T. Wright, Tyler. The brethren afterwards partook of a capital banquet at the Shire Hall, supplied by Mr. E. W. Davis, of the Salisbury Arms Hotel, and which gave great satisfaction. The W.M., who is in his 74th year, presided. The usual Masonic toasts followed. Bro. G. T. Carter, P.M. undertook the musical arrangements.

GREAT GRIMSBY.—Pelham Pillar Lodge (No. 792).—The following is a list of the officers of this lodge for 1878-9:—Bros. William Horatio Roberts, P.G. D.C., W.M.; James Cook, S.W.; A. S. Steffenson, J.W.; William Marshall, P.M., Chap.; Mark Dawson, Treas.; Henry Barker, Sec.; Thos. McMurchie, S.D.; W. F. Turner, J.D.; Geo. Jarvis, D.C.; Geo. Nutt, I.G.; C. Coulbick, M. Martin, M. Lawenster, Stewards.

PLUMSTEAD.—Pattison Lodge (No. 913).—The first meeting of the above lodge since the installation of its new Master, Bro. T. D. Hayes, took place on Thursday, the 7th inst., at Bro. Tucker's, the Lord Raglan, Buryage-road, when Mr. W. H. Winter was, after ballot, initiated into the mysteries of the Craft, and Bro. C. J. Clapham was passed to the Second Degree. The lodge was then closed, and a superb banquet having been prepared by Bro. Tucker, the brethren partook of it, and afterwards drank the usual loyal and Masonic toasts right loyally. The following officers were present beside the W.M., Past Masters Butter, Coupland, Vincent, and Penfold; Bros. Lloyd, S.W.; Denton, P.M. and Sec.; Jessup, Treas.; R. J. Cook, S.W.; T. Mason, S.D.; Edwards, J.D.; H. Peice, D.C.; C. Cooke, Org.; and R. Lester, Tyler. The following visitors were present:—Bros. Finis, 1526; G. Gould, 1685; W. J. Harris, 700; G. Spinks, P.M. 1536; R. Hanson, S.D. 829; A. Hiscock, 13; J. Ellis, 700; D. Cook, 687; and C. White, 1536.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—The installation meeting of this provincial lodge was held at the Albany Hotel, on the 13th inst., when there were present a very goodly gathering of brethren, amongst whom were Bros. S. H. Knaggs, W.M.; H. Court, S.W., W.M. elect; W. Taylor, J.W.; Tomlinson, P.P.G.S. of Works Middlesex, P.M., Secretary; Saunders, P.G.D. of Middlesex, I.P.M.; Vaughan, S.D.; Ashley, J.D.; Palmer, I.G.; Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, D.C.; Court, jun., Assist. Org.; Briggs, Steward; Richnell, Assist. Steward; C. Horsley, P.P.G.R., of Middlesex, P.M.; Dr. Clark, P.M.; Harrison, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Rushworth, P.M. 1309, P.G.R. of Middlesex; Thrupp, P.M., P.G.S. of Middlesex; Fisher, P.M., 814; Martin, S.W. 1539; Stebbing, 26; Powell, 165. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ceremony of installation was carried out by Bro. W. Wigginton, who appointed as his assistants Bros. Horsley, as S.W.; Tomlinson as J.W.; and Knaggs, as I.G. The entire ceremonial was performed by the Installing Officer in so excellent a manner that it left nothing to be desired, the delivery of the addresses being particularly good. The appointment and investment of the officers then took place as follows: Bros. W. Taylor, S.W.; Vaughan, J.W.; Tomlinson, Treasurer; Wigginton, Sec.; the Rev. Dr. Orsey, Chaplain (by deputy); Ashley, S.D.; Palmer, J.D.; A. Taylor, I.G.; Walls, D.C.; Court, jun. Organist; Richnell, W.S.; Clarke, A.W.S.; Harrison, Tyler. Previously to the lodge being closed the retiring W.M. was presented with a very elegant P.M.'s jewel, suitably inscribed. The banquet was well served. The usual routine of toasts followed in due course and were duly responded to. Bro. Charles Horsley replied on behalf of "The Provincial Grand Officers Present and past" and Bros. Rushworth and Thrupp, for "The Visitors." The proceedings terminated at an early hour.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Lion Hotel, on Tuesday, the 11th inst. Amongst those present were Bros. W. Hammond, P.M., P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, acting W.M.; Raw, P.M., acting I.P.M.; E. Hopwood, P.M., P.P.G.S.B. of Middlesex, Treas.; J. Hurst, P.M.; Jessett, S.W.; T. Ockenden, J.W.; T. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, S.D.; Crunden, acting J.D.; Hiscock, I.G.; Day, A.W.S.; Rawles, Tyler. The acting W.M. stated that in consequence of urgent private matters, Bro. Fox, the W.M., could not attend, but had requested him to perform the ceremony of initiation. The candidate, Mr. Prime, being in attendance, was then duly and most ably inducted into the mysteries of Craft Masonry. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. Bro. McNaught, Thistle Lodge (Scotland), was a visitor. It being only a meeting of emergency the toasts were necessarily few, and were but formally given. "The Initiate" having been proposed and warmly drank, Bro. Prime, in response, said: Worshipful Master and worthy brethren, standing on the very threshold of—may I not say it?—almost another life, and with the experiences and recollections of that most beautiful ritual of Masonic faith impressed upon my heart of hearts, thoughts crowd so fast upon me that I can find but few poor words to tell you what I would. Brethren, I am sure you would first remind me that I record with feelings of deepest reverence my expressions of gratitude to our Master of all, for the privilege he has permitted me to assume, and for the necessary strength given. Oh, would I had the eloquence to clothe my words as others have done, but I cannot, my heart is so full, and my lips almost refuse to help me. Worshipful Master, permit me, with deepest respect, to tender you my heartfelt thanks for all advice given me, toned down, as it has been, with truest eloquence. You know I am just like a little child treading for the first time the pathway it has so long, so longingly looked for. With your assistance, and through you, I have pushed the gate aside and passing over the pathway threshold, I, the youngest Mason brother of you all, place my foot upon the road, and as I gaze, a great black cloud of mystery seems to enwrap me, before, behind, on every side, yet, as I look, a flash of brilliancy comes over it to me. I can only liken it to the kindly helpful friends I have around me, and as I take another step or two, warm hands touch mine, clasp mine as a friend will clasp a friend, grasp mine as a man will grasp a man, but far better still, grip mine as a Mason will grip his brother, and then I know with your help all will be well with me. May I beg just another minute of your time, and add a graceful word, coupled with a respected brother's name; he and I have lately been visiting some of the world's wonders together, and peculiar circumstances forced me to ask Bro. Crunden's help and sympathy; both were given to me without measure; surprised, I turned to him and said, "are you a Mason?" I got no answer, again I passed the question, again no answer, and a day or two went on, and once again receiving help through illness, I said, in the fullness of my heart, "if you are a Mason make me one too," this is how it is I stand as one of you now. I thank you so much for the way you have honoured me by drinking to my health. The remainder of the evening having been agreeably spent, the brethren separated.

LYMM.—Earl of Chester Lodge (No. 1565).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Church Green, on Thursday, the 7th inst. In addition to the members of the lodge several representatives of Provincial Grand Lodge, and numerous other brethren from neighbouring lodges, attended for the purpose of witnessing the installation of Bro. J. H. Evans, who had been unanimously elected by the brethren as W.M. for the ensuing year. The brethren were summoned to attend to other Masonic duties at three p.m., and shortly after that hour the lodge was opened by Bro. Bolton, assisted by Bros. J. H. Evans, S.W.; E. G. Parker, J.W., and other officers. After the minutes of the last lodge had been read and confirmed, and the Treasurer's accounts had been received and passed, shewing the lodge to be in a very healthy financial position, the Installing Master, Bro. East, P.M. 163, P.P.G.D.C., assisted by Bros. Hind, P.M. 1665, P.G.R., as S.W.; and Siddley, P.P. 1045, as J.W., took the chair, and in a most impressive and beautiful manner performed the interesting ceremony of installing Bro. J. H. Evans in the chair of the W.M. for the ensuing year. The officers appointed and invested by the W.M. were Bros. E. G. Parker, S.W.; G. Richardson, J.W.; J. Browning, Treasurer; H. Bulshaw, Secretary; J. Sudlow, S.D.; J. Kenworthy, J.D.; G. Barker, I.G. (pro tem.); W. Groves, Tyler. The brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by Mr. H. Voysey, of the Church Hotel. The W.M. in proposing the toast of "The Queen," said he felt sure in such company he need say nothing to recommend this toast to their hearty acceptance, as it ever evoked a hearty response wherever Masons were assembled, it being the toast of their Order, that throughout the vast domains over which our beloved sovereign swayeth her sceptre none of her subjects were more loyal than were Freemasons, and the Earl of Chester Lodge yielded to none, either in the province of Chester or in any other province, in their admiration, devotion, and loyalty to their beloved sovereign, whose many virtues had endeared her to them all and enhanced the brilliancy of her diadem. He would, therefore, give them the health of the Queen of these realms, long might she be spared to rule over them. Drank with enthusiasm. The next toast, proposed by the W.M., was "The Earl of Chester." In proposing this toast the W.M. said: The intimate relations which existed between H.R.H. and Freemasonry were so close that no remarks of his could increase the enthusiasm with which the toast was ever received amongst Masons. His genial qualities, his kindly presence and the personal interest which he constantly manifested in the Order, over which he so ably presided, had endeared him to all. As well abroad as at home, he had won golden opinions for the zealous discharge of his Masonic duties, and his kind consideration for the interests of the Craft, and the brethren of the Earl of Chester Lodge felt they had a specially close connection with him, bearing the name of one of his titles. He felt sure they would cordially wish with him, in drinking the health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, that their highly esteemed G.M.; long might he live to rule over the Craft. Drunk with great enthusiasm. The next toast proposed by the W.M. was "The Countess of Chester and the rest of the Royal Family," which, he felt sure, would be responded to not a whit less enthusiastically than those which had preceded it. He felt sure that any attempt to recount the virtues possessed by the wife of our illustrious G.M. would be a work of supererogation, being familiar in their mouths as household words, and the example she constantly sets worthy the imitation of every lady in the land. So closely allied to Masonry on every side was she, that there could be no doubt that when ladies are admitted into the Craft she would be the first to be initiated. He would invite the brethren to drink, with him, to the health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Countess of Chester, and the rest of the Royal Family. The toast was received most enthusiastically. The next toast, which was "The P.G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon," was proposed by Bro. Hind, P.M., P.G.R., in a most felicitous speech, in which he eulogised the P.G.M. for the many excellent qualities he possessed as a man and a Mason, was heartily responded to. The toast of "The D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale," was proposed by Bro. E. G. Parker, in a very complimentary manner, and received a hearty response. The toast of "The P.G.M., Lord de Tabley," was next proposed by Bro. E. Simpson, P.M., P.G.S.D., who very warmly eulogised his lordship for his truly Masonic spirit, referring specially to the interest he took in the welfare of the Earl of Chester Lodge, ever shewing the greatest anxiety for its prosperity by the friendly enquiries he made respecting it. The toast was most cordially received. The toast of "The D.P.G.M., the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton," was proposed by Bro. Richardson, in a very creditable manner, and elicited a hearty response. The next toast, "The W.M.," was proposed by Bro. Simpson, P.M., P.G.S.D., who very warmly commended the W.M. for the zeal he ever manifested in Freemasonry, complimenting him on his regular and punctual attendance upon his Masonic duties, which, he remarked, was an example to the brethren of the Earl of Chester Lodge, not only for punctuality and regularity, but for the manner in which every duty assigned to him was performed, whilst his modest and unassuming manner had earned for him the confidence and esteem of every one connected with the lodge, amongst whom, he ventured to say, Bro. Evans had not a single enemy, and he felt sure he never would have, and he had not the slightest doubt but he would fulfil the duties of the office to which they had elected him with credit to himself and with satisfaction to the brethren. The toast was received most enthusiastically. In replying to the toast, the W.M. said: He scarcely knew how to reply to the very flattering and complimentary manner in which Bro. Simpson had spoken of him. He thanked him very sincerely for the kind way in which he had proposed the toast, and the brethren for the very hearty manner in which they had responded to it, and whilst he felt deeply grateful to them all for the manifestations of their kind feelings towards him, he felt also that he was not entitled to the eulogiums Bro. Simpson had heaped upon him, as in his endeavour to perform his Masonic duties faithfully, he had done nothing more than his duty (and this he feared at times very imperfectly), inasmuch, as he conceived it to be the duty of every brother, on associating himself with any lodge, faithfully to perform his duties to the best of his abilities, and suffer nothing but sheer necessity to interfere with them in any way, and he could only say, in reply, that if spared in health and strength through the year in which they had just entered, he purposed, with the assistance of the G.A.O.T.U., so to fulfil the duties pertaining to the high office to which they had done him the honour to elect him, as to convince them that merit had been his title to their privileges, and that upon him their favours had not been undeservedly bestowed. He felt, however, that in following such skilful brethren as those who had preceded him in this chair, that this would be no easy task, as he could scarcely hope to perform those duties so efficiently as they had done, but he pledged them his Masonic honour that no effort should be wanting on his part to maintain unshaken the prestige which the Earl of Chester Lodge had earned for itself in the province, and would earnestly solicit the hearty co-operation of his brother officers and the brethren individually and collectively (without which, he felt, he must signally fail) to assist him in accomplishing this, and if, at any time, he might be found wanting in the due performance of his duties he would ask them one and all to "Be to his faults a little blind,

And to his virtues ever kind."

Again he thanked them most cordially for the manifestations of those good feelings towards him, and he sincerely trusted that the year upon which they had now entered might be one of uninterrupted harmony and prosperity, and that for the Earl of Chester Lodge a bright and happy future was in store. The toast of the "I.P.M." was very creditably proposed by Bro. J. Kinworthy, who paid a well-merited tribute of respect to Bro. Wotton for the zeal with which he had performed his Masonic duties, and the interest he ever manifested in the well-being of the lodge. The toast was very cordially responded to. In replying, Bro. Wotton thanked the brethren for their kindness in so warmly responding to the toast, and assured them his zeal for Freemasonry would never flag, and that his interest in the Earl of Chester Lodge would continue unabated. He then proposed "The Installing Master," Bro. East, P.M., P.G. D.C. E. Lanc., extolling his abilities, which he described as being such as few could hope to equal and none surpass. In proposing the toast of "The Visiting Brethren," which the W.M. said was really the toast of the evening, he remarked that hospitality was one of the cardinal virtues of Freemasonry, and in no society was it more preserved than amongst Freemasons, the very name being significant of the characteristic, and he ventured to say that notwithstanding the smallness of the Earl of Chester Lodge, that in no lodge in the province was it surpassed in this trait, it being always a source of unmixed pleasure to the brethren to see visitors from other lodges present amongst them, not only at their annual meetings, but at the ordinary business meetings of the lodge, feeling satisfied that in this social intercourse lay the very essence and strength of Freemasonry. The remaining toasts having been given and responded to, this very enjoyable evening, which during its course had been enlivened by a variety of songs, was brought to a close.

BRIDGNORTH.—Castle Lodge (No. 1621).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held on Friday, the 31st ult., at the Crown Hotel, Bridgnorth. From many causes there was not so good an attendance as at the previous installation. Bro. E. Jones Chittrey, W.M., presided, and was supported by all his officers, and a goodly number of visitors, amongst whom were Bros. Sir Offey Wakeman, Bart., W.M. 478, P.G.S.W. Oxon; E. M. Wakeman, W.M. 262, P.G.S.W. Shropshire and North Wales; Joseph Stokes, I.P.M. and P.M. 252, 1621, P.P. G.S.W. Worcestershire; George Taylor, P.M. 377, P.G.P. Worcestershire; J. W. Chadwick, 377; Adkins, J.D. 1261; F. C. Chittrey, 1551, Birmingham; T. H. Horton, and others. An emergency meeting was held previous to the installation for the purpose of initiating Mr. T. Dowell into the mysteries of Freemasonry, which ceremony was performed by the W.M., Bro. E. Jones Chittrey. The lodge was then closed. The regular meeting of the above lodge was then opened by Bro. E. Jones Chittrey, W.M., supported by his officers as follows: Bros. H. B. Southwell, S.W. and W.M. Elect; Dr. A. Colles, J.W.; Thos. Whitefoot, Sec.; Hubert Smith, Treasurer; F. F. Foxall, S.D.; C. Deighton, J.D.; E. Price, I.G. pro tem; and the following brethren: J. Stokes, I.P.M.; J. Sewell, O.; T. M. Deighton, E. M. Southwell, W. L. Southwell, A. S. Trevor, T. Whitefoot, jun., B. Perry, C. Edkins, T. F. Nock, Cooper, and others. The minutes of the last lodge and lodge of emergency having been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the W.M., Bro. E. Jones Chittrey, presented his gavel to Bro. P.M. Stokes, who proceeded to install Bro. Southwell into the chair of K.S., in the usual manner. The brethren having retired, and a board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. E. B. Southwell, was installed into the chair of K.S. by Bro. P.M. Stokes, in his usual impressive manner, which gave general satisfaction to the brethren. The brethren were then readmitted, when the W.M. having received the customary salutes, proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. Dr. A. Colles, S.W.; F. F. Foxwell, J.W.; Thos. Whitefoot, Sec.; Hubert Smith, Treas.; Thos. Pratt, S.D.; Sergeant-Major Simms, J.D.; E. Jones Chittrey, D. C.; John Sewell, Organist; A. S. Trevor, I.G.; F. M. Southwell, Thos. Whitefoot, jun., and Cooper, Stewards, T. Tyler, Tyler. Bro. J. Stokes, then delivered the addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren, in his usual impressive manner, and which were very attentively listened to by all present. The W. Master rose and in a few well chosen remarks, said the first duty he had to perform was to decorate the retiring Master with a P.M. jewel. This was to him a great pleasure, for he was sure no brother more deserved the thanks and kind consideration of the members of the Castle Lodge, than did Bro. Chittrey, for without him the Castle Lodge would never have been formed, and he felt proud he had the present opportunity of publicly expressing his thanks to Bro. Chittrey, for all his trouble and the patience he had endured in bringing the Castle Lodge to its present perfect state, and it gave him great pleasure to present to Bro. P.M. Chittrey, the very handsome jewel awarded to him for his zeal and perseverance on behalf of the Castle Lodge, and trusted he would long live to wear it. Bro. P.M. Chittrey in reply said, he felt deeply the kindness shown to him by the brethren of the Castle Lodge, and assured them he should always feel happy to do anything that would help to raise the lodge second to none in the province of North Wales and Shropshire. The lodge was closed in due form and in perfect harmony, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, provided by Bro. J. S. Vince, of the Crown Hotel, which gave universal satisfaction. The W.M. presiding, gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were duly responded to, as also that of the "Visiting Brethren." The train leaving at 8 p.m. was the signal for an early departure of those who had come some distance to honour the newly installed Worshipful Master. The Tyler's toast having been given and duly honored, the third installation meeting was brought to a close with hearty good wishes for the Castle Lodge.

INSTRUCTION.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of the brethren of the above lodge of instruction was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, Wandsworth, on Wednesday, the 13th inst., Bro. J. Frost being the W.M. There were also present:—Bros. J. Featherstone, S.W.; A. B. Walker, J.W.; J. J. Holland, S.D.; F. Reed, J.D.; M. J. Huntley, I.G.; J. G. Carter, P.M.; A. Mason, P. V. Denham, W. A. Blackmore (No. 1485), and A. A. Denham, Sec. The Three Degrees were well worked, Bro. Blackmore being the candidate in each. At the conclusion of the business, Bro. Blackmore was unanimously elected a member of the lodge of instruction. Bro. Featherstone will be the W.M. at the next meeting.

Royal Arch.

METROPOLITAN CHAPTER (No. 1507).—A convocation of this chapter was held at the Metropolitan Club, King's Cross, on Thursday, 7th November. Present: E. Comps, J. Willing, M.E.Z.; J. R. Stacey, H.; W. J. Ferguson, J.; T. A. Adams, I.P.Z.; Wm. Stiles, Scribe E; C. W. Hudson, Scribe N; J. Douglass, P.S.; H. Stiles, 1st Asst. S.; Barnes, Janitor; W. Cook, S. Beattie, T. C. Edmonds, J. T. J. Clare, and others. Visitor:—Comp. J. G. Michael, High Cross Chapter, 829. The chapter was opened in due form and the minutes of previous convocation were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Comp. W. Cook, United Strength Chapter, 228, for joining and for Bro. T. J. Hyland, J.D. Royal Savoy Lodge, 1744, and Bro. R. Tuck, Metropolitan Lodge 1507, for exaltation, which was unanimous. Bros. Hyland and Tuck, were introduced and regularly exalted into Royal Arch Masonry. Three brethren were proposed and seconded for exaltation at next convocation and the chapter closed in ancient form and adjourned. The business being over, the companions sat down to an excellent banquet, provided in Bro. Cox's best style, and the usual toasts were afterwards honoured.

Mark Masonry.

HAMMERSMITH LODGE (No. 211).—The first regular meeting, since the recess, of this new but flourishing lodge was held at the Windsor Castle Hotel, Hammersmith, on the 16th inst., when there were present Bros. Colonel Burdett, P.G.M. of Middlesex and Surrey; J. Mason, W.M.; Baldwin, S.W.; T. C. Walls, J.W. (Freemason); Poore, P.G.I.G., P.M. 234; F. Walters, P.G.I.G., Secretary; Dunham, M.O.; Haynes, S.D.; J. Austin, Reg.; Goodall, I.G.; Pearson, D.C.; Page, W.S.; Woodstock, Tyler. Bro. Johnson, P.G.S. of Surrey and Middlesex, was a visitor. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Poore, by the W.M.'s permission, advanced Bros. Hayes and Green, P.M. Zetland, &c., to the degree of a M.M.M., the ceremony being well performed. The bye-laws having been read, the election of W.M. took place, and resulted in favour of Bro. Baldwin, S.W., who returned thanks. Bro. Walters was elected Treasurer, and Bro. Potter Tyler, the Audit Committee having been fixed to be held on the 14th prox. A Past Master's jewel, of the value of five guineas, was unanimously voted to Bro. J. Mason, W.M., as a slight recognition for his valuable services rendered to the lodge during his year of office. There being no other business before the lodge it was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to a well served collation. The cloth having been removed, the customary Royal and Mark toasts were proposed, and done full justice to. "The Health of the R.W. P.G.M. of Middlesex and Surrey," having been proposed, and most warmly received, Bro. Colonel Burdett, in reply, stated that he felt gratified, honoured, and flattered at holding the position of an honorary Past Master of the Hammersmith Lodge of Mark Masons. He had witnessed with a great deal of pleasure the "working" of the degree that afternoon. It augured well for the future prosperity of the lodge when the members holding office were so painstaking in the discharge of their respective responsibilities. He believed that no Mark Lodge had ever made greater progress, considering the very short time that it had been established, than No. 211. He was sincerely of opinion, that if the members of some of the lodges in the province were to visit the Hammersmith Lodge they would be so well pleased with the good working of its officers, that they would endeavour to emulate their example. In conclusion, he stated that he personally was so well pleased with what he had seen that he should take the very first opportunity of visiting them again. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed in very flattering terms by the R.W.P.G.M., and responded to, in Bro. Mason's unavoidable absence, by Bro. Poore, his "locum tenens." "The newly advanced Brethren" having been proposed, Bro. Game responded, by briefly stating that he thought the ceremony highly impressive and instructive, and he took that opportunity of respectfully thanking Bro. Poore for the very able way in which he had induced him to the degree. In concluding his remarks, he said that he was so delighted with the degree that should the members at any future time think him worthy of holding office he would endeavour to zealously and efficiently discharge the duties of any position he might be called upon to fill. "The Visitors" followed, and in acknowledgement Bro. Johnson said that he could bear out the remarks of their R.W.P.G.M., that the Hammersmith Lodge in its working could challenge comparison with any in the province and out of it. He had visited many lodges and had never seen the ceremony better performed, and he hoped that the lodge would continue to maintain its high state of efficiency. "The Officers" came next, and was acknowledged by Bro. Walls for himself and colleagues present and absent. "The Tyler's" toast having been given the brethren separated.

MARGATE SEA BATHING INFIRMARY.

This excellent institution, of which our late Bro. Tomkins was the Treasurer, and of which our esteemed Bros. Lieut.-Col. Creation and Clabon are respectively Treasurer and Secretary, is now in want of funds, and as there are many and special reasons why Freemasons should support it, Bro. Woodford, P.G.C., by the kind permission of Rev. E. H. Gray, (shortly to be made a Mason), preaches on its behalf, at the Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Ladbrooke Grove-road, Notting-hill, on Sunday, November 24th. The service begins at eleven o'clock, and provision is made for seating such of the brethren as kindly attend.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall, The Board of Masters was first held, and the agenda paper for next Grand Lodge was settled. Bros. J. M. Clabon, President; Joshua Nunn, Senior Vice President; and James Brett, Junior Vice President; occupied their respective positions. The other brethren present were Bros. James Glaisher, S. Rawson, Thomas Fenn, John Hervey, H. G. Buss, A. A. Pendlebury, Thos. Cubitt, E. P. Albert, C. A. Cottelbrun, W. T. Howe, W. Stephens, W. Mann, John Constable, Andrew Middlemass, Charles Atkins, T. J. Sabine, Geo. Phythian, W. Bartlett, H. Garrod, George Bolton, J. M. Dosell, Dr. Rhys William, A. J. Ireton, Griffiths Smith, Chas. Fredk. Hogard, Hugh Cotter, W. Alfred Dawson, James Eberall, A. J. Hawkes, J. Nicholson, G. P. Britten, E. H. Hewett, Charles Davey, John Dixon, W. Christian, H. Potter, W. Meadbury, H. C. Reeves, Rev. Dr. P. H. Ernest Brett, J. Yeoman, John D. Carter, Edw. B. Grabham, Daniel Nicholson, W. H. Cohen, C. Breden, George Plucknett, jun., C. F. May, H. Stephens, John R. Sherwill, George W. Skiggs, L. Cornellsen, J. J. Shakell, W. Spooner, E. M. Haigh, Douglass Matthews, Allen Norman, R. G. Tolmie, A. Wing, Henry Legge, J. Stetten Thompson, W. H. Fletcher, D. J. Robinson, Jas. Spilling, C. B. Payne, G.T., and H. Massey, (Freemason).

The brethren first confirmed grants to the amount of £200 made at last meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence. They afterwards proceeded with the new cases, of which there were thirty on the list. These were relieved with a total sum of £582, which was made up of two grants of £100 each (£200), three of £40 (£120), one £30 (£30), one £25 (£25), four of £20 (£80), one £15 (£15), nine £10 (£90), four £5 (£20), and one £2 (£2). There were thirty cases on the list, three of which were adjourned, and two dismissed.

After the business had been concluded, the Lodge of Benevolence was duly closed.

Obituary.

BRO. FRANCIS FELLOWS.

The mortal remains of Bro. Francis Fellows were consigned to the bosom of Mother Earth on Monday, the 18th of November, at Abney Park Cemetery, Stoke Newington. Amongst the mourners we noticed two of his sons, his old friend, Major Dowdell, and Bro. J. H. Weedon, P.M. of the Panmure Lodge, No. 715.

There were present at the grave a goodly number of the staff of the firm he managed (Clarke and Co., No. 41, Threadneedle-street), by whom he was much respected, for his kindness and great zeal and energy in promoting the prosperity of that business. No doubt, many gentlemen and men of business in the city will miss him very much. Mr. Robert Clarke, eldest son of the late Bro. Robert Clarke, P.M., and one of the founders of the Panmure Lodge, No. 715, attended, together with Messrs. Metherell, Wood, A. Meicall, and others engaged in the business.

There were also on the ground Bros. Crichton, Henry John Painter, and Henry Muggeridge, with, perhaps, others whom we did not recognise.

Bro. Francis Fellows was initiated into Freemasonry in the year 1872, in the Lion and Lamb Lodge, No. 192, of which he was the Senior Warden for the present year, and was exalted in the Lion and Lamb Chapter, No. 192, and has discharged the duties of S.E. for some time past.

With the assistance of a few friends, but chiefly by his own exertions, he obtained, about two years ago, a warrant for a new lodge, No. 1679, at Dalston, of which he was Master at the time of his death. He was very energetic in Masonry, and we understood he has served one of two Stewardships to the Masonic Charities.

He leaves a widow and four children to lament the loss of a good and kind husband, and a loving father. We know that some of his friends have advised the widow to endeavour to get two of his children into the Girls' and Boys' Schools. He was only forty-seven years of age.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

NELSON DRAMATIC CLUB.—The announcement of a performance by this well-known Amateur Club drew together a large and fashionable audience, at St. George's Hall, Langham-place, on Saturday evening last. The proceeds were to be devoted to the funds of the St. John's Hospital for Diseases of the Skin, and the esteemed president, the Right Hon. W. N. Massey, M.P., and the energetic treasurer, Bro. Captain Charles Mercier, honoured the performance with their patronage and presence. The comedy "Faint Heart Did Win Fair Lady," Mr. H. T. Craven's admirable Drama "The Post Boy," and the most popular farce "The Spitalfields Weaver," were each placed on the boards in a manner that would do no discredit to a professional company. In an amateur performance we always think it invidious to select particular individuals for commendation, but the merits of one gentleman were so apparent that we must make him the one exception. We refer to Mr. Walter Martin, who, if indeed he be an amateur, exhibits all the fine qualities of a finished actor. His clever personation of the Post Boy was a thing to be remembered, and drew from the audience repeated expressions of approval. Among the audience we noticed several members of the Chinese Legation, who appeared to enjoy the entertainment most thoroughly, no point of merit appearing to escape their notice. We trust that Bro. Captain Charles Mercier, who keeps watch and ward over the funds of this excellent institution, is as satisfied with the pecuniary result as the audience most certainly was with the performance.

Reviews.

ADAMS'S SYNCHRONOLOGICAL CHART, OR MAP OF HISTORY. Walker Brothers, London.

We have seen and studied this very interesting and remarkable chart with some care, and no little astonishment. It is said to have taken fifteen years in compilation, and we can quite understand it, as the labour to produce so complicated, and yet so clear a panoramic view of history must have been intense. The object of this chart, we are told, is to "assist the mind in clearly fixing along down the stream of time, the time when the events of the world's history took place. The time when (chronology) and the place where, (geography), are the two great eyes of history." Accordingly, we have a synchronous collection of dates, persons, and events, from the creation to the reign of H.M. Queen Victoria, (the present epoch in short), depicted before the mind's eye of the youthful student. The idea is novel, and has been carried out in a most masterly and effective way; indeed, the care bestowed upon this chronological chart deserves all praise, inasmuch as it is most striking and unsurpassed in itself. We are told that Adams's map is now in use in many thousand schools, &c., in the United States, and we are inclined to think that it will be found to be both attractive and helpful in scholastic establishments in this country.

We have, let us note, in this admirably executed work of Mr. Adams, (we believe he is the Hon. Sebastian Adams, Salem, Oregon), a synchronous chart of ancient, biblical, and modern history, for 5880 years, in a panoramic map or chart, measuring twenty-two feet by twenty-six, (we are told), and which can be used in one large chart or carried in a portfolio or cover.

The stream of time, which dominates the chart, is marked by a black wavy line running horizontally throughout the chart, divided by transverses and intersecting lines, into centuries, which are again reduced to decades. Thus, by a little care, the student can discover the contemporaneous history of mankind, and realize it at a glance. We could quite understand that at first sight, the chart might appear to some intricate and difficult to master in its countless details, but a little careful attention will meet that difficulty, like a good many more, and the young especially will be interested with a picture chart which places the world's history vividly, and yet lucidly before them, and enables them, so to say, to gather up into "one focus," the conflicting scenes of cosmopolitan history.

When we first saw the chart, through the obliging recommendation of Bro. Walker, we felt "dazed" at such a mass of "instructive details" in such "narrow limits," but subsequent study has shown us, how this, like everything here which is arduous, can be mastered by industry and attention, and we, therefore, recommend some of our young friends to pore over the chart, as their will be both an intellectual and improving method of spending time. We wish the chart all success. Since we wrote the above we are informed, by unquestionable authority. The chart is now in use, and greatly appreciated, in one of our large public schools, and that a distinguished brother of ours, so greatly appreciates its use, that he has sent six copies to six schools, in which he is interested.

BJORN AND BERA. A Norse Legend. By B. MONTGOMERIE RANKING. Remington and Co., 5, Arundel-street, Strand.

We have received this "Norse Legend," and have read it; and like it much, and recommend our worthy patrons to read it too. We wish that our space permitted a longer review of a pleasant little book, but as a friendly "collaborateur" of ours proposes to review it in the December Masonic Magazine, we refer our readers to that more elaborate account of a striking little poem.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS, HOW TO GET ON IN THE WORLD. By W. H. DAVENPORT ADAMS. Bro. John Hogg, Paternoster Row.

We can conscientiously commend the idea and execution of this work, and think that all will be struck, both by its monitory cautions and cheery encouragements. We are inclined to think that the author has taken the right view of success in life, not merely as the To Kalon and To Agathon, in itself, but as the result of duty to God and utility to man. From a temporal point of view more success might be sought for as a means of earthly pleasure and wealth, or material enjoyment and comfort. But the truer view, as Mr. Adams well puts it, after all, is the religious view, which makes human success dependant on a Divine Providence, and places man in his efforts and proposals, and purposes, subservient ever to Him, T.G.A.O.T.U., who overrules and disposes all things and all men. But as means under God to a great end—industry, thrift, moderation, sobriety, honesty, and simple-minded discharge of duty are needful, and though the "race is not to the swift" always here, as a matter of certain consequence, yet without such qualities no one has a right to hope to succeed in business, or in life. The great end of success is not personal advantage, but the honour of God and the good of man. We think the book will be much appreciated and, we hope, extensively read.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The sudden changes, frequent fogs, and prevailing dampness sorely impede the vital functions and conduce to ill-health. The remedy for these disasters lies in some purifying medicine, like these pills, which is competent to grapple with the mischief at its source, and stamp it out without fretting the nerves or weakening the system. Holloway's Pills extract from the blood all noxious matters, regulate the action of every disordered organ, stimulate the liver and kidneys, and relax the bowels. In curing chest complaints these pills are remarkably effective, especially when aided by friction of the Ointment on its walls. This double treatment will ensure a certain, steady, and enebent progress, and sound health will soon be re-established. [Advrt.]

WILLIAMS MASONIC MEMORIAL.

The following communication has been addressed by the Prov. Grand Master of Cornwall to the various lodges, through Bro. E. T. Carlyon, P.G.S.:—

Mount Edgcombe, Devonport, November 7th, 1878.
Dear Brother Carlyon,—Having received the accompanying letter from the W.M. of the Cornubian Lodge, No. 450, and believing, after consideration and inquiry, that the proposal, which has my cordial approval, is likely to be acceptable to the brethren of the Province generally, I shall be much obliged if you will transmit a copy of Bro. Husband's letter (and of this one) to the W.M's. of all the lodges, the First Principals of the various chapters, and the chief officers of the other Masonic bodies, of which Bro. Sir Frederick Williams was a member, and request them to lay the proposal before the brethren at their next meeting, and to inform you what support they are willing to give to it.

Believe me, yours fraternally,

MOUNT-EDGCOMBE.

Hayle, October 10th, 1878.
Cornubian Lodge of Freemasons, No. 450.
To the Right Hon. Earl of Mount-Edgcombe, Prov. G. Master of Cornwall.

My Lord and Right Worshipful Sir,—The circular issued by your Lordship's desire to the several lodges of your province, in which your lordship referred most appropriately to the death of our deeply lamented and much respected brother, Sir Frederick M. Williams, Deputy Prov. G.M. of Cornwall, was duly received by us, and your Lordship's instruction to place our lodge in mourning received the necessary attention at our hands. At the regular meeting of our lodge, held on the 10th inst., it was suggested that a Memorial of our late lamented brother should be raised in the form of a united contribution from the several lodges in this province to the funds of the various Charitable Institutions (the Boys' and Girls' Schools and others), the votes for such "Memorial" contribution to be vested in the Prov. Grand Master of Cornwall for the time being, and seeing that our late esteemed brother evinced so great an appreciation of those Institutions (as he unmistakably showed by his noble and generous support of them), the opinion was expressed that in no equally beneficial manner could the Freemasons of this province exhibit their lasting respect for one whose virtues had endeared him to the whole fraternity. Having thus very briefly set before your Lordship our suggested movement to raise a "Williams Memorial Fund," we beg most respectfully to enquire if your Lordship will give it your sanction and approval, and, if so, will your Lordship be pleased to indicate in what manner it may best be brought under the notice of the brethren; or to give such directions as shall secure this end. We would further beg to be permitted to say, that in our humble opinion a properly organised movement, such as we have indicated, will be so successful as to retain to your province a large number of the votes so generously made available for the noble purposes of Masonic Charity by our late distinguished brother, the memory of whose goodness we would hope always to have before us in a "Memorial Fund" for this province.—On behalf of the Cornubian Lodge, No. 450.

I have the honour to remain, your Lordship's most obedient servant,

WM. HUSBAND, W.M.

PATHETIC INCIDENT OF THE YELLOW FEVER EPIDEMIC.

Last week, says a recent edition of the Chicago News, a bright-eyed, pretty little fellow, of four years of age, was taken by the conductor of a train to the Palmer House. The child was quiet and obedient, but occasionally the tears would stream down his cheeks, and though he did not cry aloud, the heavy sobs shook him while the tiny hands tried vainly to hide the baby face. He was all alone in the world, and the love and kindness was all that comforted him. About his neck was a ribbon, to which was attached a card with the following inscription:—"To the Masonic Fraternity—Forward the orphan to San Francisco; Howard Association, New Orleans." Very tenderly did the ladies at the hotel care for the child, petting and caressing him until he forgot his sorrow. He was the last survivor of the family of Henry E. Wilcox, of New Orleans. In the past three weeks his father, mother, four sisters and brothers, had died of yellow fever. The association learning that he had relations in San Francisco telegraphed as to the disposal of the child. The answer was prompt. He would be fondly loved by friends in that city, and they wanted him at once. There was but one way to send him, so the poor little fellow was committed to strangers for the long trip of nearly 4000 miles. Everywhere he had met with the greatest attention, passengers on the various cars taking entire charge of him and attending to all his wants. Ladies in Chicago took him to the west bound train, and after giving him a bountiful supply of toys and dainties, left him to the kindly care of the conductor.—Liverpool Weekly Courier, Nov. 16th, 1878.

Sir Henry Rawlinson will contribute an article on "The Afghan Crisis" to the December number of the "Nineteenth Century."

We are requested to state that the meetings of La Tolerance Lodge of Instruction, No. 538, are now held at the Green Dragon, Maddox-street, Regent-st., W., every Wednesday evening, from 8.15 to 10 o'clock. The room in which the lodge is held is capable of seating sixty brethren.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

An effort is being made among "Old Carthusians" to purchase for the library of the Charterhouse School a large collection of the original sketches of John Leech, who was himself a Carthusian. His family have offered to his old School for purchase at a fair and reasonable price a considerable number of his original sketches, including those of the "Comic History of Rome," the "Comic History of England," &c., which would find an appropriate home in the library of the school in which John Leech received his first lessons in history. The managing committee of the library have given £50 towards the purchase, and about £100 more has been raised already among the masters and former scholars of the Charterhouse.

Electric lighting appears to have taken another step in advance—namely, the possibility of adjusting the brilliancy of any particular light in the circuit without waste of current by so doing. I understand that a telegraphic confirmation of this fact has been received from Mr. Edison, and is communicated to Saunders's News Letter, Dublin. The telegram states on Mr. Edison's authority that each electric burner can independently be raised and lowered. The utility of this achievement is obvious.

German Artists are complaining bitterly of the hard times, and scarcely any pictures have been bought by private persons at the Annual Exhibition of the Berlin Art Academy. Indeed the Council of the Academy have petitioned Government to devote 150,000 marks (£7500) to the purchase of pictures in order to support art under such unfavourable circumstances.

A very good Map of Afghanistan and the adjoining countries has been published by Mr. E. Stanford, of Charing Cross. The respective boundaries are clearly delineated, the names are plainly printed, and the various roads and passes are distinctly marked. Such a map will be exceedingly useful to any one wishing to follow out the forthcoming military operations.

M. Lais, director of the Rio de Janeiro Observatory, has written to the Paris Geographical Society, intimating that owing to the liberality of the Emperor of Brazil he had been enabled to begin the great work of determining by electric telegraph the longitude of Rio in comparison with Greenwich. When the operation shall have been completed the geographical position of every city in Southern America will be known with exactitude.—Nature.

"A Woman" writes:—The following extract from 'Maurice's Indian Antiquities,' vol. 1, who in his turn quotes from the 'Ayeen Akbory,' by Abul Fazil, the learned secretary of Akbar, in the 16th century, may contain some interest, as showing the importance which was attached to the possession of Cabul as early as that period:—"It (Cabul) is the gate of Hindostan towards Tartary, as Kandahar is towards Persia, and if both places be properly guarded that extensive empire is safe from the irruption of foreigners." Similar to this observation, which is taken from the 'Ayeen Arkbory,' is a remark in the short description of Asia, p. 7, 'that according to the Indians no man can be called the ruler of India who has not taken possession of Cabul.'

A Valuable Soporific for Railway Travellers has been invented by a French physician—a concoction which sends a person to sleep for a given time. The doctor can calculate the effect of his discovery within about ten minutes, and will give a dose ensuring sleep during a journey of twenty, fifty, a hundred, or two hundred miles, according to taste. The restless traveller is thus spared the weariness of a long night journey, while sleepily-disposed people can indulge in a good nap without fear of passing their destination. The invention—which, by the way, is said to taste like Chartreuse—might surely prove valuable to persons afflicted with sea-sickness.

A Telegraphic Museum was inaugurated at Berlin on the 1st inst. The collection is intended for the instruction of the people, and includes over two hundred objects connected with telegraphy, and some historic instruments, while submarine and military telegraphy are specially well represented.

British Art in India does not seem to reach a high pitch of excellence, to judge from the criticism of a correspondent of the Times of India who had visited the annual Fine Art Exhibition at Simla. "Most of the pictures," says the critic, "were atrocious daubs. There were skies, such skies that the blue heavens outside, could they have witnessed what an outrage had been committed on their azure purity, would have blushed crimson. There were foliage, and jungle, and seas displayed on canvas, and all as unlike nature as the ingenuity of man or woman could contrive. I saw a tiger with such a head and neck that the royal beast would have been perfectly justified in gobbling up the artist. There was an elephant knock-kneed, and such an infinity of caricatures of nature that it was a relief to look at the clear sky above after the fearful azures and blood-reds to which we had been exposed."

THE LIVERPOOL AUTUMN EXHIBITION OF PICTURES.—The sales and admissions to this exhibition at the Walker Art Gallery, Liverpool, which has now been open sixty-three days, ending Tuesday week, were as follows: Pictures sold, 185, realizing £4386 3s.; against 230 pictures, representing £7563 14s. in the same time last year; the morning admissions at 1s. numbered 32,867, against 31,185 last year; evening admissions at 6d. numbered 13,212; and those at 3d. 7716, against 13,528 last year. The season tickets sold numbered 2729 this year, and 2294 last year. The total receipts, exclusive of sales, and including catalogues sold, were £3063 12s. 6d. this year, against £2688 14s. 3d. in 1877.

THE FREEMASON,

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1878.

FREEMASONRY IN FRANCE.

Bro. Dowson asked us a question in our last impression, we venture to seek to reply to it to-day. We can only say in response to his invitation and query combined, that true Cosmopolitan Freemasonry requires absolutely a reverential acknowledgement of T.G.A.O.T.U. Without such acknowledgement any profession of so-called Masonry ceases to be Freemasonry true and Freemasonry proper, and is nothing but a secret association, a bastard imitation of a legitimate and benevolent Fraternity. French Freemasonry, which drew its "vital breath" from England, until late years, always professed openly and systematically, theoretically and practically, belief in T.G.A.O.T.U. In fact its dogmata and its ceremonies were offshoots of English Craft Masonry, "pur et simple," nothing more and nothing less. The innovations of Ramsay and Co., and the fantastic developments of countless and childish "Hautes Grades" affected, no doubt, the better, truer teachings of original Craft Masonry about 130 years ago in France, and what was called "Adonhiramite Masonry," at one time greatly infected, and still infects, more or less, the theory and practice of French Freemasonry. The French Revolution closed the doors of the French lodges, and when they revived after the "Reign of Terror," and the "Grande Loge" of France and the "Grand Orient" became one body, the teaching was still undoubtedly, practically on the whole, with some national differences, identical with that of English Craft Masonry. This state of affairs continued until 1830, when the "old order of things" appears to have changed, and from that time downwards, French Freemasonry has passed through many and fiery vicissitudes, has oscillated between contending parties, has been made the sport of "factions," and even the "tool" of the "Commune," until it has now placed itself almost out of the acknowledgement and fraternity of all loyal Freemasons. There is, however, this difference theoretically, as between the Grand Orient of France, and the Grand Conseil of the "Rite Ecossais," that whereas in the former Freemasonry is utterly revolutionized and transformed from its old religious, peaceful, non-political character, under the "Rite Ecossais" T.G.A.O.T.U. is still acknowledged, though as "invocations" are not admitted, and the "Bible" has disappeared, we fear that, as the Congress of Geneva made too plain, its acknowledgement of God, as we understand such acknowledgement, is a form without life and reality, and nothing more. They only mean a "Principe Createur," not a personal God. We are not surprised that Bro. Dowson finds little difference between the two systems, and passing over the great anomaly of a High Grade Conseil granting warrants for Craft Degrees, we will merely add, for Bro. Dowson's information, that the whole of the earlier French Masonic literature abounds in agreement, practically and consistently, nay, almost entirely with our English teaching, and that there is no one French writer of any Masonic authority or repute who supports the views of those who would denude French Masonic teaching and French Masonic ritual, of the reverent acknowledgement of T.G.A.O.T.U.

THE LITERARY WANTS OF FREEMASONRY.

We pointed out in our last impression, as is undoubtedly the case, that Masonic literature did not, unfortunately, receive the support it merited in England, but yet it may be well to remind ourselves that such a condition of things is not peculiar to English Masonry. In other jurisdictions the complaint is the same, and the support received, and the sympathy expressed have been even less. In America, for instance, with its 600,000 Masons, we hardly take up a Masonic periodical without a somewhat similar lamenting allegation, and we fancy, that the same state of things exists alike in France and Germany, Ireland and Scotland. Indeed, we know that it is so. Whence, then, this lukewarmness? this backwardness? this want of appreciation of the utility and benefit of Masonic literature? If, (as we fear it must be conceded to the critical and caustic), a good deal of this apathy may be directly traceable to the want of thorough high-class Masonic literature, to that reckless personality, which too often marks Masonic columns, and, perhaps, to the unavoidable and pressing competition of profane serial literature, yet, we cannot help thinking that much may be not unjustly ascribed to our brethren and our lodges. For we think it not too much to say, that as a rule, Masonic literature is, after all, discountenanced and discouraged. Much of this state of things, this fact of neglect, is caused by so many lodges meeting in rooms and taverns, where no provision is made for keeping a lodge library, and where such a useful appendage to a lodge is an utter impossibility. But we fear that beyond this there lies, so to say, a great "undiscovered country" of Masonic indifference, "fallow ground," which we should like to "break up" and bring into cultivation. We feel sure that much good would accrue to Masonry if lodges were more extensively to create and keep up lodge libraries, and if our brethren would sometimes bear in mind that Masonic literature, like all other literature, needs encouragement, and as we believe, merits patronage. We have often felt that our lodge meetings might be made all the more intellectual and more attractive to all, if all good brethren knew as much of the archaeology, and history, and philosophy of Freemasonry as they do of its ceremonial, and we are certain that we do not err when we press on our readers the advisability and duty, as educated Masons, cultivated members of our Order, as well as of society, to pay some little attention to the long neglected study of Masonic literature. If Kloss's invaluable "Bibliographie" were continued to 1878, instead of 6000 works, it would, we think, be close upon 7000, or even more, and as the subject is interesting in itself, we shall recur to the history of Masonic Bibliography next week, as suggestive of much that may instruct, inform, and edify our many friendly readers. Let us hope to see a more general appreciation Masonically of Masonic literature.

A NEW JOKE.

That eminent statesman, Mr. Gladstone, has been delivering himself of a new, though harmless, little joke, about our Order, in a speech he delivered at Chester on November 11th. The Morning Post of November 12th thus reports his words, when speaking about "Secret Societies." "He rejoiced that in our own case there were no such things as secret societies in this country, or if there were they were only societies with a little harmless executive secrecy like the Freemasons, merely to tickle people's curiosity, to enable them to imagine that there is something very great and very interesting and very wonderful, the knowledge of which they would gain if they were admitted into the society. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) He did not anticipate much mischief from them." (A laugh). Passing over the joke, which certainly seems of the mildest, and people must, we think, be very ready to laugh, if they can laugh at it, we should like to know why Mr. Gladstone should expect any "mischief" from us Freemasons or from Freemasonry. It is quite clear that Mr. Gladstone knows nothing about English Freemasonry, or he would be aware, that a more loyal order does not exist, or one that more deliberately and distinctly disavows, all "secret conspiracies" against the government of the country. Indeed in all lands, if Freemasonry is true to its teaching and its mission, it is the friend of order and law and peace, and the opponent of revolution, anarchy and tumults of every kind. Perhaps Mr. Gladstone does not know that by the "Seditious Societies Act" of 1799, Section 5, "nothing in the act" is to "extend" to "Lodges of Freemasons." The Masonic body is thus fully recognized, and meets legally and peacefully and loyally ever, under the great Aegis of the good constitutional laws of England! At this moment, the Prince of Wales is at its head, two of his royal brothers are high in office, and as since 1717, three Princes of Wales, and a large proportion of the Royal Family have belonged to it, and it includes within its pale today, some of the noblest, and the most cultivated, and most distinguished in the law, to say nothing of its phalanx of excellent men and law-abiding citizens, we do not profess to understand what "mischief" Mr. Gladstone thinks English Freemasonry can do! The truth is that Mr. Gladstone, like all frequent speakers, (and he certainly does seek to improve the occasion), was in want of a little variety, and so he lighted upon our friendly Order. So far, from his charge, if it be a charge, being valid, much less his joke, if it be a joke, being a good joke, as Freemasons we do not seek to attract, nor do we wish even to invite candidates to join our fraternity. It will be seen by this little "faux pas," that great orators are not exempt from the minor prejudices of common mortals, like all of us, and that this stale little joke, of "affected mystery" and a "pretended secret" can find an exponent in so great a speaker as Mr. Gladstone, and cause a laugh amid the good citizens of Chester, is a fact really amusingly to wonder at. Some of our readers may remember how Mr. Pickwick admired hugely the readiness with which the friends of Mr. Peter Magnus were amused with his signing himself "afternoon," and we can only enjoy the extreme complacency with which Mr. Gladstone's harmless little jest at the expense of Freemasonry, (of which, as we said before, he clearly knows nothing at all), was greeted and responded to by admiring listeners at Chester. We do not think that it is calculated to do any harm to English Masons or to English Masonry, and as for the "mischief" about which Mr. Gladstone seems to be in doubt, as "possible though not probable," we can safely assert to day, on the contrary, that English Freemasonry never does "mischief" to anything or anybody, but is ever alike of value and reality to its brotherhood, and of utility and blessing to mankind.

BRO. CREMIEUX'S SPEECH AT THE FETE OF THE TROCA-DERO.

Bro. Hubert, in the "Chaîne d'Union" for November, gives us what is a sketch of this speech, incomplete, however, because, as he says, it was impossible to hear the orator. Such as it is, we give a literal translation of it to our readers—see p. 487, "Chaîne d'Union," for November. "The eminent orator," Bro. Hubert says, "then represented to us what might have been the cradle of Freemasonry, its first sanctuary, its hearth and its element, when the people were still plunged in barbarism, in superstition in the mid-day of civilization and progress, and placed us in presence of the mysteries whence all the right-thinking men of antiquity derived their doctrines, so pure, so moral, so enlightened, so humanitarian, by the self-illumination of the idea of a God, and fortifying themselves with the perspective of a future life. It is, thanks to these sages of antiquity, that the notions of civilization spread and penetrated through the entirety of nations, augmenting the sum of their well-being, adding to their intellectual, moral, and physical knowledge. But, how not, in this work, in this travail to compare the heaven and the earth? how not to be affected and seduced by the serenity and splendour of the one, and the immense operations which mark every storehouse of the other? Then naturally appeared as the Grand Workman, Regulator, and Pacifator, in this contrast between heaven and earth, in this common existence of heaven and earth, in this harmony, in this superior Order, which dominated, regulated, directed, the affairs of earth and heaven, T.G.A.O.T.U. He was then properly in his place T.G.A.O.T.U., the frontispiece of the ancient mysteries. He was logically in the essence, and the result of their teaching, their doctrines, their belief in the absolute path in which the adept were to walk and to believe. But the ages succeed, and behold us in mediæval times. The historians profess to deduce from certain facts which they put forward, that ancient Freemasonry was perpetuated, was preserved by those numerous and powerful organized associations, under the title of operative Masons, who covered Europe with their grand and splendid monuments, which constitute to-day our admiration and our astonishment. Those cathedrals, unique in their kind, and which reproduce in their architecture and their sculptures so many of the symbols and working tools which belong to our ritualistic and didactic ceremonies. T.G.A.O.T.U. was again there. And its idea became still more striking and necessary when an element more preoccupied with building up, and constituting the moral human edifice, than in building these monuments of stone, penetrated the confederations of operative Masons. From that moment all the efforts, all the concern, all the labours, of the Society of Freemasons was the development in the man of the moral, intellectual, and physical faculties, that is to say, to make him good, just, and healthy in mind and body; that is to say, to teach him that which is good, beautiful, and true, to place him in the condition the most conformable to his aspirations, to his wants, his well-being, to the enlightened expansion of his intelligence. Behold our secret, behold our science, behold our mystery. To form man who will love his family, and will devote himself to the happiness of his family; to form the citizen, who will know all that relates to his country, and all that he can expect from his country, to enlighten him sufficiently in order that he may understand that all the peoples are reciprocally united to each other, that all men are brethren of humanity, and that if we owe a duty to our family we owe it more to our country, and much more to humanity. Mutual esteem, personal honesty, virtue are the means; Freemasonry ought not to depart from them. Justice is its safeguard, the Freemason ought to adhere to it. But as side by side with teaching it is needful to bring example, it is necessary to gain practice, Masons enlighten themselves mutually, treat each other mutually as brethren, without distinction of race, nationalities, religions; Masons, in one word, from one end of the world to the other, form but one and the same family, united in all the members which compose it. This is the reason that on this auspicious day, in the solemnity of which every one will preserve a happy and comfortable recollection, we are all here, although of all countries, receiving each other, greeting each other, considering each other, mingling with each other, better even than friends, as cordially, as sympathetically, as joyously, as brethren would do belonging to the same one family.

AN APPEAL TO THE LONDON SUBSCRIBERS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason"

Dear Sir and Brother,—

While bowing with all due deference to your decision, I venture to lay before you facts which may heretofore have been unknown to, or unheeded by, many, viz., that year by year the number of London candidates, hopelessly rejected by the pre-concerted and well executed action of the provinces, is becoming annually stronger and more disheartening to the brethren among whom the applicants dwell. I will only refer as far back as the October election, and call your attention to the fact, that whereas individual provinces were able to bring forward, and successfully elect, candidates on their first application, with an average of three to eight more chances, London, with three candidates on their final chance, was only able to secure one, and that a combined London and provincial case.

I would now call your attention to the ensuing April election, on which occasion, singularly, precisely similar cases will be laid before you, viz., four London cases, Frost with ten votes, Giles with three, and a combined London and Essex, Nicholls with 1013, to bring forward. Recall to mind one of Esop's Fables, "the old man who gave his sons a bundle of sticks to break, impossible 'en masse,' but perfectly easy singly." So, dear sir and brother, if the London subscribers are but true to themselves, they will, by the combination of the proxies they possess, in the privileges they have purchased, always be enabled to secure the return of every urgent London case presented to them, and at the same time have a large amount of votes in hand to successfully aid any candidates from the provinces whom the London brethren individually and collectively deem most worthy of support; but if the London subscribers keep aloof from each other, and either from jealousy or indifference deem themselves self-sufficient, then they will, like those separated sticks, be broken, and become the victims, not of the provinces or others, who wisely make use of their wantonly wasted power, but of their own self-importance in thinking that they are wiser or stronger than their neighbours, whose strength and wisdom is proved by their uniform success. I do not ask you to join the London Masonic Charity Association, of which I have the honour to be Treasurer, unless you are at issue with the principles on which it is established, like Freemasonry, perfect freedom of inclination, but I have a scheme, which under correction and revision, would render the catholicity of Freemasonry as nearly perfect as anything human can be.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours most fraternally,
CHARLES JOHN PERCEVAL.

THE LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother.

Perhaps some member of the London Masonic Charity Association will kindly answer a few simple questions which I wish in your columns to propound.

- (1) Is it not the fact that the London Masonic Charity Association has been established with a view to defeating the rival organisations in the provinces?
- (2) Has it not been avowed by the leading members of the London Association that this object is to secure a greater amount of patronage in the Masonic Charities for London votes, and, of course, for London candidates?
- (3) Has not the disparity between the amount of London subscriptions, and the number of successful London candidates, been shewn by elaborately compiled figures, and adduced as a most powerful reason for the establishment of a London Association?
- (4) Is it not a fact that the London Association is intended to be an exact copy, in all respects, of the various provincial societies?
- (5) Can it be shewn that in any single case the united votes of any province have ever been given in support of a candidate from another province, unless in the form of loans to be returned at a future election?
- (6) Has the London Association avowed its intention of dealing with each individual case on the list on its merits alone, and irrespective altogether of accidents of locality?
- (7) In the event of a candidate from some distant province coming up for the last time, with only a few votes to his or her credit, will the London Association support that candidate without making a bargain for a return of votes at a subsequent election?
- (8) Has not the legislature been appealed to times without number to amend the laws regulating admission to various charitable institutions, with a view to stopping the pernicious system of charity electioneering?
- (9) Does not the establishment of local Masonic Charity Associations tend to foster and increase this vicious principle of charity jobbing, which has been already widely condemned by the great majority of thinking men?
- (10) Can it be shown that the patronage exercised by London Masons is really less than it ought to be, when regard is had to the many provincial brethren resident in London, whose votes are naturally given to their respective provinces?

And, finally, is it not the fact that London Masons receive far more money from the central Board of Benevolence than do the indigent brethren of the provinces? This last question may appear to be irrelevant, but I do not think it is so when the question is one of London versus Provinces, in re the benefits derived from the Craft as a whole.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, faithfully and fraternally yours,
QUERIST.

THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

If I have refrained from troubling you with a communication on this subject it is not because I have been an idle reader, or an inattentive observer of the comments and statements which have appeared in your paper of some weeks past, but because I am of opinion that the important questions involved cannot be discussed in print without introducing allusions which it is neither right nor prudent to submit to public scrutiny.

Your correspondent, "Masonic Student," however, render it impossible for me longer to remain silent, reviving as he does the absurd idea (he must pardon me if he please) of the association of this degree with "St. Mark" an idea I have known only to emanate from one of the bitterest opponents of the degree in the years gone by; and for which there cannot be found the slightest authority.

I may be asked why decry as "absurd" the attempted association of the Mark Degree with the name of one Evangelist, while Craft Masonry is—or was—proud of its association with the name of another, still being widely known in many districts by the familiar appellation of "St. John's Masonry?" I make no specific reply, but simply enquire what became of "St. John's Masonry" when the two "Grand Parallels" of the New Testament were removed, and two of the Old Testament substituted? In those days of mutual concession, of so much giving and taking for the purpose of reconciliation between two rival bodies, how much of old Masonry "went by the board" I am not in a position to state, either with accuracy or authority, but I do not suppose it will be seriously disputed that a great deal of what was once held to belong to "pure and ancient Masonry" was eliminated, and many things embodied which had but little of antiquity, or received tradition, to recommend them.

That the Mark Degree was in the catalogue of eliminations I have every reason to believe, the prestige of old usage not being able to save it when there was offered in exchange the more elaborate ceremonial of the comparative innovation, the Royal Arch. But it is not necessary to attempt to depreciate one portion of Freemasonry for the sake of endeavouring to give importance to another, and I earnestly wish that those who do not feel disposed to acknowledge the authenticity of the Mark Degree would content themselves with such abstinence, and not go out of their way to attack an organisation, the ends and aims of which are as legitimate as, if not identical with, those of Craft Masonry.

If Craft Masonry derives its origin from the building of the Temple and from K.S., then Mark Masonry must be allowed an equally good—nay, an exactly similar—foundation. And why should this claim mar the enjoyment, or disturb the equanimity, of the most enthusiastically devoted member of the Craft? In what respect is the Mark antagonistic to the Craft? In what sense—from what point of view—can it be so regarded?

The same rulers hold high rank in both!

Both bodies are perfectly unsectarian!

Both inculcate, and demand from every candidate, a belief in a Supreme Being, though under slightly differing titles!

In many parts of England the tradition of the one have as remote an antiquity as the other.

As to the "teachings;" passing over the ordinary lessons, and the various objects of research submitted for consideration, in both systems Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth have prominent places, while it cannot be denied that, as a whole, the Mark, to a greater extent than any other degree, unites the operative with the speculative, and in that which is held to be the most impressive and important of the three Craft Degrees we are taught to feel that there is no stain equal to that of falsehood and dishonour, and we receive the final instruction how to comport ourselves in the inevitable hour, we are taught in the Mark Degree how to demean ourselves under disappointment, how to accept unmerited rejection and reproof, to comfort ourselves under the frowns of fortune, having regard to the consoling assurance that God seeth not as man seeth, and to find compensation for neglect in this present sphere by encouraging aspirations for adjustment and reward in that higher and better world to which our attention is directed.

If the "present system of Mark Masonry must be pronounced absolutely modern," what is to be said of the present system of Craft Masonry? While yielding a cheerful acquiescence in the "time immemorial" theory of Freemasonry, and claiming for it a far more remote antiquity and higher connection than many are willing to concede, though unable satisfactorily to trace its development, a great deal in our present system must be held to be of modern introduction. But this does not lead me to undervalue it as an institution. In an age of progress why should Masonry be unprogressive? If the present system, the result of the labours of learned and earnest thinkers and writers, albeit with a turn for "improvement," be considered as that best adapted for present requirements, I accept it as a goodly structure, erected on strong, well-laid foundations. For all this I may be allowed to regret a departure, to some extent from the old lines, and to indulge my partiality for a structure still more complete. But let me be more practical! Is it beyond the power of demonstration;—

1. That the Third Degree is a modern formation.
2. That the old lodges practised the Two Degrees only of E.A. and F.C.
3. That the ruler of a lodge was inducted into office as the "Overseer," with a ceremony closely resembling that of the Mark Degree in many points, and was known as the "Chair-Master's Degree."

I am not without bases on which to ground this hypothesis (if more than this is denied me), but it is impossible for me to explain them in public.

Under any circumstances it is gratifying to know that the Mark Degree is recognised as part of pure and ancient Masonry by every known supreme jurisdiction—that of England excepted. I, for one, do not fear, though I do not desire, controversy. Bro. Bedolfe may denounce me as a "traitor," and may throw as much mud as he pleases on the degree and its members, Masonic Students may formulate their theories, diseased imaginations may run riot in their indulgence in diatribe and contempt, this Masonic degree will, I am convinced, bear as close and scrutinising an examination as any degree belonging to an institution, which beyond a certain ascertained period in its history has to rely upon more or less valuable well-authenticated tradition. In the words of "Ecce Signum," whose admirable reply to Bro. Bedolfe is worthy all praise, "I deem this '(connection)' much more sensible than impassioned argument upon unknown matters" and am content.

Remaining, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

FREDERICK BINCKES.

FREEMASONRY IN FRANCE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the writer of the remarks on English and French Freemasonry, may I be allowed, in reply to Bro. De Renzy, to remark that my call on the Grand Orient of France was of the character of an interview, rather than of a fraternal visit, and, I think, it attained the object in view. Thus by bringing out prominently the fact of the erasure of the Sacred Symbol from the Book of Constitutions, whilst doing justice to the amiable bearing of the W.M., pointed out the restless nature of the leading spirit, and the fact that the candidates were selected as men of advanced opinions and socialistic ideas. I am not aware that any one else has so clearly pointed out the facts. Having thus obtained the information desired, I went on my way, and saw them no more.

As to the Scottish Rite, the idea I wished to express was that they were not of the movement party, but that, like legitimists, with whom I have conversed, and other reasonable men, they were satisfied "if France were well governed and at peace."

Three candidates were selected in one of the lodges I visited. Two, if not all three, were stated to be "Catholic," simply as matter of character, but no allusion was made to politics. This fact at once points out the great difference between the two Grand Lodges.

In another of the lodges a brother delivered a good lecture on the marriage customs of nations and tribes, and his summing up left nothing to be desired as to orthodoxy or propriety.

I would further remark, as there seems to be some confusion, that on the Masonic fête day there were two meetings; firstly, the concert at the Trocadero Palace, of probably 4000 people, leaving some hundreds outside, of whom I was one, and where M. Cremieux and Bro. Montagu spoke; and, secondly, the banquet at the Continental Hotel in the evening, at which I should estimate at not less than 400 were present.

Two rooms were filled, everything was in good order and taste, but for myself I found the heat overpowering, and fainted soon after the dinner had begun. A brother very kindly led me out, and I returned, not indeed to the dinner, but to hear M. Jules Simon. M. Jules Simon's speech was moderate, he spoke of the pleasure of being surrounded by so large a gathering of the brethren and visitors, which spoke so powerfully of the revival of France after its late fearful trials. He spoke highly of England, and especially of the Prince of Wales, but in no way did he allude to politics. He then referred to his satisfaction at the visit there of Lord Skelmersdale, whom he certainly described as the representative of English Masonry.

Lord Skelmersdale made an excellent speech in English, which was translated and much applauded.

I do not think French Freemasonry ought to be neglected, or to be shown the cold shoulder. The brother who sat next to me was a Roumanian, the next to him was from Algiers, and whatever form French Freemasonry may take, it will prevail over the rest of Europe. Had the Reformation succeeded (as it nearly did) in France, the Papacy, as a power, had ceased to be, and I repeat that the influence of French ideas on the world is not to be despised. A brother said to me, "We like Freemasonry, but we want simplicity."

Yours fraternally,

W. VINER BEDOLFE.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

The following report of the General Board will be presented at the meeting of Grand Lodge, on Tuesday, the 3rd December:

The number of certificates issued in the six months to 30th September, 1878, was 695, bringing the number of brethren advanced under this Grand Lodge, as per register of members, 11,773.

The amount received for fees, &c., in the six months to 30th September, 1878, was £812 5 6

The balance to credit of the General Fund on 30th September, 1878, was ... £230 4 6

The balance to credit of the Benevolent Fund on 30th September, 1878, was ... £78 17 11
Since paid ... 46 15 0
Subscriptions still due ... 87 9 0

Showing a balance divisible between the Benevolent and Education Funds of ... £213 1 11

In the same period there were granted Warrants for thirteen new lodges, viz:

- No. 222, Kingston, Tunis, North Africa.
- " 223, West Smithfield, London.
- " 224, Menatschim, London.
- " 225, Abbey, Abingdon.
- " 226, Excelsior, Plumstead.
- " 227, Hereward, Bourne.
- " 228, Garnet, Dinapore, Bengal.
- " 229, Faithfull, Cockermouth.
- " 230, Clifton Mount Keystone, Kingston, Jamaica.
- " 231, Union, Demerara.
- " 232, Cyprus, Benares, Bengal.
- " 233, Headstone of the Corner, Lucknow, Bengal.
- " 234, Brixton, London.

It is with extreme regret that the Board records the death of R.W. Bro. Sir Frederick Martin Williams, Bart., M.P., who since the year 1867 ruled over the Province of Cornwall with marked ability and success.

The tenth annual festival in aid of the Benevolent Fund was held on Wednesday, 17th July, at the Alexandra Palace, under the presidency of the M.W. Grand Master, the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale. The festival resulted in an unprecedented success, the total of the lists of twenty-six Stewards having reached £371 4s. This has enabled the Board to increase the invested fund to £1000, in consequence of which there is submitted for consideration by Grand Lodge, a draft of the Rules and Regulations suggested by the Board for the management and disposal of the amount apportioned to the educational branch of the Benevolent Fund.

A moveable Grand Lodge was held at Keswick in June last, presided over by the M.W. Past Grand Master, the Rev. George Raymond Portal, at which Lodges Fletcher, No. 213, and Henry, 216 (the latter of which had been formerly held under the Scotch Constitution) were consecrated and their respective Worshipful Masters duly installed. The arrangements made for the accommodation of visitors and for the transaction of business reflected the greatest credit on R.W. Bro. Col. Whitwell, M.P., Deputy Grand Master of the province, the Provincial Grand Secretary, and the Executive generally.

The Board recommends grants of £15 to Bro. H., late of Sunderland, and £10 to the widow of Bro. H., late of East Stonehouse, County Devon.

The Board also recommends £25 from the General Fund to be granted to certain brethren of the Mark Degree in the Island of Curaçoa, West Indies, who have been reduced to a state of great destitution by the hurricane of September, 1877. Such grant to be entrusted to the W.M. of the Mark Lodge Perseverance, No. 184, at Curaçoa.

The Board has ordered the investment of £300 on account of the General Fund, making that Fund £1,000.

Certain Orders having expressed a desire that the Grand Mark Master for the time being should take charge of the said Orders (with a view to obviate the necessity of establishing other Supreme Bodies for that purpose), the Board recommends that the Grand Mark Master be authorised to take charge of such Orders and under such conditions as the General Board may from time to time recommend, and the Grand Mark Master may approve.

The Board has the gratification to announce that the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the District of Columbia, U.S.A., has requested the M.W. Grand Master to accept the appointment of Grand Representative of that Grand Chapter near this Grand Lodge, and that his lordship has signified his acceptance of the appointment, and requested Ill. Comp. Joseph S. McCoy, the Grand High Priest, to represent this Grand Lodge near his Grand Chapter, with the rank of Past Grand Warden.

The Grand Chapter of West Virginia, U.S.A., has also requested the Grand Secretary to act as its Representative near this Grand Lodge, which has been approved by the M.W.G.M., and having expressed a desire for an exchange of Representatives, the M.W.G.M. has appointed Ill. Comp. Charles M. Davison as Representative of this G.L. near the Grand Chapter of West Virginia—also with the rank of Past Grand Warden. The Board cordially welcomes this exchange of Representatives, evidencing as it does the fraternal relations existing amongst the various Grand Bodies having charge of the Mark Degree.

An appeal has been received from the W.M. of Fidelity Lodge, No. 98, at Lahore, in the Province of Bengal, against the ruling of the P.G.M., which has been dealt with by the Board. The papers relative thereto are open to the inspection of the brethren at the office of Grand Lodge.

The Grand Treasurer's accounts for the six months to 30th September, 1878, are subjoined, which show:—

The following are the bye-laws of the Educational Branch of the Mark Benevolent Fund, a scheme for which will be submitted to Grand Mark Lodge, on the 3rd December, as announced by the Freemason last week:—

I. The object of the branch is to assist in the education of the children of necessitous Mark Master Masons.

II. It consists of a Patron or Patrons, President, Vice-Presidents, Trustees, Treasurer, Secretary, and an unlimited number of Life Governors and Annual Subscribers.

III. The General Board will hold special meetings on the third Tuesday in April and October, and at such other times as they may deem necessary, for the purpose of considering applications.

IV. The mode of election is by ballot, by means of voting papers issued by the Board.

V. Every sum of five shillings per annum subscribed to the Mark Benevolent Fund, gives the subscriber one vote at a single election.

VI. A donation of five guineas, in one or more payments within twelve months, gives five votes for life at every election, and constitutes the donor a life subscriber.

VII. A donation of ten guineas, in one or more payments within twelve months, gives twelve votes for life at every election, and constitutes the donor a life governor.

VIII. A donation of twenty guineas, in one or more payments within twelve months, gives twenty-five votes for life at every election, and constitutes the donor a Vice-President.

IX. Similar privileges are acquired by lodges on payment of double the above amounts.

X. No applicant shall be eligible for election unless the father has been for at least three years a subscribing member of some Mark Lodge under the English Constitution.

XI. No child shall be admitted to the benefits of this Institution who is under eight or above thirteen years of age, nor continue a recipient after the age of sixteen.

XII. No candidate shall be placed on the list until approved of by the Board.

XIII. Every petitioner shall produce a certificate signed by the Master and Secretary of the Mark Lodge in which the father was advanced, or of which he has been a subscribing member for at least three years, together with a certificate or satisfactory proof of the date of the birth of the applicant.

XIV. A list of all approved candidates shall be sent by the Secretary to every subscriber at least fourteen days before the day of election.

XV. A quarterly report of the progress, conduct, and health of every child assisted by this Institution shall be required from the head of the educational establishment where the child is placed, and the General Board shall take such other steps as may be practicable for ascertaining the progress made by the child.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF LANCASHIRE.

The Provincial Grand Mark Master Masons' Lodge, of the county Palatine of Lancaster, was held in the Town Hall, Bury, on Monday, the 4th inst., when a large number of Mark Masons assembled, under the presidency of the M.W. Grand Mark Master, Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, Prov. G.M. of Lancashire; assisted by his deputy the R.W. Bro. Le Gendre Nicholas Starkie, and the following officers of Prov. Grand Lodge:—

Bro. Geo. P. Brockbank, S.G.W.; Edward Haywood, J.G.W.; Thomas Wilson, G.M.O.; Henry Lees Hollingworth, G.S.O.; Frederick Dean, G.J.O.; Augustus A. Bagshaw, G. Chap.; John Duffield, G. Treas.; John Heap, G. Reg.; John Chadwick, G. Sec.; John Ranculiffe, G.S.D.; John Harwood, G.J.D.; James Tayler, G.L. of W.; C. M. Jones, G.D. of Cir.; R. W. Waterson, G.D. of C.; Julius Armsberg, G. Swt. B.; James Huartson, G. Std. B.; Thomas Horstall, G. Org.; G. E. Hammer, G. Purs., together with a host of 120 brethren from all parts of the province.

The Prov. G. Lodge was opened in form, and with solemn prayer, about 3.10 p.m.

The minutes of Prov. G. Lodge, held in Bolton, Oct. 22nd, 1877, were submitted for confirmation.

The Treasurer's accounts, duly audited, were presented and showed the very gratifying balance of £117 in favour of Prov. Grand Lodge.

Bro. Charles F. Woodall, W.M. elect, Union Lodge, 32, was then unanimously elected Prov. Grand Treasurer, in the place of Bro. John Duffield, who, for his valuable services in that capacity for nearly eight years, and to show the Prov. Grand Master's appreciation of the same, was appointed Prov. Grand Senior Warden for the year.

The Prov. Grand Master then proceeded to appoint and invest the Prov. Grand Officers as follows:—

John Duffield...	...	Prov. S.G.W.
James Shaw	Prov. J.G.W.
E. C. Milligan	Prov. G.M.O.
James Huartson	Prov. G.S.O.
Edward Diggle	Prov. G.J.O.
Augustus A. Bagshaw	...	Prov. G.C.
Joseph Harrison	Prov. A.G.C.
Henry J. Jackson	Prov. G.R.
C. F. Woodall	Prov. G.T.
John Chadwick	Prov. G.S.
George E. Hammer	Prov. S.G.D.
John Davison...	...	Prov. J.G.D.
Samuel Porritt	Prov. G.L. of W.
R. W. Waterson	Prov. G.D. of C.
T. W. Probert	Prov. G.A.D. of C.
Joseph Wood...	...	Prov. G.S.B.
James Horrocks	Prov. G.S.B.
George Lamb Campbell	...	Prov. G.O.
J. L. Thorpe	Prov. G.P.

Bro. Brockbank rose, and in an eloquent speech, proposed "that the sum of fifty guineas be given in the name of the Prov. Grand Mark Master to the Royal Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows." This was ably seconded by Bro. Matier, and carried unanimously.

The Deputy Prov. Grand Master gave his best thanks to the brethren for their promise of fifty guineas to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, at the next Annual Festival, of which Institution he would have the honour to preside, and he hoped to be well supported by his Lancashire brethren.

The G. Secretary announced that every lodge in the province was represented, and all returns from lodges had been received, showing a great improvement on previous years, indicating an amount of attention and good work, and reflecting favourably upon the W.M. and officers of the various lodges, who he (the P.G. Secretary) believed were now in better working order than in any previous year.

The P.G. Sec. was now asked by the Prov. G.M. to withdraw from the lodge, and when this had been done, Bro. C. F. Matier, P.G.J.W., rose, and proposed that the sum of £25 be given each year for his services as P.G. Sec., one year's payment to date from October, 1877. Bro. Matier spoke in the highest terms of the most satisfactory manner in which Bro. Chadwick had performed his Secretarial duties during the last nine years.

Bro. J. R. Goeppel, P.G.S.O. of England, seconded the proposition, which was supported by the P.G. Chaplain (Bro. Bagshawe). Bro. J. Duffield, P.G.S.W. (Past P.G.

Treas.), also referred to the great pleasure it had given him to work with Bro. Chadwick, and several other brethren spoke in very complimentary terms of the P.G. Secretary's indefatigable services, and of the great advantage which these had been to P.G. Lodge.

The proposition was carried by acclamation.

On the P.G. Secretary's re-entrance into the P.G. Lodge the Prov. G. Master said he had great pleasure in informing him that Prov. G. Lodge had thought it right to pass a resolution giving to him, the Grand Secretary, twenty-five pounds per annum, and to date retrospectively from Oct., 1877, and that he felt very proud to think that under these circumstances Bro. Chadwick's services could be secured, at least, for a time. He had served Prov. G. Lodge well for nine years in that capacity, gratuitously, and he thought Prov. G. Lodge was well justified in what it had done.

Requests were made from brethren from Rose and Thistle Lodge, Wigan, and also from Skelmersdale Lodge, Ashton-under-Lyne, to have next meeting of Prov. Grand Lodge held in their towns.

"Hearty Good Wishes" were expressed from brethren hailing from Yorkshire, Ceshire, Middlesex, and Surrey, and the Prov. Grand Lodge was closed at 4.30 p.m.

The banquet was held at the Derby Hotel, at 5 o'clock, the M.W.G. Master, Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, presiding, when about sixty brethren sat down to a most excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Wm. Hadley.

ECLECTIC LODGE, No. 1201, LADIES' BANQUET.

Subsequent to the emergency meeting on Thursday, the 14th inst., of which we have elsewhere given a report, the brethren, accompanied by their wives, lady friends, and a number of Masonic visitors, to whom special invitations had been given, assembled at the Holborn Restaurant, to a banquet and soiree musicale.

The arrangements had been planned and carried out by the W.M. and a committee of officers, and their efforts were ably seconded by Bro. Hamp, the enterprising manager of the Restaurant, a member of the lodge.

On arriving, the brethren and guests were conducted to the "Duke's Saloon," elegantly fitted up for the nonce as a drawing room, where the necessary presentations to the W.M. and principal officers took place.

At seven o'clock an adjournment was made to the banquetting-room, where a most elegant and recherché dinner was served, covering being laid for ninety-nine, and every seat being occupied. A pleasing feature at the table was a list of toasts, interspersed with Shakespearean quotations, edited and arranged by the W.M., Bro. Arthur F. Taylor.

On the conclusion of dinner grace was sung by Bros. R. Taylor, Bannister, Clegg, and Evans, and the usual toasts of "The Queen," "The M.W. Grand Master," and "The Grand Officers," were proposed by the W.M., and drunk with enthusiasm, but, of course, without the honours usual at tyled Masonic banquets.

Bro. E. J. Hart, I.P.M., in a few felicitous remarks, proposed "The Health of the W.M. and Mrs. Taylor," assuring the ladies that the arduous duties of the lodge itself were carried out by Bro. Taylor with the same thoroughness and affability as they had seen him exhibit in the presidency at the banquet-table. With regard to having a ladies' banquet he (Bro. Hart) had, when the thing was first mooted, almost doubted of its advisability, but on mature consideration, had given the idea his unqualified support, and he trusted that the initiative taken, and so ably carried out by the W.M., and which had this evening proved so signally successful, would be made an annual institution.

The W.M., in reply, said that even had the applause he had just heard not been given, he should have felt amply rewarded by the presence of the brilliant assembly before him. He felt it an exceeding honour to have been enabled to welcome and preside over a more distinguished and numerous company than had ever before graced the banquet table of the Eclectic Lodge.

After the toast of "The Initiates" had been proposed by the W.M., and responded to by Bro. Parr, who stated how much he had been impressed by the ceremonies he had passed through, Bro. Dr. Pearce was delegated to propose the toast of the evening, "The Ladies." He said, this toast is one which, above all others, will be responded to, not only in the glass but in the heart of every brother here. The initiation, Worshipful Master, by you, of this new order of things, is worthy of your head and heart. Above all other things woman stands highest in our Masonic history. We are reminded in it of that period of the world's history when, after the Great Architect of the Universe had created man, He brought before him woman as His last and best work. Thus she stands and will remain in the heart of every Mason throughout not only all Christendom but of every country in the world of civilization. The ladies often tell us how selfish Masonry is—why not have us with you? they say, what are your secrets, your signs? But we forget them not; we allude to them not only in our ceremonies, but in our affections as expressed in those ceremonies. Masonry consists not in a mere convivial regaling, not in the mere banquetting of brethren, but in the principles which are founded on the purest piety and virtue." Bro. Pearce then concluded an eloquent oration with an allusion to the religious element in Masonry.

The J.W., Bro. W. S. Lee, on rising to respond, was greeted with loud applause, upon which he said, I am afraid the applause with which you have greeted me must be taken as a truthful commentary on the fact of my having been appointed to reply to this toast, and which may be expressed by a famous N.B. "This is sarcasm," because it really requires a brother of iron nerve, resolute determination, and magnificent eloquence, to reply to this by far the most important toast of the evening, whilst I, unfortunately, as the brethren well know, am the most modest man in the Eclectic Lodge. (Ironical Cheers.) I have, however one qualification perhaps for the important position where I have been placed. Like Artemus Ward, I like little boys, I like little girls, that is, when they are very nice, but, oh! the big girls immensely. (Laughter.) It is really superfluous that it should be thought necessary for any one to speak on behalf of the ladies, not only like good wine do they need no praise or bush, but they are intertwined with the foundations, the corner stones, if we ever had any, our mothers, if we ever had any (loud laughter), and being so intimately connected with Masonry it is really a shame that they should ever be thrust out into the cold when we can always find room for them at our tables, as we always do in our hearts. (Cheers.) I am glad the Eclectic Lodge is beginning to realise its responsibilities in this respect. I am glad that a certain ancient classic, Mr. Paris, is not here to night. You will remember that a few thousand years ago he was a good deal troubled to decide which of three young ladies was most engaging, he would certainly be driven crazy were he compelled to decide which is the most elegant, graceful, and beautiful of those whom the brethren by some occult means best known to themselves,—that is one of the secrets of Freemasonry—have gathered together to honour us this evening with their presence. Not out that each brother could easily decide for himself which he would prefer, but that is rather a delicate matter and had better be passed. (I know our sisters will think kinder of Masonry for what they have seen of its working to night, they will not grow cross if it takes away now and then a husband or a sweetheart temporarily from their sides, and I know that their presence here to night will influence and bless the Eclectic Lodge long after the memory of this pleasant evening shall have passed away. (Loud Applause.)

Bro. Reid Canon Harford, P.M., in replying for the visiting brethren, said the presence of ladies was hardly an innovation, it was carrying out the law of nature. In the French lodges of the last century brethren and sisters met there together regularly.

Bro. J. Stevens, P.M., in response to the same toast, made some capital remarks, some of which were lost to our reporter in the hearty bursts of laughter with which they were greeted. He said he never knew such a remarkable contrast as the Eclectic Lodge of a few years ago and at the present moment. The Eclectic Lodge never led, never met but upon Birmecide feast days. Dark, dreary, and comfortless were those days, when civilization had not laid a line or extended a compass. Compare the present occasion. Then the Eclectic Lodge did not dine, but a "Harty" good fellow took hold of them as W.M., and made them dine. He, with the co-operation of his officers, pulled them through a very difficult year, and now another brother, the present W.M., had still further pushed ahead this extraordinary correct lodge. He always enjoyed his visits to the Eclectic Lodge, but never more than on the present occasion. He only wished his wife had been present, as he should have been able to convince her what he had during the whole period of his married life failed to do, that there was some good in Freemasonry. Bro. Stevens concluded with complimenting the W.M. for his selection of Shakespearean quotations on the toast list.

Bro. Hart, I.P.M., responded for the Past Masters, and Bro. Saul, S.W., for the officers.

An excellent concert was then given by several brethren and ladies, the most noticeable feature being a duet for piano and harmonium, by Miss Hamp, a young lady of some nine or ten years, and Bro. A. L. Tamplin, the well-known organist, who also subsequently treated the company to a solo on the latter instrument, which perfectly entranced his hearers. A pianoforte solo by Miss Bolton, songs by Mr. Mander, Bros. R. Taylor, G. S. Graham, Knight Smith, and a wonderful performance by Bro. Graham, of the natural whistle, accompanied by the band, which was greatly applauded. The company separated about 12 o'clock, with mutual congratulations as to the success of the meeting.

Celebrated as the Emerald Isle is for its whisky, it promises to achieve an equally enviable notoriety for its tobacco, if we may judge from the growing demand made for that manufactured by Messrs. Murray, Sons and Co., at their extensive factories in Belfast and Dublin. The favour with which the various tobaccos of this particular firm have been received is, to a great extent, due to the measures they have taken to ensure deliveries to them of the finest qualities only. All their special brands sent out to the retail dealers are encased in sealed packets, with the name and trade mark (a pine), so that purchasers may rely upon obtaining the genuine article. This guarantee, coupled with the acknowledged purity of Messrs. Murray's tobaccos, has an important signification for smokers; it is, therefore, hardly surprising that Messrs. Murray should have contributed so materially to obtain for the sister Isle, a reputation for tobacco second only to that which she enjoys for whiskey. The "mellow" smoking mixture, recently sent us from Belfast, well deserves the appellation with which its introducers have designated it, and will be welcomed by all pipe smokers; a tribute equally merited by Messrs. Murray's other brands, most of which can now be obtained of tobaccoists in this country.

An Evening Entertainment for the pupils of the Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind will be given by Bro. Magnus Ohren, on Friday next, at 8 o'clock, at the College, Upper Norwood. Bro. Ohren will be assisted by members of his family, and the Misses Mahood. The entertainment will consist of Readings, Songs, Duets, etc.

Bro. Sir Albert Woods, G. Dir. of Cer., Garter King at Arms, went to Windsor Castle on Thursday, for the purpose of placing the banners of the Earl of Beaconsfield and the Marquis of Salisbury in St. George's Chapel.

Masonic and General Tidings.

THE LIVERPOOL MASONIC HALL.—On the 20th December the members of the Dramatic Lodge No. 1609, will give a grand special performance at the Royal Amphitheatre, Liverpool (the use of which has been generously granted by Bro. L. Courtenay, W.M., and Bro. Leslie, the lessees), in aid of the decoration of the Masonic Hall. The members of the "Dramatic" intend to realize as much money as will decorate the banqueting room in an artistic manner, and there seems to be little doubt that this object will be attained, judging from almost universal Masonic enthusiasm shown in connection with this effort. Our D.G.M., Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.M. of the province, has given his patronage and promised his presence, and nearly all the P.G.L. Officers, as well as the principal municipal lights of Liverpool will also be found amongst the number of patrons. Bro. P. Lowndes, 1609, has been appointed Treasurer; Bro. J. Atkinson, Sec. 1609, Secretary; and the W.M. Chairman. Already the tickets are being sold like wildfire, and ready help has been offered by many professional brethren.

Bro. John E. Shand has resigned the Secretaryship of the London Masonic Club Lodge of Instruction.

Bro. J. Caldwell, of Starcross, has given £100 to the funds of the Western Counties Idiot Asylum. The committee are in urgent need of funds to complete the buildings necessary for carrying out fully the objects of the institution, which is founded, not only for the care and maintenance of poor idiot children, but also for the instruction, of and training such pupils as are found capable of learning industrial pursuits. The above-named gentleman has also generously given £100 to each of the following institutions:—viz., The Boys' Masonic School, The Girls' Masonic School, and The National Life-boat Institution, and the sum of £200 to The Licensed Victuallers' School.

Bro. Edward Swanborough's (S.W. 1319) benefit takes place this (Saturday) afternoon at the Strand Theatre. A very good entertainment is offered.

The directors of the Bank of England met on Thursday, and reduced the rate of discount from 6 to 5 per cent.

The proprietors of the City Press have contradicted the statement that they have an intention of bringing out that paper daily. The bi-weekly edition is declared to be a success.

The annual installation meeting of the Lodge of Israel No. 1502, was held last Monday, the 11th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-st., Liverpool. Bro. S. Schöns-tad was duly installed W.M., for the ensuing year. A report of the proceedings will appear in due course.

LODGE LIBRARIES AND MASONIC BOOKS.—It is right to mention that a very favourable opportunity occurs just now of forming and increasing lodge collections of Masonic Books and for brethren to "set up" or add to their private Masonic libraries. Bro. Kenning is forming a large Masonic library, and is about to issue a Catalogue of Ancient and Modern Masonic Works at reasonable prices. Among them may be noticed D. Murray Lyon's History of the Lodge of Edinburgh, Findel's History of Freemasonry, Fort's Antiquities of Freemasonry, Kenning's Cyclopædia, Woodford's Defence of Masonry, and Steinbrenner's History of Freemasonry.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Tredegar Lodge of Instruction, No. 1625, held at the Royal Hotel, Bow-road, E., on Monday, 25th of November, at seven o'clock. Bro. J. Berry, P.M. 554, will preside.

The Mayor of Montreal and the Aldermen in their full dress robes of office intend presenting to the Marquis and the Princess Louise on their arrival with a sumptuously engraved and illuminated address in Jacques Carter-square, the sides of which will be lined with troops and Freemasons, the latter in full craft clothing.

The Special Correspondent of a contemporary at Halifax telegraphs that the Duke of Edinburgh was received with Royal honours there on Wednesday. The fleet left on Friday to cruise about in search of the Sarmatian and escort her into harbour.

The Builder learns that there is every probability of Horsemerger-lane Gaol being very shortly demolished, and that the site will before long be covered with residential buildings. The site is said to cover an area of about ten acres.

ST. PATRICK'S LODGE, No. 295 (I.C.), which is attached to the 4th Royal Irish Dragoon Regiment, held its meeting at York on Wednesday, when Bro. Captain Hanly, nominated at the last meeting, was unanimously elected as W.M. The J.W., Bro. Captain Murphy, was elected as S.W., and the S.D., Bro. Captain Tynte, was elected as J.W. The installation takes place on the second Wednesday in January.

The "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, Diary, and Pocket Book" for 1879, is now ready, price, post free, 2s. 2d. Copies may be had direct from the office by addressing the publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.

It is stated that the system of tickets adopted by the London General Omnibus Company on one of their lines have proved so successful that it will soon be in operation all over London.

The Consecration of the Leopold Lodge of Mark Master Masons takes place on Monday next at the Masonic Hall, Reading, at 1 o'clock precisely. The banquet will be given at the Ship Hotel, at 4 o'clock. A report will appear in our next.

Thursday was the 38th anniversary of the birth of her Imperial Highness Victoria Adelaide Mary Louisa, Princess Royal of Great Britain and Crown Princess of Germany, who was born at Buckingham Palace, on Nov. 21, 1840. The Crown Princess is the eldest daughter and first child of her Majesty Queen Victoria.

ANTHONY TROLLOPE's new tale, Catherine Carmichael, will appear in the extra Christmas Number of the "Masonic Magazine," price 1/-, ready on December the 15th, at all booksellers and railway bookstalls.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked by members of the Great Northern Lodge of Instruction, at the Berwick Arms, Berners-street, Cxford-street, W., on the first Thursday in December, commencing at 7 o'clock.

A grand Masonic Ball will be held at the Subscription-rooms, Exeter, on Wednesday the 22nd of January next.

The following reports stand over: Lodges 1076, 1085, 1167, 1544, 1557, 1560; Mark Lodges, York, T.I., and 175; Prov. G. Mark Lodge of Somerset.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

CAPPER LODGE (No. 1075).—On Thursday, the 14th inst., Bro. Francis Brien, W.M. elect, was duly installed in the chair of the above lodge as W.M. for the ensuing year, in the presence of some ninety odd brethren of the lodge and visitors, among whom were Bro. Terry, the honoured and esteemed Secretary of the aged Freemasons' Institution, who had especially attended to give éclat to the proceedings. Among the visitors were Bros. H. Balls, 77; E. Benjamin, 1766; C. Reeve, 1437; S. Clapp, 1437; E. F. Catchside, 1063; Thos. Wren, 50; T. E. Ivcs, 781; C. H. Stevens, C. Jolly, 913; (Freemason) and others. The Past Masters of the lodge present were Bros. J. Dorton, I.P.M.; E. West, E. Gaskell, T. G. F. Day, H. B. Holliday, and A. Knox. The lodge was opened by Bro. J. White, W.M., soon after 2 p.m., and after the minutes of the last meeting had been confirmed, Past Master Dorton presented Bro. E. Brien to Bro. White, to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. Nothing could exceed the masterly manner in which Bro. White carried out the important duties entrusted to his charge, and the effect was most satisfactory. Bro. Brien then proceeded to invest his officers as follows. P. McCarthy, S.W.; H. Tapley, J.W.; B. B. Bragshaw, P.M., Treasurer; (re-elected), James Mitchell, Secretary; J. K. Job, S.D.; W. Dorton, J.D.; W. Nevans, I.G.; M. Sherwin, Org.; A. Mason, D.C.; R. Brown and Harris, Stewards; and B. Norman, O.S.; (re-elected). The charges were most effectively given by Bro. White, and on their conclusion, a handsome ten-guinea Past Master's jewel was presented to that brother, as a token of the regard and esteem he is held in by the lodge, as well as to note their admiration of the manner in which he has conducted the business of it during his year of office. After a suitable reply from Bro. White, it was unanimously resolved, that the thanks of the lodge should be inscribed on vellum and presented to Bro. White for the excellent manner in which he had that day carried out the duties of Installing Officer, and the proposition was carried with acclamation. Upon the W.M. rising for the second time, Bro. White said: For the good of Freemasonry in general and this lodge in particular, I would like W.M. to say something further about the lodge becoming a V.P. of the Aged Freemasons' Charity. I would like each brother to give me 7s. 6d. between this and January next, either 2s. 6d. in this month, 2s. 6d. next month, and 2s. 6d. in January, or the whole now, or his promise to pay. For this small sum, brethren, this lodge will become V.P. of the Royal Benevolent Institution. Reflect on this, for 7s. 6d. each of you who might require them, would have ten votes, whereas, for a member to get two votes only, it would cost five pounds. Ten votes every year at the disposal of this lodge! Brethren, you remember my speaking to you, and asking for votes and interest on behalf of the child of Mrs. Priestly. How many votes do you think I obtained from this lodge? Two from our W.M. and one from our J.W.; but three votes from this large lodge. I know that Bro. Holliday, P.M., is a thrice told Governor, that Bro. Dorton, P.M., is the same, that the wife of one of our P.M.'s has given five pounds for a Life Governorship. Now, I joined the London Masonic Charity Association to further Mrs. Priestly's child's case. After I had laid it before the Committee, I noticed that a brother on my left stated that although pledged to support the Committee's "last chance" selections, still he could not give up some 300 votes, he wielded. On this he was assured that if he lent those votes, his case should be carried on to the next election. Now, brethren, what votes could I promise? None! At the Board, or Lodge of Benevolence, there is no case comes before it but the question crops up, "What has the brother done for our Charity," you may be sure that there is a considerable difference made between the one who has done something and the one who has done nothing. Now, I want you not only to give me these three half-crowns, but to give me one each quarter day, until such time as this lodge is Vice-President of each of our great Charities. Only think, brethren, that there are now nearly 1800 lodges, and of lodges and chapters, but 200 of them who rank as V.P.'s. In our years we should have cleared them all off, and by that time, I venture to think, we should count our Life Governors by the score. Your good example may ultimately be followed by other lodges, in fact, it might be possible to build a Vice-President's wing to the Royal Masquic Benevolent Institution by such an effort, and the time may come when the candidate for our Order might qualify for the "Three Degrees" more fully by taking up three Life Governorships. The effort can hardly be elevated into the rank of a sacrifice, the sum being so trifling, yet how noble the result. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, at host Hillier's town business, the City Restaurant, in Milk-street, Cheapside, where a superb banquet awaited them. That having been discussed, the W.M. gave "The Queen and the Craft," Bro. Sherwin sang one verse of the National Anthem. "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, G.M. of England," God Bless the Prince of Wales. "The Health of Lord Carnarvon, D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers" was cordially responded to, and then Bro. White rose to propose "The Health of their W.M. Bro. Brien, and expressed the extreme pleasure it gave him to have the toast in his hands. He proposed it, he felt sure, with the unanimous wish of them all. He wished him no higher position than the Master of the Capper Lodge, and the wish of every individual member of the lodge was that he might have a prosperous and good year of office. (Cheers.) He had stepped into the breach at a time when the want of good officers was felt deeply. Bro. Day had given him his first step, and now it was his (the speaker's) privilege to place him in the highest position that was attainable in the lodge. (Cheers.) Their Bro. Brien was not known to them only as a good Mason, a good working Mason he meant, but a good charitable mason. He had given ten guineas towards the steward's list for the Old Men's Charity, and would, he knew, so support the honour and dignity of the position they had placed him in, as to be a credit to the Capper Lodge and its members. (Cheers.) Bro. Brien briefly replied, and hoped he should be all to them that Bro. White had represented him to be. The toast of "The Past Masters of and belonging to the Capper Lodge" followed, and Past Master's White, West, Gaskill, Day, Holliday, and Dorton, severally responded. The next toast was one which the W.M. justly designated a most important one, it was "success to the Masonic Charities." Without those Charities Freemasonry would be a myth, and totally unworthy of the splendid traditions connected with its name. He felt it a great honour to have so distinguished a brother as Bro. Terry with them that night, and he should couple his name with the toast. (Applause.) Bro. Terry, in the course of a long and exhaustive speech, in which he eloquently advocated the claims of the Aged Freemasons' Charity, urged the brethren to assist it by every means in their power. He told of the many claims made upon its resources, and of the many poor, old, and deserving Masons now eligible for its benefits, many of whom would never participate in its advantages, because of their not being funds enough to go further than they are going at present. He pointed out how every lodge might assist by small sacrifices, and instanced the Capper Lodge, taking its numbers as 150, he said the payment of eight shillings per year per member meant £60, which would make the W.M. a V.P. of the Institution, a member of the Committee of Management, and place him in a position to do good for, and influence good for, any of their members who required aid and assistance from them. And as they went on year after year, they would not only make their W.M., but S.W., J.W., Deacons, and, in fact, every member, a voice and a power in the great institutions of the Masonic Charities. (Great applause.) He then showed how 2s. 6d. per week would be from each of them a great help to the Charities, and even 2d. a week, just the price of one glass of bitter, meant 10s. a year. He asked them to avail themselves of this great privilege offered them, and by their earnestness, show the world that charity was one of the brightest jewels in the crown of Freemasonry. His speech was loudly applauded, and the outcome of it was a collection of £30 made in the room, and as Bro. Dorton had consented to stand as Steward at the next festival of the Aged Freemasons' Charity, it was placed at once to his list, which will, no doubt, be worthy of Bro. Terry's eloquence and the lodge. The toast of "The Visitors" followed, and most of those brethren remaining responded. "The Officers" gave an opportunity for Bro. McCarthy to express his, and his brother officers' desire to do all they could to support the dignity of the Master and the best interests of the lodge, and then the Tyler's toast concluded the business and pleasures of the meeting.

BURDETT COUTTS LODGE (No. 1278).—A meeting of the brethren of this prosperous lodge was held on Thursday last, the 21st inst., under the presidency of Bro. C. K. Crouch, W.M., who was supported most ably by Bros. Sayers, S.W.; Dr. Defries, J.W., and the rest of his officers. The muster of members and visitors was large, numbering in all thirty-four, the majority of whom were in time for the opening ceremony. The business consisted of initiating two gentlemen, Messrs. Johnson, and Harrison, and this over, the brethren adjourned. Among the guests present were Bro. Bragshaw, P.M.; Brooks, P.M.; Finch, P.M.; Robertson, Hodges, Hughes, Aaglis, Tarillgrove, Hogarth, and Edwards. The lodge unanimously agreed to a petition for a warrant for a new lodge to be created at the Victoria Tavern, who will be its nearest neighbour.

The banquet to which the brethren adjourned was done ample justice to and the usual toasts given and heartily responded to.

WEST SMITHFIELD LODGE (No. 1623).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, November 21st., at Bro. T. Butt's, New Market Hotel, West Smithfield. Bro. G. S. Elliott, W.M., presided, supported by his officers, Bros. J. Howes, P.M., S.W.; J. Johnson, J.W.; F. Walters, P.P.G.D. Middlesex, P.M., Treasurer; E. Mallett, P.M., Secretary; W. Pennefather, P.M., S.D.; W. Malthouse, J.D.; T. McButt, I.G.; H. Lardner, D.C.; G. Stephens, W.S., and others. He, in an able manner, initiated three gentlemen into the Order. It was unanimously resolved to present the Treasurer, Bro. F. Walters, with a ten-guinea testimonial from the lodge funds. Banquet was well served. There were twelve visitors.

SIR HUGH MYDDLETON LODGE (No. 1702).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, on Friday last, when there were present Bros. E. G. Sim, I.P.M.; A. F. Rowley, S.W.; J. Weston, J.W.; J. Osborne, Sec.; W. E. Poulton, J.D.; H. Field, I.G.; R. G. Thomas, Tyler; J. G. Rimell, W.S.; also, Bros. E. Somers, P.M.; W. H. Lee, P.M.; E. Payne, E. J. Perdy, J. Greenfield, J. Kitchen, L. Hollidge, R. Allison, W. Payne, W. Francis, J. Francis, and E. Pelikan. The visitors were Bros. A. H. Chisholm, 159; W. B. Clarke, 186 and 1507; W. H. Rohu, S.D. 946; W. Rowley, S.D. 917; W. Hirst, 15; A. W. Fenner, S.D. 1227 and 1673; E. W. Braine, W.M. 1471; and H. S. Godolphin, I.G. 1349. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. T. J. Coombes, the W.M., who was detained on business in the country, the I.P.M., Bro. E. G. Sim, acted as W.M. Lodge was opened and the minutes read and confirmed. Bro. Hollidge was raised and Bro. Kitchen and Pelikan passed to the Second Degree. Bro. Greenfield was elected Treasurer to the lodge. The sum of two guineas was voted out of the funds on behalf of the children of the late Bro. Wyatt. Some other business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a light repast. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. On the toast of "The Visitors" being acknowledged, all expressed themselves highly gratified, and Bro. Godolphin expressed his intention of joining the lodge. On an appeal being made on behalf of the Charities, to assist Bro. Norris, S.D., who is Steward for the R.M.B.L., and Bro. Weston, J.W., Steward for the Girls' School, several subscriptions were placed on the lists. The proceedings were enlivened by some excellent singing by several of the brethren, and brought to a close at an early hour by the Tyler's toast, after a very pleasant and enjoyable evening.

TEMPLE BAR LODGE (No. 1728).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the London, Fleet-street, on Thursday, 21 inst., when there were present Bros. Dixon, W.M.; Butcher, S.W.; Bush, J.W.; Adamson, Treasurer; Reed, Secretary; Staley, S.D.; Harris, J.D.; Buckworth, I.G.; Knapp, W.S.; also Bros. Rexworthy, Recknell, Goodwin, Chapman, Lehan, Kempton, Mackrell, Blackmore, Charles, and Buckworth. Visitor Bro. Richardson, Organist 1658. Bro. Bush, J.W., was elected W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. Adamson, Treasurer, and Bro. Church, Tyler. The installation will take place on Thursday, 16th January.

DERBY.—Hartington Lodge (No. 1089).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 6th inst., at the Derbyshire Masonic Hall, present Bros. G. Pipes, W.M.; J. O. Marston, Secretary, as J.W.; W. B. Hextall, J.W.; M. H. Bolart, P.M.; P. Prov. S.G. Warden, Treasurer, as Secretary; S. Steele, S.D.; G. Arnold as J.D.; W. L. Dodd as Organist, W. Butterfield, I.G.; J. Worsnop, P.M., &c., Hart, Wallis, Coulthurst, Hopplewell, Walters, Lane, Carr, Belfield. Visitor Bro. Hudson. The ballot was taken in favour of Bro. Richardson, of the Philanthropy Lodge, Stockton-on-Tees, Bro. Cadman of the Calendar Lodge, Rusholme; Bro. Wagstaff, of the University Lodge, Penrith, and Mr. Charles Osborne, a London resident, but frequent visitor to Derby. Bros. Belfield and Carr were advanced to the Second and Third Degrees respectively, the able work of the W.M. being excellently supported by his officers. A supplementary grant from the lodge funds was voted to the nearly exhausted funds of the Town Almoners. Sundry communications were read, and other business disposed of, after which the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, there, in the Fourth Degree, to promote the genuine good fellowship which exists among them, and to welcome a continuance of visiting brethren to the mysteries of the advanced step.

LIVERPOOL.—Lodge of Israel (No. 1502).—As we briefly announced in a previous number of our journal, the annual installation meeting of the members connected with the Lodge of Israel, No. 1502, took place at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Monday, the 18th inst., when and where there was a very large and influential muster of the Craft, including several P.G. Lodge Officers, and about a score of W.M.'s, P.M.'s, and other chiefs in the Craft. The W.M. elect was Bro. Sigismund Schönschadt, and the numerous gathering of the fraternity not only clearly evinced the popularity of his unanimous election to his high and honourable office, but also served to demonstrate that during its several years existence the Lodge of Israel has deservedly secured a most honourable position in the extensive province which so genially and courteously ruled by Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. of England. There were altogether about ninety brethren present on this interesting occasion—a yearly event which invariably has a strong drawing power for nearly every brother—and the whole of the afternoon's proceedings was characterised by an enthusiasm and unanimity which elicited the admiration and commendation of every visiting brother, whether belonging to the Christian or Jewish persuasion. The lodge was opened shortly after four o'clock, when there was a goodly gathering of members and visitors to give eclat to the inauguration of the proceedings. Bro. A. Jones, the retiring W.M., presided at the opening of the lodge, and the other principals present were Bros. Maurice Hart, I.P.M. and Secretary; Alfred J. Henochsberg, P.M.; Ralph Robinson, P.M.; P.G. Reg.; S. Schönstadt, S.W.; H. D. Marks, J.W.; Prof. Prag, Chaplain; Isaac de Frece, Treas.; S. J. Henochsberg, J.D.; M. P. Tieski, I.G.; H. F. Wright, S.; W. G. Veale, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The members present included Bros. E. W. Yates, H. A. Tobias, S. J. Jordain, B. D. Sonaje, M. H. Edwards, A. Liebschutz, H. Henochsberg, M. Aronsberg, M. Blinkowstein, J. P. Grand, W. Levy, J. Sagar, J. M. Myers, A. Levy, M. Ansel, A. Zolki, M. Baum, M. Ehrenfeldt, D. Gabrielson, E. J. Fraser, M. Parkes, S. Jacobs, J. Mutton, A. Rabow, H. M. Silver, E. Myer, A. Saqui, P. Barnett, Simmons, B. Levy, H. Ridehalgh, A. Isaacs, D. Joseph, J. Frank, A. A. Sissons, A. Cohen, and others. The visitors present were Bros. H. S. Alpacs, P.G. Sec.; P. Macmudrow, P.P.G.S.D.; G. Broadbridge, P.P. G.D.C.; W. P. Evans, W.M. 1350; Rev. T. W. Richardson, P.M. 1380; P. Wilkinson, 249; J. Saber, 1409; Henry Gabriel, 263; W. W. Captain, P.M. 113; L. Foinquinos, late 1532; J. Bowes, P.P.G.J.W., Sec., (Cumberland and Westmorland); J. Winsor, W.M. 241; F. Barnett, W.M. 249; J. Barber, P.M. 1102; J. Walmsley, P.M. 1102; D. Lavenstein, W.M. 1474; A. Hart, W.M. 724; T. Morris, 148; E. Hanke, 1073; L. Hart, 1502; Dr. F. J. Bailey, S.W. 786; J. Woolf, 1393; J. Robertson, 251; Henry Ellis, 1091; and others. After the transaction of the routine business of the lodge, and the election of three candidates, Bro. A. Jones, W.M., concluded his year of work in the chair by installing Bro. Sigismund Schönstadt as his successor for the ensuing year—a ceremony which he performed with great Masonic ability and to the satisfaction of all the brethren who were present. The new chief of the "Israel" Lodge subsequently invested the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. A. Jones, I.P.M.; the Rev. Professor Prag, Chaplain (re-appointed); Maurice Hart, P.M., D.C.; the Rev. H. D. Marks, S.W.; Henry A. Tobias, J.W.; Isaac de Frece, Treasurer (re-elected unanimously for the fifth time); S. J. Henochsberg, Secretary; M. Aronsberg, S.D.; P. Tieski, J.D.; J. Saber, I.G. (by proxy); W. G. Veale, Organist; H. F. Wright, S.S.; D. Gabrielson, J.S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler (re-elected). After the installation ceremony, the new W.M. initiated three candidates (Messrs. Robel, Phillips, and Mamelock) in a manner which augured well for his year's occupancy of the chair, and the officers ably seconded his efforts. The brethren subsequently dined in the banqueting room of the hall, under the presidency of Bro. Schönstadt, the W.M., who was supported by a brilliant assembly of P.G.L. Officers and other visitors, the latter including several well-known brethren from the sister "Israel" Lodge in Birmingham. After the toast of "The Queen" had been briefly given, and enthusiastically responded to, the W.M. proposed "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," and stated that H.R.H. had on many occasions shown an interest in the welfare of Freemasonry, which it would be well for the Masonic fraternity generally to imitate. The W.M. next submitted the toast of "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., P.G.M. West Lancashire, and the Provincial Grand Officers," observing that these brethren were respected in proportion to the admirable manner in which they performed the important duties of their exalted stations. In Lord Skelmersdale he believed they had a P.G. Master who had no superior and very few equals, who discharged his duties in a manner which must satisfy every one of the brethren. This was more expressly the case at the recent meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge at the Philharmonic Hall, one of the most successful and imposing meetings ever held in the provinces. In Bro. Alpacs, their P.G. Sec., who was present that night, who had performed the most important duties of his office for a number of years with the utmost fidelity, and to the entire satisfaction of the brethren throughout the province, thereby gaining the approbation of the P.G.M. and the Masonic brotherhood generally. The W.M. also alluded to the distinguished honour which had been conferred on one of the P.Ms. of that lodge, Bro. Ralph Robinson, who had been appointed Prov. Grand Registrar, in recognition of the very valuable services which he had rendered to the Craft. The toast was also coupled with the names of Bros. P. Macmudrow, P.P.G.S.D.; and G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C. Bro. Alpacs, in response, said it had given him great pleasure to be present that day. He was sure that Lord Skelmersdale would have been delighted to be present on that occasion to witness the great prosperity of that lodge, which although only established four or five years, had achieved a success which was worthy of the greatest commendation. He was particularly well pleased with the excellent working, and the manner in which the W.M. had performed the ceremony of initiation that afternoon showed his fitness for the office to which he had been appointed. In Bro. Robinson, the lodge possessed one of great experience, and when he looked around and saw other brethren of well known ability he (Bro. Alpacs) was sure the ritual would be closely attended to, and that "brotherly love, relief, and truth," would be the grand principles ever kept in view. He had not experienced greater pleasure for some time than he had done that day in witnessing the prosperity of the Lodge of Israel. Bro. Robinson thanked the W.M. most cordially for the manner in which he had spoken of him, as well as the brethren who had so enthusiastically received the toast. He trusted that he would fully merit all the kind things which had been said, and in the course of an excellent speech he eloquently advocated the claims which the Hamer Benevolent Fund, of which he was recently appointed chairman, had upon the charitable support of the brethren. He also strongly counselled the brethren to give active and cordial support to the forthcoming performance by the Dramatic Lodge at the Royal Amphitheatre, for the decoration of the banqueting room of the Masonic Hall, and hoped that each one would feel it his duty to take tickets for so admirable an object. Bro. Macmudrow and Bro. Broadbridge also acknowledged the toast. The I.P.M. proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which was enthusiastically received. In giving "The Installing Master" (Bro. A. Jones) the W.M. presented him with a very handsome P.M.'s jewel, in token of the esteem in which he was held by the brethren. "The Visiting Brethren" (coupled with the names of Bros. Lavenstein, W.M. 1474; J. Winsor, W.M. 241; and Barnett, W.M. 240); "The Fund of Benevolence" (given by Bro. Robinson, P.G.R.); and "The Initiates" (most admirably proposed by Bro. A. J. Henochsberg, P.M.), were amongst the other toasts. Songs, &c., were given by Bros. Isaacs, Jacobs, Hart, Ehrenfeldt, Marks, and others, the accompaniments being played by Bro. Veale, Organist.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—This lodge held its last meeting on Thursday, the 21st inst., when there were present amongst others Bros. John Hammond, P.G.S., of Middx., I.P.M.; Jessett, S.W.; T. W. Ockenden, J.W.; E. Ripwood, P.M. 141, 1412, P.P.G.S.B. of Middx., Treas.; William Hammond, P.M. 201, 1326, 1512, W.M. 1656, P.P.G.D. of Middx., Sec.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middx., S.D.; Raw, P.M. 157, 957 and 969, acting I.P.M.; T. Moody, D.C., acting I.G.; W. J. Day, A.W.S.; Long, Tyler. Previously to the lodge being opened the I.P.M. stated that in consequence of the indisposition of Bro. Fox, their W.M., he had been requested to act as his deputy that evening. The minutes of the last regular meeting in October, and an emergency meeting held on the 12th inst., having been read and confirmed, the I.P.M. passed Bros. W. Burdett, E. Russell, and R. M. Oxford, to the degree of F.C. and raised Bro. S. Hanlon to the Third Degree. Both ceremonies were performed by Bro. J. Hammond most ably. Previously to the lodge being closed Bro. T. C. Walls was elected to represent the Hemming as its Steward at the next festival in connection with the R.M.I. for Boys and the sum of ten guineas was unanimously voted to head his list on that occasion. The lodge having been closed the brethren adjourned to a collation. Bros. Scott, W.S., and Handel, both of 1656, were visitors. In consequence of the lateness of the hour the toasts were necessarily curtailed, and those that were given were but tersely prefaced by the I.P.M. Bros. W. Hammond and Hopewood responded on behalf of "The Provincial Grand Officers Present and Past." Bro. Handel for "The Visitors" and Bros. Jessett and Walls for "The Officers."

MAIDSTONE.—Douglas Lodge (No. 1725).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, 22nd ult., at the Gateway of the College. The W.M. (Bro. Aretas Akers-Douglas) presided, and amongst the brethren present (in addition to those mentioned below) were:—Bros. Rev. W. A. Hill, G. Graham Bell, William Russell, T. P. Franklyn, R. W. Stephens, J. S. Anscomb, C. Monckton, H. Cruttenden, D. W. Longton, Walter Monckton, E. Thurston, F. A. Seymour, J. Hodgson, and others. Bro. Herbert Monckton was installed as W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being most ably and impressively performed by that gentleman's brother, Bro. J. B. Monckton (Town Clerk of London). The following officers were invested for the ensuing year:—Bros. A. Akers-Douglas, I.P.M.; Dr. Davis, S.W.; R. T. Tatham, J.W.; Rev. E. Moore, Chaplain; Alfred Spencer, Treasurer; Edwin B. Smith, Secretary; F. S. Stenning, S.D.; J. E. Meredith, J.D.; G. Friend, I.G.; J. W. Menpes, D.C.; C. Arkcoll, jun., Steward; J. C. Hill, Tyler. After the business of the lodge, the brethren repaired to the Mitre Hotel, where an excellent banquet was served by the manager. It should be mentioned that a handsome banner, bearing the arms of Bro. Douglas, was presented to him by the lodge, together with an elegant gong, to be placed in the hall of the mansion at Chilton Park.

HOUNSLOW.—Royal Hanover Lodge (No. 1777).—This lodge held its first meeting since its consecration on Saturday last, at the Town Hall, there being present Bros. H. A. Dubois, P.P.S.D. Middlesex, W.M.; H. Lovegrove, S.W.; G. Clark, jun., J.W.; W. Ramsey, Hon. I.P.M.; H. Clark, S.D.; Cruikshank, S.D.; Dr. Whitmarsh, I.G.; G. J. Dunkley, Organist; E. W. Dubois, McKay, and several other brethren. The lodge was opened at half-past five by the W.M., who proceeded to initiate the following candidates into the mysteries of the Craft, Messrs. W. H. Heelis, C. J. Axford, T. G. W. Wood, and Horace Brooks Marshall, of Fleet-street, publisher, and the representative of the Ward of Farringdon in the Common Council. This brother is well-known in the charitable world, and inaugurated his admission into our Order by at once qualifying himself as a Life Governor of all our Masonic Charities, first by placing a donation on the list of the W.M. for the Girls' School, and himself representing this lodge as Steward at the next festival of the Boys' and Benevolent Institutions respectively. He also presented to the lodge a handsome Volume of the Sacred Law, for use of the Master's pedestal, and which bears the following inscription:—"Presented by Bro. Horace Brooks Marshall, Treasurer to the Royal Hanover Lodge, No. 1777, in the Town Hall, Hounslow, at the first lodge meeting Nov. 23rd 1878, upon his initiation, with an earnest prayer that all who are sworn on this Volume of the Sacred Law may be enabled by the Great Architect of the Universe, faithfully to discharge the duties and obligations of Freemasonry." So generous an example is indeed worthy of emulation, and the lodge is to be congratulated that so early in its career it has been able to secure a brother who is destined to be an ornament to the Craft by fully carrying out one of the great fundamental principles of our Order, Viz., Charity. The following letter was read, from the Secretary of His Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland,

Grumden 13th October, 1878,

Sir,

In reply to your letter dated 8th October, His Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland and Brunswick Luneburg, has charged me to convey to you the expression of his sincere satisfaction that the lodge of Free and Accepted Masons shall be called the Royal Hanover Lodge. At the same time the Duke has consented gladly that the Royal Hanoverian Arms shall be used on the summonses of the founders, and that the founders shall have the same arms as founders' jewels. I herewith send you a coloured drawing of the Royal Hanoverian Arms.

His Royal Highness wishes to express to all members of the lodge his cordial thanks for this kind commemoration of his beloved and lamented father, King George V.

With much esteem and consideration, I have the honor to remain, yours faithfully,

(Signed)

A. VON BOTTMER.

On the motion of the W.M. the Secretary was directed to enter the letter on the lodge minutes and also to write and thank His Royal Highness for his gracious permission, and also to ask His Royal Highness to honour the lodge by accepting an honorary membership of the same. The lodge being closed the brethren adjourned to a slight supper, when the usual Masonic toasts were duly proposed and honoured. In reply to that of the newly initiated, Bro. Marshall mentioned how impressed he had been with the ritual of our order, and stated that he had been for some time acting the part of an operative Mason, as both he and his family had been engaged in the work of laying many foundation stones for religious and philanthropic objects, and he was therefore no stranger to the working tools, for he possessed no less than twelve tools and other implements used in this labour of love. This night he had linked with operative, Free and Speculative Masonry, and hoped thereby he might be able to further continue in the great work of dispensing those gifts that the Great Architect of the Universe had for a time entrusted to him.

INSTRUCTION.

WANDSWORTH LODGE.—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, on Wednesday, the 27th inst. Bro. J. Featherstone was the W.M.; Bro. J. Holland, S.W.; and Bro. F. Reed, J.W. There were also present:—Bros. H. R. Jones, P.M.; J. G. Carter, P.M.; C. Digby, W. A. Blackmore, H. J. Newens, J. Frost, P. Y. Denham, and A. A. Denham, Sec. The Three Degrees were worked, Bro. Newens being the candidate for the First and Second, and Bro. Featherstone (who resigned the chair for the Third Degree to Bro. Digby) going through the ceremony of raising. Bro. J. J. Holland will be the W.M. at the next meeting.

Royal Arch.

CAVEAC CHAPTER (No. 176).—On Saturday 23rd inst., at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, the installation meeting was held. Comps. J. B. Sorrell, Z.; W. M. Gees, J.; C. Browne, J., and others, opened the chapter. Afterwards Comp. P. A. Nairne, P.Z., installed W. M. Gees, Z.; C. Browne, H.; the J. elect being absent through illness. The ceremony was well done. The officers are F. Walters, P.P.G.A.S. Middlesex, P.Z., Treasurer; J. B. Sorrell, jun., S.E.; A. Middlemass, S.N.; R. P. Tebbis, P.S.; S. Pownseby, 1st A.S.; H. Boyson, 2nd A.S.; C. T. Speight, Tyler. Bros. R. Strong, J.P.; J. Soper, and H. Soper were exalted; the ceremony was beautifully rendered. A seven-guinea Past Z's jewel was presented to Comp. J. B. Sorrell, P.Z., for his able services rendered to the chapter. Business ended, the chapter was closed and adjourned, and the banquet followed. The visitors were Comps. W. A. Barrett and W. J. Stride.

WHITTINGTON CHAPTER (No. 862).—The installation meeting of this chapter was held on the 22nd inst., at Anderson's Hotel, when there were present Comps. Thomas Kingston, M.E.Z.; W. A. Tinney, H.; William Stephens, P.Z. and Treasurer, as J.; James Weaver, P.Z., S.E.; and W. Grist, P.S.; Collinson, Brown, Fisher, Smout, Parkhouse, W. J. Murlis, J.; Cuff, Gilbert, Janitor; H. Massey, P.Z. 619 (Freemason); besides several other companions. Bro. Charles Henry Pike, Lodge 862, was exalted, the work being very well performed by Comps. Kingston, Tinney, W. Stephens, Glaskin, and Grist. Comp. W. Stephens afterwards assisted by Comps. Weaver, Kingston, and Massey, installed Comp. Tinney as M.E.Z., and Comp. W. J. Murlis as H. The installation of Comp. Alfred Moore as J. stood over, that worthy companion being unable to be present. The officers appointed were Comps. W. Stephens, P.Z., Treasurer; James Weaver, P.Z., S.E.; Glaskin, Scribe, N.; W. Grist, P.S.; W. Penn, 1st A.S.; Parkhouse, and A.S.; and Gilbert, Janitor. On the proposition of Comp. W. Stephens, P.Z., seconded by Comp. W. J. Murlis, five guineas were voted to Comp. Kingston's list, for the Aged Freemasons' Festival. Chapter was then closed, and the companions sat down to supper. When the toasts were proposed, Comp. Stephens gave the companions the toast of "The M.E.Z.," whose chair was occupied by Comp. Kingston, as Comp. Tinney had to leave to fulfil a professional engagement. Comp. Stephens apologised for the absence of Comp. Tinney, but said that he was sure Comp. Tinney would perform the duties of the First Principal as well as he had performed the duties which fell to him in the other offices. He then proposed "Comp. Kingston's health as I.P.Z.," and congratulated the companions on having had a Z. who, while doing everything he could for the comfort and happiness of the companions, had yet curtailed the expenses in such a way as to have a large balance in hand. The companions had not met once in the year without enjoying their banquet, and yet the M.E.Z. had not forgotten to look after the funds. In recognition of the great services he had rendered to the chapter the companions had resolved to present him with the jewel of a P.Z., and this jewel he now affixed to Comp. Kingston's breast. The companions in voting the jewel wished to express their conviction that while Comp. Kingston had held the office of First Principal he had done everything which a First Principal could do in that capacity. The companions would always regard him with the same feelings. Comp. Kingston, in acknowledging the presentation, assured the companions that he felt very grateful for the handsome testimonial so kindly presented. Even were the jewel of less intrinsic value than it was he should set the same value on it as he did now, as a token of the companion's appreciation of what he had endeavored to do for the chapter. Every one had some shortcomings, and though he was not exempt from them, he had done the best he could for the chapter. He was a founder and original member of the chapter, and as long as he lived he hoped to continue a member. Comp. Kingston then gave "The Health of Comp. Pike, the Exalted," who, in reply, said he had been much impressed with the ceremony, and would not forget the kindness with which he had been received. Comp. Murlis, H., proposed "The Health of the Past Principals." The two Past Principals in attendance were as good as any could be. Comp. Stevens he had known for twenty-five years, and he had found him in that time an excellent friend, and in Masonry no one could deny that he was a great power. He hoped the Past Principals would be spared many years to see young Royal Arch Masons coming on and doing their duty. Comp. Stevens, in reply, said that Comp. Murlis's reminder of a twenty-five years' acquaintance was a warning that he was getting on in life. He was exceedingly pleased to be connected with the Whitington Chapter, which was the first chapter that gave him an opportunity of passing the chair. He should always look upon the chapter in that light. It gave him great pleasure to think of the cordiality with which he had at all times been received in the chapter. He believed he had the confidence of the members, both as a Past Principal and as Treasurer. He took great interest in Freemasonry generally, and in Royal Arch Masonry in particular, and he must say that if there was one chapter particularly which he esteemed it a favour to be connected with, it was the Whitington Chapter. Comp. Kingston also responded, and then proposed "The H. and J." In the course of his observations he thanked the companions for having voted five guineas to his list for the Benevolent Institution, at the festival of which, on the 13th February next, Comp. Stephens would also be a Steward. Comp. Murlis replied, and said, after apologising for many shortcomings, that he did not suppose he should ever make a first rate Freemason as far as words were concerned, but with regard to the "right hand of fellowship" he yielded to no one. If his pockets were filled with gold he should throw it broadcast to Masonic institutions. He hoped to go on and improve, and he trusted that the companions would support him in his attempts to benefit the charities of the Order. Comp. Massey replied for the toast of "The Visitors," and Comps. Glaskin, Grist, and Parkhouse to that of "The Officers." Comps. Fry, Smout, and High, replied for "Lay Members," and Comp. Gilbert gave the Tyler's toast, after which the companions separated.

MACDONALD CHAPTER (No. 1216).—The installation convocation of the above chapter was held on Thursday, the 21st inst., at the head-quarters of the 1st Surrey Volunteer Rifles, Flodden-road, Camberwell. The chapter was in mourning for the late M.E.Z., Comp. Wagstaff, whose sudden death was a source of great regret to the companions, and threw over those present a feeling of gloom and regret for his absence at this meeting, he being so highly esteemed by all who knew him, for his amiable disposition. The chapter was opened by Comps. Henry Muggeridge, Past Grand Standard Bearer, as Z.; W. J. Messenger, Past Grand Standard Bearer, as H.; J. H. Hastie, Past Grand Standard Bearer, as J. The minutes of the last convocation were read and confirmed, when a vote of condolence to the family of the late Comp. Wagstaff was carried unanimously. A convocation of Installed Principals was then formed, and Comp. Muggeridge installed Comps. W. J. Messenger, M.E.Z.; J. H. Hastie, H.; Newton Bridges, J. The convocation was closed and the companions re-admitted, when the following companions were inducted into the different subordinate offices, viz.:—Comps. Captain Thomas, S.E.; Bradley, S.N.; Captain Wirt, Treasurer; Youngman, P.S.; Colonel Gardner, 1st A.S.; Lieutenant Nevill, 2nd A.S.; Hammond, D.C.; Lieutenant Woodcock, W.S.; Hale, C.S. This being a military chapter the members appeared in uniform, and we could not help noticing that the commanding officer of the regiment, Colonel Gardner, accepted a junior office in the chapter under non-commissioned officers and private members of the corps. In addition to the above the following companions were present, viz.:—Comps. C. E. Goldring, W. C. Hale, H. Hammond, E. Oldridge, A. R. Cranch, and H. P. Jarman. The visitors were Comps. P. A. Nairne, P.Z. 176; M. S. Larham, H. 720; A. Middlemas, 176; T. Edmondston, 1216; W. L. Permesson, 1329; and Fountain Men, 1185. The chapter was closed in ancient and solemn form, and the companions adjourned to the comfortable mess room, where a very substantial and pleasant banquet was supplied, which the companions appeared to do full justice to, not forgetting the sparkling wine, which was excellent, and reflected great credit on the taste of the worthy and esteemed host. After dinner, "The Health of Her Majesty the Queen" was drunk in a very loyal manner, and the name of the M.E.G.Z., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales also honoured, the M.E.Z. proposed "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, M.E. Pro G.Z.; Lord Skelmersdale, G.H.; Lord De Tabley; G.J.; and the rest of the Grand Officers," coupling the toast with the name of Comp. Henry Muggeridge, P.G.S.B., who returned thanks. "The Health of the M.E.Z. and the Officers," together with other toasts, were drunk. Comps. Cranch and Jarman delighted the companions with their vocal abilities, Comp. Muggeridge gave the "Balaclava Charge," and the companions separated at an early hour, highly pleased. We understand that Comp. Wagstaff's son will be a candidate at the next election for the Masonic Boys' School.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter (No. 41).—A regular meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, at 7 30 p.m., on Tuesday, Nov. 19th, which was unusually well attended. The following companions occupied the several chairs. Carey, M.E.Z.; Hill, H.; Hearne, J.; Moutrie, P.Z.; Trass, Dr. Hopkins, acting as I.P.Z.; Brown, E.; Reeves, P.Z. as N.; Williamson, P. Soj.; Howes, S. Soj.; P. C. Young, as J. Soj.; in the unavoidable absence of Comp. Hunt on account of illness. There were also present E. Comps. Rubie and Keene, P.Z., and many members of the chapter. The Board of Installing Principals was opened punctually, and on the subsequent admission of the companions the chapter was opened. This done, the minutes of the last meeting were confirmed. The next business was the exaltation of Bros. F. Wilkinson, W.M., and Radway, J.D. of Craft Lodge 41, who were in attendance. After the usual preliminaries they were admitted, and the first part of the ceremony as far as the O.B. was conducted by the M.E.Z. Ex. Comp. Dr. Hopkins completed the work, including the delivery of the historical, symbolical, and mystical lectures, the conclusion of which was greeted by the acclamations of those present. The duties of Principal Sojourner were admirably performed by Comp. Williamson. A ballot was taken for Bro. Peach as a candidate for exaltation at the next meeting, and two other brethren were proposed. The officers for the ensuing year were nominated and balloted for, in each case unanimously favorable. Their names will be given after the installation next month. The by-laws having been revised, it was ordered that 100 copies should be printed, and that one should be given to every member. The chapter was finally closed at 10 o'clock.

Mark Masonry.

YORK.—York Lodge (Time Immemorial).—The regular meeting was held at York, on Tuesday, the 19th inst., Bro. T. B. Whythead, W.M., in the chair, the Wardens' chairs being occupied by Bros. T. Cooper, P.M. and G. Balford, P.M. The first business was the confirmation of the minutes, which included an alteration in the bye-law respecting the installation of Master, which in future will take place in January. This step was rendered necessary by the inability of the W.M., elect (Bro. the Hon. W. T. Orde Powlett) to be present that day, he being a guest of the Earl of Scarbro' at the festivities at Sandbeck Park. Three brethren were advanced to the honourable degree of M.M.M. and the W.M. proposed as a joining member Bro. A. Gerald Duncombe, of the University Mark Lodge, No. 55, Oxford. Bro. M. Millington, J.D., presented to the lodge a set of candidate's aprons, which were much admired. An excellent supper was provided at the close of the lodge, at which about twenty-five brethren sat down, amongst the guests being Bros. Major Shaw Hellin (4th D.G.) Captains Tynte and Hanly (4th D.G.) Lieutenant Richey, R. A. and others, the visitors, in replying to the toast of their health, alluding in terms of high praise to the splendid working of the lodge.

DEVONPORT.—St. Aubyn Lodge (No. 64).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, 25th inst., at the Masonic Rooms, Morice Town. V.W. Bro. Vincent Bird, Past G.M.O., and P.G. Sec.; presided. A.M.M. of the Royal Naval College, No. 1,593, Lieut. Charles Elsdon Gladstone, R.N., a nephew of the ex-Premier, was advanced to the degree of M.M.M., and joined the lodge. Bro. Lieut. James R. W. Quinn, R.N., P.G.S.O., was elected and installed the W.M. for the ensuing year. V.W. Bro. V. Bird conducted the installation, supported by the following Board of I.M.'s:—W. Bros. S. Jew, P.P.G.M.O.; J. B. Gover, P.P.G.M.O.; T. Goodall, P.P.G.S.O.; John Baxter, P.P.G.S.D.; E. Aitken Davies, P.P.G.J.D.; E. D. Parnell, P.P.G.St.B.; E. J. Knight, P.P.G.S.B.; and John Allen, P.P.St. The following brethren were also present during the evening:—W. Bros. the Rev. T. W. Lemon, M.A., W.M. elect, Sincerity Mark Lodge, No. 35, P.P.G. Chap.; H. Horton, P.G.J.W.; and T. Searle, P.P.A.D.C.; and Bro. Herbert Dinham, Temple Lodge. At the close of the installation the following brethren were appointed the officers:—W. Bros. M. H. Rickard, P.P.G.S.D., I.P.M.; John Masters, P.P.G.S. Wks., S.W.; Bros. Lieutenant C. E. Gladstone, J.W.; G. Nutter, M.O.; J. Williams, S.O.; W. Bros. P. B. Clemens, P.P.G.O., J.O.; C. Watson, P.P.G. Purs., Treas.; John Baxter, Sec.; John Ripper; S.D.; V. Bird, J.D.; W. Littleton, P.M., I.G.; T. Goodall, O.; W. H. Roberts, Tyler.

WALTHAMSTOW.—Beaconsfield Lodge (No. 205).—The brethren of this lodge met at the Chequers, Marsh-street, on Saturday, the 16th inst. Bro. D. M. Dewar, P.G.M.O., opened the lodge for the W.M., and the minutes of the last lodge and audit meetings were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for six brethren, which proved unanimous in their favour. Four of the candidates being present, they were regularly introduced and advanced into the Order, according to ancient form and custom. The ceremony of installation was then proceeded with, Bro. Binckes, G.S., being the Installing Master. Bro. W. T. Christian, the W.M. elect, was then installed, proclaimed, and saluted in due form. The W.M. appointed the following brethren his officers for the ensuing year, viz.: Bros. T. Pinder, P.M., Treas.; W. C. Claridge, S.W.; W. Grooms, J.W.; W. G. Hallows, M.O.; T. Franklin, S.O.; J. S. Badkin, J.O.; F. Hallows, Sec.; E. Lavcrack, R.M.; B. Brown, J.D.; J. M. Hunt, J.D.; J. H. Cambridge, I.G.; J. Upward, Org.; E. Lane, D.C.; E. Sheppard, W.S.; W. Gilchrist, Tyler. It was proposed, seconded, and carried, nem. con., that a vote of thanks be tendered and recorded upon the minutes of the lodge to Bro. Binckes and Dewar for their able and efficient services as installing officers. The lodge was closed in due form with solemn prayer. After the labours of the evening were ended, the brethren sat down to a banquet, after which the usual Masonic toasts were proposed by the W.M. Bros. Binckes and Dewar responding for the "Grand Officers," and the toast of "The I.P.M.," Bro. J. Pinder, was ably given and heartily responded to by the brethren, and for his able and efficient services as first W.M. of the lodge, the brethren, through the W.M., presented him with a very handsome Past Master's jewel. Bro. Pinder replied, thanking the brethren for so highly appreciating his services, and wishing the lodge prosperity and success. "The Health of the W.M." was then proposed by Bro. Pinder, and responded to, the remaining toasts were then given, and the brethren separated after spending a very pleasant evening.

ABINGDON.—Abbey Lodge (No. 125).—The consecration of this lodge, and the installation of the W.M. took place at Abingdon on the 30th ult., in the presence of Bros. Levander, Grand Registrar; D. M. Dewar, P.P.G.O. and Grand Asst. Sec.; Robt. Berridge, Grand Director of Ceremonies; and a large number of brethren from Oxford, Aldershot, and other places. The ceremonies were beautifully and impressively performed by V.W. Bro. the Rev. P.M. Holden, Past Grand Chaplain; and Bro. Walter Ballard was installed as W.M. of this new Mark Lodge with every prospect of a most successful year of office. The effect of the proceedings was greatly enhanced through the kindness of the Mayor and Corporation placing the handsome municipal buildings at the disposal of the brethren for the ceremonies, and great credit is due to Bro. E. S. Shepherd, for the excellent arrangements which he was principally instrumental in making. An elegant banquet concluded a most pleasant day.

THE NORTHERN MASONIC MUTUAL BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION.

A system of Masonic relief or assurance has been in existence in the United States for the last ten years, which we think peculiarly effective in rendering aid to the widows and orphans of deceased Masons, by its simplicity, cheapness, and perfect safety. It has been wondered why a plan of assurance, now so wide-spread in the United States, doing so much good of a truly Masonic character, has failed to reach these shores. The brethren of the mystic tie in America are banding themselves together all over the country for a closer union and a better protection. Their work receives the plaudits of the multitude and has caused brethren widely separated to be brought together in sympathy and the bond of charity. It has united them in purpose, and concentrated their efforts in a work which is causing every heart to glow with the inspiration of a new life. A sketch of the initial organisation will best illustrate the working of the system. In the year 1869, the Southern Tier Masonic Mutual Life Insurance Company was organised in the State of New York, at the City of Elmira. This name was changed in 1869 for prudential reasons to its present name, "The Southern Tier Masonic Relief Association." On the evening of organisation, a few brethren met in the lodge-room, for the purpose of taking such action as they might think proper. After a mutual interchange of views and opinions, it was deemed advisable to form a company. Thirty-eight brethren subscribed their names, and became what is termed, Charter Members. The real work of organization then began. Committees were appointed to mark out the way in which, in their judgment, it seemed best to follow. The course before them was wholly untried. They had no precedents to guide, and no landmarks to direct them. Principles in the government of such associations were entirely unknown. But, it had strong hands and willing hearts to lay the foundation and superintend the erection of the superstructure. The cement that united them into one common bond was charity, this was the pole-star of their hopes, and has never been lost sight of. From the first the work prospered, and grew beyond their most sanguine expectations. Not one of its projectors ever dreamed, in the outset, of a membership to exceed five hundred. Its name indicates that it was intended to relieve the lodges, to a certain extent, of their heavy charitable work, and at the same time, place in the hands of many, more than they could reasonably expect from the lodges. The success attending this initial Masonic Relief Society attracted much attention. Outsiders began to see that a real advantage and lasting benefit was being conferred by Masonry through connection with this association. Not long had this grand scheme been before the Masonic public, when association after association, was formed on the same principle throughout the States and Canada, till at the present moment, no less than one hundred and sixty-eight societies exist in the United States and Canada, with a membership of 84,808; the death-rate on this membership, was 1½ per cent. in 1876. The plan may be briefly and simply stated—suppose we succeed in forming an association, say of 200 members, to pay an entrance fee of 20s. to 40s. according to age, and upon the death of a member, each surviving member to pay into the treasury the sum of 5s., which would make £50; this sum the Secretary would hand to the representatives of the deceased member. With 200 of a membership, and taking the death-rate at one per cent.,* we would have 2 deaths yearly at a cost of 10s. for a payment of £50, assessments to be made only on the death of a member of the Association. In all American Associations only Masons in good standing are admitted. The limit of age is usually fixed at 60 years. It will be seen from the foregoing, and also from the annexed proposed rules and regulations the desirability which exists in this country for the introduction of this system of Assurance. We have the feeling that should such a plan as proposed be introduced in connection with the Masonic fraternity of Ireland, new life and energy will be infused into our ancient and worthy Society, by making it more fully what it claims to be, a truly benevolent and charitable organisation.

* One per cent. is the rate ascertained, taking the average of lives at 38 years. This rule may and does vary somewhat, when we compare one with another; but with a series of years, it is unvarying. It was first observed and brought to notice in Carlisle, England, and because of its accuracy, has formed the basis of all mortality rates of Insurance Companies since their first formation.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

CONSECRATION OF THE SOUTHERN CROSS CHAPTER.

That the spread of Freemasonry under the English Constitution has been rapid in this province, has been proved by the number of lodges and chapters lately added to the roll of the Grand Lodge. The rising town of Invercargill has long possessed a most excellent English Craft Lodge, and during the last two years a lodge under the sister Constitution of Scotland has also been formed. In order metaphorically to place the cope-stone on the foundation already raised, it has for some time past been the earnest endeavour of several of the most prominent brethren to form a Royal Arch Chapter. For this purpose application was made to the Grand Chapter of England, and in reply to that a Charter empowering the formation of a chapter was granted, and in due course reached its destination. A very handsome and complete set of appropriate furniture was also procured from England, and all things being in readiness, invitations to several eminent members of the Craft were sent out. These were responded to, and on Thursday, the 19th September, the day fixed for the consecration and dedication of the chapter, the companions of this branch of the Royal Craft met in the elegant little lodge-room attached to the Southern Cross Lodge, 997, E.C., and to which the chapter is attached, for the purpose of assisting in the beautiful ceremonies consequent on its dedication.

The chapter was opened in due form by Excellent Comps. E. Nathan, P.M.E.Z., as Z.; J. Joyce, P.M.E.Z., as H.; Sydney James, P.M.E.Z. as J.; C. de Longueville Graham, J. 942, as P.S.

The usual preliminaries having been disposed of, Ex. Comp. Nathan offered the following prayer:—"Almighty and Eternal God, who in heaven and earth is like unto Thee? Thine omniscient eye brings all things into review; Thine omnipotent arm directs the movement of the vast creation; Thine omnipresence pervadeth the secret recesses of every heart; Thy bounteous goodness and mercy provide for the wants of all creatures, while Thine infinite greatness and glory far surpass the understanding of the children of men. Vouchsafe, we beseech Thee, O our Father, to look down with favour on the work we are about to do, and grant that this chapter which we are about to consecrate may so redound to Thy glory that all men may know that Thou alone, who art called Jehovah, art the Most High over all the earth.—So mote it be."

Comp. Burwell, who presided at the organ, then played an appropriate voluntary, and the companions were again addressed by Ex. Comp. Nathan. On concluding he again offered up prayer, and proceeded to consecrate it with corn, while the companions chanted the introit, "Glory be to God on High, for His mercy endureth for ever."

Ex. Comp. James then sprinkled wine, and Ex. Comp. Joyce oil, the companions meanwhile rendering appropriate chants.

The chapter was then dedicated by Ex. Companion Nathan, and declared duly constituted by Ex. Comp. De Longueville Graham. — Otago Daily Times, September 25th, 1878.

The new Masonic lodge Eden was opened and consecrated at the Rising Sun Hotel, Newton, in the presence of a large number of the brotherhood. There were present: —Bros. G. S. Graham, D.G.M.; E. T. Wildman, D.D. G.M., and the following Grand Lodge Officers:—Bros. Rev. C. M. Nelson, D.G. Chaplain; C. F. Goldsbro', D.G. Treasurer; H. G. Wade, D.G. Secretary; E. Willcocks, D.G.D.C.; Dawson, D.G.A.D.C.; Hesketh, Org.; Rattray, Pursuivant. The Masters and officers of district lodges were present, also a number of visitors.

The following officers were installed in the usual manner:—Bros. J. Warren, W.M.; D. Chapman, S.W.; J. Carlaw, J.W.; W. J. Suiter, Treas.; W. Johnson, Sec.; E. W. Morrison and J. Moore, Deacons; T. Walker, I.G.; C. Westmoreland, Tyler; and Thomas Barnett, Steward.

A banquet was held at the close of the ceremonies, which was of a satisfactory character, and highly creditable to Captain Mann, the host of the Rising Sun.

There was an excellent attendance at the annual meeting of the Kilwinning Otago Royal Arch Chapter, No. 116,

S.C., on Monday evening, at the Masonic Hall, Moray Place. After the opening of the chapter, and the transaction of the usual routine business, a Board of Installed Principals was constituted, and M.E. Comp. W. Caldwell, P.M.E.Z., assisted by a number of Past Principals, formally installed Ex. Comps. J. A. Fergusson as M.E.Z.; T. Moodie as H.; R. Forrest as J. The Board of Installed Principals was then closed, and the following officers were formally invested with the distinguishing badges of their several offices:—Comps. W. Tait, S.E.; T. Fogo, S.N.; P. Adair, Treasurer; J. Nisbet, P.S.; J. Barron, rs. A.S.; L. Schulenberg, 2nd A.S.; F. Cadie, M.E.M.; R. Campbell, R.W.M.M.; S. T. Kerr, Chaplain; G. Smith, Janitor. The chapter was afterwards closed, and the members, together with several visitors from the Otago and Joyce Chapters, E.C., repaired to the Criterion Hotel, where a banquet was ready. The customary loyal and Royal Arch toasts were given, and duly responded to, and the companions separated at an early hour.

The annual installation of the officers of the Otago Chapter, No. 844, E.C., took place in the presence of a very large number of companions. The sister chapters represented were the Joyce, 942, E.C., and Kilwinning, 417, S.C. After the routine business of the chapter had been transacted, a Board of Installed Principals was formed, Excellent Comp. Nathan, P.M.E.Z., acting as Installing Officer, when E.C. T. Fordyce was installed as P.Z.; E.C. Walker, P.H.; and E.C. J. F. Peak, P.S. The Principals having been duly installed and saluted according to ancient custom, the following companions were invested in office for the ensuing year:—S. De Leon, S.E.; G. Mansden, S.N.; H. Eldrige, P.M.E.Z., Treas.; A. Myers, P.M.E.Z., Principal Sojourner; R. Greenfield, First Assistant Sojourner; S. N. Muir, Second Assistant Sojourner. The ceremony of installation having been concluded, the Principals and companions adjourned to a banquet, at which the usual Royal Arch Masonic and loyal toasts were duly given and honoured.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

NEW ROYALTY.—The new programme at this house embraces the well-known comic drama, "Checkmate," which is excellently played, and provokes constant and hearty laughter, and Burnand's latest burlesque "Overproof," as good a piece of fooling as ever was seen. Miss Kate Stanley as the little girl "only five" is perfectly irresistible, her "get up" is so good, her face so pretty, and she contrives with it to put on such a sweet, innocent baby-face, that she looks simply—"a fine girl for her age." In two songs "put me in my little bed" and "only five," Miss Kate Stanley is nightly encored. The whole piece is full of fun, and should be seen by all lovers of good burlesque.

STRAND THEATRE.—On Saturday morning last Bro. E. Swanborough took his benefit at this house. As might have been anticipated, the attendance was large, the genial treasurer being a great favourite with every one who knew him. The programme was of a mixed character, but exceedingly attractive, and well suited to the occasion. It included, among other attractions, the best act of "Family Ties," a song by Bro. E. Terry, and that funniest and best of burlesques "Nemesis." The whole performance was a complete success, and the result a highly deserved compliment to the genial qualities of Bro. E. Swanborough.

MAY STREET READINGS. (W. Kensington).—A committee of gentlemen, among whom are the Rev. Gerard Williams, the Rev. H. E. Walker, the Rev. T. H. Cardell, and Mr. G. A. Cook, have inaugurated a series of entertainments, consisting mainly of songs and readings, to be given in the school-rooms in the above neighbourhood. It is proposed that these entertainments shall extend over the long winter months, and that the proceeds shall be devoted to some charitable object. The first of the series was given on the 5th inst., when Mr. and Mrs. Payne, both excellent singers, contributed not a little to the success of the evening. The second of the series was equally successful, Mr. Marriner rendering good services to this end. The intense enjoyment exhibited, and the appreciation shown by the poorer classes, who are mainly supporting these entertainments, must be very gratifying to the worthy committee. The third of the series takes place next Tuesday, December 3rd.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Quarterly Meeting of the Grand Lodge of England will be held on Wednesday next at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, W.C. Grand Lodge proceedings will commence punctually at 7 o'clock p.m.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR IN CORNWALL.—Colonel J. W. Peard has been appointed Provincial Grand Prior for Cornwall, in succession to the late Sir Frederick Martin Williams, Bart., M.P. There are two Encampments, or Preceptories, in the Province, situated at Truro and Tywardreath, and, doubtless, the fact of such a popular Mason as Colonel Peard being at the head of affairs will do much to popularise the Order in Cornwall. Sir Frederick Williams had never been installed, having declined the honour, in consequence of his many other duties, but, we believe, he much valued the compliment. The Earl of St. Germans was the previous Provincial Grand Prior, and prior to his appointment to Cornwall was connected with the Province of Devon.

The Installation Meeting of the City of Westminster Lodge, No. 1563, took place on Thursday last, 28th inst., at the Regent Masonic Hall, Air-street, Regent-street, W. A report will appear in our next.

We hear Bro. Smallpeice has resigned the Preceptorship of the London Masonic Club Lodge of Instruction.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Eccleston Lodge of Instruction, 1624, on the first Saturday in December, Bro. Coulson, P.M. in the chair, at the new quarters of the lodge, King's Head, Ebury Bridge, Pimlico.

LORD CARNARVON.—It is announced that a marriage is arranged between our Pro Grand Master the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon and Miss Howard, of Greystoke.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked by the brethren of the Hyde Park Lodge of Instruction, at the Westbourne, 1, Craven-road, Paddington, on Monday, 2nd December, at 7 o'clock precisely, Bro. George Davis, J.W. 167, W.M.

The time of meeting of La Tolerance Lodge of Instruction, No. 538, should have been 7.45, instead of 8.15, as stated in our last.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked at the Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction, No. 1360, held at the Princes's Head, York-road, Battersea, on Tuesday, December 3rd, at 7 p.m. precisely. Bros. Collings, 1585, W.M.; Pulsford, 1158, S.W.; Whitley, 846, J.W.; A. Withers, 211, Hon. Secretary.

Mr. Marshall, the well-known publisher of Fleet-street, was initiated into Freemasonry on Saturday last, in the Royal Hanover Lodge, No. 1777, by Bro. H. A. Dubois. We are pleased to learn that Bro. Marshall announced his intention of qualifying himself a Life Governor of all the Masonic Charities, as a commencement; and also presented to the lodge a very handsome Volume of the Sacred Law. We think we may congratulate the Craft on such an acquisition to its roll of members.

A half-yearly Communication of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons will be held at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, London, on Tuesday next. Lodge will be opened at 5 o'clock. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

It is announced that the official dinners given on the eve of the meeting of Parliament will not take place until the reassembling of the two Houses in February.

The Installation Festival of St. John's Lodge, No. 104, will be held on Monday week, Dec. 9th, at Ashton House, Greek-street, Stockport. A report of the proceedings will appear in due course.

Special Advent Services at St. Anne's Church. Bach's "Magnificat," and "My Spirit was in Heaviness," will be sung with orchestral accompaniments, under the direction of Mr. Barnly, on Friday, October 6th, 13th and 20th, at 8 o'clock. Tickets of admission, free, may be obtained of Bro. J. E. Shand (churchwarden), 2, Albert Mansions, Victoria-street, S.W.

The Worshipful Company of Haberdashers have given a donation of £10 in aid of the funds of the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum.

EMULATION LODGE OF IMPROVEMENT.—A full report of the proceedings at the Festival of this popular lodge will appear in our next.

THE MASONIC MAGAZINE.—The Christmas Number, consisting of ninety-six pages of letter-press, with a handsome illuminated cover, will be ready on December 16th. It will contain a new and original story by Anthony Trollope, a portrait, with biography, of Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master of England, and numerous contributions from eminent Masonic writers. Price 1s., post free 1s. 2d. May be had of all booksellers, or direct from the office, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.—ADVT.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON,
President.

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.

19th November, 1878.

Proposed Motions.

By brother John M. Clabon, P.G.D.

That the Constitutions, under the head "Fund of Benevolence," be altered as follows:—

After "three pounds" to "five pounds" and add at the end, the words "or to any country in which they have been established or have friends."

After the words "Certify in Writing" add "on a form to be from time to time settled by the President and Vice-Presidents of the Lodge of Benevolence and the Grand Secretary."

After "two pounds" to "five pounds."

1791.—Creaton Lodge, Freemasons' Hall.
1792.—Tudor Lodge, Harborne, Staffordshire.

THE CONSECRATION OF THE ETHELBERT CHAPTER, ROSE CROIX, AT CANTERBURY.

A special meeting of the Supreme Council Thirty-Third Degree of England, Wales, and the dependencies of the British Crown was held at the Masonic Rooms, Saint Peters-street, Canterbury, on Monday, the 18th November, for the purpose of perfecting candidates in the 18th Degree, and to consecrate a Rose Croix Chapter under the title of the Ethelbert Chapter, to be held at Canterbury, when the following members of the Supreme Council were present.

Capt. N. G. Philips, 33°, Lt. Grand Commander; J. M. P. Montagu, 33°, Grand Chancellor; Lt. Col. Shadwell H. Clarke, 33°, Grand Secretary General; H. D. Sandeman, 33°, Grand Secretary Foreign Correspondence; As well as Samuel Rawson, 33°, Deputy Inspector General, S.E. district; Lt. Col. Somerville Burney, 32°, Director of Ceremonies to Supreme Council; Dr. W. Deamer, 30°, M.W.S. of the Excelsior Chapter, New Zealand; R. Joyes Emmerson, 30°; Professor G. M. Lott, 30°; Rev. J. Branfill Harrison, 18°; Alex. H. Des Banes, 18°; Horatio Ward, 18°; and Capt. Chas. J. Hamilton, 18°.

The Supreme Council Chapter Rose Croix having been opened, the following brethren were perfected by Lt. Col. Shadwell H. Clarke, 33°, Grand Secretary General, Hon. T. Sankey, P.M. 31, P.P.G.S.W. for Kent; F. Hughes Hallett, P.M. 709, P.P.G. Reg. for Kent; John Emery, P.M. 31, P.P.G.J.W. for Kent; Philip Higham, P.M. 31, P.P.G.J.W. for Kent; Francis J. Giraud, P.M. 133, P.P.G.J.D. for Kent; John M. Goldfinch, P.M. 133, P.P.G.J.D. for Kent; James D. Terson, P.M. 109, P.P.G.S.D. for Kent; George Page, P.M. 1209, P.P.G.J.D. for Kent; Charles Holtham, P.M. 31, P.P.G.S. of Works for Kent; Major Philip H. Knight, P.M. 31; Frederick Leith, P.M. 482; Rob. L. Harrison, 1206; Richard Harrison, jun., 1206; Rev. F. C. Jugg, 133; Arthur C. Plater, 1206; Edward Lukey, 199; and James S. Harris, 1209.

The consecration and dedication of the Ethelbert Chapter was then proceeded with.

The brethren having assembled in the hall and formed the Arch of Steel, the Supreme Council Thirty-Third Degree entered in order, and the Lt. Grand Commander (Capt. N. G. Philips) assumed his seat, and the Warrant of the Ethelbert Chapter having been read, he gave the declaration of constitution, and consecration and dedication address, and the Grand Marshal proclaimed that the chapter had been consecrated.

The ceremony of installation then followed, Ill. Bro. R. Joyes Emmerson, 30°, Most W. Sovereign designate, was presented, and very ably and impressively installed by Lieut.-Col. Shadwell Clarke, 33°, Grand Sec. Gen., after which the M.W.S. appointed and invested the officers of the chapter, as follows:—Bro. J. Branfill Harrison, High Prelate; Lieut. Alex. H. Des Banes, 1st General; Horatio Ward, and General; James D. Terson, Grand Marshal; Arthur Charles Plater, Raphael; Charles Holtham, Herald; Francis J. Giraud, Captain of the Guard; Richard Harrison, jun., Recorder; George Page, Director of Ceremonies; John Wilson, Tyler.

Bro. Herbert T. Sankey was unanimously elected Treasurer of the chapter.

The Most W. Sovereign then expressed the acknowledgments of the chapter to the illustrious brethren present, members of Supreme Council for the honour conferred in their attending to consecrate the chapter, and a proposal that a vote of thanks be entered upon the minutes, and that for their excellent and valuable services they be elected honorary members, was carried by acclamation. Also, that the thanks of the chapter be given to Ill. Bros. Samuel Rawson, 33°; Lieut.-Col. Somerville Burney, 32°; Dr. W. Deamer, 30°, and Professor G. M. Lott, 30°, for their services in assisting in the ceremony of consecration, and that they be elected honorary members of the chapter.

A committee was next appointed to draw up the by-laws, and propositions were made for reception of candidates at the next meeting of the chapter.

All business being done, the chapter was closed in due form. After which the brethren adjourned to the Fleur-de-lis Hotel, where the members of the Supreme Council, the visitors, and members of the chapter, numbering thirty-three, were hospitably entertained at a handsome banquet by the Most W. Sovereign, Ill. Bro. A. Joyes Emmerson, 30°, and where the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed.

The Lieut. Grand Commander, in returning thanks for the toast of "The Supreme Council," congratulated the chapter on the very admirable way in which it had been fitted up, and on the excellence of all the arrangements, results which were chiefly attributable to the skill and energy of the Most W. Sovereign, and of Bro. Horatio Ward, 18°, one of its founders.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

A GRAND LODGE FOR NEW ZEALAND.—We are informed that some brethren, hailing from New Zealand lodges, who are now in Sydney, having made every enquiry, are fully enlightened as to the correct modus operandi to be pursued, and so have decided to use every endeavour to ensure the erection of a Grand Lodge in New Zealand. We commend them for their laudable intent, and advise promptitude of action. We have been assured that the brethren throughout that colony are unanimous in their desire for a Grand Lodge for New Zealand.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE, E.C., AUCKLAND.—A quarterly communication was held at the Masonic Hotel on 4th September; V.W. Bro. E. T. Wildman, D.D.G.M., as D.G. Master, in the chair. D.D.G.M. read a letter from Bro. G. S. Graham, R.W.D.G.M., apologising for his absence, as he was going to Melbourne. Bro. C. F. Goldsboro, D.G. Treasurer, presented a financial report, which was very satisfactory. D.G. Secretary read the report of the consecration of the St. George Lodge, Dargaville, and of the installation of Bro. John Dargaville, as W.M., also the report of the consecration of Eden Lodge, 1530, and of the installation of Bro. John Warren, P.M. 689, as W.M. It having been reported that certain irregularities had occurred in one or two of the lodges in the District, the D.G.M. undertook to investigate the matter.

A regular meeting of the Unity Lodge, No. 1169, E.C., was held at Sydney on September 17th, and notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather the brethren assembled in great force; Bro. Frederick Lee, W.M., in the chair. Two brethren were admitted as joining members, and one gentleman was initiated in a solemn manner by the W.M., Bro. Robinson, P.M., giving the charge in an able and impressive manner. The W.M. announced that he had given £2 for the relief of a poor brother who had become blind. A proposition was handed in for a joining brother, and one for the purchase of a piano for the use of the lodge; also one to empower the W.M. and Treasurer to vary the investment of funds belonging to the Unity Benevolent Fund. At the close of the proceedings the brethren adjourned to the banquet-room, where a pleasant fraternal hour was spent.

ROYAL ACADEMY.—Mr. F. A. Eaton writes to the Times as follows:—"As the statement made by a weekly paper, that the Royal Academy is doubtful about including drawings by the old masters in the ensuing Winter Exhibition, may surprise and mislead those who have kindly promised to lend such drawings, I shall be much obliged if you will give me the earliest possible opportunity of saying that the statement is quite incorrect."

NOTES ON ART, &c.

The Belgian Gallery in Bond-street has reopened with its usual small but well selected show of pictures. The landscapes, which are unmistakably of the foreign school, both in the subjects chosen and in the manner in which they are treated, are on the whole more worthy of remark than the figure subjects. There are several capital sunsets and snow scenes, among which may be mentioned "Marshes in the Campine," by J. Coosemans—a dreary subject certainly, but one in which the artist has succeeded in putting upon canvas that which he was looking at. He has succeeded in getting that bleak or damp look which a low-lying country has at sunset in the evening of a short autumn or wintry day. No. 17, another sunset, although a more wintry one than the former, is well painted, the snow in particular being very conscientiously done. C. Heffner has a pair of pretty and carefully painted landscapes, entitled "Spring" and "Winter," the subjects of which it is unnecessary to explain. No. 71, a group of soldiers, entitled "On Active Service," by H. Breling, is worthy of notice, although on looking at it one cannot help thinking of Meissonier, to the detriment of the picture itself. No. 40, "The Dancing Lesson," by Bruneri, is a pretty but well-worn subject. Professor Gassow, whose works we have already admired in former exhibitions of this Gallery, has a capital study, entitled "A Beggar." Among others, "Somewhat Fresh," by Maurice Courant, "Rue des Chaises," by H. Schaeffels, "Cattle in Pasture," by Victor Weisshaupt, and "The Dinner Call," by P. Baudouin, may be mentioned as worthy of notice. A quantity of pictures already exhibited in Messrs. Gammon and Vaughan's Old Belgian Gallery in Old Bond-street, the lease of which has expired, will be sold by auction on Saturday, the 23rd, including works of many of the present exhibitors at the Belgian Gallery.

WESTMINSTER PLAY.—The "Phormio" of Terence will be performed as usual by the Queen's scholars in the Dormitory on the evenings of December 12, 17, and 19.

Further reports are appearing from day to day of the great progress that is being made in the application of electricity both to lighting purposes and to the telephone. The Scientific American gives a description of the Edison light, which, it says, is based on the fact that a wire may be heated by electricity; a coil of platinum wire being made white hot by the current. When the heat approaches the fusing point of platinum the expansion of a small bar checked the flow of the current. Besides this Mr. Edison has proved the possibility of adjusting the brilliancy of any particular light in the circuit without affecting any of the other burners. This evidently brings the electric light more nearly on a level with gas as regards convenience. Another improvement, tending to lessen the ultimate cost, has been effected, by which the consumption of carbon points may be practically reduced to nil. This has been done by two electricians, named Sawyer and Man, of New York. The apparatus consists of a small pencil of carbon little larger than a pin, and enclosed in a hermetically sealed glass globe filled with pure nitrogen gas, this gas having no affinity with carbon. There is also a substance in the bag at the bottom of the lamp which would absorb oxygen and carbonic acid gas. According to Mr. Sawyer one lamp had been in use two or three hours a day for three months until the sudden jarring of a door broke it. The only change in the carbon was its purification. The light, moreover, can easily be subdivided.

Mr. Tennyson's new drama is founded on the history of Thomas à Beckett, so says the Daily News.

The efforts of Sir Samuel Wilson to acclimatise Californian salmon in Victoria have been successful.

Another and most interesting lacustrine station has been discovered at Loras, on the Lake of Bienné.

It is proposed to construct, from the shores of the lake of Brienz to the Giesbach, a railway, the gradients of which will exceed those of the Righi line.

It has been the custom for several years to count on some afternoon in November the number of pleasure vehicles passing a selected spot on the road along the cliff at Brighton in ten minutes. Inspector Dumfrie took the necessary steps for making the count one afternoon last week, and it was ascertained that 256 such carriages passed in the ten minutes between 3.40 and 3.50. The number was 154 in 1858, and 248 in 1868.

Some interesting experiments in telephony were recently conducted between Norwich and London over a wire 115 miles long, under adverse circumstances, caused by bad weather and the neighbourhood of other wires. In spite of these disadvantages the carbon telephone worked well, and a conversation was carried on without difficulty, the American tone of voice of the speaker being distinctly recognised. According to a recent work by Mr. Prescott, the chief electrician of the Western Union Telegraph Company of America, the carbon telephone has been successfully used "when included in a Morse circuit;" and further, "several stations could exchange business telephonically upon a circuit that was being worked 'quadruplex' without disturbing the latter." Mr. Edison has lately made an improved receiver to his instrument, of which he says, that by its means one of his assistants "heard a whisper fifteen feet away from the receiver, and ordinary conversation came out almost as loud as originally spoken." Mr. A. Scott, Professor Bell's representative in this country, in a letter to the Times, says that the receiver was a Bell's telephone, Mr. Edison's carbon telephone being only the transmitter. A similar experiment was made by the Great Eastern Railway some time ago without the carbon telephone, but with equal success.

THE FREEMASON,

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1878.

THE NEXT GRAND LODGE.

One of the most pleasing duties of the next Grand Lodge will be the re-election of our Royal Grand Master. As Freemasons we are a most loyal body, and we rejoice to-day, as our forefathers rejoiced in their days, in that happy union which brings the House of Brunswick in immediate connection and ever friendly sympathy with our needful and benevolent Order. The Prince of Wales, who has a most difficult part to play on the great stage of human and social life, the observed of all observers, the criticised of all critics, deserves, in our humble opinion, the thanks of us all, as Freemasons, and patriots, and citizens of our great empire. He came forward chivalrously, at an hour of great emergency, to place himself at the head of our Order, and incur responsibilities from which some might have shrunk back, and he has ever since manifested the warmest interest in its progress and proceedings. He has presided over our assemblies, and he has, with the able assistance of the Pro Grand Master and his amiable Deputy Grand Master, ruled the Craft wisely, kindly, and well. His re-election, (a matter of certainty), will be hailed by the entire Craft with loyal gratification, as cementing an union, which they hope will long endure between the Prince of Wales and English Freemasonry. For this fact, honourable to both, is evident to the entire world, that despite the accusations of the ignorant or malignant, the heir to the throne knows us to be true patriots and good citizens, vouches for our unshaken loyalty, and is not ashamed as before all men to avow himself to be a Freemason, a brother of our peaceful, and kindly, and cosmopolitan Order. From France, as we know, our Royal and exalted Grand Master has returned with "golden opinions" and sympathetic admiration. His amiability and "don de plaisir," his attention to business, the energy he throws into all he undertakes, the unceasing interest he displayed in his own special section, whether as regards the mother country or the colonial dependencies, conducted greatly to the success of a very remarkable undertaking. And we, therefore, as Masons, may gladly hail as our honoured chief from year to year the eldest son of a Mason's child, the more so, as with him are bound up let us trust indissolubly the hopes of a loyal people, and the happiness and well-being of a noble Empire. Anxious as these latter times have been for Governments and Empires, for crowned heads, and even republics, we in England resting securely under the great and goodly shelter of our constitutional monarchy, have learnt more and more to value the priceless blessings of that form of Government which seems after all most productive of individual liberty and contentment, most suggestive of patriotism and loyalty, most compatible with good order, justice, and legal sanctions. The future is no doubt before us, dark and untried, and may seem doubtful to some, but we have no fear but that our good old ship will weather every gale, and that our "Sea-girt Isle" will still preserve inviolate and inviolable its prestige and its power, because in God's providence it still reposes in happiest confidence on those ancient laws and venerated institutions with which a loyal and an understanding people has sagaciously surrounded the throne and constitution, so dear to every loyal and patriotic subject of Great Britain.

MASONIC ICONOCLASTS.

There are a good many amiable, if not very wise individuals, going about in the world, who think that they have a mission to upset, to reform, to improve everything. They are generally one-ideaed men, what the French and Napoleon termed "idieologues" and are usually great bores, and greater tyrants. Everybody else is wrong but themselves, and though theirs at the least can be but a subjective view of things, they insist dogmatically on pressing it upon all objectively, regardless of time or season, convenience or congruity, and at once fall foul of all who are so bold, so stupid, and so ignorant, as to dispute their premises, or reject their conclusions. And even Masonry, tranquil and pacific, is not at this moment without some such amiable, enlightened and dogmatic individuals, who with a perseverance and energy worthy of a better cause, seem to think, that to them alone it belongs, and to them alone, to put everything straight, to proclaim in absolute confidence, what is the right and what is the true theory as regards Freemasonry, historically, archæologically, didactically. Well, we do not wish to be too severe upon them, or to find fault either with their energetic words or vehement disquisitions. Like all things here, they probably have their use in our Masonic system and life. And though we fear, if only we can find it out, that the value of these lucubrations is best represented by the "unknown quantity," yet, as printers must live, columns must be filled, and copy must be supplied, we do not wish to seem to bear too harshly upon them, or to write too cynically or critically about them. It may be true, and possibly is so, that many of their learned elaborations are better fitted for the waste paper basket than for the "chapel," but, as we said before, it always becomes the strong to be generous, and therefore, we make allowances when others make none, for statements in which nothing is stated, assertions in which nothing is asserted, arguments in which nothing is argued, and conclusions in which nothing is concluded. A good deal of what our excellent Bro. Dryasdusts are penning in prolific profusion, is certainly not worth printing at all, for any good that it does or is likely to do, and as we fear that a very vicious tide of pseudo criticism and childish objection is setting in for Masonry, we think it right to raise a humble note of warning and protest. Before we accept with implicit faith the disturbing theories of Masonic scepticism, let us know what we are offered in the place of our oldest traditions, as we feel sure that one of the results of a rampant Masonic Iconoclasm will be, to leave us without any history, any chronology, any facts, any teaching at all; and Masonry, despite its honoured name and ancient annals, will be reduced to the position, intellectually, archæologically and critically, of a modern benefit order. Beware, we say, of Masonic Iconoclasts!

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT.

The London Good Templar Pioneer of November 16th, contains the following passage:—"The Freemasons of Canterbury are in the path of progress. They have adopted the suggestion of their Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, and the three lodges in that city have resolved to discontinue holding them at public, and to arrange for premises dissociated from the tap-tub. Good; but why cannot we have teetotal Masonic lodges?" Now, on one head we agree with our contemporary in principle, though without adopting his verbiage, which is more forcible than polite, but we cannot profess to agree with him on the second. We have always advocated Masonic halls and private rooms for Masonic meetings, and we again repeat our honest conviction, the result of some experience, that the public house connexion has not done good to Masonry. But then we must always be just. It is not always possible or convenient, for a new lodge especially, to incur the heavy expenses which the hall-system inevitably entails, and in London and some of our large towns, the rooms appropriated in hotels and the like for Masonic purposes are both comfortable and commodious. But we entirely differ from our contemporary as to "teetotal Masonic lodges." A correspondent of ours fairly points out that in London, for instance, we meet at an hour which necessitates absence from our "home dinner," and if we had no dinner after work, we should not be living as is our wont, and, perhaps, doing ourselves harm, as regularity of habits and natural enjoyment of food, constitute one main ingredient in health, most essential above all for business men, who have to be in their offices and at their desks every day, and at a given hour. Teetotalism—all very well as a voluntary principle, is most objectionable as it appears to us, as a compulsory law. It always appears to us, that teetotalism "does evil that good may come," inasmuch as it substitutes the autocracy of a majority, influenced by sentimental theories and the arguments of passion, for the individual right of choice and use of permitted and lawful "good things." We are most favourable to unlimited "private judgement" in this respect. If brethren wish to drink wine, let them do so, if brethren wish to abstain let them also do so, and let us protect them and uphold them in doing so. At our Masonic table we boast a "Liberty Hall" as regards all right and proper things, and especially in respect of sumptuary laws and dietary proceedings, and we always rejoice to think that we have emerged from any tendency to late hours and material excess, and have reached the happy medium of toleration and moderation. The persons who seek to compel others to be temperate, are equally, in our opinion, in error, with those who would make all others drink; and rejoicing in the progress of a temperate and moderate use of what certainly is not wrong in itself, we cannot approve of that arbitrary and ascetic view of things, which forgets that the great end of life, the needful struggle of duty and decorum, is not abuse on the one hand, or mere abnegation on the other, but that calm and contented and temperate moderation in all things lawful, which meeting duty and difficulty half way, so to say, render life and society both rational and enjoyable, as well for the man of sense, as the man of prudence, the man of temperance, and the man of moderation.

THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I do not write for "writing's sake," or for the mere object of sentimentality or personality. I simply address you as a "Masonic Student," working historically, and I cannot afford time, nor would the result be improving, in my opinion, to follow our energetic Bro. Binckes into these "bye paths," into which he with much ability seeks to entice the unwary and the novice.

I have not addressed you to attack the Mark Degree or Mark Masonry, and therefore I decline to be led away from the "historical facts of the case" by questions, however ingeniously chosen, which do not concern me, or by any pressing appeal, however touchingly painted, of the good and use of Mark Masonry.

The real point at issue is the actual antiquity of Mark Masonry, which I cannot accede to, but which Bro. Binckes affirms; and as that can only be proved by facts, not argument, I propose in a week or so to send you what I have been enabled to collect about Mark Masonry. I am led to do this, as Bro. Binckes dubs the statement about "St. Mark" as "absurd."

I will say no more on that head to-day, though I have always understood that such charters are extant—but if I am in error I will gladly admit myself to be in the wrong. Bro. Binckes evidently, in his earnest zeal for Mark Masonry, overlooks this fact, patent to all who have studied the question, that if his argument be good, and if his view be true, Mark Masonry and Craft Masonry are two distinct systems of teaching, one limited (Mark), the other universal (Craft). But, as I said before, I only profess to treat with historical facts, not "sentimental positions," and as a Mark Mason myself, made in an old Mark lodge professing to act from "immemorial usage," I feel some little interest in the question from an archaeological point of view.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
MASONIC STUDENT.

THE LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to Bro. "Querist" I beg to say:—

1. That it is not a fact that the London Masonic Charity Association has been established to defeat provincial organisations. The London Masonic Charity Association is on the best terms with all such.

2. Nothing of the sort has been avowed by any member of the London Masonic Charity Association.

3. No doubt the disparity as between subscriptions and success has been pointed out.

4. Certainly not, nor has it the least resemblance to them, except in this, the combination of votes.

5. With the principles of action of the provincial Charity Committees, we, in London, have nothing to do so long as they conform to the rules of our charitable institutions.

6. All London cases, certainly.

7. Such matters of detail can only be decided by the Sub-committee. The society could not pledge itself one way or the other.

8. I do not know to what Bro. Edmonston alludes, or what query eight has to do with the subject.

9. Certainly not. The establishment of the London Masonic Charity Association is an antidote to jobbing and a protest against individualism.

10. There can be no doubt whatever, that owing to the generosity of the London Freemasons, London cases do not increase in the just proportion which London votes, if combined might fairly claim. All the London Masonic Charity Association asks for is fair play, all it seeks to do is to help the friendless candidates.

With regard to the relief of the Board of Benevolence. London brethren subscribe 4s. and Provincial brethren subscribe 2s. to the Fund of Benevolence, and Provincial brethren have a Provincial Fund of Benevolence. But as a rule, I can say as a member of the Board, that any such theory is a mistaken one altogether. The one great evil of the Board of Benevolence is again "individualism" alike in personal influence and stirring appeals, and which must always be the case with a fluctuating body.

I am yours fraternally,

LEGIST.

A CASE OF DISTRESS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I beg permission to make known to the well to do of the Craft whose motto is charity, the briefest possible particulars of a case of deep distress.

A brother in a London Lodge lived a few years since with his wife and family in thorough comfort, and did his duty as a Steward in the cause of Masonic Charity. Evil days came upon him, his whole property, save the household furniture (fortunately settled upon his wife), was swept away and he started for Australia to endeavour to retrieve his fortunes. He is known to have arrived there, and nothing further has been heard of him. His wife (or widow) is upwards of 60, totally blind and with a blind son and a daughter (both quite dependent) has been for some time living scantily on the gradual sale of her furniture. It is earnestly desired to help her by raising a hundred pounds with which she may establish herself and let lodgings. She is by birth a gentlewoman, and it is not desired to make her name needlessly public. Those, however, who are good enough to help in this matter shall with a receipt have full detailed particulars. A City Company of which the lost man was a liveryman, has kindly given twenty pounds. I am, fraternally yours,

JOHN B. MONCKTON.

P.S. I shall beg your kind permission to acknowledge donations in your paper.

THE FETE AT THE TROCADERO.

We take the following account of this gathering from the Monde Marquique for November, which only reached us on the 26th inst., we know not why. The account is written by Bro. Adrien Grimaux. "Considering the Exhibition, the Grand Orient had thought that it ought to invite all Masons to its annual banquet. That was but little, inasmuch as there had been nothing changed but the price of the said banquet, which had been fixed at 15 francs, without doubt to avoid crowding. The Supreme Council immediately understood the part it had to take, in the fault committed by the Grand Orient. It hastened to announce by repeated advertisements in French and foreign papers that it offered gratuitously a magnificent fete in the Great Hall of the Trocadero, to 'all Masons' who would come. With these views there was no question either of the banquet, which was to end the fete, nor of those pecuniary or other conditions to which a participation in the gastronomic labours was 'subordinated.' In addition, it was announced that the Prince of Wales had been invited. This was well done to excite curiosity. It is well known that the part taken in the organization of the exhibition by the heir to the English throne had brought about much sympathy for him in our country. On the other hand, it was interesting to know if, after having invited the Grand Lodge of England to pronounce an opinion on the acts and tendencies of the Grand Orient of France, and after having sanctioned the resolutions adopted by the London Assembly, the Grand Master of English Masons would consent by his presence to recognise the Supreme Council of France, with its numerous and pompous hierarchy. As will be seen, the fete of October 24th, wanted not in attraction, and its skilful organisers must have been satisfied in seeing the crowd which had come together to fill the great hall, notwithstanding the horrible weather. In truth, they ought to feel some gratitude to the French Freemasons who, with the ladies, formed the greater part of the assembly. They ought to understand that the Masons of the two rites do not espouse the quarrels of 'obedience,' which they are unable to understand, and which appear to them with good reason to jar with the sentiments of fraternity, with which true Masons are penetrated. We even heard some brethren express naively a little astonishment, that the 'Conseil of the Order' of the Grand Orient had not been invited. After the ladies, after the Masons in blue 'cordons,' or blue with a red border, we were able to contemplate without being overcome, the Sovereign Princes of Rose Croix, the Grand Inspectors, Grand Elect Knights Kadosch, Knights of the White and Black Eagle, the Sovereign Princes of the Royal Secret Most Faithful Guardians of the Sacred Treasure, and then all the Sovereign Grand Inspectors General, members of the Supreme Council, before whom the Very Illustrious Bro. Ad. Cremieux, Most Powerful Sovereign, Grand Commander, Grand Master, and the Very Ill. Bros. Lord Skelmersdale, Grand Commander of the Supreme Council of England, and Amberlay of that of Switzerland sat. But what was remarkable in this fete, consecrated particularly to foreign Masons, was the very small number of foreign Masons present. At 2.15 the meeting opened with a nuptial march of Mendelssohn, a symphony of Bach, a prelude on the Organ by Bro. Brayer, the Austrian hymn of Haydn, magnificently executed by the orchestra. The grand air of "Ernani" (by Verdi) sung by Mlle. Duval. After this Bro. Cremieux, rose, and asked permission of the auditory to be seated, adding with a charming grace and manner, that he wished all those assisting might reach to eighty years, in order that they might all know why at that age one finds the needs of remaining seated. He then commenced his discourse or rather a series of digressions, which the hearers had great difficulty in connecting one with the other, the more so, as at every moment the voice of the able orator failed him.

There were nevertheless some passages of his discourse which we were able to take down. "From the earliest antiquity Masonry has always preserved a great secret. Formerly powerful societies were formed, composed of the men belonging to the religion of the country, they invited disciples to themselves to whom they taught science, art, religion. In all the countries the heads of religion were the heads of Masonry." Then followed a very vague digression on Isis and Osiris, and then a comparison, very fantastical, between the great empires of Assyria, Persia, and Egypt, and the modern nations of America, England, Greece, and Belgium. "There was then a great secret which was transmitted from mouth to mouth. It is said that Freemasonry existed then, and for myself I do not doubt that Freemasonry then had its place." It will be seen that Bro. Cremieux seems to doubt that the historic method has penetrated into Masonry; he has remained in the fables and conjectures of Lenoir and Reghellini, fables which were current at the epoch when he entered into Masonry. "We call ourselves Freemasons, but I am arrested at once by these words T.G.A.O.T.U. The Masonic religion admits all religions. He who speaks to you is a proof of this. It admits every honest and virtuous man. It lives in the intellect and mind. When it says T.G.A.O.T.U., it recognizes a Source or Living Guide. Among the ancients, the most beautiful monuments of the world have been erected by those we call Freemasons, and the most beautiful monuments are those of religion. The Masons saw around them the most beautiful constructions, the earth and the heavens. It was necessary that some one made them. It was necessary to protect themselves, to place themselves under shelter, they first built huts, then houses, and then monuments. This is why Freemasonry adopts these words A.L.G.D.G.A.D.L.U.

We have in France a Masonry which has suffered persecution, that is not astonishing since it had secrets. But persecution only strengthened it.

French Masonry first established female lodges, I do not wish to say what passed in those lodges, but they were presided over by ladies of high rank.

Freemasonry is itself a religion. It does not bring men to perfection, but it brings them up. The brethren are delighted to be directed by distinguished men. The secret is, that there is none.

We must be honest, and to be honest we must daily see honest men, and live with them, that is the use of lodges.

At the head of Masonic teaching we place that of attachment to the country. We are happy to sacrifice our children for the country when it asks them of us. The three great virtues of the Mason are love of family, love of country, and love of humanity. The Jews were a long time excluded from Freemasonry, although they were the best and the ablest Masons, although Solomon, the Grand Master who built the Temple, the Eighth Wonder of the World, was a Jew. To-day I know of no country where they are excluded from Masonry."

Bro. Cremieux finished by some considerations on death, which we ought to look on cheerfully, and the immortality of the soul.

To resume. Putting on one side his strange opinions, truly unworthy of so eminent a "jurisconsult," as regards the antiquity of Masonry, and his no less strange laudation of 'Androgyne Masonry,' it appeared to us that Bro. Cremieux was more than weak in his efforts to connect Freemasonry with belief in T.G.A.O.T.U. We did not find in him the warmth with which on other occasions he has sought to defend this opinion, and we remarked above all that among the virtues which he recommended to Masons, he omitted "love of God." This did not escape an English brother who answered towards the end of the sitting to Bro. Arago, as we shall see later.

We shall finish this sketch next week, (we must stop here to-day,) as for several reasons, the account deserves to be recorded and preserved in the accurate pages of the Freemason, faithful chronicler of the passing events of Freemasonry.

A report of the proceedings at the consecration of the Landport Lodge, No. 1776, will appear next week.

A movement is now being made, with every prospect of success, towards forming a company to build a Masonic Hall in Auckland, New Zealand.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Provision—As autumn treads on winter, slender, delicate, and pale-faced youths become listless, languid, and debilitated, unless an alternative, combined with some tonic, be administered to quicken their enfeebled organs. This precise requirement is supplied in the e noted pills, which can and will accomplish all that is wanted, provided the printed instructions surrounding them meet with scrupulous attention. Holloway's Pills are especially adapted to supply the medical wants of youth, because his medicine acts gently, though surely, as a purifier, regulator, alterative, tonic, and mild aperient. A very few doses of these pills will convince any discouraged invalid that his cure lies in his own hands, and a little perseverance only is demanded for its completion.—[Advrt.]

FREEMASONRY IN INDIA.

The regular meeting of Keystone Chapter, No. 757, E.C., was held in the Masonic Hall, Byculla, on Monday, the 9th September. Present: M.E. Comp. Counsell, P.Z.; V.E. Comps. Watson, P.H.; Cooper, P.J.; M.E. Comps. Rowe, P.P.Z.; Barrow, P.P.Z.; Comps. Tomlinson, S.E.; Kapadics, S.N.; Armstrong, P.S.; Anderson, 1st Asst. Soj.; Robinson, as 2nd Asst. Soj.; Treas.; Seager, Janitor; and Madden. Visitor: M.E. Comp. Woolbridge, P.Z. No. 486, E.C. The summons convening the convocation was read. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. The proposition of a brother as a candidate for exaltation was withdrawn. Comp. Taylor was then balloted for, and he was declared duly elected a member of this chapter. The proposition of Comp. Jones was ordered to stand over to the next regular meeting. A letter from the P.G.S.E. was read, acknowledging the receipt of the chapter returns for the year ending June 30th, 1878, together with dues for the same. M.E. Comp. P.Z. then gave instructions that three companions be served with notice of exclusion (for non-payment of dues) on the summons for the next regular meeting of 11th November, in accordance with Bye-law XII. Bros. Klee and Breiman having been duly elected candidates for exaltation, and having taken the O.B. of a R.A.M., were introduced in due form, and passed out for further preparation, after which they were admitted. The addresses were impressively delivered by the three Principals, to the edification of the newly-exalted companions, as also all the companions present. Comps. Klee and Brennan then signed the bye-laws. M.E. Comp. Rowe proposed, and V.E. Comp. Watson seconded Bro. R. Sowden, J.W. Lodge Concord, 757, E.C., as a candidate for exaltation. There being no further business, the chapter was closed in due form at 8.50, p.m.

FREEMASONRY IN CEYLON.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Ceylon was duly formed and instituted on Wednesday, 9th October. It is under the Irish Constitution, the majority of the lodges here being of that denomination. The charter only arrived by the previous mail, very opportunely for the dedication of the new Freemasons' Hall, which had been accordingly fixed for the following day. The new building was originally built by government for a sailors' home, but that scheme having collapsed, it was taken over by the Craft for their head quarters, for which it is very well adapted. On Thursday, 10th October, therefore, the ceremony of dedication was carried out with all due form and solemnity.

The Sphinx Lodge, No. 107 (I.C.), the mother lodge of Ceylon, was opened at 5.30 p.m. in the First, Second, and Third Degrees. Representatives from the four other lodges were also present, and a large number of the Craft assembled to assist at so interesting an occasion. The hall, though of considerable dimensions, was completely filled with sturdy forms, clad in the sombre dress clothes which are so admirably ill-suited to the exigencies of a climate like Ceylon.

The lodge being opened, the Provincial Grand Lodge demanded admittance, and entered with all fitting solemnity, to the strains of a slow march.

The Provincial Grand Master, Capt. W. J. Gorman, is a Mason of long standing and striking appearance. Both he and the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. John Maitland, are worthy and respected brethren, whose efforts to further the interests of the Craft are such as to deserve the highest commendation. The other officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge are all well-known Masons of good standing.

The ceremony of dedication was performed in a most impressive manner; the elements (in three beautiful silver gilt goblets) were presented by the P.G. Secretary, Bro. Guthrie, and the Provincial Grand Master dedicated the building to Freemasonry in the usual way. The responses and salutations were capitally given, the brethren being well drilled by the P.G. Director of Ceremonies, Bro. J. Hegarty.

After an impressive oration by the Prov. Grand Master, and another by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, the Prov. Grand Officers retired, and the lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquetting room, where the toasts appropriate to the occasion were drunk with great enthusiasm, and the meeting broke up in peace, love, and harmony.

An occasion such as this marks an era in Freemasonry in Ceylon, and, indeed, it is an uncommon thing to see so many brethren from different constitutions joining together to promote the interests of the Craft with such unanimity and zeal. Let us hope that such may always be the case.

FREEMASONRY IN AUSTRALIA.

On Tuesday, September 17th, the Masonic Hall, Campstreet, was the centre of attraction to the Masonic fraternity of Ballarat and the surrounding district, the occasion being the installation of Bro. Henry Wheeler, W.M. elect, and officers of the Yarrowee Lodge, No. 713. The brethren assembled to the number of 100 promptly at 7 p.m. Amongst those present holding high rank in the Order were:—Bros. Kelly, W.M. Orion Lodge; Wilson, W.M. Creswick Havilah Lodge; Herbert, W.M. St. John's Lodge, I.C.; Hale, W.M. Buninyong Lodge, I.C.; and Past Masters Finlayson, Little, Claxton, Kent, Tait, Babington, Kennedy, Lindsay, White, Robertson, Gibbings, Bright, and Alroe.

The beautiful ceremony of installation was most ably rendered by the retiring W.M., Bro. Nevett, the sublimity of the ceremony being enhanced by the assistance of an excellent orchestra, consisting of:—Bros. Thomas King,

W. Little, and A. W. Brunn, violins; Peter R. Cazaly and Kent, P.M., organists; Harrison, double bass; Towl, cornet; And. Brown, flute; Glasson, piccolo; and Robson, saxhorn, who played selections from "Le Prophète," "Norma," "La Tromba," and the overture, "The Caliph of Bagdad."

After the installation of Bro. Henry Wheeler as W.M., the following brethren were invested with the respective collars and badges of their offices:—Bros. H. A. Nevett, I.P.M.; Thomas W. White, S.W.; Andrew Brown, J.W.; W. Little, Treas.; Henry H. Peake, Secretary; F. H. Drew, S.D.; W. H. Batten, J.D.; J. Beauchamp, I.G.; S. J. Morgan, Tyler; Morgan and Harris, Stewards; and King, Organist. On the completion of the ceremony, Bro. Finlayson, P.M., presented Bro. Nevett, the I.P.M., with a very chaste Past Master's jewel, manufactured of Ballarat gold, blue and white enamel, and enriched with diamonds and rubies, nicely engraved as follows:—"Presented to Bro. H. A. Nevett, P.M., by a few members of the Yarrowee Lodge, as a mark of their esteem."

The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to Craig's Royal Hotel. About eighty sat down to the banquet, the manner and service of which reflected great credit upon Bro. Wilkins. The tables being cleared, and the waiters having retired, the W.M. called upon the brethren to charge their glasses, and gave the following toasts:—1st, "Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen;" 2nd, "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master;" 3rd, "The M.W. the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W. the Deputy Grand Master, and Grand Officers;" 4th, "The R.W. District and Provincial Grand Masters."

The W.M. of the Orion Lodge, Bro. Kelly, then proposed "The Health of the W.M. of the Yarrowee Lodge." The large attendance must be gratifying, as showing that the unanimous vote of the lodge in placing him in the highest position he could receive or they could bestow, was thoroughly endorsed by all the Craft, and from what he knew of Bro. Wheeler, he was perfectly sure that the honour of the lodge might be thoroughly entrusted to his keeping; that he would discharge the duties of his high office to the best of his ability—without fear on the one hand, or favour on the other—in such a manner as would reflect honour on himself and credit to his lodge and Craft; that he would preserve the honour of the lodge, and guard it as carefully as if it were a young wife, and keep up the high reputation of the Yarrowee Lodge.

The W.M., Bro. Wheeler, responded, and after acknowledging the very flattering manner in which this toast had been proposed by Bro. Kelly and received by the brethren, proceeded—When he considered the kind of Masters who had presided over the Yarrowee Lodge since he had been connected with it, during the last five or six years—such men as Past Masters Little, Finlayson, Claxton, and Nevett, each one of whom had indeed proved model Masters—he must say he felt somewhat nervous in taking the position so well filled in the past. He could, however, assure them that the honour was not unexpected, for when he first visited the Yarrowee Lodge he was so well pleased with its working that he considered it would be an honour to assist in working such a lodge, and laid himself out accordingly, and notwithstanding the good Masters they had already had, he was sure that if during the ensuing year he managed to please himself, he should also give satisfaction to them. His idea of what the working of a Masonic lodge should be was of a high standard, but surely not too high. It was that the Master and his officers should be so perfect in their work that the brethren might look forward to their lodge night with unalloyed pleasure; that no matter how they may have been distracted by the cares of business, or what not, during the interval, that they should know that when they entered the lodge all cares of the outside world could be forgotten, and that they could there work together to the credit of themselves, the honour of the Craft, and the glory of the Great Architect. He, like many others, regarded Freemasonry as embodying the great principles of true religion. A good Mason could not but be a good man, and if his life is spent as we are taught a Mason should live, as surely as there was a Grand Lodge above, so surely would he qualify himself for a position in that lodge. He had visited many lodges since he had been a Mason, and from what he had seen, and from the remarks of others well able to judge, he was sure there is no provincial lodge under the English Constitution can take precedence of the Yarrowee, and to keep up that high position is one of the responsibilities a new Master should take upon himself. He took it cheerfully when he looked round and saw the officers he had to assist him, and the very experienced Past Masters he had to fall back upon for advice. He should endeavour so to discharge his duties during the coming year as to deserve from all of them the title of Past Master of the Yarrowee Lodge.

Bro. Finlayson proposed the toast of "The Installing Master, Bro. Nevett." After eulogising the manner in which the ceremony had been performed, he commented upon the excellent example that had been set during the past year, in making liberal subscriptions to the charities. Over £300 had been expended by the lodges on Ballarat. It was the foundation of Masonic institutions, and he trusted that the lodge, during the ensuing year, would agree to lay apart a certain portion of its funds, so as to found some permanent charitable institution in Ballarat in connection with the Craft.

Bro. Past Master Nevett, in responding, stated that it was with some degree of satisfaction that he looked back to his year in the chair of the Yarrowee Lodge. It had been signalled by one of the greatest successes that had ever taken place in Ballarat, or, in fact, in the district. He referred to the Masonic concert in aid of the Indian Famine Relief Fund. To Bro. Little was due the credit of initiating that concert, and his energy and enthusiasm had materially assisted to carry it to a successful result; but still he (Bro. Nevett) might fairly lay claim to a small share of the credit, as the arrangements before the curtain had been under his direction, assisted by the brethren of the lodges. The pecuniary results of the concert were gratifying in the extreme. The brethren would doubtless remember that within forty-eight hours from the close of the concert we were able to send £200 as the Masonic contribution to the fund. At his installation banquet he had promised the brethren a ball, and he had redeemed his promise. The initiative was due to him, and when some who had at first been enthusiastic became luke-warm and despondent, he and a few others had refused to allow the matter to drop, and the result of their efforts was by everyone admitted to have been one of the most successful public balls ever held in Ballarat. The pecuniary result of this was also most satisfactory, £50 having been sent to the Masonic Almshouses in Melbourne, a worthy and deserving institution. As regards the Yarrowee Lodge itself, his year had been most satisfactory; the number of members had increased, over £60 had directly and indirectly been dispensed in charities from the lodge funds, and he left the present W.M. a large cash balance with which to commence his year of office. His work in the lodge had been very heavy, and he left scarcely any arrears for the new Master. In conclusion, he wished again to thank the brethren for the assistance they had given him both in and out of the lodge room. The handsome jewel which had been presented to him that evening had been received by him as a great and unexpected honour. Such a tribute by the brethren to the retiring Master was unusual in the Yarrowee Lodge, and therefore it was the more gratifying. He had not been one to seek popularity, but had always endeavoured to do justice to all without fear or favour. In the terms of his obligation, he had endeavoured to do his duty zealously, impartially, and to the best of his skill and ability. This evidence of the kindly feeling of the brethren would be treasured by him as a proof that his efforts had been understood and appreciated.

Bro. W. Little P.M., P.D.J.G.W., said the health of the sister lodges meant success, not only to these lodges so numerously and honourably represented that evening, but also to Freemasonry throughout the world, at least where the ancient landmarks were observed. What is that power which permeates all society? It is non-sectarian as well as non-political. Its bark sails securely amid the oft-times troubled waters of Church and State, and, like an ark, affords a refuge to every peaceable, law-abiding man. It glides noiselessly onward and upward, guided by that unerring chart, the Volume of the Sacred Law. Systems of religion and politics may come and go, but, like Tennyson's brook, Freemasonry goes on for ever, simply because it is a superstructure raised on those three great foundation-stones, "brotherly love, relief, and truth"—cardinal virtues coeval with that period when the "morning stars sang together, and all the sons of men shouted for joy," the echo of which they were told was heard 4000 years afterwards on the plains of Bethlehem in the proclamation, "Glory to God in highest; peace on earth and good-will towards men." Unlike many societies, Freemasonry is not indebted to any straining of proselyting influence. It is content to grow from within. Indeed, to invite an outsider to join their order was to violate a well-known law, and a wise lodge looks not for strength in numbers, but in unity, hence some lodges restrict the number of their members, and yet, notwithstanding this, Freemasonry is represented by untold thousands in every nook and corner of the globe. Monarchs are among their rulers and patrons, and benefactors of mankind crowd their ranks and adorn their assemblies, each one worshipping God after his own fashion; all that he has to subscribe to is a firm trust and belief in Him as the Creator and Ruler of the Universe, without which subscription he can never enter their sanctuary, where their proceedings are begun, continued, and ended by invocations for Divine guidance. He would not presume to constitute himself judge, and in the presence of older and wiser Masons than himself, decide moot points which their most learned historians are divided upon, but would merely say the early ceremonial which his Masonic ancestors subscribed to probably in a measure corresponded to the mysteries of the ancient Egyptians, whose magi veiled their philosophy from the common people under signs, symbols, and hieroglyphics. Some venture to give Masonry an existence anterior to the siege of Troy, Solomon's Temple, or even the obelisks of Egypt; while others, more modest in their claims for the antiquity of Masonry, place its advent about the days of Pythagoras, whose problem is depicted on the Past Master's jewel. Anyhow, as regards English Masonry, and with which the toast was more particularly associated, he thought himself safe in saying it was greatly encouraged and practised by the conquering Romans in Britain—that land so genial to Masonry, and in which the Craft raised so many monuments of architectural skill, the admiration of subsequent ages—

The solemn temples, cloud-capt towers

Th' aspiring domes are works of ours;

By us those piles were raised.

And where it existed with varying success till the year 1717, when speculative or philosophic Masonry started, phoenix-like, out of the ashes of associated operative Masonry, and immediately afterwards became the progenitor of Masonry in America, India, and elsewhere. Previous to that date it appears to have existed as a vast co-operative society, having for its object the promotion of science and art, but especially of operative Masonry, with its trade secrets, privileges, and a ceremonial beautifully illustrating the principles of piety and virtue. The Masonic lodge may justly be regarded as a school for discipline, teaching the lowest to the highest how to regulate his conduct in every possible situation in life, so that were the sublime lessons of the art practised outside as they are professed inside the lodges, the world would soon see truth stamped on every action of life and friendship—cement heart to heart—until one mighty boundless confederacy would be formed for the welfare of all mankind. It is not pretended, much less seriously advanced, that Masons are any better than other people; in fact, he thought the same answer may be given to-night that was given to King Henry VI.:—"Some Maçonnés are not so virtuous as some other menne, but yn the most parte, they be more gude than they would be yf they war not maçonnés." He hoped lodges near and far would unite to promulgate the genuine tenets and principles of the Order.

The W.M.'s of the St. John's Lodge, I.C.; Bro. Kelly, of the Orion Lodge; Bro. Hale, of the Bunyong Lodge, I.C.; Bro. Wilson, of the Creswick Havilah Lodge; responded on behalf of the sister lodges.

Bro. Robertson, P.M. of the St. John's Lodge, proposed the toast of "The Newly-Installed Officers of the Lodge."

Bro. Wheeler, in responding for the newly-installed officers of the lodge, stated that he purposed, with the assistance of the sister lodges and the Masons in the district, to make the Masonic ball an annual affair.

Bros. White and Brown, S. and J. Wardens, also responded.

Bro. Claxton, P.M., proposed "The Health of the Visitors" in a few brief and appropriate remarks.

Bro. Wilson, of Creswick, responded for the visitors.

Bro. White, P.M., proposed "The Health of the Past Masters of the Lodge," coupled with the names of the Immediate Past Master, to which Bro. Nevett, in a suitable manner, responded.

"The Health of the Past Officers" was proposed, to which Bro. Wreford responded.

Bro. Kelly, in a few happy remarks, proposed "The Health of the Ladies," to which Bro. Potter responded.

"The Press" was proposed by Bro. Wreford, and responded to by Bro. H. R. Nicholls.

"The Host and Hostess," and the Tyler's toast, interspersed with a few songs, concluded a very pleasant evening.

MASONIC NEWS FROM AMERICA.

Communicated monthly by Bro. ROB MORRIS, P.G.M. Kentucky.

The Freemason is familiar with the proceedings of its own Grand Lodge, but do its readers know how we manage these things in America? Let me sketch our operations in Grand Lodge last week in the Grand Lodge of Kentucky which held its seventy-ninth annual session at Louisville, Kentucky, October 22nd to 25th. This is the first Grand Lodge formed after the American Revolution, away from the sea coast. The "Great West" was first opened by Boone and others, in 1774, in the section called by the Indians "Kain-tuck-ee," and by 1770 so large a population had crowded into "the dark and bloody ground" (for that is the meaning of the word) that Masonic lodges were formed under Virginian authority, and in October, 1800, the delegates of five of these lodges constituted "the Grand Lodge of Kentucky." We now term it the Mother Grand Lodge of the Mississippi Valley. In the seventy-eight years that this Grand Lodge has "met, acted, and parted," many of the notables of the State have spoken from her forum. Henry Clay was our Grand Master in 1821-2, and in 1853, thirty years later, his body was borne through our streets, preceded by a great array of the "white aproned brotherhood," to Lexington, where they now repose under a noble monument, whose corner stone your correspondent assisted in planting in 1857—but, to our seventy-ninth meeting.

Only two or three of the American Grand Lodges hold quarterly sessions, viz., Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and, perhaps, one other (Maryland) has semi-annual meetings. The rest meet but once a year, save in emergent cases, when the Grand Master summons the lodges. Such is the case in Kentucky.

We assembled, 600 of us, in Louisville early on Tuesday evening (Oct. 22nd), our Grand Master, the Hon. U. C. H. Johnson, having been there for several days to greet the delegates as they arrived, and to see that all things were in due state of preparation. We have no such autocratic body as a "Board of General Purposes," which is the "imperium in imperio" with you, but in its place eight Committees, composed of three members each, selected from the very brain of Grand Lodge. These Committees are so many schools of practical instruction in Freemasonry. All our brightest brethren graduated in these Committees. The titles are, Committees on Finance; Grievances; Returns (of Lodges); Lodges under Dispensations (inchoate lodges not warranted, but under apprenticeship); Foreign Correspondence; Visitors; Credentials; Jurisprudence. The distribution of all questions among these eight Committees conduces to a speedy and systematic disposition of affairs.

The Grand Lodge was opened at 9 a.m., and continued for four days. As every delegate receives four dollars per day during the session, also a mileage of ten cents per mile for coming, the expenses count up to 24,000 dollars per annum (including printing bills and incidental expenses). The labour of "purging" the Grand Lodge, as we call it, that is of making ourselves certain that every man of the 600 is a "Master Mason in good standing," is a task not easily described. For in our Grand Lodge all Masters Masons are welcome visitors, and before the Grand Master sounds his warning knock, the great hall is crowded in every part. They do these things better with you.

The opening ceremonies being performed, and the Grand Chaplain's prayer delivered, the Grand Master read his address, and then copies of it, already printed, are dispersed through the hall. The Grand Treasurer delivers his report, which being also printed in advance, is placed at once under the supervision of 600 pairs of eyes. The Committee on Foreign Correspondence do the same. By the way, the elaborate reports of these Committees (nine this year) covering 216 closely printed pages, are not to be considered as adopted or even approved by Grand Lodge; it is only the resolutions at the end of the report that come under the consideration of Grand Lodge.

The Grand Master now appoints the eight standing Committees for the coming year, and the mass of documents that have accumulated in the Grand Secretary's hands are distributed among them. Public announcement is made as to where each Committee will sit. Then the Grand Lodge "calls off," as we call it until 2 p.m. The afternoon sessions are dull and uninteresting because Committees are not prepared to present business. There are no evening sessions, as that time is given up to the Grand Chapter and other Masonic organisations. The "crack" lodges of Louisville (and we have some lodges there not to be excelled for their perfection of work) announce through the daily press that such and such degrees will be conferred, and they vie with each other in paying respect to Grand Lodge delegates who may thus be induced to visit them.

Wednesday a.m. the business fairly begins. Reports of every sort come fluttering in and speeches of more or less merit are heard, approving or disapproving the conclusions of committees. In my twenty-five years' attendance upon this Grand Lodge I have listened to efforts as fine as I ever heard in Congress or State Legislatures. For the most part however such objections are voted down, as the Grand Lodge is in the main better satisfied to accept the reports as rendered. Yet I have known two entire days spent in debate over a single proposition and the objections so persistently urged that the Committee was handsomely beaten.

On Thursday is election of officers. By usage the Grand Master, Deputy, and both Wardens, are considered to be in nomination for re-election. Yet other nominations may be (and often are) made, and this year we saw the novel act of electing the Senior Grand Warden (Bro. Thomas S. Pettit) Grand Master over the head of the Deputy, and then the re-election of the Deputy. But we rarely vary the usage of passing each other one grade higher, and making strict rotation a custom, which has worked well in Kentucky for nearly for four-score years. It is very rarely the case that either of the first four officers is re-elected.

On Friday comes the installation, and then the good-bye. Delegates scatter into every part of our great territory, some travelling as much as 400 miles, half of it on the saddle or by coach.

These universal re-unions are in the highest degree social and pleasant. Acquaintances are renewed from year to year, and new friendships formed. I met the present Deputy Grand Master (Bro. Riel) in the Grand Lodge in 1853, when we were both scarcely on the summit of that life on whose down hill we are now so far advanced.

Now, this article scarcely reaches the idea expressed in the title, but I thought your readers would like such a gossip account of the internal workings of a Grand Lodge. In future papers I will stick more closely to my text, and give "Masonic News from America."

"AN AMERICAN IN MEMORIAM."

We take the following interesting column from the New York Dispatch—

New Jersey sympathises and mourns with the following sister jurisdictions:

With New York, in the death of M.E. Comp. P.G.H.P. Ezra S. Barnum and Comps. John Orton Cole, Grand Secretary for forty-two years, and Orrin Welch.

Excellent they, in justice, if to do,

In all that life presents from day to day,

To others as you would they do to you;

If this be Masonry, Masons then were they.

With Virginia, in the death of Comps. F. A. Karns, W. S. Peet, G. K. Goodrich, and a number of other Comps.

With Connecticut, in the death of Comps. John W. Leeds, Gideon Wells and Edwin Gorfild.

With Mississippi, in the death of Comp. Benjamin Springer.

With Kentucky, in the death of Comps. A. M. January and Charles Marsh.

With Iowa, in the death of Comp. Wm. Leffingwell.

With Nebraska, in the death of Comps. Charles Hays and Samuel H. Manley.

With Canada, in the death of Comps. James Fischer, Richard Town, and a number of others.

With Ohio, in the death of Comps. Kent Jarvis, L. V. Boice, and J. B. Covert.

With Tennessee, in the death of Comps. John Chester and George H. Smith.

With Wisconsin, in the death of Comp. Moses Strong, who lost his life whilst endeavouring to save the life of a comrade.

Generous and brave;
Love and duty were to him as needful as his daily bread.

With Louisiana, in the death of P.G.H.P. Robert F. McGuire and a number of other companions.

Two hands upon the breast, the work is over;
They now stand

Where sin's no more, and tears are wiped away
By God's own hand.

With Arkansas, in the death of P.G.H.P. E. H. Whitfield.

There is no death; the stars go down,
To rise upon some fairer shore;

And bright in heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forevermore.

With Vermont, in the death of Companions Rev. K. Haven, P. D. Ballou and a number of others.

With Massachusetts, in the death of Comps. S. K. Hutchinson, E. W. Towliman, W. J. Sawyer, and a hundred and five others. They have gone.

Out of the shadow of sadness,
Into the sunshine of gladness,
Into the light of the blest.

With Quebec, in the death of Comp. James Gibson.
With New Hampshire, in the death of P.G.H.P., J. A. Harris, P.G.H.P., J. Livingston, and P.G.S. Lewis Woodman.

And ever near, though yet unseen,
Their dear, immortal spirits tread;
For all the boundless universe

Is life; there are no dead,

With Florida, in the death of P. G. H. P. David Jones, and P.D.G.H.P. E. P. Jordan.

Two hands upon the breast; the work is over,
The warfare is o'er,

And they who have toiled and striven in faith
Shall fight no more.

With Maine, in the death of P.D.G.H.P. Amos Nourse.

'Tis gloom and darkness here.

'Tis light and joy above.

With Colorado, in the death of Comp. W. W. Payne.

With Rhode Island, in the death of P. G. H. P. Joseph Belcher, P.G.L.S.A. Robinson, and a number of other companions.

Friend after friend departs;

Who has not lost a friend?

There is no union here of hearts

That finds not here an end.

With Minnesota, in the death of Comps. P.G.H.P. Robert S. Allen and P. G. S. A. Richardson.

While pity prompts the rising sigh,

With awful power impressed

May this great truth—I, too, must die—

Sink deep in every breast.

With Maryland, in the death of Comp. F. G. Woodworth.

With Alabama, in the death of P.D.G.H.P., J. McCaleb Wiley and Comp. W. E. Beiard.

Thus star by star declines,

Till all are passed away,

Then hide themselves in Heaven's own light.

With Illinois, in the death of P.G.H.P. Levi Lusk.

There is no death; an angel form

Walks o'er the earth, with silent tread,

And bears our best loved friends away—

And then we call them dead.

With Kansas, on the death of Comp. R. T. Jackson and a number of others.

With Georgia, in the death of Comp. R. J. Baddy.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution held their monthly meeting on the 28th inst., at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Thomas W. White, V.P., presided; and there were also present:—Bros. Griffiths Smith, E. Letchworth, W. Bailey, Henry Mugeridge, Frederick Adlard, Wm. Henry Farnfield, Charles Lacey, John A. Rucker, R. B. Webster, J. B. Scriven, E. H. Hewitt, F. R. W. Hedges, Secretary, and H. Massey (Freemason).

In the report of the House Committee, which was read, information was given as to the proposition that the girls should receive instruction in cookery at the School of Cookery. On the recommendation of W. Buckmaster of that establishment, the House Committee resolved to engage a Miss Hutt to superintend a cooking class at the Institution at a salary of £40 a year.

Nine candidates' petitions were accepted and three deferred.

A letter read from Mrs. Jardine, the widow of Bro. Jardine thanking the brethren for their sympathy with her in her bereavement by the drowning of her husband, Bro. Charles Jardine, who was lost in the wreck of the Princess Alice.

It was reported that the Committee had received the money from the Mansion House Committee for the purchase of one of the children of Capt. Grinstead into the school.

The Committee then adjourned.

RAILWAY PARCEL POST.—Our readers will be interested to learn that twenty-five railway companies of England, Scotland, and Wales have resolved to issue, from and after the 1st of January next, railway stamps to the public of the denominations of fourpence and eightpence, which shall carry parcels of two pounds and four pounds respectively throughout the whole systems, and have agreed to accept parcels at these weights and at these rates throughout the whole of their systems, and to grant an insurance up to 20s. at these rates, thus placing all the stations on these twenty-five companies at the command of the public for the receipt and delivery of parcels not exceeding four pounds in weight. The Irish companies are not represented. The Highland Railway Company, London and South Western, London, Brighton, and South Coast, and South Eastern companies will not accept parcels at these rates. In a circular containing the above information it is stated that a public meeting is to be held, at which the course of action to be taken to bring influence to bear upon those companies standing out, to thank the companies who have taken the public into their confidence, and initiated a movement fraught with blessings to the companies and the public, and to urge upon the Post-office to co-operate and deliver the parcels, thus placing all at the command of the public, will be considered.

Obituary.

BRO. WOOLF LYONS.

Bro. Woolf Lyons, a well-known inhabitant of Margate, died suddenly of heart disease, on Saturday, November 16th, at his residence, 4, King-street, Margate. He was initiated into Freemasonry by his friend, Bro. John Thomas Moss, P.P.G.R. Middlesex, P.M. 1326, &c., into the Lebanon Lodge, No. 1326, Hampton, Middlesex, on February 15th, 1872, and continued a subscribing member to his death. He steadily refused all solicitation to take office in the lodge. However, he did good suit and service last July, by representing the lodge as its Steward at the Boys' School, and making himself a Life Governor of that noble Institution. He was a popular brother, and was well liked by all who knew him. He leaves a widow to deplore his loss. He was about to serve as Steward to all the Masonic Charities, and become a Life Governor of each. He was buried in London, and a large circle of relatives and friends were there to pay their last sad respects to him.

BRO. WALTER GRAHAM.

Lodge St. Andrew, No 418, Auckland, N.Z., held a lodge of sorrow on September 26th, in connection with the death of Bro. Walter Graham, one of its oldest working members, and who filled the Treasurer's chair for many years. As the hall in the Masonic Hotel did not afford the required accommodation for the number expected to be present, Bro. W. C. Walker, R.W.M. obtained the use of the Albert Hall, which was suitably fitted up for the occasion, the chairs of the Master and Wardens being draped in black, the Master's chair having a canopy and enshrouded with crape. The catafalque in the centre of the room was imposing, and arranged with all the outward trappings of woe. Bro. McCol, P.M.; occupied the Master's chair pro tem, Bros. Walker and the Rev. F. Gould, P.G. Chaplain, acting as Chaplains; and the Senior and Junior Wardens' chairs were occupied by Bros. Hewson and Hendry, Bro. Graham, D.G.M. of the English Constitution, and Bro. Whittaker, P.G.M. of the S.C., were absent through business engagements in Wellington. Bro. Pearce, the P.G.M. of the Irish Constitution, was present and most of the leading Masons of all grades attended. In fact there was quite an imposing array of W.M.s. and P.M.s. and it was estimated that fully 200 members of the Craft attended. There was an efficient choir, Bro. Hesketh presiding at the harmonium. The lodge was opened in the usual form as a lodge of sorrow, the R.W.M. delivering the address appropriate to the occasion. To those who knew Bro. Nicol it is unnecessary to say that it was most impressively delivered. The interval of darkness and the silence of the march round the catafalque were solemnly impressive, and only broken by the voices of the Junior and Senior Wardens and W.M. when placing the flowers, wreath, and evergreens, on the catafalque. Bro. Walker having given the prayer, Bro. Gould, delivered the eulogium and read the first seven verses of the 12th chapter of Ecclesiastes, giving, as he read, a running commentary and suitable admonitions. The offices of Stewards were filled by Bros. Gallagher and Lombard. The Deacons were Bros. McEwan and McCroskie. The pall bearers Bros. Holmbright, Sandford, Hitchens, McCoulsky and Coventry. The Auckland press in giving a resumé of the proceedings agreed in stating that it was a most impressive ceremony from first to last, edifying to the large assemblage of Masons present, and creditable to the officers who took part in the ceremonies, and to the lodge for this mark of Masonic respect to a deceased brother of the standing occupied by Bro. Walter Graham.

Ebenezer Saunders, P.G.D.; Henry J. P. Dumas, P.G.D.; William T. Nettleship, P.G.S.B.; and C. B. Payne, G.T.; C. F. Hogard, Charles Atkins, T. C. Walls, B. H. Sparrow, A. A. Pendlebury, C. Stuart Barker, F. Aillard, Jas. Terry, E. Farwig, James Willing, Frank Richardson, George Kenning, and H. Massey. (Freemason.)

After the minutes of last Quarterly Communication had been read by Grand Secretary and confirmed,

Bro. Frank Richardson rose to nominate a Grand Master for the ensuing year. In doing so he said, Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master and brethren, I have the honour to rise for the purpose of nominating a Grand Master to preside over us for the ensuing year. The manner in which His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has performed his duties as Heir Apparent to the throne of this great realm, as well as the manner in which he has performed his duties as Sovereign of this great Order, has so endeared him to all his subjects that I am quite satisfied that no words from me are required to ask you, brethren, to endorse his nomination as Grand Master. (Applause.) I, therefore, beg to nominate His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master for the ensuing year. (Cheers.)

The Earl of Carnarvon: Brethren, I must, of course, go through the usual form of asking whether there is any other candidate for that high office, but I presume it is only a form. (After a pause.) Brethren, I have now to announce to all who are here present that it has been the pleasure of His Royal Highness, the Grand Master, to appoint Bro. Gibson as Grand Superintendent of Works. (Cheers.) And, brethren, I do not like to allow this appointment to go by without a single word. It is the feeling, doubtless, of all here present, that no better choice could have been made than that which His Royal Highness has made. On the other hand, those who remember for how long a time Bro. Cockerell served this office, how intimately his memory will be associated with the building in which it is our pleasure so often to meet, those who remember, also, how respected, and deservedly respected, he was by the Craft, and by all with whom he was brought into relation, will deeply lament that the necessity of a fresh appointment should have taken place. (Hear, hear.) Having said those few words in memory of one who, I believe, has deserved well of the Craft, and of his brother Masons, I have simply to announce that which I have already stated, that Bro. Gibson will now fill that office.

Bro. John Gibson, P.M. 259, Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects, was then conducted by Sir Albert Woods (garter), G.D.C., to the Earl of Carnarvon, who invested him with the insignia of his rank, as Grand Superintendent of Works, and, addressing him, said, I hope, Bro. Gibson, that you will long perform the duties of your high office. Sir Albert Woods then conducted Bro. Gibson to the dais, and called upon the brethren to give him the customary salute. This having been done,

The Earl of Carnarvon said: Brethren, it is now my duty to announce to you the appointment of a President of the Board of Benevolence, and I am quite satisfied that it will meet with universal approval when I state that the President is Bro. Clabon. (Applause.) The next business that stands on my list in the election of a Senior and Junior Vice-President of the Board of Benevolence. Inasmuch as there are only two names which have been brought forward for election I have to declare that these two brethren are duly elected. Their names are Bro. Joshua Nunn and Bro. James Brett. (Applause.) I have next to call your attention to the election of twelve Past Masters who are declared on the Lodge of Benevolence for the ensuing year, and inasmuch as there were but twelve, in the same manner as on the previous occasion, who had been nominated for election, those twelve are of course duly elected members, and I will call on the Grand Secretary to read their names.

Grand Secretary then read out the following names: Bros. Charles Atkins, P.M., 27; Henry Bartlett, P.M., 147; Henry Garrod, P.M., 749; Charles F. Hogard, P.M., 205; William Mann, P.M., 186; Griffiths Smith, P.M., 21; W. H. Perryman, P.M., 3; Henry Massey, P.M., 619; William J. Murdis, P.M., 1642; William Maidwell, P.M., 657; W. S. Christian, P.M., 1662; and J. M. Klenck, P.M., 1666.

Grand Secretary then read the report of the Board of Benevolence for the last quarter, which was ordered to be received.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., then rose and said: M.W. Pro G.M., I come forward on behalf of ourselves and our privileges, and also on behalf of those brethren who sit below the dais, and I want to know why the Book of Constitutions has been left out. We have had the privilege for many years to propose our Most Worshipful Grand Master, and we have had the privilege to propose our Grand Treasurer. Now, I dare say my Bro. McIntyre will tell me we have had a report. You have got the report, and mind you, before you get that report you must abide by the Book of Constitutions, and I say that we are bound to do our duty and to nominate our Grand Treasurer.

The Earl of Carnarvon (interrupting) said: I am very sorry to interpose, and I am the last person, as I am sure Grand Lodge will know, ever to curtail any legitimate discussion on any subject, especially on any grievance (hear, hear); and if our worthy brother had thought fit to raise this question to which he apparently directed his remarks at a different time, on a definite point, I should have been glad to hear him; but, really, it has nothing whatever to do with the question now before the Grand Lodge. The question which Grand Lodge has to deal with is the Report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter. I have listened for some minutes in the hope that what our brother said would lead to something which had reference and relation to the Board of Benevolence, but finding that is not the case, I am afraid I must call our brother to order, and at once proceed to business.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart: I am bound, my lord; but I must say this, my lord—(cries of "Order, order," amidst which Bro. Stewart resumed his seat.)

Bro. J. M. Clabon: M.W.G.M., I have now to move the confirmation of several votes of the Lodge of Benevolence. I desire first to say a very few words which Grand Lodge has generally indulged me with in this particular, because there is no opportunity of doing it otherwise. You all know that we have a considerable accumulation of funds which are applicable to the Lodge of Benevolence. Some ten years ago it was £20,000, with an income of £600 a year. I was then told it was too soon to ask for the application of the funds, and that we ought to wait till £800 a year was produced by those accumulations, because that is the sum which we give to the Charities. The accumulations again went on, and I again asked that the large surplus should be applied in some useful way. I was again told it was too early. The amount has now got to £45,000, and we are investing, some years, £1500 and sometimes £2000. Well, now, why should we not do some good with this money? (Hear, hear.) You seem to go with me when I mention it on an occasion like this, and yet I am not able to carry it when I bring forward a specific motion on the subject. I hope, however, the time will yet come. We invested last year £3000. There is one item which has occurred at our meetings of the Lodge of Benevolence which the Grand Secretary has not read to you. He has read to you what grants we have made, but he has not told you what grants we have refused. At the last Lodge of Benevolence there was a petition from a lady, who, having been in a very good position, as the wife of a solicitor, in good practice, was suddenly, by the death of her husband, reduced to want, having only a sum of less than £40 a year; and yet the Lodge of Benevolence said it was a case they could not relieve. I cannot move any grant in her favour tonight, because nothing was voted to her at the Lodge of Benevolence. I hope, however, next time we shall be able to do something for this poor indigent widow from the Lodge of Benevolence, for she most richly deserves help from some one. In the meantime, she may petition the lodge again. I hope her case will come on again, and that we may do something for her. Bro. Clabon then moved, and Bro. Joshua Nunn seconded, the confirmation of the following grants:—

A brother of the Morning Star Lodge, No. 1396, Newton Abbot ... £100 0 0
A brother of the Rutland Lodge, No. 1130, Melton Mowbray ... 50 0 0
The widow of a brother of the Witham Lodge, No. 297, Lincoln ... 50 0 0
The widow of a brother of the Brunswick Lodge, No. 159, Plymouth ... 50 0 0
The orphan daughter of a brother of the Royal York Lodge, No. 315, Brighton ... 100 0 0
A brother of the Royal Athelstan Lodge, No. 19, London ... 100 0 0

The grants having been confirmed, The S.W. of the Athelstan Lodge said he had to thank Grand Lodge on behalf of this last brother assisted, for the grant that had been made and confirmed.

The Earl of Carnarvon then rose and said: Brethren, I believe that this is now the proper time for me to make a short announcement to Grand Lodge, on a matter which does not appear on the agenda paper, and it is briefly this. We have had presented to Grand Lodge a book which has been placed in my hands this evening, which seems to me to be a work of great Masonic, and of general interest. It is a book (of which, I understand, there are only two or three copies extant) presented by Bro. Edward Tyrrell Heath, who is D. District G.M. of Bombay, and which is a record of the English lodges as they existed in the year 1727. The brethren will observe that this record numbers only fifty-four lodges—a very different catalogue indeed from that which will be seen and read at the present day. We have great cause, no doubt, for satisfaction at the increase of the Craft; but we may also well, on such an occasion as this, remember that it is not merely numerical increase which lends strength and importance to our great Order (hear, hear); but it is the remembrance, the recognition, and the steady adherence to that which made the Craft in former times, as it makes it now, an obedience to the great principles and the landmarks of the Order. Brethren, when I look at the record of these lodges I observe that many of them have disappeared from the roll. Some, on the other hand, are in existence, and it was pointed out to me only this evening before I came into this room, that actually the same marks and illustrations so to speak which distinguish some of those lodges at the present day, were the distinguishing marks and illustrations in the year 1729. Altogether this little book is, I think in a Masonic point of view, one of extreme interest and curiosity, and with that view I propose first of all that it be accepted by Grand Lodge and be placed in the archives of the Order; and if Grand Lodge, which I doubt not, agrees to that motion, I shall request the Grand Secretary to let this book lie in his office for the space of one month, that any brother who takes an interest in these questions may have the opportunity of calling and examining it for himself. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, it is now my duty to move, which I doubt not will readily be agreed to by Grand Lodge: "That this book be accepted with our best thanks and placed in the archives of the Order."

Bro. W. W. B. Beach, Prov. G.M. for Hants and the Isle of Wight: M.W.G.M., I beg to second the motion.

The motion was then put and carried unanimously.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Bro. Grand Secretary will be good enough to have this book laid in his office, and any brother who takes an interest in this question will have access to it to examine it. Brethren, I have, of course, to add, and it will be better that it shall be added formally, "That the thanks of this Grand Lodge be given to the donor of this curious little book."

Bro. Beach seconded the motion, which was put and carried unanimously.

The following report of the Board of General Purposes was then taken as read, and ordered to be received and entered on the minutes:

Report of the Board of General Purposes.
To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England. The Board of General Purposes beg to submit a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts, at the Meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 15th day of November instant, shewing a balance in the hands of the Trustees of the late Grand Treasurer of £3542 18s. 9d.; in the London and Westminster Bank, £985 1s. 10d.; in the Bank of England, £1822 10s. 3d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary for petty cash £75, and for servants' wages £96 15s.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON, President.
Bro. Clabon then rose to move, pursuant to notice, "That the Constitutions under the head 'The Fund of Benevolence,' be altered as follows:—No. 8, alter 'three pounds' to 'five pounds,' and add at the end, the words 'or to any country in which they have been established or have friends.'" Bro. Clabon said: Most Worshipful Pro. Grand Master, the motions I am about to make are in small matters, but though small they are not otherwise unimportant, I am happy to say that the Senior and Junior Vice Presidents of the Lodge of Benevolence concur with me in making it. You will remember, brethren, that under the 8th Constitution we are enabled to relieve foreign brethren, but there is this gratification (I read from the end of Constitution No. 8) "it being understood that in the case of foreign brethren, such relief, if exceeding three pounds, except in case of sickness, is intended to assist them to return to their native land." Now, the first alteration I wish to propose is that we may assist them, although they may not be returning to their native land, but to some lands in which they have friends or have formerly carried on business. We have had cases of this kind before us. A Spaniard who has established a business in France, and there having failed in it, finds himself in England without means, when he comes to us for assistance. Well, we can only give him £3 to assist him to go back to Spain, which country, perhaps, he has left from the time of his childhood, and it is no use his going back there where he has no friends. In such a case we wish to give the brother the money to take him back to the country where he has friends, or where he has established a business. Then we wish to increase the amount, as we think the sum of £3 is rather small, and we desire to make it £5. Therefore I propose to alter "£3" to "£5," and then to add at the end of Constitution 8 the words, "or to any country in which they have been established or have friends."

The Earl of Carnarvon: Brethren, you have heard the very clear explanation which Bro. Clabon has given of this motion. Is it your pleasure to agree to it? The question is "That £3 be altered to £5, and that the words 'or to any country in which they have been established or have friends,' be added to the rule." The noble Earl formally put the proposition to Grand Lodge, when it was unanimously adopted.

Bro. Clabon: The next motion, M.W. Pro Grand Master, is that the end of No. 10 we add the words after "certify in writing" the words "on a form, to be from time to time settled by the President and Vice-Presidents of the Lodge of Benevolence and the Grand Secretary." You will all remember, brethren, that under the constitutions we cannot give any relief until a brother has visited the applicant, and, in town cases, also attends the Lodge of Benevolence to make additional personal statements in answer to any questions which the brethren may desire to put to him. I may add, that the provision for such a visit was added to the old constitutions, some ten or twelve years ago, by a committee, of which I was chairman, because we considered the visit necessary, whereas, without it we did not know that the case was a proper one for the relief which was asked. We considered that a visit by a brother to the home of the applicant would supply us with better information as to the circumstances of the applicant. If a brother gave only the certificate of visit only, we thought that sometimes the information was very meagre indeed. Sometimes the brother would say—"I certify that I have visited the applicant," and nothing more, and we thought that in town cases we ought to have the personal attendance of the brother who had visited. In country cases we consider we ought to have a fuller certificate of visit than we now have, before we can make proper grants. Therefore, we want to have a form for such certificate, and we shall then have two or three questions which the visiting Bro. may fill up, by which means we shall be better able to determine what the amount of relief shall be. I propose a motion on the terms I have mentioned.

Bro. Joshua Nunn: I beg to second that motion. I am quite sure the brethren will feel the necessity for it, for we feel it is impossible for us to do justice to many cases that come before us. (Hear, hear.)

The Earl of Carnarvon: Brethren, I have to put this second motion, and, in doing so, I simply wish to say it appears to me to be a motion that is very desirable as a matter of business for Grand Lodge to accept. The motion is—"After the words 'certify in writing' in No. 10, add 'on a form to be from time to time settled by the President and Vice-Presidents of the Lodge of Benevolence, and the Grand Secretary.'"

The motion was carried unanimously.

Bro. Clabon next moved an alteration in No. 16, and said: M.W. Pro G.M., I have one more motion to make, and perhaps it is a question of less importance than the others, but still it is not without its importance. Grand Lodge will remember that at the end of No. 16 of the Constitutions, there are these words, and these were also added ten or twelve years ago: "The Lodge of Benevolence may grant relief to the extent of two pounds to any distressed Mason who has presented his petition in due time, although the conditions and forms above contained have not been complied with." We sometimes find cases of this kind. A brother makes his application, and the visiting brother is not present at the Lodge of Benevolence. The case is then adjourned till the next meeting of the lodge. The second time, perhaps, the visiting brother does not come, and we cannot relieve the applicant. The President is bound to enforce the rules, and we cannot make the grant. Sometimes a brother is in great distress, and we give him £2, and, at the same time, we think it is a small sum. We should like to have the power to grant more. We shall not always exercise it; but where we see fit we want to have the power to exercise it. You must remember, brethren, the man must be a Mason, and he must present his petition in due form.

Bro. J. M. Klenck: Most W. Pro Grand Master, I beg to move to add as a rider that it be a sum not exceeding £5. £2 may not be sufficient in some cases, and there are others when £5 would be quite adequate. There are other cases in which £2 would be quite sufficient, and £5 too much. I would, therefore, propose the addition of the words I have stated,

Bro. Clabon: The words are already in, "The Lodge of Benevolence may grant relief to the extent of," and then will follow "£5."

Bro. Brackstone Baker: M.W. Pro G.M., I rise, not to make any observations on the proposed alterations; but I think this is the proper time to express the views of the brethren as to the difficulties or dilemmas in which we are placed since 1873. Since that time we have had no other edition of the Book of Constitutions published. During that period the advancement of the science, and our additional income, have been the cause of our making great alterations in the Book of Constitutions, and we now really do not know what our legislation is; and, therefore, I make these observations, not with reference to the alterations proposed by these motions, but in order that you may recommend to Grand Secretary that there should speedily be a new edition of the Book of Constitutions published, incorporating all the alterations that have been made. I am sure all the brethren will agree with me that that is very desirable.

Bro. Hervey, G.S.: M.W. Pro G.M., In answer to the observations of Bro. Brackstone Baker, I beg to say that the constitutions have been issued regularly to any brother who desires to see them, and on any addition being made in those constitutions, which are in Grand Secretary's office, there is a slip pasted in the book, containing the alterations which have taken place in the laws during the period he has alluded to. I may say that up to the present moment, I do not think there has any ground of complaint been made as to want of information regarding the alteration of the laws or the constitution of our Order; and I am quite satisfied that when the time comes, and the Board of General Purposes find it necessary to issue a new edition, they will anticipate the wants of the brethren of the Order, and a new edition will be published.

Bro. Brackstone Baker: I am quite satisfied.

Bro. Britten: M.W. Pro Grand Master, may I be allowed to say, not exactly in support of Bro. Clabon's motion, for that needs no support—as has been seen in the several motions he has made, when he has shown us the best practical way of doing that which he wishes us to do, by utilising the large funds at the disposal of the Board of Benevolence—that the grants made by that Board are very often indeed not so large as they would wish to make them. For my own part, I am sure that they are not large enough to give effective assistance to the applicants. I am also very sure that it frequently happens that a man who has been a Mason many years, and performed all his Masonic duties well, has occasion at last to apply to the Board of Benevolence, and, if they are very liberal indeed, they recommend him to the Grand Lodge for a grant of £50. In many of those instances if you were to make a large grant—if the Board of Benevolence felt themselves at liberty to make a really effectual grant, that man might be set up again in business, reinstated in his former position, and made a useful member of society,—while the small grants we are enabled to give now afford only a little temporary relief, but do not at all raise him from the ranks of destitution. I feel very confident indeed that Grand Lodge would like to see that direction taken for making use of large sums in our hands.

Bro. Clabon: M.W. Pro G.M., I would like to say that I have for many years constantly presided over the Lodge of Benevolence, and as a rule all grants made by the lodge quite come up to the necessities of the particular cases.

Bro. James Mason, P.G.S.B.: M.W. Pro G.M., this is a matter which will have to be considered ultimately by Grand Lodge. I have constantly attended the Lodge of Benevolence for many years, and I cannot but coincide with the observations of the Bro. on the other side of the room. I, as one of the members of the Lodge of Benevolence, do feel that there is a very large sum now standing to our credit. Bro. Clabon has said that we cannot deal with the whole of that, but I think that if there are objects to which that fund should be devoted, the objects are the indigent brethren of our Order. To divert that fund from its object would be, in my opinion, a breach of trust. I think that the indigent brethren who come to that lodge to have their wants supplied, ought to be dealt with with a liberal hand—that they ought not to be stinted when they come and ask for aid. I believe that every member of the lodge of Benevolence wishes to do what is right and proper. I give credit to every one for that, but for one, I think they are not sufficiently liberal, and the great amount of funds at their disposal ought to be dealt with liberally in another mode. I could not let pass the observations that have been addressed here without, as a member attending so frequently the Board of Benevolence giving my mite of information to assist you towards forming an opinion eventually on this important subject.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Brethren, we have had a very excellent conversation on many points which well deserve the attention of Grand Lodge, as regards one of its most important functions through the Board of Benevolence, but the question you have to decide at this moment is, whether the words "£2" in Clause 16, shall be altered to "£5." (Laughter.) I think, myself, if I may give my opinion to Grand Lodge that Bro. Clabon has shown very good reason why that increase should be sanctioned. The amendment on his proposal was moved, but not seconded, and I do not think that the worthy brother who moved it, if he had the Book of Constitutions before him, would wish to persist in the amendment. He proposed that the words should be "not exceeding £5," but I think if he will look at the wording of the rule, as it stands in the Book of Constitutions, he will see that his object is already attained, because it now runs in this form, "The Lodge of Benevolence may grant relief to the extent of £2," and it will be if this Grand Lodge please to sanction the proposal of Bro. Clabon, "The Lodge of Benevolence may grant relief to the extent of £5." Of course it will be perfectly obvious that "To the extent of £5" is really the same thing as "not exceeding £5." Inasmuch as it is undesirable from what has been already said in Grand Lodge, to alter the Book of Constitutions more than is absolutely necessary, I presume it would be the wish of the worthy brother to withdraw that amendment, therefore, I shall simply put the proposal in the original form, that "£2" be altered to "£5."

The motion was carried unanimously, and Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of last half-yearly Communication, and of the moveable Grand Lodge, held at Keswick, on the 14th of June last, the Report of the General Board, as published in the Freemason last week, was taken as read (all the brethren having received copies), and ordered to be received.

The next business was to take the recommendations of the General Board, and the first of these was "That in clause sixty-three of the Book of Constitutions, the following words shall in future be omitted: 'That unless by special dispensation of the Grand Master have been previously installed as Master of some Craft lodge of Freemasons, and also'—"

The clause in the Book of Constitution, to which this alteration refers, is as follows:—"Every lodge shall annually elect its Master and Treasurer by ballot. The Master must, unless by special dispensation of the Grand Master, have been previously installed as Master of some Craft Lodge of Freemasons, and also have regularly served as Warden of a Warranted Lodge of Mark Masters for one year; and at the next meeting after his election, when the minutes are confirmed, he shall be duly installed in the chair, according to ancient usage, after which he shall appoint his Wardens and other officers, except the Treasurer. The Tyler is to be chosen by the members of the lodge."

Bro. H. C. Levander, G.R., in the unavoidable absence of Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, Past Grand Master, introduced the motion, and explained that the words "unless by special dispensation of the Grand Master" were now unnecessary, as the ritual for the installation of a Worshipful Master had been so altered that none of the secrets of the Master's chair of a Craft Lodge were revealed, and consequently that there was no clashing with the Craft ceremonies.

Bro. Colonel Wigginton seconded the motion.

The Rev. H. J. Hatch opposed the motion, and moved as an amendment, that the words proposed to be omitted remain.

The Rev. W. K. Bedford seconded the amendment.

Colonel Wigginton, speaking on the amendment, supported the motion.

Bro. Goepel opposed the alteration, and stated that one of his principal reasons for attending this Grand Lodge meeting was to resist the words being struck out of the Book of Constitutions.

Bro. Binckes, G.S., said it was but fair that he should state that he had received letters from Bros. Pourrett, Whitbread, W.M. of the Royal York (Time Immemorial) Lodge; C. F. Matier, and Walter Reynolds, who were unable to be present, emphatically condemning the proposed alteration.

At this stage of the proceedings the Earl of Limerick drew attention to the fact that the recommendation did not appear on the Report of the General Board, and the matter, therefore, fell to the ground.

The following recommendations were then proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously:—

"That Grand Lodge authorize a grant of £25 in aid of the brethren of the Mark Degree at Curacao, who lost all their property and have been reduced to a state of great destitution by the hurricane of September, 1877."

Grants from Benevolent Fund:—"That £15 be granted to Bro. R. H.; that £10 be granted to widow of Bro. H."

The bye-laws of the proposed Educational Branch of the Mark Benevolent Fund were then submitted, (these were set out in full in the Freemason last week,) and with a few minor alterations were adopted.

Bro. James Stevens then moved, and Sir John Halford seconded, the following recommendation of the General Board:—"That the Grand Master be authorised to take charge of certain other orders and degrees connected with Freemasonry, under such conditions as the General Board may from time to time recommend."

At the suggestion of the Earl of Limerick, Bro. Binckes explained the reason of this recommendation. Applications had been, from time to time, made to the General Board that certain side degrees, as they were generally called, more or less connected with Mark Masonry, having no governing body of their own, should be allowed to come under Grand Mark Lodge. There was one called the Degree of St. Lawrence, which was acquiring a greater importance than had hitherto been attached to it. It was thought wise, prudent, and advisable to avoid a multiplication of Masonic supreme jurisdictions, and if the degree was worth preserving, it should be preserved by Grand Mark Lodge. The General Board considered it unadvisable to go into minor details, but in their collective wisdom they could advise the Grand Master, when applications such as these came before them, what to do, without having discussions in Grand Lodge on every application, which could not be thoroughly carried out without mentioning particulars of the degree that many of the members might not belong to. The General Board might be relied on not to recommend the Grand Lodge to take up any degree which had not some substantial foundation to justify its adoption. He hoped that his lordship and Grand Lodge would be of opinion that the General Board in asking for this power had done both wisely and well.

Bro. Thomas Halsey, G.S.W., suggested an addition to the motion, of the words, after "from time to time, recommend" "and the Grand Mark Master may approve."

Bro. Binckes said there was nothing compulsory suggested; the motion was "that the Grand Master be authorised to take charge," not "that the Grand Master shall take charge."

Bro. Levander did not think there would be any objection to Bro. Halsey's addition to the motion.

Bro. C. J. Smith looked upon the recommendation with great sorrow and fear. The Grand Mark Lodge was not so free from dangers as he could desire, and it would be adding to those dangers if it adopted any of these so-called degrees. Grand Mark Lodge should rather endeavour to harmonise with Craft Grand Lodge, and not hamper its harmony with degrees which were less authorised than the Mark Degree.

The Earl of Limerick, before putting the motion, said he should not be properly discharging his duties in the chair if he did not point out to Grand Lodge that they were going to take a very serious step indeed. It might, or might not, be a step for good. He remembered the discussions which took place, some time ago, as regarded the reception of one degree; but the power now proposed to be given was a much greater power than that given on a former occasion. It was in fact an unlimited power to the General Board and the Grand Master. (Hear, hear.) Before putting the motion to Grand Lodge he thought it his duty to point out that this was a very extensive power—practically unlimited—and though it would be in most worthy hands, it might possibly give rise to discussions and cavils in Grand Lodge, as to the manner in which the General Board and the Grand Master had exercised their discretion, which might, perhaps, be inconvenient and injurious to the Mark Degree.

Bro. Binckes said the strong argument on the point was the prevention of the multiplication of Grand Lodges of different degrees.

The Earl of Limerick said he would almost express the hope that this matter might be referred back to the General Board for reconsideration. He felt great responsibility in occupying the chair when a motion had to be put, which he thought might, perhaps, have an effect, hereafter, much more extended than they at present dreamed of. The General Board might more nearly specify the nature of the degrees to be taken in, and not leave the power quite so open as it was now.

Bro. H. C. Levander said, that in the absence of Bro. Portal, he was perfectly ready to accept his lordship's suggestion, and have the matter referred back to the General Board for reconsideration. (Cries of "Withdraw.")

The Earl of Limerick asked Bro. Levander whether he would withdraw the motion or have it referred back.

Bro. Levander replied that he wished it referred back. (Cries of "No, no, withdraw.")

Bro. James Stevens, as the mover of the resolution, begged to withdraw it.

The motion was then withdrawn, amidst general marks of approval.

The report of the General Board, with the exception of recommendation A (erroneously inserted on the agenda paper), and the last recommendation (withdrawn) were then adopted.

Bro. J. M. P. Montagu then said, Most Worshipful Grand Master in the chair, and brethren, I have a great deal of pleasure in nominating Lord Skelmersdale for the office of Most Worshipful Grand Mark Master for the ensuing year. (Cheers.)

The Earl of Limerick (after a pause): Has any other brother any nomination to make of Grand Master? (after a further pause). Brethren, the nomination of Lord Skelmersdale for the office of Grand Master is the only nomination.

The Earl of Limerick then distributed the Charity Jewels and Charity Bars to the following brethren:—

Charity Jewels to Bros. the Rev. D. Ace, D.D., Province of Lincolnshire; Robert Arnison, 53; Henry Bagot, 36; John Barker, 58; Richard Boggett, Province of Lincolnshire; Rev. W. K. R. Bedford, P.G.M. Staffordshire and Warwickshire; W. G. Brighten, 144; Charles H. Coates, 148; Thomas Cubitt, 1; Richard Eve, 54; John Fawcett, 53; James Gardiner, 151; J. R. Goepel, 65; Major Charles Harding, 7; J. Cattle Mason, 22; Wm. Nicholl, 34; Captain A. Thrale Perkins, 109; C. H. Perrot, 53; Captain J. Ritchie, 226; A. Scargill, 53; J. Lewis Thomas, 8; E. G. Tattershall, 13; F. M. Tindall, 53; Fras. Trickett, 53; and George Ward Verry, 104.

Letters of apology for absence were received from, M.W. Brs. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, G.M.M.; the Rev. G. Raymond Portal, P.G.M.M.; R.W. Bros. Col. F. Burdett, P.G.M. Middlesex and Surrey; Rev. Canon Tristram P.G.M. Northumberland and Durham; L. A. Homfray, P.G.M. Monmouthshire; Lord Henniker, G.S.W.; C. F. Matier, P.G.W.; G. P. Brockbank, P.G.W.; V. Bros. Rev. REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF ANTIQUITY (No. 2).—The regular meeting of this distinguished lodge took place on Wednesday week, when Mr. Ames, well-known by his yacht voyages in the Northern Seas, was initiated into Masonry by Bro. Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., and D.M. of No. 2. There was a goodly muster of Past Masters, officers and brethren of the "Old Antiquity," and after a most agreeable social re-union, and a very good dinner, and a most pleasant and enjoyable meeting, the brethren separated at an early hour, (note this worthy brethren all), happy to meet, sorry to part, and trusting to meet again as happily and comfortably in January next.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge (No. 640).—Wednesday, November 27th, found us once more on our way to Bedford, to keep, what has long been, by the kindness of the brethren of the Stuart Lodge, a red-letter day to us. If tedium there could have been whilst the journey is so quickly and comfortably done—thanks to the enterprising secretary of the Midland Company—it would have been completely dispelled by the good company of the brethren bent on the same errand as ourselves. Arriving at the head-quarters, the Swan, we found the lodge opened early, in order that a great pressure of business might be disposed of. The accounts were duly audited. Bros. Alexander, and Hetherington elected as joining members, and Bro. Augustus Leverton Jessop raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason, every officer present doing his work in a most admirable manner. Mr. Wm. Dugald Stuart, Lieutenant in the Beds Lt. Infantry Militia, was then balloted for and unanimously elected. After being "called off," and "recalled" to labour, the lodge once more got to the work of installing Bro. Colburne as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. We cannot praise too highly the quiet and reverent manner in which the retiring Master, Bro. Dr. Rhys Williams, placed his successor in the chair of King Solomon, nor the effective rendering of the alter charges and proclamation by our respected Bro. Dr. Prior. The officers for the ensuing year are as follows:—Captain John Colburne, W.M.; R. H. Coombs, S.W.; A. Thody, J.W.; Rev. C. Breerton, Honorary Canon of Ely, Rector of St. Mary's and Rural Dean, Chaplain; Dr. W. Rhys Williams, one of H.M. Commissioners in Lunacy, P.P.G.D.C., I.P.M.; John Sergeant, P.M., (Borough Treasurer), again re-elected Treas.; Dr. Prior, P.M., (Coroner for the Borough of Bedford), P.M., re-invested Secretary; Alderman J. R. Bull, J.P., P.M., Steward; Jabez Carter, S.D.; R. B. Stafford, J.D.; Captain Verey, I.G.; J. P. Piper, M.A., Organist; George Reynolds, Tyler (elected for the twenty-sixth time).

The Past Masters present were Colonel W. Stuart, of Tempsford Hall, Deputy Chairman of Quarter Sessions, P.G.S.W. England, &c., &c.; Captain F. C. Polhill-Turner, M.P., of Horbury Hall, D.L.; Captain Edmond R. Green, J.P.; Cookson, J. Fisher, E. Billson, J. M. Cuthbert, Mark Whyley, Coroner for Bedfordshire, and Clerk of the Peace for the Borough of Bedford; Captain G. P. Nash. The members included the Rev. R. Fawcett Ward, P.M. Louth; R. Boughton-Smith, P.M. Melton Mowbray, and Past Pr. Grand D.C., Rutland and Leicestershire; A. H. Allen, Augustus L. Jessop, T. V. de Denne, A. B. Chibnall, J. Warren, S. Foster, F. Thompson, J. B. Lambie, R. Roe, J. E. Page, R. P. Jarvis, H. Young. The brethren then adjourned to the banquetting room, accompanied by the visitors: Bros. Rev. Dr. Bent, 99, P.G. Chap. England; H. J. Dumas, 46, P.G.D. of England; Conrad C. Dumas, P.G.D.C. of England. T. Dyers,

46, P.G. Steward; G. H. Haydon, 46, P.G. Stwd.; Rev. W. Tebbs, 285, P.G. Chap. Somerset; Rev. R. B. Poole, 140, P.G. Chap. Bristol; A. Barfield, P.M. 511; C. Inwards, W.M.; E. A. Cumberland, S.W.; W. C. Haselgrove, J.W.; A. Watkins, J.D.; G. H. Chambers, S.D.; and M. A. Rankin, of the St. John the Baptist (Luton) Lodge. Bros. E. Swain, S.W., and Rev. C. C. Ewbank, of the St. Andrews (Biggleswade) Lodge; T. E. Moss, of the Australian Social Lodge; T. Phillips, of the Union, 444; A. Block, Ionic, 227; J. Stevens, Eastern, 751; H. Dawson, St. George, Bermuda; and Bro. George Thompson, P.M. Royal St. Edmund, 1008, Bury St. Edmunds. Of the banquet and all its appliances it is needless to say more than that it was well worthy of the reputation of the Stuart Lodge in this respect, and that to the last moment of one of the pleasantest evenings we ever spent in our lives, the kindly attention of the brethren to the wants and enjoyment of the visitors was unlimited. The usual loyal toasts having been well given by the W.M., and duly drank, "The Health of the W.M." was happily given by the I.P.M., and feelingly responded to. Next followed "The Grand Lodge Toast," responded to by Bro. Stuart, followed by Bro. Bent, who, in replying, gave a most interesting account of the "making" of our Royal Grand Master in Sweden, and his own fraternal reception in the same country. "The Visitors" were next toasted by Bro. Dr. Prior, in his usual happy manner. Bro. H. Dumas, in a speech brimful of fun and drollery, extolled in terms, by no means overdrawn, the conscientious working and unbounded hospitality of Stuart Lodge. Bro. C. Dumas added a few words of approval. Bro. Haydon felicitously remarked that he had felt ill in the morning, but had applied what his wife had declared to be a remedy, if his case were not altogether desperate, viz., a visit to the anniversary, and Bro. Tebbs drew attention to the fact that the concluding words of the charge, "that our solemn deeds should be rejoiced in by our children and grandchildren," had been accurately fulfilled in the election that night of Mr. W. D. Stuart, the son of Col. Stuart, who was himself the son and nephew of the founders of the lodge. He concluded by wishing that the Stuart Lodge might never want one of the name of Stuart to maintain its character and carry out its traditions. "The Healths of the I.P.M. and the Officers of the Lodge" were next given and followed by the Tyler's toast. We must not forget to mention that "The Masonic Charities" were happily toasted by Bro. Capt. Polhill Turner. After the lodge was untied the evening was given up to harmony, many brethren delighting the company by the skilful use of their excellent voices. Amongst these we remember Bros. Serjeant, Cookson, Stafford, Green, Swaine, Colburne, Allen, the last we listened to being Bro. Carter, who rendered the new and pathetic ballad, "Lord Lovel," in such a manner that we actually saw tears running down the cheeks of several brethren. This ought not to be too often repeated, as at least one brother complained afterwards of severe pain in the side. The effect, we ought to say, was greatly enhanced by the sympathetic "pom-pom" and "ha! ha!" accompaniments of Bro. Stafford. At the earliest opportunity that a stranger could secure, Bro. H. Dumas moved a most earnest and hearty vote of thanks on behalf of the visitors, and the W.M. seconded it on behalf of the brethren, to Bro. J. R. Bull, for his self-denying and unflinching efforts as Steward. For years Bro. Bull has entirely deprived himself the pleasures of the banquet, and devoted himself to attending to the comfort of his brethren and their guests, and we cannot refrain from remarking that it is to this brother that we attribute in no little degree the success of those entertainments that the Stuart Lodge is ever so ready to provide, and their friends are still more ready to avail themselves of. "Floreat Semper!"

COCKERMOUTH.—Faithfull Lodge (No. 229).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Friday evening, the 29th ult., in the Masonic Hall, Station-street. The following members were present:—Bros. W. F. Lamonby, W.M., P.P.G.A.D.C. (Freemason); R. Robinson, S.W.; W. H. Lewthwaite, J.W.; Captain Sewell, M.O.; T. C. Robinson, J.O.; J. Black, Sec., Treas., and Reg. M.; H. Peacock, S.D.; R. Bailey, J.D.; W. Shiltow, I.G.; and Jos. Henson, Tyler. The visitors were:—Bros. G. Dalrymple, W.M. Henry Lodge, No. 216, Frizington, P.G.S.D.; E. Tyson, Secretary Fletcher Lodge, No. 213, Whitehaven; and Jas. Quay, Whitwell Lodge, No. 151, Maryport, who kindly acted as S.O. The minutes of the previous meeting being read and confirmed, two candidates for advancement were balloted for and accepted. In accordance with notice of motion given by the W.M., it was unanimously agreed that a concert and ball be held in February, in conjunction with Skiddaw Craft Lodge, No. 1002, and Dykes Conclave Red Cross Knights, No. 36. The bye-laws for the government of the lodge were then agreed to, and a copy thereof ordered to be forwarded to the Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodge authorities for confirmation. Neither of the two candidates for advancement being present, at the request of the visiting brethren the ceremony of advancement was rehearsed, Bro. Tyson kindly enacting the role of candidate. At the close, the officers of Faithfull Lodge were warmly complimented on the perfect manner in which the work had been performed. After hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren, the lodge was closed.

ORIGINAL OR PREMIER CONCLAVE OF ENGLAND.—The Quarterly meeting took place on Monday the 2nd inst., at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street. Among the Sir Kts. present were Rev. P.M. Holden, M.P.S.; T. Kingston, V.E.; Col. J. Peters, H.P.; T. Cubitt, Treas.; H. C. Levander, Rec.; J. Nunn, P.G.V.; George Kenning, P.S.; H. A. Dubois, P.S.; J. G. Marsh, P.S.; E. H. Thiclay, O.; H. H. Shirley, S.B.; E. Letchworth, W. S. Moses, J. M. Stedwell, and others. The minutes of the September meeting having been read and confirmed, the recorder stated that, in accordance with a resolution then passed, he had written a letter of condolence to the widow of the late Sir Kt. Robert Wentworth Little, P.G.V., &c. He also announced that a committee, comprising members of various Orders of Freemasonry, had been formed for the purpose of perpetuating in a suitable manner the memory of our late lamented brother. It was then proposed by Sir Kt. George Kenning, P.S.; seconded by Sir Kt. Holden, M.P.S.; and carried unanimously: That the sum of five guineas be given by the Conclave to the Wentworth Little Testimonial Fund. Several letters of apology for unavoidable absence were read; after which the conclave was closed, and the Sir Kts. adjourned to banquet and spent a very agreeable evening under the genial presidency of their M.P.S. We are happy to hear that the Premier Conclave is in a flourishing state, and trust it may long continue to enjoy the position it has hitherto held at the head of the Red Cross Order.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF THE EMULATION LODGE OF IMPROVEMENT.

The annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement was held on the 20th ult., in the Temple. Bro. Thomas Fenn, P.G.D., P.G.A.D.C., presided as W.M.; Bro. C. A. Murton, P.G.D., acted as S.W.; and Bro. John A. Rucker, P.G.D., as J.W. Bro. John Hervey, G. Sec., Treasurer of the lodge, and Bro. W. Smallpeice, P.M. 1395, Secretary of the lodge, also attended. The whole of this work was done in a style which fully supported the reputation of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement.

Before the lodge was closed, Bro. Fenn announced that that was the time for proposing new members. The fee for membership was half-a-crown, which constituted a brother a member for life without further subscription. The money so subscribed was, with the exception of a few working expenses, entirely devoted to Masonic charity, and in the course of the last two years £170 had been paid to the three Masonic Charitable Institutions.

After Bro. Fenn had risen for the third time Lord Henniker took the chair, and closed down in the Three Degrees, executing his work in capital style. The brethren then adjourned to the Freemasons' Tavern, where a substantial supper was provided by Bro. Alfred Best. Lord Henniker presided.

The toast of "The Queen and the Craft" having been duly proposed and honoured after supper, the Chairman, in proposing that of "The M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales," said he had not a very hard task to perform, for he remembered the last time he was in that room the reception the Grand Master had from the numerous brethren who were assembled on that occasion was very enthusiastic, which was a proof that in any assemblage of Freemasons no words were needed to recommend the toast. He had had the privilege of knowing the Grand Master personally for many years, and thought there was no one more fitted for the position of Grand Master, on account of his kindly nature, his sympathy, his character, and his kind heartedness. He was glad to have to remember the Prince of Wales in the position to which his Royal Highness had been pleased to place him this year. Although, unluckily, the Grand Master's many other engagements, and numerous calls upon his time, prevented his coming among the brethren as often as he desired, and as often as the brethren desired to see him among them; yet they might be sure of this, that whenever the Prince of Wales did join them he would always meet with the most cordial and hearty reception. The brethren present, and all Masons in England, wished that H.R.H. might live many years, and hold the distinguished position he now occupied, as Grand Master of English Freemasons.

The Chairman next gave "The Pro and Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers," both of whom he characterised as having the interests of Freemasonry at heart, and as discharging the duties of their respective positions in the Order with zeal, tact, and judgment. Speaking with reference to Lord Skelmersdale, he said that his lordship constantly gave up other engagements to visit lodges in the provinces, and remarked that he had noticed in his (the Chairman's) own province of Suffolk, and in the neighbouring province of Norfolk, the great filip it gave to Masonry in the provinces when rulers in the Craft went among the brethren there. This was the case when Lord Skelmersdale visited the province, and wherever he went he was liked.

Colonel Shadwell Clerke, G.S.D., responded, and said he felt great diffidence in doing so, because, he felt that the toast comprised so many illustrious names in Masonry that it was almost presumptuous for him to respond for them. Sincerely he would have liked that the Earl of Carnarvon or Lord Skelmersdale had been there to respond, but in their absence the other Grand Officers must and did feel highly gratified at the kind way in which their names were always received, and for the brotherly acknowledgment of those services, which, from time to time, it was their duty to render to the Craft. The Grand Officers, in common with other brethren, felt great pride and gratification at being present at the meetings of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, a lodge which cast such lustre on English Freemasonry, and which was such a guide to the footsteps of Freemasons.

Bro. John Hervey, G. Sec., Treasurer of the lodge, proposed "The Health of the Chairman." He was sure the brethren were so pleased with Lord Henniker's presidency that evening that they would be very glad indeed to see him again. Lord Henniker had come up from the far east solely to attend this lodge, and had taken a long journey for the purpose. Having engagements in Suffolk he would have to leave at nine o'clock next morning to keep them. When a brother puts himself to so much inconvenience to gratify others, they owed him a great debt of gratitude, which they would naturally be anxious to pay. They all knew that Lord Henniker, was an honoured Mason, and he was at the present moment the first Master of the lodge in Suffolk, to the chair of which he had just been elected, for the second year. He was Senior Grand Warden of England, and the brethren had seen that evening that he could not only preside at the banquet table, but could work in a lodge and do his duty there. He could say a great deal more of Lord Henniker, if his lordship were not present; but being present he would not put him to the blush, but would simply say that the brethren were anxious to thank him for so kindly coming to preside over this meeting. The brethren would feel that Lord Henniker had conferred not only pleasure and gratification on the lodge, but had laid on it a debt of gratitude which they would not feel it easy to liquidate. He therefore called on the brethren to drink his lordship's health.

The Chairman, in reply, said he was afraid he hardly deserved all the praise Bro. Hervey had given him; at the same time he could assure the brethren that it was he who had had great pleasure in being present that evening—a pleasure which he should not easily forget. This was his first visit to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, and it was true that he had come up from Suffolk to attend it, and would have to go back again early in the morning to attend one or two important meetings before he got home late in the evening. However, he had been amply repaid for any trouble he had had by the kind reception the brethren had given him, and by the great treat he had had in the working of the lodge. That had given him so much pleasure that he hardly knew how to express it. Like most people who had many public and private engagements, as well as Masonry to attend to he got a little rusty; but he could assure the brethren he felt the greatest pleasure in seeing the brethren working a lodge so well as they had worked the Emulation Lodge of Improvement. He hoped he might have the pleasure at some future time, if the brethren would allow him, of visiting this lodge again. As the brethren had already heard a good deal of his voice, he should content himself with thanking them most heartily. He was certain they would believe him when he said he was not a show Mason, but was anxious really to be of use to the Craft. He should be happy at all times to be of use to the Craft in general, and to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement in particular, where he had spent such a happy evening.

The Chairman next proposed "Success to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement." He need not tell the brethren that he did it most heartily. It was not an empty phrase, for he did it with great pleasure and satisfaction. The Emulation Lodge of Improvement supplied one of the great wants in this country, and he was glad to see rising Masons every year look more and more to it as an authority in Craft Masonry, and from what he had seen that night he thought it would. He wished it were possible in a great many of the provinces to have something of the same kind; but of course it was impossible to have it everywhere, or anything approaching to it so good. Still, depend upon it, every year as people visited the Emulation Lodge of Improvement it would become more influential, and more of an authority in every province in the country. Emulation was a word which Masons ought to have always before them, whether in the working of lodges, or in trying to support the charities, or in promoting kindly feeling among the Craft, Emulation ought to be a word ever present to them; but one thing he was quite certain of, that it would be almost impossible to carry out the true sense of the word as regarded the brother with whom he wished to couple this toast—he meant Bro. Hervey. As long as they had Bro. Hervey holding office, as he had in this lodge for more than thirty-one years as Treasurer, there need be no fear of the lodge going back or taking a second place. He ventured to say, in Bro. Hervey's presence that though many of the Grand Officers, past and present, and he (the Chairman) himself were very anxious to fulfil their duties as well as they could, however much they might try they would not find it very easy at a distance very respectfully to follow Bro. Hervey in the way in which he carried out his duties as Grand Secretary of Grand Lodge of England. It gave him (the Chairman) personal pleasure to couple the name of Bro. Hervey with this toast, for he had known him now some time, and in every communication he had with him of all kinds and sorts, and on various topics connected with Masonry, he had always found him so courteous, good humoured, good tempered, forbearing, and long suffering in every way, that it gave him great pleasure to bear this testimony to his qualities. He was very much pleased to count Bro. Hervey amongst his personal friends, and he was glad now to propose his health, along with "Success to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement," of which Bro. Hervey was one of the most valuable members.

Bro. Hervey, in reply, said that when a man found himself in difficulties the best course he could adopt was to face them at once and get out of them in the best way he might. Lord Henniker had just placed him in a difficulty by the kind manner in which he had proposed this toast, and the flattering terms in which he had recommended it to the brethren. He could assure the brethren that no one had the success of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement more at heart than he had. In former times certainly he did, and he might as well avow it, work very hard for the success of this lodge. For the last three or four years his health had not been so good as it used to be, and it had not been in his power to devote the same attention to the lodge as he did in former years. But his lordship would see, and the brethren round the table would know, that the lodge had not fallen off from any want of attention on his part, because it had been well looked after by some of his friends both right and left of him—by one whom he might specially name that night, whose working, he thought, was next to perfect, Bro. Fenn—so that his (Bro. Hervey's) absence was now of little moment, and he might now take that rest and repose which his old age and long service might entitle him to. While the lodge was looked after as it was now by members who took the work and attended to the well-being of the lodge one night after another the Lodge of Emulation could not do otherwise than prosper. He would not say more about the working of the lodge, because his lordship would speak about it presently, but he would add, that he thanked his lordship heartily for the compliment he had paid him, and the brethren for the flattering reception he had had. It was not always that a man maintained his popularity after thirty-one years of service; whether it had been deserved or not was another question; but still he felt he was almost too much appreciated.

THE FETE OF THE TROCADERO.

From the Monde Maçonnique, Nov., p. 321.

After a poem, "For the Poor," by Victor Hugo, declaimed by Mlle. Rousseil, the orchestra played the national airs of England, Portugal, Belgium, and the United States, during which the ladies made a collection, which must have been very successful. According to the programme, the "Legend of Hiram," a Masonic Symphony, for the first time executed, followed. This was composed by M. Ch. de Livry, the words by Bro. C. A. This symphony, which is very beautiful, and which retraces, in a masterly way, the ancient legend, was divided into three parts, 1, Ordo Oab Chao, a recitation followed by an invocation; 2, a Funeral March; 3, Symbolic Initiation. Mme. Irma Marie, of the "Opera Comique," sang the first and third parts, to which her sweet and harmonious voice lent a very great charm. The March appeared to us the least successful of the three portions; but on the whole, this was, in our opinion, the most striking portion of the solemnity, and it does the greatest honour to its talented composer, who deserves the felicitations of all Masons.

The last melodious strains had scarcely died away when the Very Ill. Bro. Emanuel Arago rose, and announced, with a vigorous voice which the entire hall could hear, that he was about to fulfil his duty as "Orator of the Grand Council."

"Ladies, gentlemen," he said, "always courageous, and always young in the service of a good cause, our illustrious Grand Master has just now explained before you all with so much talent and heart, the principles of Masonry healthily practised, that it is impossible for anyone to add anything to the subject of his charming discourse. It is, nevertheless, necessary that I should speak; the regulations require it, and it is requisite that I should demonstrate to you how in Masonry the title of Orator implies duties which can be carried out without eloquence. It is necessary—no, I am in error,—it ought to have been necessary for me to recognise at once, and characterize in a few terse sentiments the Masonic bearing of a reunion, whose brilliancy dazzles me; but I have not sufficient calmness to do so, and were I to encounter or merit blame, I exceed my duty if even unwillingly. Let him rise and address you in my place, who wishes to discuss to-day the questions of teaching. I only wish myself to consider our sympathetic auditory, happy to meet here with rivals and friends often encountered already in the marvellous galleries of the exhibition, on that field of battle, where France peacefully has re-conquered her rank and her prestige, the affection of the world, and universal esteem. Therefore, ladies and gentlemen, when I see these links re-bound by these struggles of nations, I dare to affirm that our relations of true fraternity with these Grand Lodges which follow our rites have well served the Genius of Peace. It is, that peoples following us, whatever may be their moral or political views, have a common patrimony, the human conscience, immortal and sacred. It is that this good, whatever it be, the peoples know, and wish, and will obtain, and I affirm to you will always preserve. I told you, ladies and gentlemen, that people had a common patrimony, and I now have explained it. Two more words on this subject, for my affirmation does not mean that we are to lend our ears to Utopias, which dream of the abolition of position, the fusion of races, the organization of an enormous Babel, and indescribable chaos. Listen—We have had the happiness of seeing to-day the Supreme Council and lodges of twenty-two different countries. We salute with joy the two Grand Commanders of England and Switzerland, or delegates of the Council of Brussels, the Masons of Ireland and Scotland, Italy and Spain, Norway and Sweden, and Portugal; the Masons of two worlds, the Masons from everywhere, brethren arrived expressly from America, Peru, Brazil, Monte Video, from the very inland of Uruguay. Is it by chance that we do not well know that except the moral law—indestructible foundation of our principles, which nothing shall destroy—that excepting the moral law, I say, we do not profess the same opinions, that there are among us different opinions and that each can keep them which are either accepted or professed by his own country? This, ladies and gentlemen, does not astound us, neither does it divide us. The Grand Master said it, it was said before him, and futurity will prove it, that the best Mason will always be the best patriot. Patriot! this word, which you all receive with acclamation, which you proclaim, and which will reach from London to New York, from Brussels to Madrid, from Rome to Copenhagen, will also be the last word said by a French voice under the splendid fraternal arch of the Trocadero. Yes, patriots—Cremieux said it to you, and I repeat it after him—patriots we are and will remain above all. This word I pronounce in the name of the Supreme Council, with which I am surrounded, and who applaud me, in the name of the lodges, of which I will not forget any, in the names of the lodges of Lyons, Bordeaux, Marseilles, Perpignan, Brest, Havre, Aurillac, Cherbourg, Saintes, and of Niord, which wished to join our fête and are amongst us. It is in the name of all of them that I pronounce the word of patriot, I address it to the strangers, I address it to them from my heart, that they may feel themselves at home in independence, just as we are amongst ourselves. And as a fraternal sign it is my last word. I give them the hand of France."

This discourse was very warmly applauded.

We looked in vain for the twenty-two Supreme Councils of which Bro. Arago had been talking, it was impossible for us to find them. We must believe that the Ill. brother had eyes as piercing as his voice was clear, unless he had heard tell that the Congress of Lausanne had recognised twenty-two councils, and that this number of twenty-two had slipped surreptitiously on his tongue. In fact, only the two Supreme Councils which were clearly found to be present, as he himself involuntarily said in these terms: we salute, said he, "the two Great Commanders of England and Switzerland." He equally saluted Freemasons—English Masons, from America, from Spain, from Italy, from Germany, Sweden, Brazil, Hungary, who came to assist at this fête. We are wishful to believe that the Masons of these divers countries were present, but where were they placed? The very illustrious Bro. Montague, G. Chancellor of the Supreme Council, "thanked afterwards the French Masons, for the reception they had given the strangers." He gives us his profession of faith. "Every Mason, said he, 'loved his neighbour, we are not bad men, but men like other men. We are come here to declare to the whole world what the basis of Masonry is: First, love to God and your neighbour. The other basis of Masonry is the family.' This is to be compared with the great oration of Bro. Cremieux.

The meeting was rapidly drawn to a close after this, by a comic poem, repeated by Bro. Coquelin, the elder, of the French theatre, and one from "Joseph" of Méhul, sung by a Laureat of the "Conservatoire" M. Montlievrat, the trio from the prison scene of "Faust" by Gounod, sung by Mlle Duval, and M. Montlievrat, and Seguin, ended by the Marseillaise. On the whole it was a very beautiful fête and which strangers assert had perfectly succeeded. If the "Freemason" of London had sent its correspondent, he would have regretted certainly having shown so much earnestness in dissuading the English Masons from being present at this fête. He would have been convinced that the Masons of the "Rite Ecossais" are rationally religious people, who yield in nothing to the brethren across the Channel, and do not merit to be decorated with the epithets of Atheism, which are so gratuitously given to the Grand Orient.

P.S. The Fete of the Trocadero, was concluded by a grand fraternal banquet, at the Continental Hotel, presided over by Bro. Jules Simon.

[We give this report of an eye-witness, but to say the truth, we are not convinced, but that our advice to our English brethren, was both seasonable and judicious.—Ed. F.M.]

THE HENDERSON TESTIMONIAL FUND

The proceeds of a testimonial fund that was inaugurated in the Capper Lodge, No. 1076, for presentation to our late Bro. John Henderson, some few months before his death last spring, has just been presented to his widow. Subjoined is a balance sheet, which we feel sure will be read with satisfaction, not only by those who contributed, but by all who knew the sterling qualities of "Honest John," Bro. J. White (W.M. of the Capper Lodge), the Committee and all concerned, deserve to be congratulated on the result of their labour.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF ARMAGH.

On Wednesday, the 27th ult., pursuant to due notice, the quarterly meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Armagh, which embraces representatives from about thirty lodges, comprised within the counties of Armagh, Louth, and Monaghan, was held under the presidency of the Provincial Grand Master, the Most Worshipful Maxwell C. Close, D.L.; P.M., Drumbanagher Castle, Representatives in Ireland of the United Grand Lodge of England, at the Masonic Hall of this town. He was supported by V.W. Bros. Francis Scott, M.D., as Senior Warden; Andrew K. Young, J.P., as Junior Warden; and Worshipful Bros. Sydney Jackson, John Galbraith, William Shimeld, Young, J. Hesse, Past Grand Officers, and a fair attendance of the brethren of the province.

V.W. Bro. George Hill Smith, Grand Secretary, read the minutes of last meeting at Clones, Co. Monaghan, which were confirmed, after which the installation of the following Grand Officers for 1879, was proceeded with by the Grand Master:

V.W. Andrew K. Young, J.P.	Prov. G.S.W.
Robert Heron	Prov. G.J.W.
Richard Harvey	Prov. G. Treas.
Gen. Hill Smith	Prov. G. Sec.
W. Bro. Rev. Augustus R. Young,
and Rev. E. M. Holden	Prov. G. Chaps.
W. Bro. Arthur Wynne	Prov. G. Org.
John Galbraith	Prov. G.S.D.
M. M. Rutherford	Prov. G.J.D.
C. M. Tranter	Prov. G.I.G.

V.W. Bros. R. Harvey and W. Leonard were re-elected representatives at the Board of General Purposes, Grand Lodge of Ireland; and Bros. J. Hesse and R. Turner on the Board of Instruction.

After routine business some very interesting matters to the Craft were introduced and decisions arrived at, after which the Grand Lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony, and the brethren subsequently dined together at the hotel of Bro. Williams, under the presidency of the Prov. Grand Master.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

AFRICAN EXPLORATION.—In consequence of Colonel Gordon's successful experiment with elephants in the equatorial provinces of Egypt, and his advice to travellers to use them in exploring expeditions from the East Coast, to which we referred on August 31, we hear that an attempt has been made to induce the Zanzibar authorities to undertake the taming of an African elephant for the above-named purpose. We regret, however, to learn that an unfavourable answer has been received, it being understood that the Seyyid has set his heart on having a light line of railway to the Victoria Nyanza, though it does not appear quite clear where the necessary funds are to come from for such an expensive undertaking.—Academy.

A committee appointed by the Danish Minister of the Interior last spring to report upon the question of a construction of a port of refuge in the Kattegat has made a report approving the opinion that the construction of a large and good port is a necessity. The Kattegat is yearly passed through by 50,000 vessels, and an idea of the dangerous nature of the passage may be gathered from the fact that, from 1858 to 1876, 760 vessels, were wrecked between the Skagen reef and the southern boundary of Sanders. The committee advocates a scheme for enlarging the port of Frederiksbafen, the cost of which is estimated at about 3,600,000 crowns.

The International Art Exhibition at Munich, to be held next year, is being rapidly organised, and a committee has been formed to despatch invitations to artists in the divers European countries. The Exhibition will include paintings of all kinds, sculpture, architectural designs, and all objects in the province of the graphic arts, while gold medals will be given by the Bavarian Government, the awards being decided by a jury chosen from the best Munich artists.

THE LADIES' WORK SOCIETY.—This society (31, Sloane-street) has gained a silver medal at the Paris Exhibition for its panel and frieze embroidery in the Prince of Wales's room in the pavilion. The Society is presided over by Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne) who has for the last four years taken a personal interest in its well-doing, sending her own designs and constantly giving her time at its rooms, and although the Princess has left for Canada, she still continues her presidency.

Near Balow, in Lusatia, have been found 24 bronze arm rings, three collars, and other ornaments, believed to be part of the treasure of the last of the Wendish kings, which tradition had always represented as buried in that neighbourhood, as, also, his remains enclosed in a silver coffin.

Mr. Seymour Hayden, who may be called the father of etching in its English development, has lent to the Fine Art Society a typical selection from his own fine collection of etchings, now shown at the Society's galleries, 148, New Bond-street. But he has done more. He has accompanied this selection with a catalogue, which contains, besides, a comment on the etchings exhibited, pointing their significance and the lesson for which they have been selected. Mr. Hayden's comments on these 121 etchings, selected from his rich portfolios, are at once a running criticism on the work of the particular etchers, and a series of side lights on his views of art and etching generally, and in both senses seem to be of the highest value. We need not in this article specify the masters who have been laid under contribution. All who are really interested in etching will no doubt visit the exhibition and procure the catalogue. For those who are not disposed to do this a mere list of names would have little or no meaning.

Pope Leo XIII., in addition to reforming the Vatican household, is benefitting the public at large by gradually removing the restrictions to study in the Art Galleries of his palace, which were imposed at the end of 1870. From the beginning of December the Stonzie and Loggie of Raphael, in the Sixtine Chapel, will be open to visitors and students from 9 a.m. till 3 p.m., excepting fête days and Saturdays.

The death is announced of Mr. Robert Wallis, the well-known landscape engraver. He was born in London on the 7th November, 1794, but spent the earlier years of his life in the country, returning to London about the year 1818, when he soon took a high position in the Art world, and was recognised as a worthy associate of Goodall, Miller, Cousins, Willmore, and others. Many of the best specimens of his talent will be found in Turner's "Southern Coast," "England and Wales," "Rogers' Poems," and in the expensively illustrated "Keepsakes," and other gift books of the period. Among his larger works reference may be made to "Lake Nemi," after Turner, an artist's proof of which realised ninety guineas under the hammer, at Christie's, about three years ago, and "The Approach to Venice," also after Turner. This was his last work of any importance, and it is perhaps the most successful rendering of a picture by the great Master that has appeared since his death. It was exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1859. Shortly after this Mr. Wallis relinquished all professional engagements in consequence of advancing age, and retired to Brighton, where he died on the 23rd inst., aged eighty-five.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received are published in the first number of every month.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

Several P.O.O.'s are now in hand, but having received no advice we cannot credit them.

THE LAST QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

We think it well to give a short "Resumé" of what took place on Wednesday last. The Pro Grand Master presided, as will be seen. The Grand Master was re-nominated by Bro. Frank Richardson. Bro. Gibson was appointed Grand Supt. of Works, and the Pro G.M. spoke in feeling terms of the death of Bro. Cockerell, Past G.S. of Wks. Bro. Clabon was nominated as President of the Board of Benevolence, and Bros. Joshua Nunn and James Brett as Vice-Presidents. Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., complained of curtailment of privileges, in that those below the dais had hitherto the privilege to propose the M.W. Grand Master and Grand Treasurer, but was ruled out of order by the President. Bro. Clabon, in moving the confirmation of several votes of the Lodge of Benevolence, repeated his desire that the surplus funds should be applied in some useful way. The Pro Grand Master announced a gift of great Masonic interest to Grand Lodge, being a book of which there were only two or three copies extant, presented by Bro. Edward Tyrrell, D.D. G.M. of Bombay, being "A Record of English Lodges in 1729," numbering fifty-four. The Pro Grand Master remarked that that was very different to the number at present existing, but it would be well to remember that it was not merely numerical increase that gave strength and importance to our great Order, but a strict adherence and obedience to the great principles and landmarks. The book, he considered, was one of great interest and curiosity; he moved that it be accepted with best thanks, and placed in the archives of the Order. The Grand Secretary was instructed to lay the book in his office for inspection by any brethren interested. For the rest of the business on the agenda paper we refer our readers to the detailed report elsewhere.

MASONIC BENEFIT SOCIETIES.

Masonic benefit societies have never prospered in England, though flourishing, we believe, in the United States. Some hundred years ago an attempt was made to form one in London, but it lingered for a short period and then expired like a little "farthing rushlight," "all of the olden time." Some of the North country lodges had at one time these benefit clubs attached to them, but they were unsound in theory and hurtful and unmasonic in practice, and have gradually disappeared, and are only remembered as "things of the past." We confess we doubt much the advisability of mixing up the principles and efforts of a benefit society with Freemasonry. Lord Zetland warned us emphatically, years ago, that Freemasonry was not a benefit society, and we are always fearful lest with its many obvious material advantages, just now, Freemasonry should assume in any, even the slightest, measure the aspect of a benefit society. At the same time we say this, we do not deny that there is nothing illegal or Masonically wrong, even, in a society which is altogether separate and distinct from the ordinary lodge life of Masonry, even when that organization becomes a pure benefit society. Unfortunately the tendency of all such associations is to get "mixed up" with Masonic and even lodge work, and in such a case, as loyal Freemasons we must emphatically condemn, and studiously avoid, any tendency to a fusion as between Masonic principles of action and those of a benefit society. Some brethren in the North of Ireland have formed a Masonic Benevolent Association, as they put it, for the "mutual benefit of its members, and the relief of the widow and family of each member at his decease." All Master Masons are eligible as members of the society, which is to be governed by a Board of Directors, and the following is the entrance fee, according to age:

From 21 to 40	£1	0	0
" 50 to 60	2	0	0

Above sixty special laws are to be made. On the proved death of a member, each member of the Association is to pay in 5s. 3d., which sum in its totality is to be handed over to the widow, or children, or legal representative of the deceased. When the funds of the Association amount to five times the sum required to be paid on the death of a member, no "levy" is to be made on the members, and the payment is to be made out of the funds of the society. There are one or two provisions in the bye-laws which appear to us contrary to sound policy, and very questionable, Masonically. Every five members subscribing from any one lodge have a right to elect a director for themselves, out of the members of the Association, so that a very numerous lodge might have several directors, and thus by degrees the Association would become necessarily "mixed up" with the lodge. But as at this moment a grant can be made to a widow in England, and we presume in Ireland, except as a question of amount, we do not see what is gained. We cannot then conscientiously approve of any such proposal, as we feel sure that it is introducing a bad principle into Freemasonry. We are, in no sense, a benefit Order. We give, on high principles of charity and duty, to those who have a fair claim on our benevolence, and if we do not give enough that is a matter which can easily be remedied. We object to many acts just now which savour to us of anything but Masonry, and certainly are not charity. We dislike all this "drawing" for Life Governorships, as a very questionable proceeding, Masonically, just as we object to Masonic lotteries and Masonic benefit societies. Let us keep close to the "good old paths" of our respectable and valuable Order, and let us eschew all that restlessness which is bringing very inferior men to the fore, as manipulators of questionable schemes which pander to the vanity of some, and the sensationalism of others amongst us, and which all, if persevered in, must tend to lower Freemasonry in the eyes of steady-going Freemasons, and the estimation of the thinking portion of our community.

LITERARY GARBAGE.

We have had our attention called to a professed attack on, and exposure of, Freemasonry, which has appeared in a Liverpool paper, the Daily Post. It has been reprinted in the Stockport Visitor, and has even been reproduced in the Bradford Observer, (a very respectable paper), and to which fact our attention has been called by a kind correspondent in West Yorkshire. As a fact in itself, it is of no importance whatever, and utterly meaningless and valueless. Freemasonry to-day, like Freemasonry 100 years ago, is not to be affected, much less injured, by pretended expositions of its doings and dogmata. A hundred years ago, a French Abbé, unscrupulous, bitter, and very weak, (as most Ultramontane writers are), thought he had "ecrasé," as he said, overwhelmed, crushed, "stamped out" Freemasonry. Poor foolish man. But he was wrong, very wrong, utterly wrong, in any such idea, just as all modern assailants, whatever form they like to assume, whatever disguise they put on, are equally in error, if they think that for such idle accusations Freemasons care, or that such puerile incriminations Freemasons will ever care seriously to notice. Indeed, we should not allude to the subject at all (for such pretended revelations are absolutely worthless and beneath our notice), but for two facts, first, that silence might be misunderstood; and, secondly, as a protest against the reproduction by respectable newspapers of such utter garbage. Almost all these attacks come from one school, the Jesuit, or rabid Ultramontane School, and are based upon worthless American works, surreptitiously reproduced in England. We need hardly say to our readers, or to any honest man, that they constitute a wicked and base parody on the real ritual and true proceedings of our ancient and benevolent Order! Whether the idea of Masonry commends itself to all minds equally, is of course necessarily a matter of fair debate—whether its position is a sound one, or not, such as it is, is a subject for temperate discussion, or legitimate criticism,—but, pretended expositions from worthless sources, party invectives based on unreliable data, are equally to be rejected and condemned alike by Masons and non-Masons. It is a curious fact as regards these assumed revelations of Freemasonry, that the "concocter" and the "revealer" come into court, on their own confession, with very dirty hands, and as tainted witnesses. Such a position is utterly fatal to any claim to veracity, much less to credence; and so the common sense of mankind has led them to treat all such parodies on Masonic words and acts, as worse than worthless, as a mendacious attempt at imposture, as a heartless endeavour to trade upon the credulity and curiosity of others. We greatly wonder at respectable newspapers like the Bradford Observer, admitting such absolute "rubbish" into their columns. It is very hard upon their readers. We, as Freemasons, simply laugh at all such nonsensical exhibitions of party spite, or impotent malice, or base sensationalism, and we leave them to that fate which inevitably awaits all such like productions, namely, the laughter of the well informed, the scorn of the truthful, and the pity of every loyal Freemason. Let us hope that our contemporaries of the non-Masonic press will hesitate in future before they fill their pages with this unsavoury "padding," which is a libel on truth and honour, and honesty, and an insult to matter of fact and common sense.

NEW LODGES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Amongst the list of new lodges, for which warrants are to be granted at the next Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge on Wednesday next, I observe the name of one, respecting which, I shall esteem it a kindness if you will allow me to publish a few facts for the information of the Craft.

During the last fifteen (or more) years, a number of persons have been proposed as candidates for initiation in the town in which this new lodge is to be held, and for various reasons, which I need not specify, have been either blackballed, or the names withdrawn in consequence of objections lodged with the proper authorities. A considerable number of those so rejected have, from time to time, found a welcome home in a lodge, held in a small town some eighteen or twenty miles distant; no enquiries being made of the lodges "why they were not admitted to a lodge in the town in which they resided, or one nearer their place of residence."

This was carried to such an extent, that the Provincial Grand Lodge some years ago unanimously adopted the following resolutions:—

1st "That this Provincial Grand Lodge recommends all the lodges in the province to unite in enforcing more stringent rules as to the admission of candidates in the Masonic Order.

2nd "That every Master and his Wardens be requested to make themselves acquainted, by private enquiry, with the moral qualities and social positions of every candidate, and whether he has ever been proposed in any other lodge.

3rd "That every brother of each lodge be requested not to propose for initiation a candidate residing at a distance from the place in which the lodge is held, until the most searching enquiries have been made and satisfactory reasons given why he was not proposed in a lodge in the town in which he resides, or one nearer to his place of residence."

These rejected brethren now find it inconvenient to attend lodge duties so far away from home, and, with the assistance of a few others, have petitioned for a warrant for a new lodge to be held in the midst of those who considered them not "fit and proper persons to become Masons."

Before forwarding their petitions, they wrote to ask the senior lodge in the town to endorse it, which request, after considerable discussion, was refused. Another lodge in the town was more pliable, and they got their petition "recommended by the officers of a regular lodge."

Some of the brethren of the lodge which declined to give its recommendation, and a number of brethren of other lodges, at once petitioned the Provincial Grand Master to withhold his consent to the application for the following reasons.

1. That the six lodges already existing in the town and immediate neighbourhood afford abundant opportunities for the reception, whether of candidates for Freemasonry, or of brethren already belonging to the Craft. These lodges are 1, —, 2, —, 3, —, 4, —, 5, —, 6, —; We would respectfully express to you our conviction, that should they be found insufficient to meet all the legitimate requirements of Freemasonry in this town, the — Masons will not be found neglecting their obvious duty of applying to you, R.W. Sir, for additional facilities for the purpose.

2. We desire to state that some of those (residing in —) now seeking to promote a new lodge in our midst, were initiated at —, notwithstanding the resolution unanimously adopted by the Provincial Grand Lodge some years ago.

(3rd Resolution already quoted)

So far as we are aware no such enquiries have been made by the — brethren in respect to the initiation there of candidates from —.

3. We, with all respect, urge that any encouragement given by those in authority to the system of thus habitually accepting candidates from a distance, must render void, and of no effect, the power of exclusion which has hitherto done so much to preserve for Freemasonry its distinctive and high character in the country.

The Prov. G. Master, however, decided to recommend the granting of the warrant, whereupon one of the oldest Masons in the town, holding very high social and Masonic rank, forwarded a copy of the petition against the warrant being granted to the Grand Secretary, asking the Board of General Purposes to receive a deputation on the subject. I believe no reply to this request has been received, but the warrant is to be granted.

The nominated officers include several of those rejected, as before mentioned.

I purposely refrain from any comment, but simply ask your courteous publication of these facts for the information of the Craft.

I am Dear Sir and Bro. yours fraternally,

ONE OF THE PETITIONERS AGAINST THE WARRANT.

QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Kindly allow me space in your columns for this, and let me have the aid of your valuable opinions.

Is it not the duty of a "Provincial Grand Lodge" to visit and inspect the working of its daughter lodges, at least once a year?

Can a Provincial Grand Lodge claim dues from a daughter lodge, that has not been visited for the past three years?

Can a daughter lodge in view of the ill-treatment received from a Provincial Grand Lodge, Masonically throw off her allegiance to such Prov. Grand Lodge?

Has a Provincial Grand Steward, who has been regularly installed and served his year of office, the right to attach "Past Prov. Grand Steward" to his name, and is he entitled to wear a jewel, and if so, what?

Your answers will oblige, yours fraternally,

L.

THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As this discussion has been drawn out more than at first intended, may I claim to sum up as it now stands?

On first reading the article criticised I accepted naturally our brother's claim to the cloth and literary rank the title he assumed implied, and simply measured him "suo modulo et pede" by his own yard rule. We all know that cloths, and cloaks too, differ in quality, but, surely, I am not responsible for that. The criticism was, that in support of the Mark claims, he had written a historical narration which he would not have presented to any learned society, or have inserted in the columns of the Times and Standard, on account of its absurdity and historical untruth. In fact, that he was attempting to convert the Freemason into a receptacle for idle tales.

He has in no way replied to these charges, and I repeat them still.

I am perfectly aware the words are strong, they are not, however, in any way personal to our brother, it is the system which tolerates falsehood I want to get at.

I must beg "Ecce Signum" to accept my former replies as answers to his recent letter, his only object is to attract attention, and I decline to be drawn away from my object.

Of an entirely different character, however, are the letters of a "Masonic Student," and of Bro. Binckes. The contributions of the former I have long known and esteemed, whilst the communication of the latter would do honour to any learned society. I assure them that to every word they say I shall be pleased to pay respect. Will, however, my brothers kindly see that this question is not to be settled by deciding on a few years, more or less, as to the existence of this or that association? It is whether falsehood in statement ought to be tolerated in a system which claims to be founded on that truth which has the Holy Law for its symbol.

It is not, indeed, to Freemasonry proper that this term applies, but to that portion of it which is found attached as a sort of parasite to the end of the Third Degree, and every intelligent Mason must see that our system naturally divides itself into two distinct parts, the original and the apocryphal.

Every system, indeed, in all ages, has had its apocrypha, and such is human nature that the apocryphal has too often prevailed and played the traitor to that to which it owed allegiance. It was in this sense I used the word, and it was as an offshoot of this apocrypha that I criticised the historical narration.

It is further on this apocryphal portion that is founded the teaching in our lodges of instruction, and as such is calculated to sap the love of simple truth in the minds of our younger brethren. There they are trained in a systematic confusion of terms. Now, confusion of terms means logical falsity, and logical falsity means—well, what does it mean? It means just that confusion of right and wrong, to which our journals allude, when they tell us the causes of destroyed manufacturing reputation and markets lost. History, indeed, teaches us that men have in all ages been better than their teaching. I am proud to say it is so now, but that does not prove our teaching right.

I trust I may be considered not as decrying, but warning; nothing is irretrievable; it is the pilot's hand that shapes the vessel's course, and when so many noble institutions have generously set themselves to the task of self-examination, common prudence warns us that the lead should be heaved and our bearings shown, or, in other words, that our definitions and teachings should receive from friendly hands that scrutiny which the changed condition of the age and style of thought demands.

I deeply regret it, in the course of stating the terms, I have given pain to any brother. As a ruler in the Craft I have performed a duty in calling attention to this subject, and, by permission, retire, at least for the present, having written under the excitement and labour of travelling, distant from all works of reference.

CAUTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly permit us, through the medium of your paper, to caution lodges and Charity Committees against an itinerant, who calls himself Bro. Charles Johnstone, of the Morning Star Lodge, No. 552, Lucknow, as he is unworthy of assistance.

We shall be glad to give further information if required.

Yours fraternally,

Reviews.

THE FREEMASONS' CALENDAR AND POCKET BOOK FOR 1878-79.

This useful Masonic "vade mecum," issued under the authority of the Calendar Committee of Grand Lodge, comes before us at this season as a welcome "souvenir" of English Craft Masonry, and a useful reminder of lodge meetings.

It has been carefully superintended by some able and distinguished brethren, and is an indispensable adjunct to the "paraphernalia" of every Craftsman. We are astonished to be told, on what we deem good authority, that its sale is not so large as all English Craftsmen would wish it to be, not only for its own intrinsic utility, but also for the cause of benevolence. If such be the fact, (which we do not profess to understand), there must be some hitch or defect in the arrangements for its agency and sale. For it is so useful a little work, and so needful in itself, that it must for itself, by itself, command a ready market, if only proper measures are taken, or common sense arrangements prevail in regard of its "vend" and diffusion.

If such should really be the case; if either through monopoly or red tape, any want of interest, or any carelessness exists in its "out-put," if by unfortunate management and unbusiness-like arrangement, its sale, large as it might be, is actually impeded, let us hope that the good sense of those who form the Calendar Committee will yet find the means of improving so valuable a property. At any rate, we beg to note its appearance with pleasure, and to give it a most hearty welcome in the pages of the Freemason.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR POCKET BOOK, AND DIARY, FOR 1878-79.

This neat and well got-up little book, most creditable to our worthy publisher, has just appeared, to the great satisfaction of many patrons and readers.

Some "anser" in former days objected to a review in the Freemason of the "Cosmo," because, forsooth, both issue from the same publisher, but as these reviews are written in a spirit of independence, and for the information of the Craft, we deem any such objection to be altogether futile, and any such criticism to be utterly childish, neither deserving of attention or regard. We therefore propose shortly to call attention to this "useful and unpretending work," as the seasonable preface truly puts it, as we think we shall be doing many of our readers a "good turn" in alluding to so valuable a companion for the pocket, Masonic case, or writing table.

The Cosmopolitan Calendar gives to all Masons a "bird's-eye view" of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, in its great extension over the "whole surface of the habitable world," and a very wonderful and even astounding picture it sets before us. But not only this. It also places before "our mind's eye" the Chivalric Orders, the "Hautes Grades" of foreign Countries, the Grand Councils of this, the important bodies of the United States, in fact, all that, though it is not Craft Masonry, boasts many Craft Masons in the ranks of its Knightly and Mystic Grades.

Who can doubt the need or value of such a work? and when before was any such information procurable by Masons.

We owe this, be it remembered gratefully, alone to George Kenning. It is not too much to say, that the "result" of the "Cosmo" represents many months' hard work in compilation, collation, and arrangement, information which cannot be obtained without much trouble, and great expense! and we therefore hail its appearance to day. A little bird has whispered in our ear, that one or two very foolish persons, complain of the large sale yearly of the "Cosmo." But why, we beg to ask, in the name of all that's—common sense, we mean? Is it not well worth its price? Is it not full of information not obtainable elsewhere? does it not bristle with figures, and facts, which every "Fellar Craft," much more "Master Mason," and even Entered Apprentice ought to know? We feel bound, therefore, to commend in the strongest terms—its honesty, utility, and general accuracy, which are very conspicuous and remarkable, amid such a host of statistics! It will be seen that the dates of the foundation of the Ancient Lodges have been given for the first time in any Masonic publication, thanks to Bro. W. J. Hughan. Will that "facile princeps" of all matters relating to lodge life, be angry with us if we suggest, that another year each lodge shall be marked A. or M. as the case may be,—so as to render the identification for the student complete? We give one little illustration (though many might be given of the usefulness of the Cosmo,) which has struck us much. We find the names of all the Craft lodges of England, Scotland, and Ireland, France, Germany, Spain, Italy, Hungary, the Netherlands, Egypt, Canada, Quebec, New Brunswick, Liberia, Brazil, and we find some omissions which we believe to be unavoidable. And now we are going to make a suggestion, (we hope it won't startle our worthy publisher,) that another year the "Cosmo" shall contain a list of all the American lodges just as it does those of Canada, and Quebec. Such an addition if it increased the "Cosmo" a little in size would make it most complete, an absolutely needful work of reference and information. As it is, we can most conscientiously say, that the "Cosmo" is a credit to its publisher and the Craft, we desiderate for it, as we feel sure it will receive, ready support, and cheery approval.

CONSECRATION OF THE LANDPORT LODGE, No. 1776.

In the presence of a large number of the members of the ancient Craft, the interesting ceremony of the constitution of the Landport Lodge, No. 1776, of Free and Accepted Masons, and the installation of the W.M., (Bro. Richard J. Murrell), was performed on Wednesday, Nov. 27th, at the Masonic Hall, Highbury-street, Portsmouth, which had been kindly lent for the occasion by the Portsmouth Lodge. The brethren assembled in the spacious lodge at 2.30, and shortly afterwards the R.W. Provincial Grand Master (Bro. W. B. Beach, M.P.), with the Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. W. Hickman), and other Grand Officers, Past and Present, took their seats on the dais, Bro. H. M. Emanuel, P.P.G.S. Warden, being appointed to the Senior Warden's chair, and Bro. Dr. Wilks, of Ryde, Prov. G.J. Warden, taking the other chair.

The lodge having been duly opened, the P.G.M. said they were met together on a most interesting occasion, and he availed himself with great pleasure of the opportunity of attending, because it was not the first or the second time that he had had the honour of being in Portsmouth for a similar purpose. Before he had the privilege of presiding over that province he was called upon by the late Admiral Sir Lucius Curtis to assist him in constituting a lodge in this locality, and he had also then been entrusted with the power of conducting the ceremony. Since he had been P.G.M. he had also had the gratification of constituting a new lodge in the town of Portsmouth, and he was glad to be able to say that both lodges were thriving and flourishing. He had, therefore, unusual pleasure in attending to constitute another lodge, which he had little doubt would flourish in a similar manner. He knew full well that Portsmouth was a large and important focus for Freemasonry. The energy and ability of Freemasons in that town were so great that they naturally felt that there was further scope needed for the exercise of those qualities, and as their numbers increased from time to time it necessarily followed that new lodges would be required. It was always gratifying to a Provincial Grand Master to constitute a new lodge, especially one which he was convinced would be properly and efficiently supported. In the present day, as in the past, it should be the aim of brethren to do all that lay in their power to support a lodge after it had been constituted. That was best done by holding fast to the principles of their Order, and not by adopting principles disassociated from the past, or by thinking that through their own exertions they could introduce some new system of Freemasonry. That had recently been done in another country, to the great sorrow of those who had been Freemasons for a long time, and who loved and revered the traditions of the past. He strongly deprecated tampering with the fixed principles of the Craft, and the introduction of innovations. This would be a rash proceeding, and one which could not commend itself to them. Those Freemasons who were assisting in the foundation of a new lodge had a serious duty to perform, and they should deliberately consider what were the leading principles of Freemasonry, take them to heart, and put them into practice with the greatest sincerity and energy. He commended to them, in the first place, reverence for the Great Architect of the Universe, and, in the next place, unity and brotherly love, based upon that principle of charity which existed to such a great extent in their institution. Charity, they were told, consisted not merely in relieving distress or in assisting the widow, the orphan, or the aged in their time of need, but also in that spirit of brotherly love pervading all their relations in life, and assisting them to become better members of society. Such, he trusted, would be the principles that would govern all their public and private relations in life.

The Prov. G. Secretary (Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre) then read the petition and warrant for the new lodge; and an oration upon the nature and design of Freemasonry was delivered by the Prov. G. Chaplain, the Rev. S. Scott. The ceremony was afterwards proceeded with, Bro. Pillow presiding at the harmonium, and the consecration hymn being "Great Source of Light and Life."

The imposing ceremony completed, the P.G.M. installed Bro. R. J. Murrell as W.M. The W.M. then appointed Bros. John Clark, S.W.; C. G. Adams, J.W.; E. S. Main,

P.M., Secretary; Bro. J. Lillywhite, P.M. Treasurer; and Bro. G. A. Green, P.M., Director of Ceremonies. In the course of the proceedings the P.G.M. said that they were reminded of the uncertainty of life by the fact that one of the founders of the lodge, Bro. E. G. Holbrook, had departed from amongst them. The P.G.M. added that he was a most respected brother, not only amongst the Masons of Portsmouth, but also in the Provincial Grand Lodge, where he had held office; and it was a source of deep regret to them that he had gone from amongst them. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the P.G.M. for his kindness in attending, and for the ability with which he had conducted the ceremony.

In honour of the event the W.M. of the new lodge (Bro. R. J. Murrell) entertained the Prov. G.M., the provincial officers, and a number of the brethren at a banquet, which was served in the hall under the lodge. The catering was entrusted to Bro. George Bond, P.M., by whom an excellent bill of fare was provided, the wines being also of the first quality. The "founder of the feast," Bro. R. J. Murrell, occupied the chair, and the vice-chairs were filled by Bros. Clark and Adams.

The Chairman, in submitting the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," said that in assemblies of good and true-born Englishmen the toast was one which required very few words to commend it. When he spoke of their beloved Sovereign, the mother of their Grand Master, it was a name they all revered, for during her reign of many years this country had been prosperous and happy.

The Chairman next proposed "The Most Worshipful Grand Master (H.R.H. the Prince of Wales)." Knowing the interest which His Royal Highness manifested in their ancient Order, the toast required few words by way of introduction. While they hoped that the day might be far distant when the Prince of Wales would be called upon to rule over this country, they knew that when that time came he would do his duty to their satisfaction. (Applause.)

The Chairman afterwards gave "The R.W. the P.G.M. of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, Bro. W. B. Beach, M.P., Constituting and Installing Officer, and the Officers of P.G. Lodge, Past and Present." He regretted that the P.G.M. had been obliged to leave in order to catch a train, and expressed his obligations to him for his kindness, and also to the officers, in coming there to constitute the lodge. The toast was received with great enthusiasm.

The D.P.G.M., in response, said that it afforded the P.G.M. considerable pleasure to constitute the new lodge under very auspicious circumstances. Indeed he (the D.P.G.M.) did not remember any lodge which had been constituted with such favourable prospects, and the gratification felt by the P.G.M. was therefore shared by every brother present. (Hear, hear.) The P.G.M. had been confined to his house through indisposition, and that had been the first time he had left it on any business purpose for some time past. It must have given an exceptional degree of pleasure to the P.G.M. to have added to the number of his lodges in the province one that came into working under such circumstances as did lodge 1776. The province was steadily increasing, not only in the number of its lodges, but in the number and importance of the brethren; and he trusted that satisfactory state of things would long continue. He hoped and believed that the new lodge would work in harmony and in the true spirit of Masonry with the lodges in the neighbourhood, as well as with those of the province generally. It was a great happiness to him to be able to come among the brethren in that district, for he had had experience in past times of their uniform kindness towards those in positions of authority, which might at times be accompanied with a certain amount of anxiety to fulfil their duties in a way not only beneficial to the Craft, but acceptable to the brethren in their particular province. He felt satisfied that the W.M. would have a happy year of office, heartily wished every success to the lodge, and, in conclusion, expressed his belief that the W.M., at the end of his term of office, would receive the congratulations of the brethren, as he most heartily deserved them. (Applause.)

Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, G.S., replying for the Provincial Officers, expressed obligations to the W.M. for the magnificent entertainment he had provided. For years past Portsmouth had been pre-eminent in its devotion to Masonic principles, which he hoped were not confined within the four walls of the lodge, but were, to the best of their ability, extended outside. In a short time that would not be the junior lodge, for one was about to be constituted in Southampton, and it would be very gratifying to the Southampton brethren who were present to have the Portsmouth brethren with them on the 12th of December, to assist them in carrying out those fraternal feelings with which they were associated together to promote. The W.M. was well known in Portsmouth for his ability in another lodge, and the higher rank he had assumed would afford gratification to the brethren over whom he presided. Bro. Murrell would prove a useful addition to the long and honourable list of Masters and Past Masters, and he was proud to be the mouthpiece of the Provincial Officers in wishing him a prosperous year of office, and in hoping that the new lodge might succeed, even beyond their expectations, in disseminating the principles of brotherly love, relief, and truth. (Applause.)

The Mayor of Portsmouth (Bro. W. D. King), who was received with great cordiality, said that he was very pleased to be present that evening, and regarded that first meeting of the new lodge as a happy augury of a number of pleasant reunions. He proposed the toast, "The Worshipful Master, Bro. R. J. Murrell, and Success to the Lodge," (applause), expressing his conviction that the W.M. would occupy his position in a dignified yet humble spirit—dignified, in that he would maintain order in the lodge, and humble, in that he would be always ready to receive advice from his seniors. The toast did not need many words to commend it to their hearty approval, especially to those who knew Bro. Murrell as intimately as he did. He was a sterling friend and possessed great energy, and he had no doubt that those brethren who had been the means of inaugurating the Landport Lodge had selected him as the most fitting brother in the town to fill the important position, because they knew that if he took a thing into his head he would carry it out. He was sure that Bro. Murrell would retire into the Past Master's chair with all the honour and credit that would most certainly be his due.

The Chairman made a feeling response, trusting that the lodge would work harmoniously, prove a centre of Masonry and extend its beneficent influence far and wide.

The other toasts were "The W.M.'s and Representatives of neighbouring lodges;" "The Visitors;" "The Officers of the Lodge;" and "The Tyler's Toast."

During the evening some capital harmony was contributed by several of the brethren.

The Provincial Grand Master was attended by the following Provincial Grand Officers:—Bros. W. Hickman, 130, D.P.G.M.; Dr. A. Platt Wilks, P.M. 698, G.J.W.; Rev. W. Scott, 394 P.G. Chaplain; G. Dymott, P.M. 394, P.G. Reg.; M. E. Frost, P.M. 487 and 1069, P.G. Treas.; J. E. Le Feuvre, 130, P.G. Secretary; J. Harrison, P.M. 804, P.G. Sup. of Works; G. Bond, P.M. 487, P.G. Sword Bearer; G. Pack, W.M. 175, and John Whale, P.M. 309, P.G. Stewards; J. Exell, Tyler.

Amongst the brethren present were Bros. R. J. Murrell, E. S. Main, P.M.; A. Riddell, P.M.; J. Lillywhite, P.M.; G. A. Green, P.M.; J. Clark, and C. G. Adams, founders and members of the new lodge; H. M. Emanuel, P.M. and Treasurer 1069 P.P.G.S.W.; H. Cawte, P.M. 309, P.P.G.W.; G. Rake, P.M. 428, P.P.G.W.; G. S. Lancaster, P.M. 487, P.P.G.W.; F. Hare, P.M. 394, P.P.G. Registrar; E. Groves, P.M. 1069, P.P.G.D.C.; A. Cudlip, P.M. 487, P.P.G.D.C.; Captain E. Haldane, 302, W.M. 1069, P.P.G.D.C., Monmouth; W. Payne, W.M. 342; H. Threadingham, W.M. 487; T. P. Hall, W.M. 804; C. B. Whitcomb, W.M. 1705; the following P.M.'s:—W. D. King, 257; J. T. Craven, 342; H. J. Guy, 342; J. Maltby, 487; E. Bunting, 487; S. C. Heath, 797; T. Francis, 804; J. Clay, 804; J. F. Starkey, 855; J. Wilson, 903, P.P.G.S.B.; E. M. Wells, 1069; J. E. Ivimey, 1069; T. Batchelor, 1069; and H. Townsend, 1428; Bros. J. Astridge, Secretary, 487; J. Willmott, S.W. 342; R. W. Mitchell, S.W. 903; G. Grant, S.W. 1705; J. W. Stroud, J.W. 1705; J. R. Haymen, Secretary 257; T. King, S.D. 257; A. R. Halbrook, S.D. 309; Palsgrave, S.D. 487; J. Gieve, S.D. 1069; G. E. Kent, jun., J.D. 257; Albert Wendover, J.D. 1069; Dr. C. Knott, I.G. 642; J. W. D. Pillow, P.P.G. Organist; H. J. Andrews, G. L. Green, G. Mason, J. Read, G. T. Cunningham, G. Peters, T. Good, L. L. Hackman, G. Banning, W. Gunnell, J. H. Birdle, Bacigaiapo, and others.

On Thursday evening the first regular meeting of the new lodge was held, under the presidency of Bro. Murrell, when the usual routine business was discussed, and numerous propositions for initiation and joining were made.

CONSECRATION OF THE LEOPOLD MARK LODGE No. 235.

This new lodge was consecrated in the Masonic Hall, Reading, on Monday, the 25th ult., by the V.W. Bro. F. Binckes, P.G.W., Grand Secretary. The rare and interesting proceedings caused a large number of brethren from the neighbouring provinces to assemble.

A lodge was formed punctually at one o'clock p.m., with W. Bros. T. J. Pulley, W.M. 54; P.P.G.Std.B. Hants and Isle of Wight, as W.M.; Chas. Stephens, 39, as S.W.; H. Hacker, P.G.J.W. Hants and Isle of Wight, as J.W.; W. Sowdon, P.P.G.J.D. as M.O.; G. Westall, 54, as S.O.; C. C. Gould, P.G.Swd.B. Hants and Isle of Wight, as J.O.; T. Benham, P.G.S.D. Hants and Isle of Wight, as S.D.; E. Nichols, 54, as J.D.; J. M. Dormor, 54, as I.G.; W. Burns, 54 Tyler. Amongst the other brethren present were V.W. Bros. F. Davison, G. Treasurer, D.P.G.M. Middlesex and Surrey, Robert Berridge, G.D.C.; Don. M. Dewar, G. Asst. Sec.; F. H. Cozens, P.G. Org.; Richard Eve, P.M. 54, P.P.G.W.; George Douglass, J.W. 54, P.G.D.C. Hants and Isle of Wight, Sam. Cole, P.S.W. 54, P.G. Sup. of Works, Hants and Isle of Wight, John W. Lamb, W.M.; Henry Fowler, W.M. elect; Jno. Dew, Sec. Albert Lodge, Portsmouth; Jno. Bance, George Lear, J.O. Wyndham Lodge, 37; H. Cockburn, 13, Portsmouth; Joseph Pomeroy, J. Mount, M. Phillips, J. R. Nichols, W. E. Thompson, W. G. Bayliss, W. Sellwood, Sidney T. Smith, R. White, P.S.W. Aldershot Lodge 54; S. G. Kirckhoffer, 144 and 225; and others.

The lodge being opened in due form, the W.M. pro tem. handed the gavel to Bro. F. Binckes, who at once proceeded with the first portion of the installation ceremony, and duly installed the W.M. designate, Bro. Edward Margrett, in the chair of A., Bro. T. J. Pulley being invested as I.P.M.

A ballot was then taken, and being declared favourable, the following brethren were advanced by the newly-installed W.M. to the honourable Degree of M.M.M., viz.—Bros. Egginton, Herbert, Welch, Flanagan, Honey, Stransom, Hunt, Toms, Coldicutt, Stevens, Barnicoat, Briley, Moffatt, White, Hinckley, Brett, Glasspool, Homann, Ayres, Hemmings, and Watts. The W.M. proved fully equal to his new duties, and the manner in which the ceremony of advancing so large a number of candidates was performed elicited expressions of commendation from all present.

The W.M. then retired from the chair, and the Consecrating Officer, Bro. F. Binckes, conducted the beautiful and impressive ceremony of consecration. This he did in the most felicitous manner, and in the oration he gave a very interesting description of the position and progress of the Mark Degree. The petition and warrant were read by Bro. Don M. Dewar, G.A. Secretary.

The musical portion of the ceremonies was under the able direction of Bro. F. H. Cozens, who was assisted by Bros. Hickie, Pulley, and Westall.

After the lodge had been dedicated, Bro. Binckes concluded the installation ceremony, charming the brethren with his eloquent and impressive rendering of the various addresses.

The W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. W. H. Herbert, S.W.; Chas. Stephens, J.W.; A. Welch, M.O.; G. Westall S.O.; J. Egginton, J.O.; Rev. C. R. Honey, Chaplain; C. Stephens, Treas. pro tem.; T. J. Pulley, Sec.; J. T. Stransom, Reg. of M.; J. M. Dormor, S.D.; W. G. Flanagan, J.D.; S. Bradley, I.G.; W. Hickie, Organist; W. Hemmings, Tyler.

The W.M., then rose, and said that he had the distinguished honour of proposing the first motion in the new lodge, and it was that Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold be elected an honorary member. H.R.H. was gratified that the lodge was named after him, and was pleased to consent to the request that he would become an honorary member of it. This proposition was seconded by the I.P.M., and it is almost needless to add was carried by acclamation.

Other business was then transacted, and after "Hearty Good Wishes" for the success of the new lodge being expressed, the lodge was closed in due form and with solemn prayer.

A splendid banquet was provided at the Ship Hotel by Bro. Bailey, in his usual excellent style, the tables being beautifully and artistically decorated. About fifty brethren sat down to the festive board, under the genial presidency of the W.M. The usual Mark Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to, the proceedings being enlivened by the instrumental and vocal performances of Bro. F. H. Cozens and other brethren. The post-prandial proceedings were thoroughly enjoyed by all present, and amongst its incidentals were the address of Bro. Eve, in proposing "The Health of the Consecrating Officer (Bro. Binckes)," and "Success to the Mark Benevolent Fund," and the eloquent reply of Bro. Binckes in acknowledgment.

The W.M. expressed his intention to represent the new lodge as Steward at the next festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund, and the announcement gave general satisfaction.

Altogether the whole of the proceedings in connection with the consecration of the Leopold Lodge were carefully planned and carried out. Not a single hitch occurred during the day, and great credit is due to the Committee who had charge of the arrangements, viz., Bros. Margrett, Pulley, Stephens, and Westall.

THE OLD AND BLIND WIFE (OR WIDOW) OF A MASON.

Queen Anne's Mansion,
5th Dec., 1878.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your kindness enables me gladly and gratefully to acknowledge the undermentioned sums, received up to this morning, to which may be added, a "blind pension" of £10. I shall still hope that the combined influence of Freemasonry, and the approaching Christmas, may cause me to have to trouble you, yet once again, with acknowledgements.

I am, faithfully and fraternally yours,

DRAMATIC NOTES.

OPERA COMIQUE.—I suppose there are few play-goers in London who have not seen Gilbert's Nautical Comic Opera, "H.M.S. Pinafore," and enjoyed the subtle and quaint humour contained in the writing of this piece. The music, which is composed by Mr. Sullivan, cannot, however, be said by his best friends to be equal to any of his former works, nor by any means worthy of the piece in question, and when to this it must be added that the artists engaged are for the most unequal to the parts allotted to them, and that in one instance, at least, namely, that of the leading lady, as a singer, is unequal to the role she undertakes to fill. It becomes obvious that were it not for the exceedingly clever writing of W. S. Gilbert, this piece would have been a disastrous failure.

[A notice of the new Drama "No. 20, or the Bastille of Calvados," at the Princess's, is in type, and will appear in our next.]

Owing to the pressure on our space, several important communications unavoidably stand over till next week.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF SOMERSET.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge of Somerset was held at the Carnarvon Hall, Weston-Super-Mare, on Monday, Nov. 18th. In the absence of the R.W. the Prov. Grand Mark Master the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, the V.W. the Deputy Provincial Grand Mark Master, Bro. Captain F. G. Irwin, Past Grand M. Overseer, presided. There were present the following Mark Master Masons: Major-General G. B. Munbee, D.P.G.M., Master pro tem.; Lieut. Col. H. Guyon, Prov. G. Sen. Warden; J. Bond, Prov. G. Jun. Warden, pro tem.; Dr. F. H. Woodford, P.G.M.O.; Lieut. Col. J. R. Ford, P.G.S.O.; John Fry, P.G.J.O.; Rev. M. Shackleton, P.G. Chap.; E. T. Payne, P.G. Treasurer; B. Cox, P.G. Sec.; Geo. Yates, P.G. Asst. Sec.; A. G. Williams, P.G.J.G.; Saml. Mills, P.G. Steward; W. Cousins, P.G. Tyler; also Bros. R. C. Else, P.P.G.S. Warden, and P.G. Steward; Lieut.-Genl. E. H. Doherty, P.P.G.S. Warden; Fredk. Vizard, P.P.G.S. Warden; W. Munro, P.P.G.S. Warden; A. W. Scott, P.P.S.G. Warden; W. B. Frampton, P.P.G.J.O.; W. H. Batten, P.P.G.J.O.; Dr. W. W. Westcott, P.P.G. Reg. of Marks; J. B. Halford, P.P.G. Reg. of Marks; W. Smith, P.P.G. Dir. of Cer.; W. J. Nosworthy, S. Lewis, J. Chaffin, J. Dutton, Rev. J. C. Lyons, C. R. Bate, F. Wilkinson, C. W. Penly, C. W. Rodway, R. Skinner, besides visiting brethren of other provinces.

The D.P.G. Master, having opened the lodge in due form the Prov. G. Chap., Bro. Rev. M. Shackleton, offered prayer, after which the D.P.G. Master apologised for the absence of the Prov. Grand Master. His Lordship, he said, had intended to be present but was unavoidably, and to his own regret, kept away by his public duties. It was hoped that Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, P.G.M. Master, of the Grand Mark Lodge would have been present to take the place of the Prov. G. Master, but he, too, was unable to attend.

The minutes of the P.G. Lodge held at Bath, Oct. 15th, 1877, were read and confirmed.

The Prov. G. Treasurer, (Bro. E. Turner Payne) read his report showing a balance in favour of P.G. Lodge of £12 12s. 3d.; there had, he explained, been a falling off in the receipts, owing to the neglect of various lodges to make their returns and the omission on the part of some brethren to pay their fees of honour.

The D.P.G. Master said it was very unsatisfactory to find that brethren appointed to Provincial Grand Lodge rank had not paid their fees of honour. The probability was that it was a mistake which would be rectified as soon as it was pointed out. But it was a more serious matter that four out of the nine lodges in the province had failed to make their returns. He hoped this omission would soon be supplied and that it would not occur again.

Upon the motion of the Deputy P.G.M., seconded by Bro. A. W. Scott, the accounts of the Treasurer were passed, and the lodges in default with their returns were ordered to be written to.

The next business being the election of Treasurer, the V.W. Bro. R. C. Else, said it would be impossible to do better than to re-elect Bro. Payne, he was so well known and highly esteemed, not only in the Mark but in every other Masonic degree, his duties were always faithfully performed, and in such a cordial and fraternal manner, as to endear him to every Masonic heart. He trusted that if re-elected every Mark Lodge would save the P.G. Treasurer and Secretary trouble by sending in their returns with greater regularity.

The V.W. Bro. Major-General Gore Bland Munbee, second the resolution, which was carried by acclamation, the D.P.G. Master remarking that it would not be possible to find a more energetic Grand Treasurer than Bro. Payne if only he would oblige the lodge by accepting the office, and he was sure the brethren would all be very grateful to him. Bro. Payne thanked the D.P.G.M. and brethren for the kind things which had been said of him, and said whatever the duties of Prov. G. Treasurer were he should have great pleasure in performing them.

The D.P.G. Master declared all the offices vacant and appointed the following officers for the ensuing year:—Lieut.-Col. J. R. Ford, 177 ... Prov. G.S.W. J. Bond, (W.M. of 102) ... Prov. G.J.W. W. H. Bate, (W.M. elect of 191) ... Prov. G.M.O. Dr. G. Long of 128. ... Prov. G.S.O. F. Wilkinson, (T.I. Lodge Bath.) ... Prov. G.J.O. Rev. T. J. Gatchouse, 128. ... Prov. G. Chap. Rev. J. C. Lyons, 191. ... Prov. G.A. Chap. E. T. Payne, (re-elected.) ... Prov. G. Treas. W. W. Westcott, 162. ... Prov. G.R. of Mks. B. Cox, (re-appointed.) ... Prov. G. Sec. Geo. Yates, (re-appointed.) ... Prov. G. Asst. Sec. W. Smith, ... Prov. G.S. Deacon. R. C. Bate, 191. ... Prov. G.J. Deacon. E. S. Blundell, 102. ... Prov. G.I. of W. W. E. Perret, 102. ... Prov. G. D. of C. S. Mills, 102. ... Prov. G.S.B. W. Munro, 119. ... Prov. G.S.B. S. Lewis, ... Prov. G.I.G. (pro tem.)

W. J. Nosworthy. ... Prov. G. Organist Walter Cousins, (re-appointed) ... Prov. G. Tyler. In recognition of their services rendered to the Mark Degree the collars of Past Provincial Grand Senior Warden was bestowed upon Bros. Dr. F. H. Woodford and John Chaffin, and that of Past Provincial Grand Junior Warden upon Bro. W. Nosworthy and A. G. Williams.

Upon the motion of the Provincial Grand Treasurer, and seconded by W. Bro. A. W. Scott, a sum of ten guineas was voted to the Girls' School to be added to the list of the V. W. Bro. General E. H. Doherty, one of the stewards of the next festival.

The D.P.G. Master undertook to write to the W. Bro. Sir Daniel Gooch, chairman of the Great Western Railway Company, asking him to cause a general order to be issued throughout the G.W.R. system that brethren when attending P.G. Lodge may be supplied with return tickets at single fares on production of their P.G. Lodge summonses. The Prov. G. Chap. (Bro. Rev. J. C. Lyons) having offered prayer the D.P.G. Master closed the lodge in due form.

A great number of the brethren subsequently dined together at the Royal York Hotel, Bro. S. Mills catering for them with his well-known liberality and taste.

The V.W. the D.P.G.M. presided, supported on the right by a very old and worthy Mason (V.W. Bro. General Munbee), and on the left by V.W. Bro. R. C. Else (D.P.G.M. of the Craft for the province of Somerset).

After the banquet the toasts, incidental to such a meeting, were proposed, that of the P.G.M. being given from the chair, the D.P.G.M. speaking very highly of the eminent services his chief had rendered to all degrees of Freemasonry.

"The Health of the D.P.G.M." was given in the heartiest possible manner by Bro. General Munbee, who acknowledged the obligations which Freemasonry owed to Captain Irwin, remarking that he had done more for it than any other member of the Order. He also expressed his sense of the value of the services rendered by him as D.P.G.M. of the Mark Degree.

The D.P.G.M. briefly acknowledged the compliment, and reciprocated the kind feeling and brotherly sentiments of Bro. Munbee, in whom, he said, he had ever found a loyal, faithful, and true co-worker.

The healths of the principal officers were honoured, as also were "The Visitors," on whose behalf Bro. J. J. Eardley Willmott returned thanks.

We have received a copy of the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar" for 1879, published by Bro. George Kenning, of 198, Fleet-street, London. The contents of this annual are too well-known to require any lengthened notice. We may remark that, with due allowance for unavoidable errors, the information is satisfactory, and of a most extensive character, embracing as it does particulars of all the Masonic bodies at home and abroad. It contains the latest changes, such, for example, as the list of Office Bearers of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and of the Supreme Council, of Golden-square, as re-constituted, with a quantity of new matter, especially in connection with Foreign Grand Lodges, or Orients. But the principal feature by which the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, for 1879" is distinguished from its predecessors is the insertion of the dates of constitution of the still existing Lodges of "ancient" origin in the Roll of Lodges holding under our Grand Lodge. This is certainly a matter on which Bro. Kenning may plume himself.—Touchstone Nov. 30th.—Price, post free 2s. 2d.

YORK LODGE, No. 236.—At the regular meeting of this lodge, held on Monday evening, Bro. A. Buckle, J.W., was unanimously elected to the office of Master of the lodge, and Bro. J. Todd, P.M., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer. The installation will take place on the 16th inst., and the annual banquet on St. John's Day.

A New Royal Arch Chapter is in course of formation in connection with Lodge of Perseverance, 371, Maryport, Province of Cumberland and Westmorland. The proposed title, "Nicholson," is very apropos, and out of compliment to Companion Joseph Nicholson, P.M. 371, &c., one of the oldest Craftsmen in the North, who is the M.E.Z. designate.

At the last meeting of the Dobie Lodge, held at the Griffin Hotel, Kingston-on-Thames, Surrey, Bro. W. H. Saunders, P.M. 1503, P.G.S.D. of Middlesex, P.M. W.S. of the St. George, Rose Croix, and Life Governor of all the Masonic Charities, was unanimously elected W.M. for the year ensuing.

THE LIVERPOOL MASONIC BALL.—The annual ball of the Masonic fraternity in Liverpool, will take place at the Town Hall, on the 14th January next, and the fashionable fraternal assembly will again be in aid of the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. The Secretary of the ball committee this year is Bro. Thomas Salter, J.W. 241; a most zealous and expert brother. The following resolution was passed on the 20th September last, at the General Committee, and confirmed at the Annual Court of Governors of the Charity, on the 2nd ult., viz.:—"That the W.Ms. of lodges, the first Principals of chapters, the Eminent Preceptors of Knights Templar Preceptories, the Right Worshipful Masters of lodges of Mark Masons, Sovereigns of the Rose Croix and the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, &c., meeting within this province, with the members of this committee, constitute the Ball Committee, with power to add to their number."

The Duke of Connaught will, says Truth, be appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland as soon after his marriage as an opportunity occurs.

The December meeting of the St. Leonard Lodge, No. 1766, which is progressing in a very satisfactory manner, was held on Wednesday evening last, at the Town Hall, Shoreditch, Bro. L. Stean in the chair of K.S. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Provision—As autumn treads on winter, slender, delicate, and pale-faced youths become listless, languid, and debilitated, unless an alternative, combined with some tonic, be administered to quicken their enfeebled organs. This precise requirement is supplied in the celebrated pills, which can and will accomplish all that is wanted, provided the printed instructions surrounding them meet with scrupulous attention. Holloway's Pills are especially adapted to supply the medical wants of youth, because his medicine acts gently, though surely, as a purifier, regulator, alterative, tonic, and mild aperient. A very few doses of these pills will convince any discouraged invalid that his cure lies in his own hands, and a little perseverance only is demanded for its completion.—[ADVT.]

Mittam in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

Can Bro. Hughan give me a reference to the earliest Mark warrant that he knows of, and let me have its very words?

MARK.

I think it well for the information of Masonic students, like myself, to mention the following printed works and MSS. existing in the British Museum, to which I will make from time to time additions.

PRINTED BOOKS.

"The Constitutions of the Freemasons, their History, &c.," 4to., Lond., 1723.

"The Secret History of the Freemasons," 8vo., Lond., M.D.

"The Secret History of the Freemasons," 8vo., Lond., 1725.

"The Freemasons' Accusation and Defence, in six genuine letters," 8vo., Lond., 1726.

"A Speech delivered at a Grand Lodge held at York, 27th December, 1726," 4to., York.

"The Perjured Freemason Detected," 8vo., Lond., 1730.

MANUSCRIPTS.

MASONIC STUDENT.

Masonic and General Tidings.

HILDA CHAPTER, ROSE CROIX.—At the regular meeting held at York on Wednesday, Bro. the Hon. W. T. Orde Powlett was elected M.W.S., and Bro. T. Cooper (the present M.W.S.) Treasurer for the coming year.

DEAR WINE.—A cask of Johannisberg, containing 1600 bottles of the wine, has just been sold at Cologne for 56,000 florins, which makes the price of each bottle about £3 4s.

The Dedication of the New Masonic Hall at Somerset, which was to have taken place this week, has been indefinitely postponed owing to the inability of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, R.W. Pro G.M. to attend.

A Meeting of the Great Priory of the United Religious and Military Orders of the Temp'e will be held on Friday next, at Cannon-street Hotel, London.

We are requested to state that Bro. Emra Holmes' new book "Amabel Vaughan," will be out during the present month. In addition to the story from which it takes its title, and which is based on recollections of Christ's Hospital in the author's time, twenty years' ago, three other tales and several poems will appear. The Masonic papers include "Random Notes on Freemasonry," and articles on the "Knights Templar," "Canterbury and Gloucester Cathedral," "The Royal Order of Scotland," &c. Intending subscribers are asked to furnish their full Masonic titles without delay, in order that the list may be completed.

Bro. John Gibson, Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects. P.M. of the Prince of Wales Lodge No. 259, has been appointed Grand Superintendent of Works, an office rendered vacant by the death of Bro. Cockerell.

The ceremony of Installation will be rehearsed on Wednesday next, in the La Tolerance Lodge of Instruction, meeting at 2, Maddox-street, Regent-street, S.W. The lodge will be opened at 7.45 p.m. Bro. W. H. Dean, P.G.S.B., Dorset, will be the Installing Master.

The Annual Convocation of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Cumberland and Westmorland (the Earl of Bective, M.P., M.E. Prov. G. Supt.), will be held on Tuesday next, the 10th inst., in the Freemasons' Hall, College-street, Whitehaven, under the auspices of Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter, No. 119.

The Prince of Wales has signified his intention to visit his newly acquired estate, Nascrov, near Brecon, during the present month, and most extensive preparations are being made to welcome him. Sir George Elliot, R.W.G.M. for the Eastern Division of Wales, summoned a meeting of the Grand Lodge on Monday last at Neath, to assist in preparing a fitting Masonic reception for His Royal Highness. It is proposed to induce His Royal Highness, if possible, to pay a visit to other towns in South Wales on his way.

The Bishop of Truro made a speech last week on the occasion of the opening of the new Working Men's Institute at Fowey, in Cornwall, and said that every Englishman should see Fowey, on account of the beauty of the neighbourhood, and its historical associations. The Christmas number of the "Masonic Magazine" will contain an account of the little mediæval town, from the pen of Bro. Emra Holmes, under the title of "An Unknown Watering Place."

ROYAL POLYTECHNIC.—The educational department of this institution is now the scene of a daily lecture on the science of "Memories," by Professor Stokes. Memories has been for years past a pet subject of Bro. Stokes, and not only as a lecturer is he so well known amongst thinking people, but also as a writer of standard works, bearing on his system of teaching. The Professor is most ably assisted by some young pupils, who fairly surprise their audiences by the rapid and accurate replies they make to the most difficult problems.

ROYAL NORMAL COLLEGE AND ACADEMY OF MUSIC FOR THE BLIND.

An evening entertainment for the pupils of this institution was kindly given in their commodious Hall, on Friday, last by Bro. Magnus Ohren and family, assisted by the Misses Mahood. Invitations were also extended to many residents in the neighbourhood and friends, the hall being fairly filled. The programme was of a popular character and included vocal and instrumental solos and duets, readings, &c. Miss Mahood has a clear and sympathetic voice and sang very charmingly the songs and duets elected. Mrs. Hunter was equally successful; and the Messrs. Ohren also gave some songs that were well received. The choruses by the blind inmates and the audience, was also a pleasing feature in the entertainment.

Bro. Magnus Ohren gave some humorous readings in such a manner as to cause shouts of laughter from one and all, old and young. Altogether the affair gave great satisfaction, and we think it will not be long before Bro. Ohren's kind services will be again in request at the college.

Mr. Campbell, the Secretary and Manager of the institution, in thanking the ladies and gentlemen who had given them the treat that evening, took occasion to refer to the progress of the college; what it had already done, and what it wished to do in the future. They wanted a very considerable sum of money, he said, to complete certain designs connected with the building, and they intended having a large bazaar. They had also got up some very handsome collecting cards, and the Princess Mary, who had always taken the warmest interest in the college, had kindly promised to come down to receive the cards from those ladies who would undertake to collect subscriptions. They had been promised some large sums, and he anticipated, with the patronage and presence of the Princess, the bazaar would realize a considerable amount.

We can only hope that such praiseworthy efforts on behalf of so good an object will meet with the success the promoters desire.

NOTICE.

CHRISTMAS WEEK.

The Freemason for Dec. 28th will be published as usual on Friday morning, Dec. 27th, but the Editor will be glad to receive reports, communications, etc., on the previous Monday, or by the first post on Tuesday morning.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—This lodge met at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Tuesday, the 26th ult. There were present Bros. Charles Diary, W.M.; Rumball, S.W.; Morrison, J.W.; Carter, P.M., Treasurer; W. Stuart, P.M., Secretary; Mallet, I.P.M.; Heaphy, S.D.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, J.D.; Clark, I.G.; Tutley, W.S.; E. Hopwood, P.P.G.S. of Middlesex, P.M.; Themans, P.M.; Longstaffe, Tyler. The minutes of the installation meeting, in October last, having been read and unanimously confirmed, the W.M. with the assistance of his officers most ably passed Bros. Weeden and Nathan to the F.C. Degree, and initiated Mr. George Kendall into Craft mysteries. The W.M. announced that he intended to represent the lodge of Faith, as Steward, at the forthcoming festival in connection with that valuable institution,—the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. He hoped that the brethren would endeavour to assist him to the best of their ability in order that his list of subscriptions should not only do credit to the excellent charitable object which he represented but should be worthy of this old and distinguished lodge. Many of the brethren having responded to this appeal by handing in donations, the lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren separated. There was no banquet.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The December meeting of the above lodge was held on the 9th inst., at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street. The following brethren were present:—Bros. Henry Legge, W.M.; Cohu, P.M., S.W.; Rickwood, J.W.; George Kenning, P.M., Treas.; George Abbott, P.M., Secretary; Lucas, S.D.; J. Lockin, J.D.; Chillingworth, I.G.; Edward Jones, I.P.M.; George Newman, P.M.; J. G. Marsh, P.M.; H. A. Carter, Fisher, Goddard, Dart, Pratt, W. H. Lee, Davies, Organist; T. Agutter, W. Darnell, Robert Clark, John Kent, and other brethren. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. Henry Norris, James Fraser, and Edwin Follett, were raised to the degree of Master Masons. Bros. Thomas Coleman, W. Simms Cobb, and George Cook, were passed to the degree of Fellow Crafts. Bro. Henry Stephenson was elected a joining member. The sum of five guineas was voted from the lodge funds towards the Wentworth Little Memorial Fund, and three guineas to the George Chamber's Testimonial. It was proposed by Bro. Edward Jones, I.P.M., and seconded by Bro. J. G. Marsh, P.M., "That a letter of condolence be sent to the widow of the late S.W., Bro. Frank Fellows." Notice of motion was given by Bro. Edward Jones, I.P.M., "That the sum of five shillings be contributed annually by each member of the lodge for the purpose of forming a Charity Fund, instead of the charity box now in use." The brethren dined together; and the usual toasts were proposed and acknowledged.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday week, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, under the presidency of Bro. S. D. Ewins, W.M.; the officers present were Bros. Dr. Cutmore, S.W., and W.M. elect; E. Kidman, J.W.; W. Drake, S.D.; W. J. Roberts, J.D.; W. F. Smart, I.G.; W. J. Collins, D.C.; Captain Kain, P.M., Treas.; Worrell, Sec.; W. J. Miller, P.M.; George Newman, P.M.; B. Abbott, P.M.; A. K. Braun, P.M.; J. Pringle, P.M.; A. C. Rees; and a large muster of lay brethren, and a goodly company of visitors. After the introductory formalities, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. S. D. Ewins vacated the chair in favour of Past Master Miller, to whom Bro. George Newman presented Bro. Dr. Cutmore for installation. The customary ceremonies having been completed in the Three Degrees, the new Worshipful Master invested the following brethren as his officers for the year ensuing:—Bro. S. D. Ewins, I.P.M.; E. Kidman, S.W.; W. Drake, J.W.; Captain Kain, P.M., Treasurer; W. Worrell, Secretary; J. R. Roberts, S.D.; W. F. Smart, J.D.; W. Collins, I.G.; E. B. Broomhall, D.C.; and George Newman, P.M., Steward. After the delivery of the addresses to the W.M., officers, and brethren, Mr. J. G. Appell was initiated in Freemasonry by the W.M., who, by his performance of the ceremony, gave the fullest promise of discharging his duties efficiently during his year of office. This portion of the lodge work having been discharged, Dr. Cutmore, in the name of the lodge, presented to Bro. S. D. Ewins, I.P.M., a massive gold P.M.'s jewel, of elegant workmanship, which had been unanimously voted to Bro. Ewins by the members of the lodge, in recognition of his ability and courtesy as Master of the lodge from November 1877 to November 1878. The jewel bore the inscription, "Presented by the William Preston Lodge, No. 766, to Bro. Samuel Daniel Ewins, P.M., in appreciation of his eminent services as W.M., and as a token of fraternal regard and esteem, 28th November, 1878." In making the presentation, Dr. Cutmore, after recounting the services of Bro. Ewins in the different capacities in which he had worn the collars of the lodge, informed the brethren that he considered the jewel had been well earned, for Bro. Ewins had set a bright example to the other brethren of the lodge, which he trusted they would not be slow to follow. Every brother of the lodge must have looked on Bro. Ewins with pride while he was W.M., and must have noticed that his best efforts were being directed to advance the interests of the lodge in which he had served, with so much credit to himself and advantage to the brethren. He was sure he was only expressing the sentiments of all the members of the lodge, as well as of himself, when he said he trusted that Bro. Ewins would live long to wear the jewel, and encourage other brethren to make the same endeavours to earn such a high distinction as had been conferred on him that day by his brother Masons. Bro. Ewins, in acknowledging the very handsome present which the brethren had honoured him with, said that the honour conferred upon him would always be looked upon by him with the greatest pride and satisfaction. Although he had been content to pursue a quiet and unobtrusive course, ever since he had entered the lodge, he was much gratified when the dignity of office was first conferred on him, and from that moment he resolved to be a working member, and attain, if he should be spared, that summit of a Freemason's ambition, the Mastership of the lodge. He must have given the brethren satisfaction or he would not have been promoted from office to office by the respective Worshipful Masters. When he reached the chair he determined, so far as he was able, that the lustre of the William Preston Lodge should not be dimmed by his year of office, and the result of that determination was best evidenced by the jewel which now adorned his breast. It would ever be deemed an honour by him to display that adornment in all Masonic assemblies. A jewel of less beauty would have marked the satisfaction of the brethren, but the exquisite workmanship and great value of that with which he had been presented were more than an ordinary testimony of appreciation. He should ever look back with pride on his year of office in the William Preston Lodge, and he hoped his connection with it would be long, and as pleasant both to the brethren and himself as it had been hitherto. Bro. Ewins having resumed his seat amidst loud cheers, Bro. George Newman announced that he had undertaken to represent the lodge as its Steward at the forthcoming annual festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and he trusted that the lodge would support him on that occasion. The lodge then voted the sum of five guineas, to be placed on Bro. George Newman's list, and after closing down, the brethren adjourned to a choice banquet, at which they were headed by the W.M. After banquet had been disposed of, the usual list of toasts was proposed, and the introductory compliments to the Queen and the Craft, the Prince of Wales, the Earl of Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, and the Grand Officers having been duly paid, Bro. Ewins proposed "The Health of the W.M." Speaking to the toast, he said that Bro. Cutmore had obtained the goodwill of the brethren by his kindness, courtesy, and geniality, while he had distinguished himself in his various offices in such a way that the choice by the brethren of him as Master of the lodge was unanimously expressed in his favour. He considered the health of the W.M. was the principal toast of the evening. The brethren had seen how well he had performed the work of the lodge by initiating a new member, and the style in which he had done it was a happy augury of good work during his year of office. His presidency at the banquet table so far had been a great success, and no brother could doubt that under the direction of Bro. Dr. Cutmore the prosperity and success of the William Preston Lodge was assured. The W.M., in thanking the brethren and Bro. Ewins for the toast, also expressed the compliment he felt it that he had been chosen as W.M. They might rest assured that he would endeavour to do credit to their choice, by fulfilling the duties of the chair in as perfect a manner as he was capable of. His object would be to make the working of the lodge as impressive as possible, and with this object in view he hoped the brethren and officers would give him their support. The W.M. next gave "The Health of the Initiate," and said that every one knew that as in nature so in Masonic lodges, everything must come to an end if there was not a constant accession of new blood. He had great pleasure in welcoming the new member who had been introduced into Freemasonry that evening, and hoped that this new member would be the means of stirring up the brethren to new efforts on behalf of the Order. Bro. Appell replied, and said he felt that a very great honour had been conferred upon him by admitting him to such an ancient and respectable society as that of Freemasons. He would ever retain the memory of that beautiful and impressive ceremony he had recently witnessed and been such a prominent figure in. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of Bro. Miller," who, he said, had carried out the whole of the installation ceremony in a most impressive and perfect manner. Bro. Miller, in thanking the brethren, said he was always most heartily received in the William Preston Lodge, and, as a consequence, he felt more at home there than in any other lodge which he was privileged to enter. Since the lodge had met at its present most convenient quarters the number of members had largely increased. He hoped that this prosperity would continue, and that the lodge would always enjoy the distinguished position it at present occupied. He might add, in conclusion, that he was much gratified at thinking that he had been of some service to the lodge in installing the W.M. "The Health of the Visitors" was proposed by Bro. George Newman, who, while tendering them a hearty welcome, trusted that it would be long before it was necessary to omit this toast in the William Preston Lodge. Replies to this toast having been made by each of the guests, the W.M. proposed "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. S. D. Ewins," again complimenting him on his admirable performance of the duties of all the offices he had filled in the lodge in succession. Bro. Ewins, in reply, said: Worshipful Master and brethren, I consider it a very great honour to have the opportunity of replying to so important a toast as that of the Immediate Past Master of the William Preston Lodge. I am desirous of doing my duty in every station of life to which the G.A.O.T.U. may call me, and it was with that view I entered on the various offices I have filled in this lodge, and no less in the office of Worshipful Master. But though I was determined to carry out my duties properly, I must confess that I am glad to be relieved from the distinguished post I have just left. The poet speaks of "the fierce light that beats upon a throne," but, in my opinion, that "fierce light" is nothing to the eyes of all the brethren of a lodge being upon a Worshipful Master. A Master may be pardoned if, in such circumstances, he feels some little nervousness in his position, and I confess that I felt such nervousness on taking the office of your Worshipful Master. However, that is past now, and in the position of Past Master I feel some confidence. In this position I shall, like other Past Masters, be most happy to render the W.M. any assistance that is in my power, and the elegant Past Master's jewel, with which you have presented me, will be an incentive to a further performance of my duties. I hope I shall be able to attend the meetings of the lodge for many years to come, and the happy evenings I have spent here will be an encouragement to me to come amongst the brethren, and participate in those joyous reunions which, for so many years, have taken place in the William Preston Lodge. The other toasts were then given, and the evening, which had been enlivened by some well executed music, came to an end.

HERVEY LODGE (No. 1260).—The December meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. John H. Southwood, W.M., presided, and among the other brethren present were Bros. E. J. Goodacre, S.W.; W. Spalding, J.W.; Dr. Jabez Hogg, P.M. Treas.; Charles Atkins, P.M. Sec.; E. S. Foot, J.D.; Orlando Latreille, I.G.; A. Rosenthal, D.C.; and C. T. Speight, Tyler. The visitors who were entertained were Bros. A. Head, W.M. 27; George Andrews, 1420; A. Hayes, 184; William Darling, 1259; James Terry, P.M. 228; H. G. Buss, A-st. Grand Secretary; Stephen Horncastle, 101 P.M. 15; Samuel L. Maynard P.M. 101; N. Hunt, L'Amitie (Boulogne), John Green, P.M. 27; Fred. C. Hill, 90; and H. Massey (Freemason). There were also a large number of lay members of the lodge in attendance. The work of the lodge consisted of initiating Messrs. Cox, Boughton, Grimwade, and Macpherson. Afterwards Bro. Southwood, W.M., was elected president of the Hervey Lodge Benevolent Fund, and Bro. Dr. Hogg, Southwood, and Charles Atkins, Trustees. Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, was elected an honorary member in consequence of his connection with the Egyptian Bye-Law Benevolent Fund. Subsequently twenty guineas were voted to the list of the W.M. as Steward for the next festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Lodge was then closed and the brethren banqueted together at Freemasons' Tavern, and honoured the customary toasts. In giving the toast of the "Queen and the Craft" the W.M., took occasion to allude to the serious illness of Her Royal Highness the Princess Alice, and reminded the brethren of the time, now seventeen years ago, when the late Prince Consort succumbed to a fatal disease, during the different stages of which the Princess Alice devotedly waited upon her father with the true instincts of a daughter. The W.M., in giving the toast of "The Pro G.M., the Deputy G.M.," said he was extremely pleased to find that the Hervey Lodge had that evening added to its roll of members a Grand Officer who from his activity in the past, and from his juvenile appearance, gave promise of his utility in the future and of giving lustre to the Hervey lodge as he had to that antique lodge the Egyptian. Dr. Hogg, another Past Grand Officer, was also a member of the lodge, and his virtues would be constantly spoken of among the members. He was always endeavouring to benefit society, and brought to that work a vast amount of experience, scientific knowledge, and kindness of heart. Within only a few days past a friend of his (the W.M.) took an afflicted daughter to him, and he no sooner mentioned to him the name of the W.M. of the Hervey Lodge than Dr. Hogg's most kindly sympathies were enlisted on behalf of the child, as if he had known all the family for the last fifty years. Dr. Hogg and Bro. Buss replied, the latter, in the course of his observations, remarking, that it afforded him great gratification, as well as being a source of pride to him, to be elected a member of the Hervey Lodge. He referred to a period when the lodge was not in such a distinguished position as it was at the present time, and highly commended the endeavours which had since then been made to bring the lodge to the foremost rank. In this endeavour the present W.M. had played no unimportant part, for he had steered his ship into safe water, where he (Bro. Buss) hoped it would long remain. The lodge stood now as well as any lodge could stand, and so long as it was under the guidance of the present W.M., and those who would follow in his footsteps, and display the same amount of perseverance, ability, and determination, that everything should be conducted in a proper and methodical style, the lodge would hold its own against all comers. To be elected a member of such a lodge was indeed an honour, and the honour was enhanced by the vote of the brethren being unanimous. Dr. Hogg proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who he said did everything for the lodge deserving of the highest praise. Even that evening he had been again thoughtful with regard to the brethren, and had provided every brother with a present to take home, the married to their wives and families, and the single to their sweethearts. Before the brethren separated they would each have given to them a very handsome box of bonbons for Christmas, which would come round before they met in lodge again. He had displayed during his year of office similar thoughtfulness for the brethren's enjoyment, which must prove to them that the lodge was always in his mind. The fact was that Bro. Southwood was thoroughly desirous of seeing the lodge prosperous. He (Dr. Hogg) had had the pleasure to propose in lodge that they should give twenty guineas to the list of the W.M., who would be steward for the next festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The lodge voted it, and he would inform the brethren that the Hervey Lodge had never given so large an amount before. They had at times given five and ten guineas; but that night they had given twenty guineas, and he hoped that the brethren would supplement that gift by individual donations. In that way they would show their appreciation of the W.M. The W.M. replied, and thanked the brethren for their attention to the work of the lodge. He did not take any credit to himself for what he had done, but when he became Master, two years ago, he determined to do his best to raise the Hervey Lodge to a proud position. He had had during the last twenty months an almost insufferable amount of domestic and professional trouble to overcome, and although he had slipped out of the very hard work of business into the arduous duties of the Master-ship of the lodge, it had been really a work of most agreeable refreshment, and he felt that he came out of the chaos of business into the pleasant sunshine of relaxation. He had endeavoured to impress on the officers and brethren the dignity and responsibility of their professions, and they had acted on what he had inculcated. If he had succeeded in inspiring any member with the spirit he possessed, he should feel amply repaid. He hoped the brethren would follow up their profession by strongly supporting the cause of charity, and if they did he should feel that he had done this much good, that he had succeeded in enlisting a little army of brethren who would carry forward into the future a wholesome, beneficial and profitable example, and make the Craft more respectable during the next generation than it had been before. The W.M., next gave "The Initiates," and delivered to them a wholesome lecture on the work they had entered upon, and how they were to perform it. Each of the initiates responded; and afterwards the visitors were honoured with a toast. Several of those brethren responded. The P.M.'s were duly complimented, as were also the Treasurer and Secretary. Dr. Hogg and Bro. Charles Atkins, acknowledged the toast; after which "The Charities" were remembered. Bro. James Terry made an excellent reply setting forth the great benevolent work those institutions were engaged in, and when he had concluded his observations, in which he thanked the Hervey lodge for what it had already done, and the efforts that were being made to do yet more, the W.M. announced that the list for his Stewardship of the Benevolent Institution already amounted to over £60. After "the Officers" had acknowledged the toast drunk in their honour, the Tyler's toast closed the proceedings, and the brethren on leaving were presented with Bro. Southwood's Christmas present of a large and elegant box of bonbons.

FARRINGTON WITHOUT LODGE (No. 1745).—This lodge met on Monday, the 25th ult., at the Viaduct Hotel, Holborn. There were present Bros. H. A. Dubois, P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, Hon. I.P.M., acting as W.M., in the absence, through very severe illness, of Bro. W. H. Jackson, jun., who holds that position; Charles Jacques, S.W.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.C. of Middlesex, J.W., and Secretary, pro tem. (Freemason); W. Ramsey, P.M., Treasurer; H. J. Lardner, S.D.; M. Samuel, J.D.; Quilter, D.C., acting I.G.; Parkinson, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Wildash, 741; Hart, St. James's Union; Acland, Lodge of Israel. The minutes of the September meeting having been read and confirmed Bros. C. and W. Potter, and C. L. Eberardt, were passed to the F.C. Degree, and Mr. James Strugnell initiated into Craft mysteries. It was proposed, seconded, and carried with acclamation, that a letter of sympathy be forwarded to the W.M. Bro. Jacques, S.W., then gave notice of motion, "That the sum of ten guineas be taken from the lodge funds and placed upon the list of Bro. W. Ramsey, P.M., as Steward for the forthcoming festival in connection with the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls." The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth the customary Royal and Craft toasts were done full justice to. In proposing "The health of the W.M.," Bro. Ramsey said that on that occasion the brethren had a double duty to perform. They had to drink the health of Bro. Dubois, as well as that of Bro. Jackson, their W.M., whose absence from his post was caused by very severe illness. As they had had an opportunity of witnessing the "working" of Bro. Dubois that evening, and as his social qualities were also so well and deservedly known to them, he should not dilate upon that portion of the toast beyond calling upon them to pledge his health most cordially. The well-being of their actual W.M. was a matter of more serious moment, and demanded more than a mere passing thought. He had been informed that their W.M. had had a very narrow escape from the King of Terrors, and even now the subject of his entire recovery to health was not wholly void of concern. In the lodge room, he, Bro. Jackson, had exhibited a thorough knowledge of the responsibilities of his position, and, at the banquet table, he had admirably displayed those social and genial qualities of mind and heart, which were also highly necessary to complete this circle of the Masonic duties of every W.M. who desired to be thought a worthy representative of his high rank. In concluding his speech, (which was throughout a very excellent and feeling one), Bro. Ramsey said he sincerely hoped that at the next meeting they would have an opportunity of not only seeing their W.M., but of hearing the sound of his voice, whilst performing the beautiful ceremonies of their ancient Craft. This toast was received with excellent "fire." Bro. Dubois having responded, then gave "The Initiate," in which he said it had afforded him a very great pleasure at being present that evening, although he deplored the cause which had led to his being called upon to discharge the duties of the chair of K.S. Their candidate that evening had throughout the ceremonial evinced a very commendable attention to the serious matter contained in the initiation ceremony. He believed that their newly made brother would make a very worthy Mason, but at the same time he would impress upon him the necessity of exercising at all times the excellences of Freemasonry, particularly that of Charity in his communion with the outside world. Bro. Strugnell having replied, "The Visitors" followed. Bro. Wildash, in response, expressed the gratification it had afforded him in being present that evening. To him it had been more like a social gathering of old friends and neighbours than the formal meeting of a Masonic lodge. He had been highly delighted with the "working" of the lodge, and pleased with its hospitality which had been most profuse and costly. In concluding a very flattering speech he said he saw no reason why the Farrington Without Lodge, composed as it was of so many excellent Masons and citizens, should not flourish, as one of the best representative Masonic communities in the good old City of London. "The Officers" came next, and was acknowledged by Bro. Jacques, Walls, and Lardner. The brethren shortly afterwards separated. The success of the proceedings was enhanced by the instrumental and vocal contributions of Bro. Hart and others.

SAINT LEONARD LODGE (No. 1766).—The December meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 4th inst., at the Town Hall, Shoreditch. Bro. L. Stean, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. G. T. Barr, S.W.; C. F. Barham, J.W.; C. Stevens, Treas.; E. Benjamin, S.D.; J. A. Jones, J.D.; A. A. Clement, I.G.; H. J. F. Gale, D.C.; R. Marshall, S.; G. C. Young, Organist; and the Secretary. The lodge was opened in ancient form. Messrs. John Tidball, H. J. Thrower, and R. Drysale, were initiated into the mysteries of the Order in a most impressive manner. Messrs. Funston, Henderson, Waynforth, King, and Matthews were passed to the F.C. degree. Bros. E. T. Henman (1243), R. S. Menley (177), and Dr. W. Holt (928) were elected joining members of the lodge. Various matters of business were transacted, and the proceedings were marked with much cordiality throughout. It appears that this new lodge is progressing in a very satisfactory manner.

SUNDERLAND.—Phoenix Lodge (No. 94).—This lodge held its regular monthly meeting on Dec. 4th, in their own hall, Queen-street, the foundation stone of which was laid, in great pomp, on the 5th day of April, 1784, and in the following year it was dedicated on the 5th day of April, 1785, in the presence of upwards of 180 brethren. It was originally called the King George's Lodge, but the former hall was destroyed by fire on the 19th day of November, 1783, and the new hall was raised from its ashes, and then called the Phoenix Lodge. It has just been thoroughly repaired, ventilated, and re-decorated in a most splendid and artistic manner, under the direction and superintendence of the W.M., Bro. W. W. Collie, architect, the painting and decorations being entrusted to our talented townsman, Bro. Geo. Tawse, decorator, &c. The upholstery and cabinet work were entrusted to Bros. P. and F. Maddison. The splendid manner in which the hall has been restored to its old pristine glory, reflects the highest credit on the artistic skill of the Worshipful Master and Bros. G. Tawse and P. and F. Maddison. There was a large attendance of members and visitors, amongst whom were Bros. W. H. Crookes, P.M. 80, and Provincial Grand Secretary; Robt. Hudson, P.M. 949, and P.G.D. of C.; J. Lowes, W.M. 80; D. Huntly, I.P.M. 80; T. Sharp, W.M. 97; G. Lord, P.M. 97; N. Taylor, W.M. 949; G. Hall, I.P.M. 949; G. Grey, P.M. 949; Rev. Walter Beattie, W.M. 1389; J. Nicholson, I.P.M. 1389. The W.M., Bro. W. W. Collie, P.P.G.S. of W., presided. The lodge was opened in the First Degree with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the last general meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for Mr. George Moir, who was duly accepted for initiation. The lodge was then raised to the Second Degree, and Bro. J. S. Pearson, P.M., and P.P.G.P., took the chair, and installed Bro. Mark Frampton in the chair of K.S., in a very able and effective manner. The W.M. then invested his officers, viz.:—Bros. Ephraim Sutherest, S.W.; J. Smart, J.W.; John Rixborough, Treas.; J. J. Stiles, Sec.; John Hudson, S.D.; Ric. Urison, J.D.; H. Nicholson, I.G.; J. W. Brown, Tyler; Wm. Bailes and Bell, Stewards. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The usual Masonic toasts were given, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Priory Lodge (No. 1000).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 5th inst., at the Middleton Hotel. This being the annual election of the W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler for the ensuing year, a large number of brethren were present, including V.W. Bro. Rev. S. K. Wigram, P.M. and P.Z., P.G. Chap., I.P.M., acting W.M.; Bros. Rev. H. J. Hatch, P.M. 160, P.P.G. Chap., acting S.W.; J. C. Johnstone, P.M. 20 (I.C.), J.W.; J. A. Wardell, P.M. 160 and 1000, P.P.G.D., Sec.; G. F. Jones, S.D.; G. Berry, J.D.; Thos. Barrett, I.G.; F. D. Grayson, D.C.; A. Martin, Tyler; A. Lucking, P.M. 160, P.M. and P.Z. 1000, Prov. G.D.C., acting I.P.M.; J. W. Harris, P.M., P.P.A.G.D.C.; W. S. Cox, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; J. R. Hemmann, P.M., P.P.G.D.; W. D. Meritt, L. Warren, W. Griffin, A. F. Godward, W. Wallis, W. Waterhouse, H. Hicks, J. G. Glasscock, S. M'Call Walker, H. Beecher, B. Johnstone, W. Popplewell, H. Hassell, J. English, W. Allen, jun., W.M. 160; H. Luker, F. Canton, G. R. Dawson, O. Bentall, and C. Eltham. Visitors:—Bros. Dr. S. W. Fisher, J.W. 379, and J. W. Farr, 1536. After the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, the acting W.M. passed Bro. M'Call Walker to the Second Degree. The brethren then proceeded to elect the W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler, when Bro. J. C. Johnstone, P.M. 20 (I.C.), J.W., was elected W.M., F. Wood, P.M., P.P.S. G.W., re-elected Treasurer, A. Martin re-elected Tyler. After the transaction of some other business, the lodge was closed, and adjourned to the 9th January, when Bro. J. C. Johnstone will be installed as W.M.

YORK.—Eboracum Lodge (No. 1611).—The annual installation banquet of this young and prosperous lodge was held at the Queen's Hotel, on Monday, the 25th ult., and was well attended. The dinner was of an excellent character, reflecting every credit upon the host, Bro. H. Churchill. The W.M., Bro. J. S. Cumberland, occupied the chair, supported by the following members of the lodge: Bros. T. B. Whythead, I.P.M., P.G.D.C.; T. Cooper, P.M. 1611, and P.M. 236, P.P.G.D.C.; P. H. Rowland, P.M. 237, P.P.G.J.W.; R. W. Hollow, P.M. 236, P.G.S.B. England; C. G. Padel, S.W.; J. T. Seller, J.W.; J. Kay, Sec.; M. Millington, S.D.; T. D. Smith, J.D.; G. Simpson, M.C.; A. T. B. Twiner, Asst. M.C.; G. H. Simpson, Org.; J. Blenkir, I.G.; W. Hill, Stwd.; G. H. Hebblethwaite, Stwd.; C. Blackstone, G. D. Goodall, J. R. Jackson, J. E. Wilkinson, P. H. Matthews, H. Churchill, T. E. Abbey, M. Varvill, J. Morgan, R. Ware, G. C. Lee, and J. Pearson, Tyler. The special guests of the lodge were Bros. W. Valentine, W.M. 236, P.P.G.C.; G. C. Baskett, S.W. 236; A. Buckle, J.W. 236; J. Hanly, W.M. elect 295 (I.C.) W. Harris, Sec. 295; J. B. Somerset, I.G. 295; and C. Cheeseman, W.M. 1605; and the following visiting brethren were also present: Bros. J. Todd, P.M. 236, Prov. G. Reg.; R. Boggett, P.M. 1605; M. Rooke, 236; W. H. Sampson, 236; W. T. Gowland, 236; C. Abbott, 236; G. W. Flint, 1429; C. Winn, 938; Meek, T. M. Richey, F. G. Bellinger, and others. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, Bro. R. W. Hollow responding to that of "The Grand Lodge," and Bro. J. Todd to that of "The Prov. Grand Lodge." Bro. T. B. Whythead then gave "The Health of the W.M.," which was received with great heartiness. He said that after a very long absence from England he had returned four years ago, a Mason, to make many pleasant acquaintances, and none more so than that of the W.M., with whom he had been associated intimately in Masonry during that period, and he knew no brother who stood second to Bro. Cumberland in point of Masonic zeal and a true fraternal spirit. He was very proud to have had the honour and privilege of installing him as W.M. of a lodge of which he was one of the first founders, and he wished him health, strength, and a happy term of office. In responding, the W.M. thanked the brethren for their good wishes, and said he would take that early opportunity of saying that he hoped great care would be exercised in the proposal of candidates. Brethren should remember that they had not themselves alone to consult in this matter, but that they must remember the comfort and pleasure of the other members of the lodge, and never attempt to introduce anyone as a candidate whose presence they did not think would contribute to the universal happiness and harmony of the lodge. The W.M. then proposed "The I.P.M. and Installing Master, Bro. T. B. Whythead," which was very warmly received, and suitably responded to, Bro. Whythead thanking the brethren very cordially for their strong support during his happy year of office, and expressing a hope that it might be extended with the same warmth to his successor. "Prosperity to the Eboracum Lodge" was proposed by Bro. Valentine, W.M. of the York Lodge, 236, who spoke of the gratification with which he noticed the progress of the lodge, and above all the excellent manner in which it was ruled and conducted. If he had ever had a doubt on the question, it would have been removed at this time, but he had always held that the establishment of the Eboracum Lodge was a right and proper step, and he wished it every success. "The Sister Lodges of the Province" was proposed by Bro. T. B. Whythead, and replied to by Bro. Buckle, J.W. of the York Lodge, 236. Bro. Buckle, in the course of his remarks, said that he thought Masons too often lost sight of that part of their duty which came under the head of charity. Charity did not consist only in giving. "Though I give all my goods to feed the poor and have not charity, I am nothing," said a very old Divine. There was the charity which tried to hide the faults of a brother, which put a kind construction on his actions, which hoped the best and believed the best, and was not carping and anxious to display the foibles and weaknesses of others. This he maintained was real charity—not to lose sight of the actual practical "giving," but to look to higher aims, and to work out the real meaning of the word "charity" in its highest sense. Bro. C. G. Padcl, S.W. 1611, proposed "The Visiting Brethren," congratulating the members of the lodge upon the constant numbers of visitors whom they had the pleasure of so frequently entertaining. Bro. G. C. Baskett, S.W. 236, and Bro. Hanly, S.W. 295, responded. The W.M. proposed "The Wardens and Officers of the Lodge," to which the Wardens responded. Bro. Rowland, P.M., proposed "The Masonic Charities" in happy terms, to which the W.M. responded. Bro. Rowland took occasion to state the large amount this very young lodge had already given in the way of sending up stewards with good lists, and rejoiced to know that a continuance in well doing was contemplated. Bro. T. D. Smith, J.D., proposed "The Ladies," and Bro. M. Varvill and A. T. B. Turner responded. The Tyler's toast then brought a very happy evening to a conclusion. The toast list was well worthy of notice as a work of lithographic art. It bore a series of appropriate mottos, selected from the ancient charges and regulations, and on the first page was a photograph of an ancient Masonic flagon, the property of the Eboracum Lodge, the original occupying a prominent position in front of the W.M., and being used as a loving cup in the course of the banquet. Some capital songs varied the proceedings, contributed by Bros. Blagbro, Wilkinson, Dodd, Cheeseman, and Flint, Bro. G. H. Simpson, Organist, effectively presiding at the pianoforte.

On Monday last there was a large attendance of members of this lodge, when the W.M., Bro. J. S. Cumberland, presided; there were also present Bros. T. B. Whythead, I.P.M.; C. G. Padcl, S.W.; J. T. Seiler, J.W.; G. Balenford, P.M. Treas.; J. Kay, Sec.; T. Humphries, Asst. Sec.; M. Millington, S.D.; T. D. Smith, J.D.; A. T. B. Turner, Asst. M.C.; J. Blenkin, I.G.; Wm. Hill, Steward, and many other members. A successful ballot was taken for a candidate, and the lodge having been opened in the Third Degree, Bro. W. J. Girling was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason. The lodge having been lowered again, Bro. T. B. Whythead presented to the lodge a copy of the beautifully prepared memorial volume of the grand banquet given at Freemasons' Hall, by Bro. Geo. Kenning, to the American Pilgrims in July, and also a copy of Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry. He also said that he should like to suggest the formation, in connection with the lodge, of a Masonic Literary and Archaeological Society. Such an association had been worked very successfully in Thirsk by some of the members of the Falcon Lodge, who were fortunate in having as their Organist Bro. J. T. Wilkinson, the W.M. elect, at whose installation on Thursday, he (Bro. Whythead) hoped to be present. But although they had no such able brother to lead them, he still thought that great good would result from the formation of an association. In York itself there was ample material for a society of that kind to work upon for many a pleasant day in the fine weather. The W.M. highly approved of the suggestion, and thought that the movement would tend to the formation of an additional pleasing bond of union between the members. Several other members expressed approval, and a Committee was appointed to carry out the idea. The W.M. made a few remarks as to the importance of accuracy in working, and said he purposed calling a lodge of instruction together shortly. The Eboracum Lodge had already attained a celebrity for good work, and he hoped that good reputation would be maintained.

HAMPTON WICK.—Wolsey Lodge (No. 1656).—This prosperous provincial lodge held its regular meeting on Monday, the 2nd inst., when there were present a very considerable number of the brethren, amongst whom were Bros. S. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, &c., W.M.; Bond, P.P.G.D.C. of Surrey, S.W.; the Rev. F. J. C. de Crespigny P.P.G.C. of Middlesex, Chaplain, and J.W.; J. Hammond, P.G.S. of Middlesex, Hon. I.P.M.; Baldwin, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, Hon. P.M.; Ockenden, Secretary; Honeywell, Hon. Organist; J. Hurst, J.D.; T. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, I.G.; Gilbert, Prov. G. Tyler of Middlesex, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Drummond, was passed as a F.C., and Bros. Handel and Bonell, raised to the degree of M.M. The ceremonies were performed by the W.M. with his usual ability. The names of three candidates were on the agenda for initiation, but through unavoidable circumstances they were all prevented from attending. A notice of motion by Bro. Walls as to the advisability of altering the day of meeting from the first to the second Monday was adjourned until the next regular meeting. Bro. Ockenden was unanimously appointed as Steward, to represent the lodge at the next festival in connection with the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and the sum of ten guineas from the lodge funds will head his list. Several minor matters having been satisfactorily disposed of the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent collation. The visitors were Bros. Davey and Chilcott, both of 1512. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave briefly, but most pertinently, the royal and Craft toasts which were duly honoured. Bro. Walls having responded on behalf of "The Provincial Grand Officers," Bro. Baldwin in a few well chosen sentences proposed the health of "The W.M." The W.M., having briefly replied, gave in very happy terms "The Visitors," which was acknowledged in a humorous speech by Bro. Chilcott. In giving "The Officers" the W.M. specially alluded to the services of Bro. T. W. Ockenden, the Secretary, and F. Honeywell the honorary Organist. The proceedings throughout were most eminently successful, and the brethren adjourned until the first Monday in February next, highly pleased with the instruction and pleasing entertainment that had been provided for them.

LIVERPOOL.—Kirkdale Lodge (No. 1756).—The members of this, the youngest lodge in the province of West Lancashire, consecrated on the 8th ult. with so much promise of a successful existence, fairly got to work on the evening of their day of meeting, the fourth Wednesday in the month, at the Skelmersdale Masonic Hall, Westminster-road, Kirkdale, Liverpool, where there was a good muster of Masons, embracing several prominent visitors as well as members. The lodge was opened in ample form by Bro. Edward Johnston, the W.M., who was supported and assisted by the following officers:—Bros. Charles Bromley, P.M.; R. E. Milton, Treasurer; William Gick, S.W.; Hugh Ferguson, J.W.; James Grierson, Secretary; Charles Bargery, S.D.; T. Hay, J.D.; Henry Alexander, I.G.; W. S. West, Henry Marshall, and Geo. Marsden, Stewards; and Williamson, Tyler. The minutes of the consecration meeting, as well as those which had been held in connection with the formation of the lodge, were read and unanimously confirmed. After this part of the work had been concluded, twenty-eight brethren were elected, nem. con., as joining members, and eight candidates, unanimously elected as a result of the ballot, being all in attendance, were initiated into Freemasonry, a special dispensation having been obtained for this large number from Bro. the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Dep. G.M. of Eng., R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire. The ceremony of initiation was most ably and admirably performed by Bro. E. Johnston, W.M., who is well-known for his Masonic zeal and ability, the assistant officers and Deacons also showing great proficiency in their several spheres. The by-laws of the lodge were afterwards considered and adopted, subject to the approval of the P.G.M., and three new joining members were duly proposed during the evening. In reply to the W.M., Bro. R. Milton, the Treasurer, stated that he was not at that moment in a position to give a list of all the donations to the lodge, but he (Bro. Milton) was exceedingly proud to be able to say that, notwithstanding the great expense which had been incurred in connection with the consecration of the lodge, they were even, at that early period in their history, entirely free from debt. After this most gratifying and eminently creditable announcement, the lodge was closed in peace, and the members and visitors adjourned, for refreshments, to the banquetting-room, where harmony prevailed to the greatest extent. The new lodge has thus had a most auspicious beginning, and there is no doubt it will fully maintain the high character which is possessed by so many Masonic bodies of a similar kind in Liverpool and throughout the extensive province of West Lancashire.

INSTRUCTION.

UNION WATERLOO LODGE (No. 13).—The annual banquet of the above prosperous lodge took place on Friday evening, the 6th inst., at the Lord Raglan, Burrage-road, Plumstead, some sixty-five brethren assembling round the hospitable and elegantly served board. Bro. G. Davis, P.M. 13, one of the Preceptors, filled the chair, supported by Bros. Macdonald, P.M., and co-Preceptor with Bro. Davis; Bros. Hutton, S.W. 13; N. Brown, J.W. 13; H. Syer, Sec. 13; G. Deans, I.G. 13; W. Lloyd, S.W. 913; H. Wetherill, P.M. 166 (I.C.); R. Hodgkinson, P.M. 13; G. Beaver, I.G. 700; C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason); and others. The following lodges were well represented: Union Waterloo, Pattison, United Military, Nelson, and Henley. Bro. Rowley, 1636, was placed in the East, and Bro. T. Hassell in the South. The W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. He then rose to give that which he called the toast of the evening, "Success and Prosperity to the Union Lodge of Instruction," and said that during the four years of its existence, it had been the means of teaching Masonry in its fullest sense to a great many old Masons, who thought they knew all about it, and to a number of young Masons, who heard there, in the Lectures and Sections, what they, perhaps, might never hear in their regular lodges, and many of them could do the work in a manner that was highly creditable both to themselves and the lodge. He felt that a great good must arise, from a perfect knowledge, not only of the ritual, that was to say, the simple text of it, but the meaning of it as well. In their Lodge of Instruction the whole of the beautiful symbolism of the Craft was illustrated, and made plain to them, so that they could not only see the working of a lodge carried out, but could understand what they heard and saw, and that he considered to be the best foundation for all Masonic knowledge, truth, and fidelity. During the last year there had been 549 attendances, at forty-eight meetings, giving an average of a little over twelve at each meeting. That, he thought, was something to congratulate themselves upon. Then they were in a sound financial position, and had qualified the lodge as a Life Governor to the Masonic Benevolent Institution, and he hoped some day to have to announce that the lodge was a Life Governor of all the Masonic Charitable Institutions. He hoped those brethren present who were not members, and had not seen the working of the lodge, would soon join it, as he felt sure they would never regret the step they had taken. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Macdonald, their first and most respected Preceptor. Bro. Macdonald, in response, thanked them for the honour done him, and rejoiced with them in the prosperity of the lodge. He regretted, however, that his health had not permitted of his attending their meetings so often, during the past year, as he should have liked to have done, on account of a serious illness that had overtaken him, and the effects of which he felt for some time afterwards, and he was afraid that he could not promise them too much in the coming year, as he had removed from Peckham to Brixton, and they could readily appreciate the difficulties of travelling from there to Woolwich and back. However, they might depend upon him for any important event, such, for instance, as a gathering like the present, where the Fourth Degree had been so admirably worked by them all. He was pleased to see so many new faces present, and to hear from their W.M. how prosperously the lodge was going on. He considered that it ought even to do better, for Woolwich was a veritable hotbed of Freemasonry. At his lodge, the night previous, the Star Lodge of Instruction, he was able to announce an average attendance for the last year of 21½, and a very old Mason told him that that was a great average for a London lodge. He was pleased to see so good an attendance that night, and felt sure that under the able guidance of their good Preceptor, Bro. Davis, they would go on and prosper. All they wanted was a little more money, and a little more attendance, and then they would take their proper position among the lodges of instruction of the metropolis. Bro. Macdonald concluded by proposing "The Health of their W.M., Bro. Davis," and soon after left the room amid honours. Bro. Davis returned thanks, and assured them of his intention to carry out his duties in the future as in the past. "The Visitors" were then toasted, and the toast acknowledged. Bro. Cleal, the Secretary for the ensuing year, was then complimented, and Bro. Hassell for his efforts in the past. A warm reception of Bro. Serjeant-Major Rowley's name, of the United Military Lodge, followed the mention of it, as their S.W. that night, and for the services rendered by him in the lodge, and that brother briefly returned thanks. "The Masonic Press" was coupled with the name of our representative, who returned thanks, and after Bro. Tucker had been complimented upon his efforts for the comfort of the brethren, a verse of "God Save the Queen" concluded a pleasant evening.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, Wandsworth, on Wednesday, the 11th inst., when Bro. F. Reed, presided as W.M.; Bro. J. Frost, as S.W.; and Bro. J. J. Holland as J.W. There was only a small attendance of brethren, many of them being present at a committee formed for the purpose of giving a gratuitous dinner to 200 poor women and children on Christmas Day.

Royal Arch.

St. JAMES'S CHAPTER (No. 2).—This, the first English Chapter, held its first meeting of the season on Monday week last. It was well attended, and some very excellent work was gone through by its M.E.Z., Erasmus Wilson, assisted by his officers E. Comps. Brodie and Middleton, and P. S. Comp. Litchworth. Among the companions present we noticed Comps. Lt.-Col. Stuart, Creation, Stephen Pearce, Wood, Woodford, Whipcord, Gover, Captain Davis, Hewett, Rodicue, Rivington, and Muggeridge. Some routine business having been disposed of, the meeting adjourned to the social circle, when a most enjoyable evening was passed. The companions separated at an early hour.

DOMATIC CHAPTER (No. 177).—This old and prosperous chapter held its last convocation at Anderton's Hotel on the 28th ult. There were present, amongst other companions, Comps. J. Weaver, M.E.Z.; Hill, H.; T. Adams, P.Z.; Acting J.; Bolton, P.Z.; Cubitt, P.Z.; Payne, P.Z.; Cottebrune, P.Z., S.E.; Lawrence, S.N.; Harrison, P.S.; Briggs, 1st Asst.; G. Everett, Ambrose, Bolton, Fountain, Ford, and others. The visitors were Comps. T. C. Walls, P.G.O. of Middlesex (Freemason); and Collier, S.N. 749. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. J. Jones, 177, and having been declared unanimous, he was duly exalted to the Sublime Degree of the Royal Arch. The ceremony was performed with that attention to detail and correctness of ritual which has always characterised the "working" of this chapter. Upon the motion of Comp. Cubitt, P.Z., which was duly seconded, and carried with acclamation, the sum of five pounds was voted to the fund for the proposed Wentworth Little Memorial, which good object, however, is not progressing so rapidly as many of the admirers and friends of the late deservedly popular Mason could wish. The Chapter having been closed, the companions adjourned to the banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth, the M.E.Z. vacated his seat in favour of Comp. Cottebrune, who ably presided during the remainder of the proceedings. The long, but necessary, array of formal toasts having been briefly proposed and responded to, "The Health of the Exalted" was warmly given by the acting First Principal, in which he congratulated Comp. Jones upon having entered the mysterious portals of the Royal Arch Degree, and from the profound attention which he had manifested throughout the ceremonial he (the acting First Principal) believed that this new step in Masonry had created an impression which he hoped would never be effaced from his memory. This toast having been warmly received, Comp. Jones, in reply, briefly said that he esteemed it a very great honour in having been exalted in the chapter attached to his mother lodge, and he hoped that he should always continue to be thought worthy of the great honour that they had accorded him, by exalting him to this ancient and most interesting degree. "The Visitors" followed, and was duly acknowledged by Comps. Collier and Walls. "The Second and Third Principals" came next, and was replied to by Comp. Hill, in the absence of his colleague. In giving "The Past Principals," the acting M.E.Z. warmly eulogised the great services rendered by those distinguished companions, some of whom held very high positions in the Royal Arch Degree. He felt sorry that several of the oldest Past Principals were absent, but as some of them were advanced in years, it was not to be expected that they could be present on all occasions. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," Comp. Cubitt responded. "The Treasurer and Scribe E.," and "The Officers" brought the official proceedings to a termination. In the intervals of the toasts several of the companions contributed some excellent harmony.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Chapter (No. 1503).—This new provincial chapter met after its long recess at the Albany Hotel, on Wednesday the 27th ult. Amongst those present were Comps. W. Wigginton, P.G.S.N. of Middlesex, M.E.Z.; Tomlinson, H., Cama, P.G.S.B. of Middlesex; C. Horsley, P.P.G.S. of Middlesex, P.Z. Royal Middlesex, Treasurer &c.; H. Court, S.E.; S. H. Knaggs, S.N.; H. Court, jun. 1st Asst.; T. C. Walls, P.G.O. Middlesex, 2nd Asst.; Harrison, Janitor. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken on behalf of Bro. C. Clark, 1503, and found to be unanimous, but in consequence of indisposition he was prevented from attending to be exalted. This night being the annual election convocation the ballot was taken for the officers for the ensuing year, and produced the following result: Comps. Tomlinson, M.P.Z.; Cama, H.; S. H. Knaggs, J.; H. Court, Sen. S.E.; W. Taylor, S.N.; H. Court, jun. P.S.; and C. Horsley, Treas. The show of hands was in favour of Comp. Harrison, as Janitor. There being no other business before the chapter it was closed in ancient form, and the companions adjourned to an excellent collation. The preliminary toasts having been done full justice to "The R.W.P.G.S. of Middlesex, and the rest of the Grand Officers present and past," was proposed in very warm terms, by the M.E.Z., coupled with the names of Comps. Horsley and Walls, who briefly acknowledged the compliment. In giving the health of "The M.E.Z." Comp. Horsley congratulated the chapter upon possessing so able and distinguished a Mason at their head as Comp. Wigginton undoubtedly was. He had had the pleasure of witnessing his working at the last convocation, and as an old Royal Arch Mason it had afforded him (Comp. Horsley) the very highest gratification in hearing the ritual delivered with so much elocutionary ability. He was sorry that through untoward circumstances there had been no exaltation that evening, because it was the last night of the M.E.Z.'s occupancy of the chair, and he felt sure that they would have liked to have seen the ceremony once more performed by him. In concluding his remarks he hoped that this excellent first principal would be spared many years to come amongst them, not only to assist in the working, but to give the chapter the benefit of his great masonic counsel. This toast having been warmly received the M.E.Z. replied in a few well chosen sentences and quickly gave "The second and third principals," "The Treasurer and Scribe E." and "The Officers," which were acknowledged by the representatives of those officials present. The Janitor's toast at an early hour terminated the proceedings.

Knights Templar.

YORK.—Ancient Ebor Preceptory (No. 101).—The regular meeting of this body was held at York on Tuesday, E. Sir Knt. T. B. Whythead, P.E.P., S. Captain of Guards, presiding. Comp. Millington, of the Paradise Chapter, 139, was installed a Knight of the Order, and Lord Skelmersdale, G. Prior of England, Colonel S. H. Clerke, Sub-Prior of England, and Colonel Macleod-Moore, Great Prior of Canada, were elected honorary members of the Preceptory. The registrar announced that in compliment to the brilliant reception accorded to the American Pilgrims by the Knights Templar of York, the Mary Commandery had resolved that the E. Preceptor for the time being for ever, of Ancient Ebor Preceptory, should rank as an honorary member of Mary Commandery. Sir Knight Ward presented to the Preceptory a massive and valuable mahogany dining table, and Sir Knight Whythead presented a copy of Bro. Kenning's memorial volume of his banquet to the American Pilgrims. A guinea from the Benevolent Fund was voted to the list of E. Sir Knt. T. C. Oper, who will act as a Steward at the next Benevolent Festival.

Red Cross of Constantine.

COCKERMOUTH.—Dyke's Conclave (No. 36).—The quarterly assembly of this conclave was held on Friday, the 29th ult., in the Freemasons' Hall, Station-street. The following members answered to their names on the roll being called: Em. Sir Kts. T. Mandle, M.P.S.; R. Robinson, P.S.; E. Tyson, P.S.; W. Shilton, P.S., as S.G.; W. F. Lamonby, P.S. and Orator, as Prefect and H.P. (Freemason); R. Bailey, V.E.; Sir Kts. Jas. Quay, as J.G.; W. H. Lewthwaite, Treas. and Org.; J. Gardiner, Recorder; H. Peacock, Herald; H. Moncreiff, Almoner; Jos. Hewson, Sentinel; Stephen Thwaite, and others. The conclave having been opened, the minutes of the annual assembly were read and confirmed. Bro. George Dalrymple, of St. John's Lodge, No. 252, Thornhill, Scotland, Lewis Lodge, No. 872, Whitehaven, and Arlecon Lodge, No. 1660, Frizington, was then accepted as a candidate for installation, and he was duly installed, proclaimed, and invested a Knight of the Order, the ceremony being most effectively performed by Em. Sir Kt. E. Tyson, P.S., whilst the historical oration was delivered by the acting H.P. In accordance with a notice of motion, it was unanimously agreed to hold a concert and ball next February, in conjunction with Skiddaw Craft Lodge, No. 1002, and Faithful Mark Lodge, No. 229. A Committee of Sir Knights was appointed to work with the other bodies. The conclave was then closed.

The Christmas number of the "Masonic Magazine" will be ready on Monday next, December 16th, price 1s. The publisher will be glad to receive any orders at the office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF FORFAR AND ANGUS.

On Tuesday, Dec. 3rd, a meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Forfar and Angus was held at the Queen's Hotel, Dundee, for the purpose of installing Lord Inverurie, Lord Roschill, Lord Carnegie, and other office bearers.

The Supreme Grand Chapter was represented by Bro. J. Whyte-Melville, P.G.Z.; Bro. R. S. Brown, Z. 83; Bro. Shaw Stewart, 1; and Bro. L. Mackersy, G.S.E.

Bro. Whyte-Melville, who presided, opened the chapter in due form, and the installation was afterwards proceeded with as follows:—Lord Inverurie, Superintendent; Lord Carnegie, Provincial J.; Comp. M'Farland, Scribe E.; Comp. Henry, Scribe M.; Comp. W. Longmuir, Treas.; Comp. James Doig (Montrose), Recorder; Comp. C. B. Pibbado, Chancellor; Comp. H. A. Noble, First Sojourner; Comp. A. Morrison, Second Sojourner; Comp. J. P. Gruer (Montrose), Third Sojourner; Comp. James Bremner, Sword Bearer; Comp. J. H. Mackay, Superintendent of Works; Comp. C. W. French, First Standard Bearer; Comp. John Morris, Second Standard Bearer; and Comp. John Young, Janitor.

Lord Roschill, being at present on the Continent, will be installed P.G.H. on his return.

On the conclusion of the installation ceremony the companions attended a banquet. Superintendent Lord Inverurie presided, and Comp. J. H. Mackay was croupier. The Chairman was supported on the right and left by Lord Carnegie, Bros. Whyte-Melville, Shaw Stewart, R. S. Brown, Alexander Kelt, William M'Farland, &c. Over forty companions of the province attended. After the usual loyal toasts the noble Chairman gave "The Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland," coupled with Comp. Brown, who replied, congratulating the province on the selection they had made of Superintendent. Comp. Shaw Stewart next gave "The Provincial Grand Chapter of Forfar and Angus," coupled with Lord Inverurie. His Lordship, in responding, returned thanks for the high honour conferred upon him. Lord Carnegie called for a bumper for "The Chapters in the Province," coupled with Companion Mackay, Z. (164), who replied. The Chairman then gave the "Health of Comp. Captain Adams, of the Arctic," who suitably acknowledged the compliment. Comp. M'Farland subsequently proposed the "Health of the noble Chairman," and expressed the hope that the chapter would prosper under his Lordship's Superintendship. The toast was rapturously acknowledged.

Lord Inverurie, in replying, thanked the chapter for placing him in the position of Superintendent, and trusted to the support of the companions in making the chapter the best in Scotland. Having to leave for the train, his Lordship vacated the chair, which was taken by Comp. M'Farland.

A very happy evening was spent with song and sentiment, and the banquet, for the excellence of which Mr. Smith was specially complimented by Lord Inverurie, gave the greatest satisfaction.

The Installation meeting of the Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1572, was held on Saturday last, at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. Bro. Thomas Stacey Hellier was installed W.M. for the ensuing year by Bro. James Cowan, I.P.M. A report of the proceedings is in type and will appear in our next.

Bro. Sir Edmund Lechmere, M.P., R.W.G.M. Worcester, and Lady Lechmere, have returned to London from a visit to Cyprus.

The Annual Ball in aid of the Builders' Benevolent Institution will be held at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's, on Thursday, January 30th, 1879.

Sir William Jenner, by command of her Majesty, left London on Tuesday evening for Hesse-Darmstadt, to attend the Grand Duchess, who is suffering from diphtheria.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL.—The Committee of the National Hospital for Diseases of the Heart and Paralysis, Soho-square, send an earnest appeal for assistance towards paying the heavy expenses for repairs, etc., to the hospital. During the past year 8044 attendances of poor patients was registered. The Committee are enabled to receive a larger number of in-patients, if the funds meet the outlay, and it is their intention to open further wards. Donations, etc., may be sent to the Treasurer, the Earl of Glasgow, at the hospital, or to the bankers, Messrs. Barclay, Bevan, and Co., or Sir Samuel Scott and Co.

The consecration meeting of the Kennington Royal Arch Chapter, No. 1381, will be held at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, on Thursday next, the 19th inst., at half-past four o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by E. Comp. James Terry, P.Z., assisted by other distinguished companions. The Principals designate are Comps. George Everett, Z.; C. J. Page, H.; and Wm. Mann, J.

The consecration of the Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1780, took place on Friday, at the Masonic Hall, Bugle-street, Southampton, the ceremonies being conducted by Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., R.W. Prov. Grand Master. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

Comp. E. H. Thiellay was installed M.E.Z. of the Prudent Brethren Chapter, No. 145, on Tuesday last. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

Brethren of the "mystic tie" will be glad to hear of the early issue of that ever-welcome guide, the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar" for the ensuing year, published by Bro. George Kenning, of Masonic fame. Next to the Book of Constitutions and the bye-laws of each lodge, no book is so necessary as Kenning's Calendar, the chief object of which is, that it is so reliable.—Brief, Dec. 13th.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The marriage of Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master, with his cousin, Miss Elizabeth Catherine Howard, eldest daughter of Mr. Henry Howard, of Greystoke Castle, Cumberland, will be solemnised on the 26th inst., at Greystoke.

Miss Hopekirk, niece of Bro. Walter Hopekirk, made a very successful debut as a pianist, in Germany, on the 28th ult. We quote the following from our contemporary the Daily News. "All lovers of music in Edinburgh will be pleased to hear of the successful appearance on November 28th of our young townswoman, Miss Helen Hopekirk, at one of the celebrated Leipzig Gewandhaus Concerts. In being selected to play before this critical and exclusive audience, Miss Hopekirk has won the musical 'blue ribbon' of Leipzig, and brings her course of musical study in Germany to a close with the highest possible testimonial to its success. The honour of performing at a Gewandhaus Concert is considered a great one even by artists of no mean reputation, and is only in very exceptional cases conferred, as now, upon a pupil at the Conservatorium. Miss Hopekirk was specially invited by the director to return to Leipzig for a short time this winter in order to play at this concert. She now goes to England immediately to commence her professional career there."

The annual convocation of the Royal Arch Province of Cumberland and Westmorland has been postponed till Tuesday, the 14th of January, in consequence of the winter session of Parliament.

Bro. J. D. Alcroft, M.P., P.M. 1657, has promised £500 towards establishing a free library at Worcester.

The Worshipful Company of Drapers have given a donation of £21 to the funds of the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum.

SHIRLEY LODGE, No. 1112.—Bro. F. H. McCalmont, barrister, Senior Warden of this lodge for the past year, and a Past Prov. Grand Officer of Oxon, has been unanimously elected the W.M. of the lodge, which is held in one of the suburbs of Southampton, for the year ensuing.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught has been appointed by the Emperor of Germany honorary colonel of the Brandenburg Ziethen regiment of Hussars, the commander of which is Prince Charles Frederick of Prussia.

The Post Office Authorities have issued the following table, showing the days on which the mails for Australia and New Zealand, via San Francisco, will be despatched from London during the ensuing year: Thursday, January 2; Thursday, January 30; Thursday, February 27; Thursday, March 27; Thursday, April 24; Thursday, May 23; Thursday, June 19; Thursday, July 17; Thursday, August 14; Thursday, September 11; Thursday, October 9th; Thursday, November 7; and Thursday, December 4.

The Rectory of Swillington, near Leeds, vacant by the preferment of Archdeacon Dealtry, has been given by Sir Charles Lowther to the Rev. George Edmund Fox, vicar of St. John the Evangelist, Kilburn.

Her Majesty will leave Windsor Castle on Tuesday next for Osborne, where the Royal family intend spending Christmas. The Queen is expected to stay at Osborne till about the commencement of February, when the marriage of the Duke of Connaught takes place at Windsor Castle, where, during the absence of the court in the Isle of Wight, preparations will be made for the Royal nuptials.

On December 31, at midnight, the normal hour is to be fixed throughout Sweden. All the Government railway and telegraph clocks are to be set simultaneously. In some places, as for instance, in Stockholm, the clocks will have to be put back as much as 12 minutes.

NEW WATERLOO STATION.—The opening of the New Waterloo Station of the London and South-Western Railway, which has been erected in order to accommodate the main line suburban traffic, will take place on Monday next.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR, Diary, and Pocket-book. London: Bro. G. Kenning, Fleet-street.—This annual, the previous issues of which have received favourable criticism at our hands, is again published. Its contents embrace a List of Lodges, Chapters, K.T. Encampments, Conclaves, and Grand Councils, with the names of officers in England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, United States, France, Germany, Italy, &c. The charge at the initiation and the well-known Entered Apprentice's Song are also printed, in addition to other matter of especial value to the Masonic community. No one inexperienced in the compilation of a work of this class can form an accurate estimate of the trouble and pecuniary outlay involved in carrying out successfully an undertaking presenting so many difficulties. The correspondence necessarily carried on by the editor in pursuit of materials for the volume is both heavy and irksome, and is enough to deter any ordinary compiler from accepting the task. Notwithstanding the vigilance exercised in the production of the work slight imperfections may be detected, but no one gifted with common sense or a kindly spirit will condemn the book on this ground. The ungenerous and hypercritical may, however, indulge their humour at the expense of the calendar. The volume is excellently printed, and is unquestionably of great utility to those connected with the Masonic body. The editor and publisher are entitled to all the patronage that can be awarded them, and we wish the pecuniary result of their laudable enterprise may be encouraging in the highest degree.—Sunday Times, Dec. 8th.

NOTES ON THE HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY.
By HENRY SUTHERLAND, M.D., P.M. University
Lodge, 1118.

These "Notes" which were privately printed for "presentation only" in 1877, seem to us to be very useful and meritorious alike in inception, conception and general "conclusion." Not that we can predicate of them absolute correctness in general outline, or illustrative detail, in "universals," or in "particulars," but the idea is a very good one, per se is novel in its treatment, and suggestive of subsequent and more matured efforts, which may help materially to benefit the Masonic student, and enlighten properly the non-masonic readers.

The author has evidently taken great pains to put together a concise and summary account of the "landmarks" of Freemasonry, but if we might advise him, we would say, "the skilful and well imagined outline you have sketched out requires a little more careful colouring and filling in." For instance, Mackey is clearly wrong, as others are, in dividing Masonic history into mystical and authentic.

Anderson was, in no sense, a mystic. He simply Anglicised into a readable language, the archaisms of the Guild Legends, and we have no doubt the Guild Legends were "traditions" firmly believed and carefully handed on. We should therefore prefer to divide writers into those of the historical and traditional school, and as Masonry, like most other associations of any importance, has a "prehistoric time," we think the division and the distinction pointed out in Kenning's Cyclopædia are the best and truest for all critical purposes. But these "notes" are very useful and conscientious, and we feel sure may be expanded into a very useful and valuable work.

LA SEMAINE FRANCAISE.

Is a French paper published in London, which offers to the English readers the charm of reading good French, and clever "feuilletons" comfortably in England. And there is no doubt, that the paper carries out its programme, and gives English readers, on the system of our old and well known friend "Galignani," Albert Smith's "Amiable Pirate of the Rue de Rivoli," the "crème de la crème" of current French literature. It will be a good thing for many of our readers, to whom perchance as "whilom of ye olden time," the French of "Stratford atte Bowe" is more familiar than the vernacular of Paris.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT.—A PAPER BY EDWARD CONDER, JUN. FREEMASON OFFICE.

A very interesting and lucid paper, on a most important and probably valuable development of scientific discovery, read by Mr. Edward Conder, jun. at a meeting of the Engineering Society, at King's College, London. Some of our excellent friends of the "Evening Star" Lodge will probably shake their heads at it, but in this age of scientific discovery, and marvellous adaptation of the forces and gifts of nature to man's use, comfort, and enlightenment, who can say what will not be? What may not be? We commend the little pamphlet to the notice of our readers.

PANORAMIC TOY BOOKS.—THE QUEEN OF HEARTS; OR WHO STOLE THE TARTS.
JOHNNY GILPIN'S FAMOUS RIDE, by COWPER.
ALAS, COCK ROBIN, by S. V. B. Dean and Sons, 160, Fleet-st.

These most interesting Christmas books deserve the notice of the old, just as they claim the admiration of the young. They are very effective, and very happily and skilfully illustrated.

OLD JONATHAN. W. H. and S. Collingridge, Aldersgate-street.

We welcome an old Christmas friend with sincere pleasure. He is an agreeable guest at this time of the year, and records not only present pleasant sympathies, but agreeable souvenirs of "auld lang syne."

MASONIC PHOTOGRAPHY.

We are much pleased with the photographic representation of the Bible, Square and Loving Cup of the "York Masons," obligingly forwarded to us by Bro. Whythead.

MASONIC TOAST LIST AND MENU.

We have received from Bro. J. S. Cumberland, of York, a very handsome toast list and menu, most skilfully drawn up, but which our limited space prevents us doing full justice to. We understand that a fuller review will probably appear in an early "Masonic Magazine."

MARK MASONRY.

I see a Bro. "Mark," wishes me to furnish a reference to the earliest Mark Warrant that I know of, and desires "its very words." Doubtless this has something to do with the discussion of late in the Freemason as to Mark Masonry generally, which I have carefully perused from time to time, but do not write now to take any part in it, because, unfortunately, I am not so pleasantly engaged at present as to be able to afford the time.

I am not aware of any old Mark Warrants existing anywhere, and hence consider that it is not necessary or desirable to present copies of the modern Charters of a late period. The fact is, in early times, the choice of a Mark was a custom, not a degree, and one much more generally observed than now. Many of our old lodge minutes prove the universality almost of this custom, with speculative as well as operative Masons, during the seventeenth century, and early in the last, of which we need only instance the records of "Mother Lodge Kilwinning," Lodge of Edinburgh, Aberdeen Lodge, and others, the pages also of the Scottish Freemason being of late devoted to the representation from time to time of the "Haughfoot" lodge records, containing curious marks, &c. When the custom was changed to a degree I cannot say, but probably soon after the institution of the Royal Arch, and certain degrees of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite" from 1736-40. The earliest actual reference to the degrees of "Mark Man" for Fellow Crafts, and "Mark Master" for Master Masons, is dated 1778, and occurs in the records of the old lodge at Banff. My friend, the "Masonic Student," takes rather a different view to what I do as to the antiquity of the Master Mason, as a degree, for I do not think it is proved that Masonic degrees can be traced before the last century, the Fellow Craft being one who had served his lawful time, in early days; and a Master Mason, one who employed or presided over both classes of workmen, viz., Apprentices and Fellow Crafts. However I do not want to raise obstacles, but rather to induce all who can, to add to our store of facts.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH AND FREEMASONRY.

La Semaine Francaise—noticed elsewhere—gives the following extract from the Independence Belge, which we have thought well to translate for the Freemason.

"Monsr. Besson, Bishop of Nismes, enters into a war with Freemasonry. He has forbidden the intrusion of Masonic emblems into the churches of his diocese. Whenever those signs are placed upon a coffin the priest is to remove them. Books sold by the lodges are to be refused. A dying person, notoriously a Freemason, is to be treated as a public sinner, that is to say, his confession in not to be heard except after special and exact retraction."

This order is preceded by a "Mandement" (charge), of forty pages in 18mo.

This charge is not badly written. The Bishop of Nismes is evidently one of our most eloquent prelates, and it is possibly in order to take the place of Bishop Dupanloup, that he commences this campaign. The bishop is, however, in error in nearly all his statements of fact. It is clear that he has received certain information, but it is not the less clear that such information is entirely incorrect. I will only cite one illustration of this. The bishop says, at page 32 "the grade of the Knight Kadosh, is the Supreme Grade. The emblems of this grade are a crown with a three-headed serpent. The serpent points out the evil principle, the three heads are the emblem of the evil which is introduced into the three classes of society. One head of the serpent wears a crown and indicates Sovereigns; another head bears a tiara and indicates the Pope; the third bears a sword and indicates the army. As a pledge of his oath the Knight Kadosh strikes down with his dagger the three heads of the serpent, that is to say, the crown, the tiara, and the sword."

Such statements will make Freemasons laugh. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, who is Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of London, has never struck down with his dagger the crown, nor the sword, and though he is a heretic, I doubt if he would strike down the tiara.

At the same time, with the "Mandement" of the Bishop, appeared an account of the centenary of the reception of Voltaire.

We then read how that at the reception of the Patriarch of Ferney, the lodge of the "Nine Sisters" had for W.M. the illustrious astronomer Galaude, and among those who were present were to be found the Abbé Pingré, the Abbé Cordier de Saint Firmin, the Abbé Bignon, and the Abbé Remy.

It might be called the relation of a ceremony of the church. But the church has reflected since Voltaire. Formerly she entered into the lodges of Freemasons, now she loads them with anathemata.

It is truly curious to note the formidable idea which Monseigneur has formed of the power of the Masonic lodges.

For instance, he declares that the Freemasons, at a meeting at Wilhelmsbad, in 1785, "decided the condemnation of Louis XVI., and the assassination of Gustavus III. It was the Freemasons who tore Pius VII. from the palace, and imprisoned him at Valence. It was the Freemasons who made Napoleon III. declare war against Italy. Freemasonry counts at present six millions of adepts, spread among 12,000 lodges. It costs Freemasonry nothing to hasten its triumphs, but woe to him who tries to arrest its progress. The Archbishop of Quito was poisoned at the altar. The President of the Republic of Ecuador was assassinated. The Bishops of Germany, like those of Brazil, have been plundered and exiled."

From one end of the world to the other you will find this mysterious hand, which strikes and slays in the dark. As the Independence Belge says, so say we, "Hola!"

His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, has, with the approval of her Majesty, kindly consented to preside at the annual distribution of prizes and certificates at the Birkbeck Literary and Scientific Institution. The date of the event has not yet been fixed, but if suitable to his Royal Highness, it will take place early in January next.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Rheumatism, Neuralgia.—It is sometimes difficult to determine which of these diseases is afflicting the sufferer, but this ignorance will not matter if Holloway's remedies be used. They alleviate and cure all muscular and nervous pains. In hereditary rheumatism, after bathing the affected parts with warm salt water, Holloway's Ointment should be well rubbed upon the spot, that it may penetrate and exert its soothing and regulating properties on the deeper vessels and nerves which are unfavourably excited, and cause both the pain and swelling. Holloway's treatment has the merit of removing the disease without debilitating the constitution, which was the inevitable result of the bleeding, mercury, and colchicum practice formerly adopted in these complaints.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

The collection of etchings of Mr. Seymour Haden includes examples of Bakhuisen, Jacques de Barbari, the master of the Caduceus; Bartholomew Behan, Nicholas Berghem, Abraham Bosse, Jean Both, Peter Bout, Canaletto, Annibale Caracci, Claude, Durer, Van Dyk, Everdingen, Faithorne, Fyt, Goltzius, Hollar, Karle du Jardin, Lucas Van Leyden, Marc Antonio, Karel le Moor, Nainwenex, Ossenbeck, Adrian van Ostade, Paul Potter, Rembrandt, Ruysdael, Stoop, Swaneveldt, Turner, Adrian Van de Velde, Waterloo, Wilkie, and Zeemann.

Lord Chelmsford, it seems, at the time of his death, was engaged in writing a work containing many amusing reminiscences and anecdotes of the English Bar. He had invited several of his colleagues to assist him with their recollections.—Athenæum.

AN ARISTOCRATIC CHRISTMAS NUMBER.—Among the contributors to the Vanity Fair Winter Number, which was published on the 10th inst., are the Duke of Beaufort, the Duke of Manchester, the Marquis of Londonderry, the Earl of Winchelsea and Nottingham, the Earl of Dunmore, the Earl of Desart, the Countess Bathfany, Lady Florence Dixie, and Mr. Bret Harte.

Mr. William Spottiswoode, the newly-elected President of the Royal Society, has resigned the office of secretary to the Royal Institution. We are informed that, in recognition of his valuable services as treasurer and subsequently as secretary, it is proposed that the members shall subscribe for a bust of Mr. Spottiswoode, to be presented to the Royal Institution.—Academy.

An Unpublished Composition by Rossini is to be played shortly at Monte Cavallo as a serenade to the King and Queen of Italy. It is a fanfare for a military band, and was composed for the late Victor Emmanuel in return for his present to Rossini of the cross of a new Order, the Crown of Italy, founder, on the marriage of the present King Humbert. Rossini called his fanfare the "Crown of Italy," but the work, composed in 1868, has lain unused till the present time.

The King of Bavaria is erecting at Herrenchiemsee a royal château, on the plan of that of Versailles. When completed it will be at least as large as the Royal Palace at Munich. The building is to be spread over 15 years and the estimated cost is 36,000,000 marks (£1,800,000). Three hundred workmen are at present engaged upon it, who are lodged in barracks temporarily erected for their accommodation, and by the orders of the King the greatest care is taken to insure their comfort and to enable them to provide for their wants at moderate expense.

Mr. Nevill Northy Burnard, the Cornish sculptor, died at Redruth, in that county, on the 27th ult.

Mr. Bret Harte proposes to deliver his lecture, "The Argonauts of '49," an illustration of early Californian life, this winter, in London and in the principal provincial towns.

An interesting exhibition of tapestries was opened in the Windsor Town-hall. The chief specimens were recently on view at the Paris Exhibition. The collection includes eight large panels representing scenes from the "Merry Wives of Windsor," the designs being by Mr. T. W. Hay. They formed the dining-room decoration at the Prince of Wales's pavilion, and received a gold medal. They are now the property of Sir A. Sassoon, K.C.S.I., by whom they have been lent for the purpose of the present exhibition. There is also a series of panels of tapestry representing hunting scenes, designed by Mr. E. M. Ward, R.A., for Mr. Christopher Sykes, M.P., and a number of smaller productions. Among the other specimens is a large panel representing the siege of Londonderry. It formerly was a panel in the old Irish House of Lords, but was transferred to the Bank of Ireland at Dublin. It has just been restored at Old Windsor. It is said to have been the work originally of Huguenot refugees. The exhibition also includes a series of eight panels in appliqué work on gold ground, part of the decoration of the morning room in the Prince of Wales's pavilion, and executed by the Ladies' Work Society, of which Princess Louise is the president. There are also a number of valuable pictures by Bristow (a native of Windsor), Algardi, T. F. Dicksee, Millais, &c. Her Majesty the Queen and other members of the Royal family have taken great interest in the tapestry works. Yesterday afternoon Prince Leopold visited the exhibition.

September 12, 1883, will be the 200th anniversary of the delivery of Vienna from the Turks by John Sobieski. The municipality of the city has resolved to celebrate the occasion with special honour. The new Hotel de Ville is to be completed, and will be publicly inaugurated on that day. A monument to commemorate the patience and bravery of Count von Starhemberg, who conducted the defence against the Turkish host, will also be finished and dedicated. Other appropriate arrangements will be made subsequently.

"Amabel Vaughan" in addition to the tales, poems, and Masonic papers mentioned in our last, will contain an article "On the Social Status of Civil Servants," reprinted from the Civil Service Review, as well as a carefully written Masonic Memoir of the Author, from the pen of our well-known veteran Masonic Writer, Bro. G. M. Tweddell, F.R.S.N.A., &c. One of the stories republished from the early pages of the Freemason is called "Another Fenian outrage" and is supposed to reveal the Masonic Secret. Copies of Bro. Emra Holmes's new book may be had after Christmas at the office of this paper. Subscribers should send particulars of full Masonic rank.

KING'S COLLEGE SCHOOL.—The annual distribution of prizes will take place in the great hall of King's College on Tuesday, Dec. 17 inst., at seven p.m., the Rev. Canon Ince, D.D., Christ Church, Oxford, Regius Professor of Divinity, in the chair.

THE FREEMASON,

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1878.

THE CHARITIES OF FREEMASONRY.

The charities of Freemasonry are many and remarkable, not the product of benefit society motives, or the result of childish and sensational and hap-hazard lottery-like proceedings, but governed by one great law, controlled by one true principle. Freemasons give to all poor and distressed, and decayed and suffering brethren, their widows and children, who have a fair claim on their charity, and as we said before, such offerings are made in various ways and from different sources. Masonic charity begins first of all in the lodges, goes on in the provinces from the Provincial Grand Lodge funds, and in the metropolis is continued, and concluded, as well for the metropolis and the provinces, in the General Lodge of Benevolence. Thus, in the first place, there is a three-fold system of charity giving and administration at work, very striking, and very praiseworthy, and let us trust, actuated always by the true and abiding persuasions of real charity, directed and developed in intelligence, in carefulness, and in discriminating good will. But not content with all this, great as it really is, when its totality, year by year is reckoned up and measured out, the Masonic mind seeks for further proofs of Masonic sympathy, and reaches unto further developments of Masonic zeal in the best of all causes. Accordingly, it seeks to aid and cheer the aged and infirm brother and widow, it endeavours to educate the forlorn and friendless orphans of our Order. For these great metropolitan charities are the living proofs of Masonic charity and energy, which never seem to "wax faint," though we must not forget a number of useful provincial subsidiary institutions, which are very helpful in their measure to the good cause of Masonic charity or youthful education. Our body, not a wealthy body in its great entirety, raises something like £40,000 annually, in round numbers, or the interest on a million of money at 4 per cent., to keep up these remarkable and needful metropolitan Institutions, whose real value and lasting need each year, as it passes over our heads, seems to attest more and more, in words and facts, which we should be obtuse to neglect to realize, and unworthy of our name as Masons if we did not heartily endeavour ourselves to make to prosper and to promote. But we cannot shut our eyes if we would, nor should we be acting right to do so if we could, to certain "signs and tokens" which seem to point just now to hesitating support and dubious returns. Not that we show the distrust of others, or endorse the views of others, who think our appeals are too frequent, and the strain too heavy upon us. On the contrary, we are of opinion that in some respects much remains to be done by our Order, and therefore it is that we dwell on the subject to-day. If trade is bad, if the prospects of 1879 are clouded over, if the claims and calls on all are very many just now, yet we cannot see that that is any reason why our Charities should suffer any diminution of their wonted returns, any withdrawal of their untold benefits. Let us bear in mind, as it has often been pointed out, for the last few years, in the pages of the Freemason, that six-tenths of our lodges and chapters have, as yet, done nothing for our great Charities, and that the same remark equally applies to forty per cent of our brethren, if not positively fifty per cent. In our opinion, every lodge and chapter should, at the least, be a Life Governor of all the Charities, and were this course to be followed by even a small proportion of our non-contributing lodges and chapters, so far, in 1879 not only would our charitable returns, not by any possibility be reduced, but probably, nay positively, would shew a substantial increase. When we consider to-day the balance sheets of lodges and chapters, and when we remember how very little, except a rare exception, is there done for charity, we feel bound to ask with the really "immortal William," what "all this quantity of sack," and, alas! so little charity? Bro. Terry opens the ball in 1879, with the anniversary festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and we desiderate for that very active and hard-working brother a goodly and substantial return. We hear that the other two Charities are "up and doing," and we are especially glad to learn that the promises of support for the next Girls' School festival are very numerous and energetic. May our charity returns for 1879 attest once again, what we doubt not, the zeal and vitality of English Freemasons.

MASONIC TESTIMONIALS.

It is, perhaps, a trite observation, that testimonials of all kinds, though not uncommon, are, by the majority of us all, "more honoured in the breach than the observance," that is to say, testimonials are, though we often see them and hear of them, not the most popular things in the world with very many, both men and brethren. We do not wonder at such a feeling in the abstract, and for the best of all reasons. Too often the testimonial to one constitutes an injustice to another, and there is very frequently an excess of sentimentalism about testimonials, which distresses the thoughtful, and annoys the fastidious. For we fear, it must be conceded to our dear Bros. Caustic and Critic, that in our efforts to "testimonialize" somebody, we most frequently ignore those who have a prior claim on our consideration, whose work, long continued as it has been, and first-rate as it has been, has found no convenient friend openly to laud and proclaim, which adulation has not patronized, and interest has not "brought to the fore," and which, therefore, passes by unheeded and unnoticed, amid a thoughtless crowd of contemporaries, or a too excited assembly of competitors for honours and for favours. For these reasons, and many might be adduced if the subject were worth it, or time allowed, there is a common-sense objection to testimonials in general, which we shall do well to note and even to commend. For it is a protest against exaggeration of sentiment, against all "high falutin" of personal interest, against the forward pretentiousness of self-satisfied mortals, against that tendency to "flatter and to feign," which is one of the most painful evidences to the thinking, of the moral decadence of humanity, and from which no earthly society, not even Freemasonry, is absolutely free. But there are "testimonials and testimonials" always, and if some are dubious, and more despairing, others are seasonable and satisfactory in the highest degree. And among these may be fairly and properly classed that one which the warmth of sincere friends, and the sympathy of affectionate comrades are seeking to raise to the memory and virtues of Bro. R. W. Little. Bro. Little's services to Freemasonry, and the Girls' School, are too well known to need anything but a partial mention in the pages of the Freemason, the pages of which in earlier days, he aided to embellish and uphold by his effective and interesting contributions on many topics. There can be no doubt, honestly speaking, that by the assiduous discharge of his Masonic duties, and the sedulous attention he paid to the interests of the Girls' School, Bro. Little impaired a constitution not the strongest of the strong, and shortened prematurely a very valuable life, and one most necessary to a large and loving family circle. Nothing more becomes his public career or private history, than the manly endeavours he ever made, even when ailing, to minister to the ease and comfort of those nearest and dearest to him, and with him many have lost their most necessary helpmate and their most devoted friend. To perpetuate his memory, to proclaim his faithful virtues, his friends are endeavouring to raise a sum of one thousand pounds, the interest of which will be given to his widow during her widowhood, and at her decease will revert, as capital and interest, to the Girls' School, probably as a "Little Scholarship." This seems to us to be a most judicious and seasonable proposal, and we are glad, remembering gratefully Bro. Little's valuable services to Freemasonry and to Charity, to commend it warmly to the kindly attention and sympathy of our many readers.

COSMOPOLITAN MASONRY.

What a wonderful "coup d'œil" is that which Kenning's Cosmopolitan Calendar presents to the reflective Mason. We open the little book, and are all alike startled and fascinated by its telling index. Freemasonry seems to us, in its development and its extent, to be continuous with this habitable world, and lodges are to be found apparently in every spot where the foot of man has trod, or the work of civilization progresses. England, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, Quebec, New Brunswick, British Columbia, the United States, Central and Southern America, the Argentine Republic, Brazil, Grenada, Hayti, St. Domingo, Mexico, Hungary, Venezuela, France, Germany, Liberia, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Bulgaria, Hamburg, Denmark, Sweden and Norway, Switzerland, Greece, Hungary, Turkey, Peru, the Netherlands, Egypt, all proclaim the existence of Grand Lodges, or evidence the link of Freemasonry. And it is a very wonderful thought in itself, both this universality and perpetuity of Freemasonry! Go where we will, north, south, east or west, travel as we may, amid the Pampas or the Pyrenees, over the Alps or the Apennines, the prairies of the "Lone Land," or the pathless wilds of American forests, the civilization of Paris, or the turbulence of Mexico, Freemasons can find a lodge and a resting place, a friend and a brother! It is very easy to criticise and condemn the exoteric and esoteric teaching of Freemasonry; it is by no means an uncommon thing to hear the ignorant and incompetent, dilating in vulgar twaddle, about the questionable teaching of Freemasonry. But be it good or bad, right or wrong, a blessing, or noxious to mankind, there it is, none can deny its existence, none can refuse to credit the witness of their own eyes. What then is that bond of union, or what that condition of perpetuity, which appears to dominate and distinguish the onward march of Freemasonry alike in its active work, and its vitalizing message. It appears to us to be its one great doctrine of human brotherhood, which, despite the controversies of ages, notwithstanding the sophisms of the schools, seems to be all but innate in the psychology and sympathy of human nature. It seems strange to say so, but so it is, though the contrasts and conditions of life have served to sever alike our common lives and our common interests, yet since the advent of Diviner teaching, at any rate, man appears to feel that he and his fellow men are one in want, in hope, in longings, that the interests of the most widely contrasted classes are identical after all, (let us ever remember a golden saying of the late Prince Consort), and that just as we all have a common life here in weakness, and sorrow, and trial, so we all look for another restitution and restoration hereafter, when the "former things are passed away," and man has reached at last, unto the "perfection of his moral being." So let us cherish to day the Cosmopolitanism of Freemasonry. Let us do nothing in our time and generation to weaken its framework, or discredit its "outcome," but let us firmly adhere to its "ancient landmarks," as alike the best suited for the true onward progress of Freemasonry, and the benefit of mankind! In humble acknowledgement of T.G.A.O.T.U., first and foremost, ever, at all times and under all circumstances, and in unfeigned and active love to our brotherhood, let us wend on our way, cheered by the consciousness that Freemasonry, in its cosmopolitan form and strivings, is only a symbol to us of that better day, the golden dawn of humanity, when man, no longer warring with, or antagonistic to his brother man, shall be one in God and one in the brotherhood of immortality.

THE "CHAI NE D'UNION."

We welcome sincerely the beginning (with the December number) of the fourteenth year of existence of our esteemed contemporary, under the able and conscientious guidance of Bro. Hubert. As English Freemasons, loyal to our own principles, we must all admire the fidelity, steadfastness, and courage manifested by Bro. Hubert in an almost hopeless struggle, and we shall accord to him that sympathy which is due to so devoted and faithful a member of our Order, while we shall all wish well to the Chaine d'Union in its honourable career of general utility and Masonic enlightenment.

MEMORIAL TO BRO. R. W. LITTLE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am anxious, in common with all concerned, to see the proposed memorial to our lamented Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, alike worthy of our dear brother and the other objects contemplated. Bro. Little was connected with so many societies, under the protecting wings of Freemasonry, that I feel certain a ready response will be given to the appeal of the joint secretaries, if the character of the proposed memorial is fully understood. The Treasurer is our esteemed Bro. H. G. Bass, the Assist. G. Sec., and one of the Secretaries is Bro. William Dodd, another personal and valued friend of the deceased, the Joint Secretary appropriately being the Secretary of the R.M.I. for Girls (Bro. Hedges), to which institution the whole of the balance of the fund is to be devoted, after providing for "the erection of a simple monument" over Bro. Little's grave; Mrs. Little, the widow (who is well worthy of anything the Craft can or will do on her behalf) merely having the interest of the principal during her lifetime.

Those brethren then, who remit their subscriptions to this fund, not only take part in the simple monument to mark the earthly resting place of their friend and brother, but they provide a pleasing testimony of their appreciation of his exertions, thus cheering the sorely afflicted widow in her loneliness, and, beyond all, substantially aiding the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, on whose behalf Bro. R. W. Little so ably and successfully devoted the latter portion of his active and useful life.

BRO. BEDOLFE AND THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Three or four weeks ago, in reply to our irrepressible Bro. W. V. Bedolfe, I had fully made up my mind to treat any further communications of his with silence. When, however, he coolly charges me with "falsehood," and, with "attempting to convert the Freemason into a receptacle for idle tales," it is surely high time that I rise in self-defence.

In a sentence, therefore, let Bro. Bedolfe note, that my "article criticised," was wholly inferential, like nine out of ten orations delivered at the consecration of any Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, or other Masonic edifice, and, consequently, our brother must plead guilty, on reflection, to having discovered a man's nest, when he charges me with telling "untruths," and manufacturing receptacles for "idle tales."

Lastly, and for all, let me say, that, as Bro. Bedolfe does not belong to the Mark Degree, his interference is uncalled for, and, in fact, savours of impertinence, from beginning to end, of his many laboured letters thereanent in the columns of the Freemason.

Yours fraternally,

W. F. LAMONBY, W.M.

Faithfull Lodge, No. 229.

MASONIC NOTES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I feel sure that the whole architectural profession will rejoice at the selection by the M.W. Grand Master of Bro. John Gibson for the post of Grand Superintendent of Works. Bro. Gibson has designed some of the most elegant classic buildings of modern days, and will prove a worthy successor of the lamented brother, who was so universally respected, not only in the Craft, but in the Royal Institute of British Architects and the Artists' Rifle Corps. A thought struck me as Bro. Gibson was being invested, it was: Why not make the appointment for two or three years only, so that other architects, who have deserved well of the Craft, might attain to the distinguished honour? In my opinion, the office of Superintendent of Works in Provincial Grand Lodges should always be held by a member of the architectural profession, and in case one such should not be eligible, then by a builder.

It will afford much pleasure to many to know that one of the new lodges will dispense with banquets, and that some older lodges are trying to reduce the house bills. I, for one, should not like the sociable character of Freemasonry to be lost, but feel with others that spending two or three hundred pounds on dinners and five or ten pounds on charity is not in accordance with the teaching of the Craft.

So much is said against meeting at taverns, and the great objection is that something in the way of refreshment must follow the lodge meeting, as, in many cases, no rent is paid for the accommodation. Those who meet in public buildings, apart from taverns, have to pay from one to two guineas per evening for the privilege, an amount which makes considerable inroads in the funds of a small lodge. How is it that we, in London, cannot support several Masonic halls, when many small towns, especially in Cornwall, have a room or hall entirely devoted to Freemasonry? The Masonic Hall in South London has been through many vicissitudes, but now seems to be prospering. Speaking of this building, reminds me that it is a pity that refreshments are not supplied in the building to prevent the unseemly rush of brethren to the nearest tavern directly the lodge is closed and before the banquet is served.

All brethren who care for the progress of the Mark Degree must rejoice at the decision of the Grand Mark Lodge on Tuesday last, not to take up with any of the so-called "side degrees," more or less connected with Freemasonry, a contrary course must have parted this degree and the Craft more than at present, when a different course is much to be desired. Having mentioned degrees outside the Craft, let me state that some short explanation of some, especially those of Royal Ark Mariners, Rose Croix, and Knight Templar, with the fees usually paid for taking same, usual subscriptions, &c., would be interesting to many of your readers, and help to extend the usefulness of the degrees in question.

Your notice of literary garbage will meet with universal approval. The Church of Rome must be very short of effective weapons against Freemasonry to resort to the poor device of circulating rubbish, and I am surprised that a respectable bookseller in a well-known thoroughfare, can be found to exhibit absurd and ridiculous daubs in his window to induce passers-by to waste their money on utterly untrue statements as to the aim, objects, and ritual of the ancient Craft.

These hasty notes on several subjects may furnish matter for profitable discussion in your pages.

Yours fraternally,

OBSERVER.

WENTWORTH LITTLE MEMORIAL.

A meeting of the committee was held on Friday the 6th Dec., Col. Francis Burdett, Prov. G. Master for Middlesex, in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting held on the 19th July were read and confirmed.

Letters were read from Col. Burdett, and Col. Creaton accepting the office of President and Vice-President.

The circular letter which had been addressed to all the lodges was read, in which the objects of the proposed Memorial were set forth viz.:—

1st.—"To erect a simple mural monument over the grave."

2nd.—"To invest the balance, and pay Mrs. Little, the widow, the interest during her life or widowhood."

3rd.—"To pay the principal at her decease or second marriage to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, to perpetuate Bro. Little's name in some manner to be hereafter determined."

The following list of subscriptions was read and ordered to be published in the Freemason:—

HEREFORDSHIRE MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

On the 24th August last we reported the inauguration of this excellent Association, and we have now the pleasure of recording the proceedings at the first annual meeting, held at the Green Dragon Hotel, in the city of Hereford, on Friday, the 29th ult., under the presidency of Bro. Thomas Jowitt, D.P.G.M. of the Province of Herefordshire. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. the Rev. John Buckle, P.G.S.W., Vice-President of the Association; O. Shellard, P.P.G.S.W.; J. E. S. Hewett, P.G.J.W.; and John Cox (members of the Committee); W. Earl, W.M. 120, Hon. Sec.; R. Blount Lewis, W.M. 338; Theophilus Lane, S.W. 120; and A. W. Bezant, P.G.O., 120.

The Secretary said he had been requested by Bros. H. C. Bedoe, Treas.; J. C. Gregg, H. Gurney, and F. R. Dillon, P.Ms. (the other members of the Committee), to express their regret that pressing engagements prevented their attendance.

The President, in opening the proceedings, congratulated the brethren on the signal success which the Association had attained in the few months which had elapsed since they met in August last, for its inauguration.

The particulars supplied to him by the Hon. Sec. (Bro. Earle) showed that fifty-nine shares had been taken, and that the total amount received up to that day was £80 2s. 6d., of which £73 10s. 0d. was for subscriptions and £6 12s. 6d. for incidental expenses, and that all the preliminary outgoings having been met, £1 18s. 0d. remained in hand for the disbursements for the coming year. Of £73 10s. received for subscriptions, £10 10s. 0d. were for votes paid for in full, leaving £63 now to the credit of subscription account; which sum would purchase twelve £5 gs. od. life subscriptions to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institutions, for which they were about to ballot. Each successful member would have to give an undertaking (in conformity with rules) to pay the balance due from him by annual instalments of not less than one guinea.

The fifty nine subscribers to the Association were thus made up:

Members of Palladian Lodge, Hereford	33
" Vitruvian Lodge, Ross	10
" Eastnor Lodge, Ledbury	9
Lodge Votes, Palladian	1
" Vitruvian	1
Chapter Votes, Palladian	1
Non-Members of County Lodges	4
			59

The ballot was then taken for priority of presentation to the Masonic Institutions, with the following result:

Palladian Chapter, 1 vote	10	10	0
Bro. O. Shellard, 1 vote	5	5	0
" T. Birch, 1 vote	5	5	0

On the proposition of Bro. O. Shellard, a cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Jowitt for his able presidency. The next general meeting of the Association will be held in July next.

We regret to announce that the health of Bro. Sir. W. W. Wynn, M.P., R.W.P.G.M. North Wales and Shrops. is so indifferent that it is considered necessary for him to leave England for the south of France for the winter.

Obituary.

BRO. JOHN WILLIAM YOUNG

We regret to announce the sudden death, at the comparatively early age of 43, of Bro. John William Young, P.M. and Secretary of Curwen Lodge, No. 1400, Harrington, P.P.G. Purst. Cumberland and Westmorland. Bro. Young was one of the charter members of the Curwen Lodge, he having been its first S.W. He was initiated in the Sun and Sector Lodge, No. 962, Workington, of which he was also a member up to his death, was exalted in Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter, No. 119, Whitehaven, and also advanced in Whitwell Lodge, No. 151, M.M.M., Maryport. Curwen Lodge, beyond a doubt, owes the main part of its prosperity to the untiring energies of our lamented brother, who was one of the most indefatigable Craftsmen in Cumberland. Bro. Young, we believe, was a German by birth. He came to England when quite a boy, and without friends, yet, by his indomitable perseverance, acquired a fair education, and was naturally of so ingenious a turn in mechanical pursuits, that he speedily gained a position in West Cumberland. For nine or ten years past he had filled the responsible office of manager of the Harrington Gas Works, and his death, which took place on Wednesday, the 27th ult., after only two days' illness, is attributed to cold, culminating in inflammation, and arising from the severe nature of his occupation. Bro. Young having expressed a wish to be interred with Masonic honours, a dispensation therefore was obtained by the brethren of the Curwen Lodge. The funeral took place on Saturday 30th ult., at three o'clock. An emergency lodge was opened in the old school room, Harrington, the regular place of meeting, by Bro. W. Carlyle, W.M., supported by the following officers and members of Curwen Lodge:—Bros. J. Hartley, S.W.; J. Tallentire, as J.W.; J. Johnston, I.P.M.; J. R. Bain, P.M.; P.G.J.W.: Dr. Dick, P.M.; T. Dixon, P.M.; J. Beck, Steward; W. Williamson, T. Coulthard, T. B. Dixon, J. Back, J. Hawkins, R. Harkness, J. A. Eadie, W. Balderston, J. Tolson, J. Salkeld, J. Dickinson, J. Hodgson, and others. There was also a strong muster of visiting brethren, including:—Bros. W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119, P.G. Secretary; G. W. Kenworth, P.M. 119, P.G. Treasurer; W. F. Lamony, P.M. 1002, P.P.G. Reg. (Freemason); J. J. Beathe, P.M. 962, P.P.G. Supt. of Works; J. Wilson, P.M. 962, P.P.G.J.D.; E. Tyson, W.M. 119; Jos. Wood, P.M. 962; Geo. Dalrymple, 252 (Scotland), 872 and 1660; W. Topping, 962; J. Jenkinson, 962; D. Reece, S.D. 962; E. A. Bradbury, 962; T. Ellwood, 872; J. J. Coverdale, Sec. 962; H. Irving, S.W. 962; W. A. Smith, 962; F. Hodges, S.W. 872; W. Seikirk, 962; J. Burnett, 962; J. Rothery, J.W. 119; G. B. Mullen, 962; J. McArthur, 119; J. T. Ray, J.W. 872; J. H. Banks, 371; R. Thomas, 962; and W. Wagg, Tyler 962.

After the dispensation had been read, the whole of the brethren, headed by the banner of Curwen Lodge, proceeded to the residence of the deceased, from whence the sad cortege slowly wended its way to the parish church. The brethren of Curwen Lodge of Oddfellows, of which body Bro. Young was also a member, swelled the ranks of the procession, whilst the large muster of the general public present testified to the esteem in which he was held by the community at large. The service for the dead was most impressively read by Bro. the Rev. A. F. Curwen, P.M. Curwen Lodge, P.P.G. Chaplain, rector of Harrington, and subsequently Bro. J. R. Bain, P.M. Curwen Lodge, P.G.J.W., delivered the beautiful address used at Masonic funerals. On the completion of the obsequies, the brethren returned to the lodge room, when the lodge was solemnly closed in form.

Bro. Young leaves a widow and nine children to mourn his loss, and it is to be feared, but slenderly provided for. A sad coincidence is the fact that Bro. Young attended the funeral (with Masonic honours) of Bro. Captain Leonard, also a member of Curwen Lodge, only four days before he himself was suddenly cut off. Sic Vita.

BRO. THOS. MURGATROYD, P.M., P.Z., 387.

Bro. Thos. Murgatroyd closed his earthly labours on the 25th ult., at the early age of thirty-nine, and was interred with every mark of respect on the 29th November, at St. Paul's Church, Shipley, the vicar, the Rev. W. Kelly officiating. Most of the shops in the town were closed during the funeral, and a large number of persons attended at the church to pay their tribute of respect to the memory of a highly-esteemed townsman. The funeral procession was in the following order:—The members of the Shipley police force; tradesmen and gentlemen of the neighbourhood; the medical profession; the W.M., officers, and members of the Airedale Lodge, No. 387; the hearse; mourning coaches containing the widow and friends of the deceased. Whilst the coffin was being lowered into the grave, the relatives and friends of the deceased placed flowers, and the W.M. and members of the Airedale Lodge each a sprig of acacia upon it, the latter ceremony evidently inappreciable to the large assemblage in the churchyard.

Bro. Dr. Murgatroyd was born at Baildon Green, near Shipley, on the 9th February, 1839, was educated at Scaleboro' Park School, Burley-in-Wharfedale, was afterwards apprenticed to Bro. Dr. Taylor, of Bradford, and eventually took his degrees as a Surgeon in 1862, when he commenced practice in Shipley. During the sixteen years of his residence in the town his naturally generous and kindly disposition won for him the affection of all classes with whom he came in contact. He was surgeon to the West Riding Constabulary, and held other public appointments. As a Mason, our late brother was universally beloved by the members of his lodge, Airedale (No. 387), in which, whilst at Baildon, he was initiated, in 1864, and may be regarded as the connecting link between two generations. Though of a somewhat retiring disposition, he attained the dignity of W.M. in 1868; and acting for many subsequent years as Installing Master, he acquired from the members the name of "second father" of the lodge, a title justly merited for his Masonic attainments, fidelity to the ancient landmarks, and general earnest attachment to what he believed to be the true interests of our Order.

Alike a faithful brother and a firm friend, he put into practice in private life the precepts inculcated by pure Free masonry.

The many bystanders, however, who were moved to tears during the funeral ceremony, testified to his worth far more eloquently than any written eulogium on his character.

"He had a hand, open as day
To melting charity."

THE OLD AND BLIND WIFE (OR WIDOW) OF A MASON.

Queen Anne's Mansion, S.W.,
12th Dec., 1878.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Let me, once more, gratefully acknowledge substantial proofs of Masonic charity, happily reinforced by the equally charitable (though uninitiated), whose names also appear below.

One more equally good week, and we can say, "consummation est."

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

JOHN B. MONCKTON.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Capt. John Wordsworth in the chair. There were also present: Bros. Don. M. Dewar, Henry Muggeridge, Andrew Middlemass, Robert B. Webster, W. F. C. Moutrie, George J. Row, S. Rosenthal, Rev. Richard Morris, D.D., (Head Master of the School); J. G. Chancellor, G. J. Palmer, F. Binckes, (Secretary) and H. Massey, (Freemason).

The Committee received the information of the resignation of Bro. Peter Matthews, the honorary Surgeon-Dentist to the Institution, and the appointment of Bro. J. Falkner, to the vacancy.

Three candidates were placed on the list for election in April, and outfits were granted to four youths who have left the Institution and are giving satisfaction to their employers in situations they have obtained.

The Committee then adjourned.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Colonel Craton, V.P. and Trustee, presided. There were also present Bros. A. H. Tattershall, S. Rawson, C. A. Cottebrune, F. Adlard, T. Cubitt, W. Clarke, G. Bolton, James Brett, John Newton, J. G. Stevens, Edgar Bowyer, W. Hilton, Captain J. Wordsworth, L. Sean, C. F. Hogard, Captain Phillips, J. M. P. Montagu, Erasmus Wilson, James Terry (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bro. Terry reported the death of two annuitants. He also read the Warden's report, which, among other things, stated that Bro. Perceval had presented nineteen volumes of "Household Words" to the Institution, and more recently a large parcel of books.

A vote of thanks to Bro. Perceval, for the gift, was then moved, seconded, and carried.

Several petitions of candidates, for the election in May next, were then read, and the petitioners were placed on the list.

On the application of Bro. Terry, the Committee granted the use of the large hall of the Institution for the annual Christmas entertainment to the annuitants, on the 1st of January next.

On the motion of Bro. J. G. Stevens, seconded by Bro. Thomas Cubitt, P.G.P., £30 was voted towards the expenses of the entertainment.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

The fortnightly meeting of the Committee was held on Wednesday last, at their offices, 1, Clifford's Inn, to elect new members, receive subscriptions, and transact routine business.

The meeting was adjourned to Wednesday, January 8th, at eleven, when several important matters are to be discussed, and when the programme for 1879 will be considered and settled.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF THE EMULATION LODGE OF IMPROVEMENT.

The Chairman next proposed "The Officers of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement for the Evening," and again praised the working which he had just witnessed. The working of the lodge was so perfect that really he could only look on and admire. It was very kind of the W.M. to put him in the chair for a few moments in order that he (the Chairman) might show them that he was anxious to be a working Mason as well as an apparent one. He had been at a great many lodges and Masonic meetings in his life, but he had never seen anything better done, or anything that took up one's attention more than the working of the Emulation Lodge that night. There was a great deal of difference in the working of lodges. Sometimes the period of being in lodge seemed to have been very long when we came out, and sometimes it seemed to be very short. The latter had been his feeling that evening, for he was very sorry when it was over. It had given him great pleasure; and if he might be allowed to add his small meed of praise he would hope that Bro. Fenn would allow him to say how pleased he should be to set him up in future as his model. In proposing this toast he must not forget a very important officer of every lodge. No lodge that he ever belonged to (he had belonged to a great many), could get on without a good Secretary, and the Emulation had a very good Secretary in Bro. Smallpiece.

Bro. T. Fenn, P.G.D., replying to the toast, said although he could not but highly appreciate the compliment paid him by Lord Henniker in coupling his name with the toast, he could not but feel that on an occasion like that the compliment was half due to the brethren who had responded to the questions which he as W.M. in the lodge put to them. If he was to participate in the honour of the working which had been done, he felt that his thanks were due to those brethren for the very careful manner in which they had got up their work. But he felt sure that their labours had been amply repaid by the very gratifying manner in which their work had been received by the lodge. He ought to tell the company that those who had worked were comparatively young members of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, and most of them belonged to a lodge which had emanated from it, a lodge which he thought was very aptly styled the "Lodge of Progress." He could not but feel that the progress which those brethren had shown had come from the Emulation. This was very gratifying, and it must be patent to all.

Bro. C. A. Murton, P.G.D., proposed "The Lodge of Unions" under whose warrant the Emulation Lodge of Improvement met. He said they must all feel grateful to the lodge of Unions for allowing Emulation to meet under its warrant, but he was sure the lodge of Unions must be proud of its children, when it knew that this Lodge of Improvement had been the nursery of good working so many years, and had been the cause of so much good working in the Craft. He might almost say he was jealous that the Lodge of Unions should possess the parentage of this lodge, for he belonged to the Royal York Lodge of Perseverance, under which, in times gone by, the Emulation Lodge of Improvement met. Why it should have passed from the Royal York he did not know. He was sorry it had, but it honoured its parent, and he was quite aware that they also felt honoured by their child. It was quite unnecessary for him to say that the beautiful ceremonies of Freemasonry, unless they were properly worked, became a mere mockery, but he would impress the brethren with this fact that the ceremonies could not be worked intelligently and with proper feeling, unless the brethren understood the lectures which elucidated them.

Bro. Davis replied, and he regretted exceedingly the absence of the W.M. of the lodge of Unions. As his locum tenens, by command of Bro. Murton, he responded to the toast, although that duty ought to have fallen to Bro. Farnfield, the Senior W.M., always excepting Bro. Hervey. He could assure the brethren that all the members of the Lodge of Unions equally appreciated the compliment they had been kind enough to pay the lodge, and he fully concurred in all that Bro. Murton had said, as to how proud they felt at the very high position as to working which the Emulation Lodge had attained. Bro. Murton had alluded to the Royal York, and expressed his regret, or rather his jealousy, that the Lodge of Unions should have the honour of being the parent of the Emulation. He happened to have in his possession the first minute books of the Emulation, and in that it was described as the Lodge of Perseverance, not the Royal York Lodge of Perseverance, but simply the Lodge of Perseverance. That minute book extended as far as his memory served him, from 1818 to 1825, or 1826. From that time to 1831, or 1832, there was a gap, and he understood that the early minute books of the lodge were destroyed by fire. About 1831 or 1832 the lodge became affiliated to the Lodge of Unions, and from that time, although in their old Lodge of Unions they had had many things of which they were proud, there was nothing which afforded them greater gratification than their connection with the Emulation Lodge. And they had too another source of union, between the Lodge of Unions and the Emulation Lodge, and that was that Bro. Hervey was the father of the Lodge of Unions, and, at the same time, he had been for upwards of thirty-one years the Treasurer of the Emulation.

Bro. J. A. Rucker proposed "The Masonic Charities." He congratulated himself on having the opportunity of earnestly congratulating the brethren. It was unnecessary for him to say more than a few words in support of it; there was no one at that table who had not heard of it over and over again, and most of them understood what the Royal Masonic Institutions meant. He took it that in that assembly, before it had attained its present position, there were but two classes of Masons present—Masons who had subscribed to those institutions, and Masons who were going to do so—and he hoped they would take the hint from the chair to-night that those who had not subscribed would emulate those who had gone before them, and give as largely; and that those who could, without detriment to themselves or connections, would subscribe more largely. If there was a brother who had not seen the Institutions and their working, he would recommend him to go down to all of them and satisfy himself that there was not a halfpenny thrown away from year's end to year's end; but that every farthing that was contributed to those Institutions was most honestly, scrupulously, faithfully, and economically disposed of by those in whose hands was placed the control. There was nothing further necessary to be said. If there was he was sure that Bro. Binckes, who would respond, would not omit to mention it.

Bro. Binckes, P.G.S., said that in an assembly constituted as this was, (which comprised among those he saw around him what he assumed to be the elite of so many various lodges under the English jurisdiction, who were thoroughly conversant with all the higher and better principles of Freemasonry,) it was not necessary for him in responding to this toast to add more than a few words to the excellent observations of Bro. Rucker. He would only say that he very much appreciated the compliment paid to him by associating his name with this toast, and he would simply ask to be allowed, first of all, to express the gratitude he felt to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement that, from their resources, the consequence of their prosperity, the various Masonic Institutions from year to year derived very large and substantial advantage. He hoped that all the members of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement who attended the meetings of that lodge for the purpose, of course in the first place, of acquiring that necessary knowledge of our ritual, which he held to be very essential on the part of every one who aspired to take an active part in Freemasonry, that they would also be led to take an equally active part in support of our great institutions. Bro. Rucker had made one allusion on which he would just address an observation or two, that there were two classes in Freemasonry, and he had given a very forcible description of those two classes,—there was the class that had given, and there was the class that had not given. He would simply say that he very much feared the class that had not given was a more numerous class than the class that had; and he was sure that Bro. Rucker's energies, with his own and with others', would constantly be directed to make that class less numerous than it was, and to add to the numbers of that class who did contribute to the support of the Masonic Institutions. He was not going into the vexed question of whether what we called charity, as we understood it in Freemasonry, was really giving. He held that it was—that Masonic charity meant practical support to our Masonic Institutions. However, those considerations he left to the conscience of every brother there, and to others among whom this question was discussed. He could only say that he had peculiar pleasure in responding to this toast that evening, because he was enabled to add to what the Chairman himself had said, addressing the brethren on more than one occasion, on more than one toast that night, that he was not content with the dignified and honoured position which he held under the Grand Master of England, but that he had voluntarily undertaken the very active duty of a Steward of one of the institutions, in the ensuing year, in connection with the province of Suffolk, and he (Bro. Binckes) was proud to announce that it was an association he was connected with—the "Royal Masonic Institution for Boys." He hoped that his lordship would find himself thoroughly well supported on that occasion. He (Bro. Binckes) would not occupy the brethren's time, for he was sure it was utterly unnecessary, with detailing the claims of the institutions; they were constantly before the brethren, their needs were widely known. He hoped that as they had been supported in the past, and were being supported in the present, they would be more largely supported by the brethren's bounty in the future.

Colonel Shadwell Clarke, G.S.D., proposed "The Stewards." At these annual meetings of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement there were very large gatherings of brethren, and to-night had been no exception. They all knew that such gatherings required a great deal of looking after; there were a great many details to work out, to conduce to the comfort and pleasantness of the evening. These duties devolved on the Stewards, and he was quite sure the brethren would all agree with him that the Stewards of the day had carried out their duties in the most perfect manner.

Bro. Pulsford responded, saying that the Stewards did what they could for the benefit of the Craft. Certainly they had a great deal to do in making the arrangements, but they were repaid by the great results.

The "Tyler's toast" brought the proceedings to a close.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF EAST LANCASHIRE.

The regular meeting of the above Prov. Grand Lodge was held in Freemasons' Hall, Manchester, on Friday, 29th November, when a large number of brethren were present, including Bro. Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Prov. Grand Master; George Mellor, Deputy Prov. Grand Master; Edward Ashworth, Prov. Senior Grand Warden; W. O. Walker, Prov. Junior Grand Warden; J. L. Hine, Dr. Lees, R. H. Grand Deacons; John Salmon, Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies; John Tennant, Prov. Grand Assistant Director of Ceremonies; G. E. East, Robert Whittaker, C. M. Jones, J. H. Sillitoe, P. Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies; Jno. Halliwell, Prov. Grand Sword Bearer; Wm. Barlow, P. Prov. Grand Sword Bearer; J. Randle Fletcher, Prov. Grand Organist; Charles Wood, Prov. Grand Pursuivant; Henry Greenwood, P. Prov. Grand Pursuivant; George Pilling, Assistant Prov. Grand Pursuivant; Charles Brierley, Prov. Grand Steward; Thomas Mitchell, Prov. Grand Tyler; and representatives from eighty-five of the eighty-nine lodges in the province; also Bros. H. A. Bennett, P. Prov. Grand Warden Cheshire; James Terry, P. Grand Junior Warden Herts, Secretary Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; E. C. Cooper, Prov. Grand Sword Bearer West Lancashire, and others.

The Prov. Grand Lodge was opened in due form, and with prayer, at 4.15 p.m.

The minutes of the last regular meeting of Prov. Grand Lodge, held at Bury on 23rd May, 1878, were taken as read, and were thereupon confirmed.

Bro. Hine, Chairman of the Charity Committee, read the minutes of proceedings of that Committee, which were then adopted and confirmed.

Bros. Thos. W. Probert, W.M. 191; James Andrews, P.M. 1219; and J. H. Greenhagh, W.M. 1723; were appointed Auditors of the Prov. Grand Treasurer's accounts.

A grant of five hundred guineas was made from the Prov. Grand Lodge Fund to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, on the occasion of the R.W. Grand Master, (Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie) presiding at the festival of that Institution, on 12th February, 1879.

It may also be stated that thirty-two brethren of the province have consented to serve as Stewards on the occasion, and this number is expected to be very largely increased before the festival.

A grant of fifty pounds was made from the Prov. Grand Lodge Fund to the East Lancashire Systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution.

All business being concluded, the Prov. Grand Lodge was closed in due form, and with prayer, at 5.15 p.m.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

PRINCESS'S.—The new piece at this house is an original and romantic drama, entitled "No. 20; or the Bastille of Calvados," written by Messrs. James Albery and Joseph Hatton. These authors have, in the piece named, aimed high, and if they have not quite attained the standard of excellence they desired, it must be admitted that the shortcoming is not a great one. That this play has provoked, and will continue to provoke, a deal of hostile criticism among the guardians of the public taste—firstly, because the play itself is conceived in a bold audacious spirit, and the portraiture of the villain is so strikingly unconventional in its wickedness, its blasphemy, and its thoroughness in devilment; and secondly, because all the other characters in the play are shadowy outlines, mere sketchy puppets introduced to enable the villain the better to develop the realism of his infernal nature—will not be a matter to cause wonder in those who love the stage and who are therefore, in this respect, somewhat conservative. Success in dramatic literature depends mainly upon two things—laughter and tears—in "No. 20" there is not a laugh though the witty Albery wrote much of it; there is not a tear, though the clever author of "Cruel London" is credited with the plot. Herein lies the secret of this play failing to be the absolute success it might have been. Had the villain been truly in love with the heroine, and one could have seen, therefore, that such a love would soften and redeem him, and some pathetic scenes given in which he pleads for her love, though in vain, the emotion that is provocative of tears would have been worked upon; and had the lawyer, who is supposed to be the comic element in the piece, been made comic, as only Mr. Albery among our living dramatists could have made him, then our laughter would have checked our tears, or rather, blended with them, or rather again, we should have wept with one eye and laughed with the other. But, notwithstanding all I have said, "No. 20" is a very fine play; a fine play because well written, well conceived, well constructed, well, very well mounted, and well, excellently well, played. The "Distouche," the villain, as played by Mr. Charles Warner, is, without exception, the finest bit of acting to be seen on the English stage to-day. This play then, taken as a whole, is a good one, its little faults are hidden by its greater goodness; it fulfils a purpose, a grand purpose, it teaches, it marks the stage as a platform that supplants the pulpit as a teacher, for whilst the latter can but theorise, the former can, and here does, illustrate and demonstrate the moral it is sought to inculcate. The authors of "No. 20," wins our love of virtue by no stately hyperboles, no clap-trap of over-wrought pathos, but they produce her in all her native moral beauty, captivating the remnant of the divine within us. They never make us laugh at virtue, even in our sleeves, nor laugh aloud with vice, and if at times we cannot repress an inward chuckle, we rejoice because it is hidden. They have made good things loveable by the strength of God's own goodness. They make sin and crime hideous and hateful, vice and folly contemptible and ridiculous, and this, after all, is the only praiseworthy work the playwright has before him; he may win the plaudits of unworthy hands by producing works that make one weep or laugh, but teach nothing, or he may, as have the authors of "No. 20," seek rather to teach and elevate than make us either laugh or weep.

HAYMARKET THEATRE.—"Crisis," the new play at this house, is adapted by Mr. Albery from Mr. Augier's bold comedy "Les Fourchambault." Notwithstanding the success of "Les Fourchambault" in Paris, it was thought by many, not a few of whom are considered good judges in such matters, that the piece could not be transposed to the English stage with any chance of a successful issue. Mr. Wyndham thought otherwise; he knew that Mr. Albery's dramatic instinct would steer the piece safely among the rocks and shoals that seemed to endanger its reception here, and with even greater certainty he felt confident that this brilliant writer could by his unequalled wit, his bold portraiture of character, and by his vigorous treatment of trying scenes, make this remarkable comedy a genuine and deserved success. "Crisis" is now declared to be the "best thing" in London, and yet I believe that in the hands of any other English dramatist it would have been a failure. Had the one delicate scene in the play been treated nervously, as though the writer were himself afraid of the result, his fears would have been well grounded; had the pathos been less quiet and self-contained, or the dialogue less racy, witty, and spontaneous, this fine comedy, as it stands, would have been absolutely spoiled and have degenerated into a poor farcical drama. Any sign of timidity in the treatment, any exaggeration of the pathetic, and diminishing of genuine wit, would have been fatal. Such were the difficulties Mr. Albery had to encounter, but he has conquered them, like the good dramatic general he is. The piece is mounted in a manner that reflects no small credit on the management, and of the acting generally it would be difficult to speak too highly. Miss Moodie when she played in "Mammon" gave great promise and in "Crisis" she has fulfilled that promise.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—On Tuesday, the 3rd inst., this lodge met at the Club House, Kennington Oval. There were present Bros. G. Everett, P.M.; H. Higgins, I.P.M.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, S.W. (Freemason); Kohler, J.W.; Speedy, S.D.; Webb, J.D.; Marsden, I.G.; Robinson, D.C.; Stokes, W.S.; Stranger, A.W.S.; Mann, P.M.; Koch, P.M.; Drysdale, P.M. and Honeywell, P.M., Org. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Everett stated that in consequence of the indisposition of Bro. Reeves, their W.M., he had been unexpectedly called upon to occupy the chair that evening. Bro. Ballock, one of the candidates for raising, being in attendance, was duly inducted to the Degree of M.M. Bros. Swainsbury and Silvester were passed, and Mr. John Jenkins initiated into the mysteries of the Craft. The three ceremonies were performed by the acting W.M. with his wonted ability. Upon the motion of Bros. Stranger and Everett, and which was carried, the fees for initiation and joining were raised to the sum of ten and five guineas respectively. It was proposed by Bro. Webb, seconded by Bro. Honeywell, and carried unanimously, that Bro. Walls be elected to represent the lodge as Steward at the forthcoming festival of the R.M.B.I. A notice of motion was also given by the same brethren that the sum of ten guineas should be voted from the funds of the lodge to head the Steward's list. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren and visitors adjourned to the banquet, which was well served. The visitors were Bros. Maloney, P.M. 25; Davies, 177; Davies, jun., 177; Hardy, 100; Moore 548; Appleton, 861; Morgan, 1305; and Butt, 1558. Upon the removal of the cloth the acting W.M. gave the usual Royal and Craft toasts with pertinent brevity, and they having been duly honoured, the I.P.M. rose and proposed "The Health of the W.M." He said that he was sorry that their W.M., Bro. Reeves, should be absent through ill-health, but he had every reason to believe that it was not of serious moment, and that he would be at his post at the next meeting. He (the W.M.) had, however, been well represented that evening by Bro. Everett, I.P.M. They had so many opportunities of witnessing his "working" and other Masonic capabilities that it was unnecessary for him (the I.P.M.) to state more upon his and their behalf than that they were glad to see him (Bro. Everett) in the enjoyment of such good health. The acting W.M., in reply, briefly said that he also regretted that their W.M. should have been prevented by indisposition from presiding that day. He felt very gratified that he should have requested him to be his "locum tenens." It had always been his pride to promote the interests of the Kennington Lodge. It was a matter for congratulation that it bid fair to be one of the best "working" lodges in the Craft, and although but seven years had elapsed since its consecration, its position, both financially and otherwise, could challenge comparison with any lodge in the Masonic community. In conclusion, he cordially thanked them for the very hearty manner in which his health had been drank, and he again wished to assure them that nothing on his part should ever be wanting to further their interests. "The Initiate" followed, and having been received with excellent "fire," Bro. Jenkins responded. In the course of his speech he stated that it had been his ambition for a very long time to become a Mason. He had been highly pleased with the ceremony, and also with the principles set forth in the degree. He hoped that the members of the lodge which he had joined would never regret having conferred the honour of initiating and welcoming him amongst them, and, in conclusion, he particularly thanked his proposer and seconder for having manifested so kindly an interest on his behalf, in introducing him to so good a lodge. "The Health of the Visitors" came next, and was acknowledged at length by Bro. Maloney, P.M., and others.

"The Past Masters," "The Officers," and the Tyler's toasts brought the proceedings to a conclusion. In the intervals of the toasts Bro. Honeywell and others discoursed most excellent music.

CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1572).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday week, at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, under the presidency of Bro. James Cowan, W.M. There were present on the occasion Bros. James Cowan, W.M.; T. S. Hellier, S.W.; N. Reed, J.W.; Claricoats, T.; Whitaker, P.M., Sec.; G. Brock, J.D.; Briggs, S.D.; Morgan, I.G.; Hooton, I.P.M.; Cotton, W.S.; Burman, D.C.; Hopkins, Org.; Russell, Perkins, Thexton, Jaccard, Leman, Edwards, Brown, Tregear, Byles, Willcocks, J. Garratt, Hendy, Swain, Goffin, Chaffey, Gonnell, Lovebond, Bullock, Taylor, White, Pearce, W. Poole, Werring, H. Poole, Hobbs, S. Garratt; J. Hervey, Jas. Terry, and H. G. Buss. The visitors present were Bros. Atkinson, 1622; C. Taylor, J.D. 1426; G. Plenderleith, 1598; Slatter, 610; Warden, 1671; Mutch, W.M. 706; Baker, 1641; Foreman, 34; Saluman, 185; Carter, 192; Potter, 393; Bergmann, J.W. 1671; Oppenheimer, 435; Wickham, 251; Bush, W.M. elect 1728; Hayes, 619; Chatterton, 1692; Massey (Freemason), 619; Mather, P.M. 1471, P.P.G.D.C. Herts; Saul, S.W. 1201; Jennings, 1471; Bowyer, 1580; P.G.D. Herts; Lord, 25; Russell, 857; and Curtis, S. 145. After the W.M. had initiated Mr. J. H. Bennett into the Order, he installed Bro. Thomas Stacey H. H. as Master of the lodge. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. James Cowan, I.P.M.; Nelson Reed, P.M. 1671, &c., S.W.; G. Briggs, J.W.; J. Claricoats, Tras., W. S. Whitaker, P.M., S.C.; G. A. Brock, S.D.; F. Morgan, J.D.; J. E. Burman, I.G.; R. Cotton, D.C.; A. T. Pearce, D.C.; and W. Steedman, P.M. 754, Tyler. After the addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. The usual toasts followed. Bro. John Hervey, G.S., in responding to the toast of "The Pro and Dep. G.M., &c." said after paying a graceful tribute to the high qualifications of the Earl of Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale, that with regard to himself, it had given him unmixed satisfaction and gratification to be present at this meeting, because when he looked back to the short period of three years, for which time this lodge had been established, and looking at the great increase in the number of the members he saw the evidence of the necessity there was for having such a lodge. He was happy to say there were but few of the lodges, recently formed, which had not justified the expectations entertained of them at their formation, and the Craft might congratulate itself, as a body, on finding that it rallied round its standard those whom it might be proud to have among its members, who did justice to the position they took in the Order. It was so as regarded this lodge, because there was not an installation in it, which he had not attended, and at which he did not find this to be the case. It had also happened to another good friend of his, Bro. Terry, who had also consecrated many lodges, and both of them could go about and see the same prosperity prevailing, and the same progress in Masonry made. If they could congratulate this lodge more than another upon anything it was upon its officers qualifying themselves for the posts which they were called upon to occupy. He had said in many lodges that nothing could be more mortifying than to see an officer of a lodge not able to perform his duties. It was mortifying both to the Master and the officers, if an officer did not know whether to turn to the right or the left. It was not so in the Carnarvon Lodge, whose officers thought it worth their while to learn the duties which they had to perform. If there was any honour in being an officer of a lodge, an officer should endeavour to qualify himself for the post. He would put it to the initiate of that evening, whether he would not have felt, if the ceremony had been stumbled through by Bro. Cowan and his officers, he would not have had a very different impression of Masonry to what he now had? That brother had shown that he was impressed with the ceremony he had gone through, and appreciated the honour of being admitted into the Order. He (Bro. Hervey) was glad to see on his right his good friend, Bro. Buss, who had worked with him in harmony for a good many years. Their opinions, he believed, went in the same direction as nearly as it was possible. He trusted that this lodge would continue in the course which it had begun, and follow the rules already laid down; and that at the end of the Master's year of office, the W.M. would find a brother as able to fill the chair as he was himself. Bro. J. Cowan, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." The W.M., he said, had only been initiated in Masonry less than five years ago. He had taken a great interest in Freemasonry, he made himself thoroughly proficient in lodge duties, and qualified himself for the discharge of the important duties he was now called upon to fulfil. He (Bro. Cowan) had watched with satisfaction, and no doubt other members had done the same, the efforts the W.M. had made to fit himself for the chair. As a consequence the W.M. now found himself presiding over the lodge, and he could look forward to the coming year as a prosperous one. The W.M. had the ability to discharge his duties, and if spared health and strength, would justify the high opinion the brethren entertained of him. The W.M. was a man of great kindness of disposition, and did good by stealth. That was his desire, and when he did it he was blushed very often to discover that his good actions had found fame. Since he (Bro. Cowan) had had the pleasure of knowing the W.M., that brother had proved himself to his (Bro. Cowan's) mind to be without exception one of the most conscientious and straightforward men he had ever had the pleasure of meeting. That was saying a good deal. The W.M. had proved himself a very conscientious man, and as good a man as was to be found either in Masonry or elsewhere. The W.M., in reply, said he scarcely knew how to reply to the too flattering terms used concerning him by Bro. Cowan, but the I.P.M. had really reminded him of the truth of Shakespeare's line—"Uneasy rests the head that wears a crown," for he had increased the difficulties of the W.M.'s position by suggesting merits which he was afraid he did not possess, and should not be able to display. However, he cordially thanked the brethren for having placed him in the chair, and he would do the best he could to discharge his duties properly. He felt honoured in occupying the chair, inasmuch as he thought Bro. Brock and himself might claim the credit of being the fathers of the lodge, in connection with Bro. Hooton and some other members of the St. James's Lodge. Bros. Nelson Reed, Whitaker, and Stock got up the lodge, but the idea first came from him, consequently he felt the greatest pleasure and pride in being now in the Master's chair. He sincerely hoped he should fulfil the I.P.M.'s expectations of him. Bro. Bennet replied to the toast of "The Initiate." The W.M. then proposed "The Health of Bro. Cowan," and presented him with a massive P.M. jewel, adding that Bro. Cowan had well performed his duties while he was Master of the lodge. Bro. Cowan, in replying, said he was pleased that the members of the lodge were satisfied with what he had done. It was an honour to him to accept the office of Master of the lodge, inasmuch as he knew what an excellent name the lodge had sustained, and that the name and reputation of the lodge was in a great measure in the W.M.'s hands. He had been preceded by two of the best Masters that ever took the chair of a lodge. When he was first appointed Warden he was told that what he saw praiseworthy in others he was carefully to imitate. He had done so to the best of his ability for the past twelve months, and he hoped it would be found that he had fully sustained the honour, reputation, and usefulness of the lodge. He thanked the brethren for the handsome P.M.'s jewel they had honoured him with, not so much for its intrinsic worth, or for its artistic beauties, but more especially because it was presented to him by the unanimous vote of the lodge. He should prize it on every occasion when he put it on. He thanked the brethren for the support they had given him, and he found that he had had a most efficient staff, so efficient, indeed, that it would be difficult to find a staff more worthy of being entrusted with office. With one single exception every member of the lodge had been present at every meeting, and was punctual. When all had done their work so well it would be very much out of place to name any one in particular, but he could not refrain from mentioning the Treasurer and Secretary. He congratulated the W.M. on having such a body of officers as he had, and he also congratulated the officers on their promotion, and he hoped he should live to see them all attain to the W.M.'s chair. Bros. Cowan, Whitaker and Hooton replied to the toast of the "P.M.'s" and Bro. Mather and several other brethren to the toast of "The Visitors." Bro. James Terry responded to the toast of "The Charities," and urged the brethren to pursue the same course they had hitherto pursued in support of the Institutions. He gave a graphic description of the good work these institutions were doing, and he hoped the brethren would aid them in still further extending their excellent work. Bros. Nelson Reed and G. Briggs replied for "The Officers," and the Tyler's toast having been given the brethren separated. Some charming melody was performed during the evening by members of the lodge—Bros. Willcocks, Brown, Reed, Cotton, Whitaker, S. Garratt, Pearce, Byles, Potter, White, Hopkins, Wickham, Claricoats, and Russell.

MIZPAH LODGE (No. 1671).—This lodge met last Saturday at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, when it was presided over by Bro. D. R. Still, W.M. There were also present Bros. Nelson Reed, I.P.M.; W. W. Medcalf, S.W.; Johannes Bergmann, J.W.; J. J. Avery, Treasurer; C. Schmidt, S.D.; R. H. Morgan, J.D.; P. Alpeter, I.G.; David Wright, William Wilson, Henry Warden, junr., C. W. Meiter, Richard Nelson, F. B. Wootzen, Benjamin W. Nunn, Charles Sissons, James Bromwich, Henry Wills, Charles H. Flack, G. Lewis, Joseph Zeder, George Copland, W. S. Whitaker, P.M. 1572; H. Warden, 715; Thomas W. C. Bush, 1728 (W.M. elect); E. Challoner, 1178; B. M. Sewill, 21; Thomas Brown, 765; Charles J. Olley, 1524; Thomas Barlow, 1538; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). The work of the lodge consisted of raising Bro. Bromwich, and passing Bros. Wootzen and Zeder. The following two motions by Bro. Nelson Reed, I.P.M., were adopted: "That the sum of £10 10s. be taken from the Benevolent Fund, and given as a donation to the 'Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons.'" Also, "That the sum of £1 1s. be taken from the same fund and given as a donation to the 'Wentworth Little Memorial Fund.'" After the work of the lodge the brethren adjourned to a choice banquet, and subsequently honoured the usual toasts. The W.M., in proposing "The Queen and the Craft," referred to the death of the Princess Alice, and said that unfortunately Her Majesty had that morning lost a favourite daughter. In her deep grief every Freemason fully shared, and as a loyal body they participated in all the sorrows of their sovereign. It was with sincere feelings of regret they had heard of Her Majesty's loss, a loss which must be universally felt, as Her Royal Highness the Princess Alice had endeared herself to the whole country by her amiability, and the devotion with which she nursed her royal father in the illness of which he died, exactly seventeen years before she breathed her last. A muffled "fire" followed the toast. Bro. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, responded to the toast of "The Grand Officers," and said it was a great honour to him to hold the high position of a Grand Officer, and in that position it was his desire to perform his duties with credit. He trusted he should have to do so for many years to come, and that he might for a long while have to respond to this toast in the Mizpah Lodge, which he trusted would always flourish. In proposing the W.M.'s health, Bro. Nelson Reed said that Bro. Still performed the duties of Master with great ability, not only in the lodge but at the banquet table. He was not at present very well, but the brethren trusted his health would soon be restored, and that the remainder of his year of office might be as prosperous as the early portions of it had been. Bro. Still responded, and while stating that he had performed his duties to the best of his ability trusted that the day would be very, very far distant when anything like discord should arise in the Mizpah Lodge. The W.M., in giving "The Health of the Visitors," advised the brethren to visit other lodges as an excellent means of attaining good working. They would be able by that means to see if there was any imperfection which they could correct themselves before they had the honour of reaching the W.M. chair. Bro. Bush, W.M. elect, Temple Bar Lodge, replied. After thanking the brethren for their hospitality, he referred to what the W.M. had said concerning the death of Princess Alice. The country had sustained a great loss by that event, and he thought the name of Mizpah was well applied to this lodge. In its most generous and liberal meaning it was never more applicable than to the event of that day. In a distant land, a Princess, dear to this country, was lying dead; while at home sat her sorrowful mother in solitude and tears. He was pleased at the touching manner in which the W.M. alluded to the event, and in the minds of all the brethren the word Mizpah would be inculcated. Bro. Nelson Reed responded to the toast of "The I.P.M." The little he had done for the lodge during his year of office, he said, was done with as large an amount of ability as he was able to throw into his work and into the welfare of the lodge. In saying this he thought he said everything, and he hoped that each succeeding Master would have as happy and successful year of office as he had as the first W.M. Bro. H. Massey responded to a toast, specially proposed, for "The Press." Bro. J. J. Avery responded to the toast of "The Treasurer." The W.M. having referred to the Treasurer's desire to keep a good balance, he avowed that it was his pride to see the lodge in a good financial position. The lodge had been generous that evening, but even if it had had a desire to be more generous it could very easily have done so without touching the reserve fund. He thought, however, they had done wisely, as there were three societies which wanted assistance, and it was better to act with caution. What they had voted that evening they had voted from their hearts honestly. A further sum had been invested since last meeting, and without trenching on that they had voted money at the present meeting. Masons did their work, in this respect, very well. An emergency arose some time ago, but when it arose there was no necessity for calling on the brethren of the whole kingdom; but if an emergency did arise, when it would be necessary to call on them, he was sure it would be liberally responded to, and that the brethren of the Mizpah Lodge would not be found backward. Bro. Buss replied to the portion of the toast which referred to "The Secretary." A song had just been sung, advising some soldiers to keep their powder dry, and the advice was very applicable to a lodge. The Treasurer had shown them the necessity for being prepared for emergencies, and the course pursued by the Mizpah Lodge would, if observed in other lodges, certainly lead to success. It was a great pleasure not to have to put on a brother's summons, subscriptions so much, arrears so much, and in the Mizpah Lodge it did not occur that he had to put it. This was a great saving of labour, and further than that it enabled the Treasurer without any difficulty to make provision for the wants of the brethren. In conclusion he was sure that he would always find his office as easy and comfortable as it was at present. The W.M. being obliged to leave at this period of the evening Bro. Nelson Reed took his place, and proposed "The Masonic Charities," the brightest ornament of Masonic profession. The Masonic Charities were all well supported. This next year the Benevolent Institution would have Bro. Medcalf S.W., Steward for its festival as representing the Mizpah Lodge. He (Bro. Reed) had had the honour of representing the Schools for the same lodge and he was well supported on that occasion. He hoped that the S.W., would be equally well supported. Bro. Medcalf, S.W., replied. He was a young member of the Masonic Order, but long before he was a Mason he had had the duty of charity inculcated in him. He was impressed with the belief that whether a man was a Mason or a non-Mason he could do nothing which was more pleasing in God's sight than perform acts of charity. A guinea given to his list by a brother who could afford no more would be in the eyes of God as valuable as the five guineas of a brother who could afford as much as that. The principle was the same when he accepted the office of Steward, he did it with a certain amount of diffidence, but he began to work at it as soon as he accepted it. The lodge had responded most handsomely to his appeal, and so far as his words could express thanks, he thanked the brethren most heartily. The lodge he was sure would not let him go to the forthcoming festival with an amount which would disgrace it. He was not going up without a good list. He should endeavour to get a great deal more on his list than he had already; he had not finished yet. There were one or two brethren he should try, and he should have them one afternoon, let the trade be good or bad. If any of them did give five guineas he knew they would not get up in the morning and say they had done a wrong thing. The great thing was to pay and he hoped the brethren would come forward and add their names to his list; so that when the Mizpah Lodge met after the festival he might be able to tell the brethren that it had been first on the list. Bro. Bergmann replied for "The Officers." His first wish was to be an officer of the lodge and he had the firm conviction that there was not an officer of the Mizpah Lodge that had not had the same ambition, to serve as an efficient officer and go up to the chair with honour. Men were not always to be judged by what they did; he thought they should be judged by what they wanted to do, by the good-will they had, and as far as that goodwill was concerned, he must say for himself and all his brother officers they had the desire and earnest wish to fulfil their respective offices with credit. The Tyler's toast having been given, the brethren separated. The evening was one of the most enjoyable in our experience. Everything was done that could make the brethren happy, and the music was of a character that drew praise from the whole company. Bro. Bergmann was untiring in acting as accompanist on the pianoforte, whereon he showed his marvellous skill as a pianist. He also treated the brethren to some vocal music, and Bros. Medcalf, R. A. Morgan, Warden, Norman, Meter, Avery, Bromwich, Slack, Brown, Olley, Barlow, and Nelson Reed formed a corps, whose vocal powers the brethren had an opportunity of testing, were perfect.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—A regular meeting was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, Dec. 5th, at 7.30. There were present Bros. F. Wilkinson, W.M.; Brown, P.P.G.S.W.; I.P.M.; Ashley, P.M., Treas.; F. Wilton, P.M. and Dir. of Cer.; Captain Peel Floyd, P.M., as S.W.; Braham, J.W.; Hunt, Sec.; Ames, as S.D.; Radway, J.D.; W. Baldwin, Organist; Robinson, I.G.; Holmes and Mercer, Stewards; Bigwood, Tyler; John Turner, Clark, Moutrie, P.M.'s. of 41; Dr. Hopkins, P.P.G.S.W. for Warwick, and P.M. 43 and 958; F. Baldwin, P.M. 335; and many members. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Innes, of the Dalhousie Lodge, 639, and Dill, P.P.G.P., and P.M. 906. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for Bro. J. Robinson, as a joining member, which was unanimously favourable. A grant of £2 was made to a distressed brother, whose antecedents had undergone the strictest scrutiny. A letter was read from Bro. Major Preston, P.M., Governor of the Birmingham Prison, withdrawing his notice of resignation, which was received with great satisfaction, as he had won universal respect and esteem during his residence in Bath in a similar capacity. Mr. Edward Willis, who had been previously balloted for, was introduced, properly prepared, and initiated by the W.M. The working tools were explained by Bro. Mercer, and the charge was given by Bro. Dr. Hopkins. Bros. W. E. and H. B. Smith were then examined as to their proficiency in the First Degree, and having answered very satisfactorily, were entrusted and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the candidates on their re-admission, were passed to the rank of F.C. by the W.M. Bro. Braham described the symbolism of the working tools, and, as before, Bro. Dr. Hopkins gave the charge. The lodge was brought down to the First Degree, and no other business offering, was finally closed at 9.30.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge (No. 78).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at Asheton Arms Hotel, on Thursday, Nov. 28th. The W.M. Bro. W. Percival presided, and was assisted by Bros. F. Fothergill, S.W.; J. Hatton, J.W.; H. Heywood, P.M., Treas.; P. Lawton, J.D.; J. Eckersley, I.G.; and Jno. Kent, Tyler. Among the visitors were Bros. Wm. Richardson, Chaplain 1532; J. Southwick, 1034; C. Bowker, 467; and D. Withington, 82, Fall City, New Jersey, U.S. The lodge having been duly opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary (Bro. Samuel Hewitt) and received confirmation. Bro. T. D. Yates having, to the satisfaction of the brethren, answered the questions leading from the First to the Second Degree was entrusted and passed out. The lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Yates was passed to the degree of F.C. by the W.M. the working tools being presented by Bro. F. Fothergill, S.W.; Bro. W. J. Liffie having satisfactorily answered the questions leading from the Second to the Third Degree was entrusted with the test of merit, and passed out. The lodge having been opened in the Third Degree, Bro. Liffie was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. by Bro. H. Heywood, P.M., the working tools being presented by the S.W. Bro. Fothergill. The ceremony throughout was very impressive. The lodge having been lowered to the First Degree the brethren next proceeded to the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, and Bro. F. Fothergill, S.W. received the unanimous vote of the lodge. The unanimity of the lodge was further exhibited in the election of Bro. H. Heywood, P.M., as Treasurer; Bro. Jno. Kent as Tyler, and Bros. Samuel Lawton and John Reed, as Auditors. The W.M. appointed Bro. O. A. Jowett, as his Auditor. On the motion of Bro. J. Garlick, P.M., it was unanimously agreed: "That the officers of the lodge form a Committee to make the necessary arrangements for the St. John's Festival." A candidate was proposed for initiation and another as a joining member. "Hearty Good Wishes" were accorded from P.G.L. of East Lancashire, from lodges 62, 467, 1034, 1532, and 82, Fall City, New Jersey, U.S. Charity was next attended to, and the lodge having been closed, the brethren retired from labour to refreshment. The customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given and the brethren adjourned at 10 p.m., having passed a most enjoyable evening.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Royal Gloucester Lodge (No. 130).—In addition to the constitution and consecration of a new lodge in Southampton, noticed elsewhere, making six lodges in that town and its immediate neighbourhood, the Worshipful Master, for the ensuing year of the mother lodge, the Royal Gloucester, 130, has been elected during the past week, the Senior Warden, Bro. C. W. A. Jellicoe, who is the Treasurer of the borough, being called to that position. The retiring Master, Bro. C. John Phillips, presented to the lodge a sketch of its history, compiled from the minute books, assisted by some memoranda left by the late Bro. J. R. Stebbing, the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and one of the Past Masters, as the result of his investigations for such a history on the occasion of the centenary of the lodge in 1872, there being included in the sketch an autograph letter from the Marquis of Ripon—who, with the members of Grand Lodge, attended at Southampton at the celebration—consenting to the dedication of this history to him; but Bro. Stebbing died before its completion. Bro. Phillips also presented to the lodge a pair of Wyld's pedestal globes, celestial and terrestrial, for the pillars on each side the chair of the lodge. In the course of the proceedings, which included a passing and the initiation of a French Protestant clergyman, now holding a cure in Southampton, it was stated that during the past year, with one exception, and in that instance the figures were equal, more Masons had been initiated in this the senior lodge of the town than during any previous twelvemonths since 1856, in which year there was an abnormal increase in the numbers. Bro. R. Sharpe, the I.P.M., was re-elected Treasurer. On Monday, at the meeting of the Peace and Harmony Lodge in the same town Bro. Thos. Lashmore was elected W.M. for the ensuing year.

MANCHESTER.—Caledonian Lodge (No. 204).—The annual festival of St. John was celebrated by the members of this old and popular lodge on Wednesday, the 11th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall. There was a large gathering of members and visitors. Amongst the latter were Bros. J. L. Hine, P.P.G.S.W. of East Lancashire; the Rev. S. Y. B. Bradshaw, P.P.G. Chap.; Dr. P. Royle, P.P.G.S.D.; John Salmon, P.G.D. of C.; Thos. Southern, W.M. 935; D. Donbavand, W.M. 317; and others. The W.M., Bro. R. Eldershaw, opened the lodge at 4 p.m., and after the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. Geo. F. East, P.P.G.D. of C., then occupied the W.M.'s chair, and in a very impressive manner installed the W.M. elect, Bro. John Robeders, in the chair of K.S., according to the ancient customs and usages of the Order. Bro. East initiated the following officers, viz: Bros. G. T. Mullock, S.W.; W. Bagnall, J.W.; the Rev. P. Harris, P.M., Chap.; John C. Hind, P.M., Treas.; R. L. Spencer, Sec.; Thos. Guest, S.D.; John Sutcliffe, J.D.; Thos. Fainlie, D.C.; H. T. Roberts, P.M., Org.; C. Duckworth, I.G.; Murray, Sawyer, Hurry, and Lawton, Stewards; and J. Sly, Tyler. At the conclusion of the ceremony the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where social enjoyment reigned for the remainder of the evening. The newly-installed W.M. presided, and was well supported by an important array of Past Masters and other distinguished brethren. This lodge happily possesses amongst its members an excellent glee party, viz., Bros. Lever, M. Thomas, C. Stanley, H. T. Robeders, and T. Suorocks, who considerably enhanced the pleasures of the day by their rendering of glees and songs, and Bro. D. Donbavand won, worthily, the applause of all present by reciting Eliza Cook's poem "Heart's Charity" in a very feeling and pathetic manner. Bro. Hine, who seems at all times to keep in view the welfare of the aged and infirm, instituted an impromptu "whip" for the purpose of providing the inmates of the Croydon Institution with some little luxury on Christmas Day, and from the hearty response given to this thoughtful movement our old friends will have sufficient evidence to prove to them that at this festive season the members of 204, while themselves enjoying the blessings of this life, do not forget their brethren in adversity.

JERSEY.—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1003).—The installation, as well as the anniversary festival, of this flourishing lodge was held on Wednesday, the 13th inst., attended by a large number of brethren, amongst whom several of the Provincial Grand Officers were present. The ceremony of installation was performed by W. Bro. J. G. Pallot, Past Master, in a very creditable manner. The newly-elected Master, W. Bro. John Huellin, was inducted in the chair according to ancient custom; and all were unanimous in giving him the cordial greeting which his new position entitled him to; indeed, a more zealous Mason cannot be found, for he proves his love for the Order by word and deed, so much so, that three of his sons are members of the lodge of which he is now the Worshipful Master. After the investiture of the officers, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-hall, where the annual dinner was provided by Bro. Geo. Rogers, in a manner which gave entire satisfaction. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and responded to, as well as several good songs. At half-past ten the Tyler gave the toast of "All Distressed Masons," and the brethren dispersed to their respective homes, fully satisfied with the fourteenth anniversary of the Prince of Wales Lodge.

DERBY.—Hartington Lodge (No. 1085).—The December meeting of this lodge was held on the 4th inst., at the Derbyshire Masonic Hall. There were present:—Bros. G. Pipes, W.M., and Prov. Grand Organist; W. Heathcote, I.P.M., and P.P.D. of C.; J. O. Manton, Hon. Sec., as S.W.; W. B. Hextall, J.W.; M. H. Bobart, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., Treas.; W. Butterfield, as S.D.; J. Russell, J.D.; C. D. Hart, as I.G.; F. Liffie, P.M., P.P. J.G.W.; W. Naylor, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., and present Prov. G. Sec.; S. Pipes, W.M., P.P.S.G.D., and a large number of other members, also numerous visitors, among whom were Bros. T. Cox, P.M. 253 and 802, P.P.S.G.W., and Present Prov. G. Treas.; W. Boden, W.M. 353; J. Brown, I.P.M. 731, Prov. J.G.D. and B. Cooper, P.M. 787. Mr. Chas. Osborne received the benefit of initiation. Bro. Belfield was advanced to the Third Degree. The W.M. reported that the R.W. Prov. Grand Master had been pleased to invest him as the P.G.O. for the ensuing year, and that the annual return of the lodge presented at the P.G.

Lodge on the 26th ult. was satisfactory in every respect. Several matters relating to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution and other charities received attention, one result being the appointment as Steward of Bro. W. W. Popplewell, to represent the lodge at the next festival of one of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institutions. There were two nominations of candidates; and there was an unusual amount of other business disposed of, affecting, more particularly, the internal affairs of the lodge; an increase in the annual subscription being one of the most noticeable questions. The brethren after their long labours adjourned to the banquet room, there to enjoy a spread, provided in excellent style by Bro. S. Steele. Bros. Dodd and Hudson contributed to the harmony of the evening with some exquisite music.

MIRFIELD.—Mirfield Lodge (No. 1102).—The annual installation meeting was held on Friday, December 13th, at the Assembly Rooms. The lodge was opened at 4.30 p.m., promptly, by the W.M., Bro. A. A. Stott, assisted by the following officers and brethren: Bro. J. K. Ibberson, P.M., as S.W.; John Crowther, J.W.; Thomas Lang, P.M., Secretary; James Walmsley, S.D.; James Barker, J.D.; John Barker, P.M., as I.G.; and Bros. G. Armistage, P.M.; John Walmsley, P.M.; G. R. Harse, and James Simpson. The minutes of the last regular lodge were read and confirmed. Mr. Robert Lister being in attendance he was duly initiated into Freemasonry, Bro. Stott performing the ceremony in an impressive and effective manner, and so closing his year of office. The lodge was then opened into the Second Degree, when the following brethren and visitors entered the lodge:—Bros. J. Ibberson, P.M., P.P.G. Registrar; Joseph Wainwright, P.M.; H. R. Cousins, Wright, W. Airton, C. Sheard, T. B. Fairclough, S.W., W.M. elect. Bros. A. Williamson, 275; Ruddock, P.M. 275, P.S.G.D.; John Booth, P.M. 258, G.G.W.; T. Pikes, P.M. 258; J. Woodsworth, P.M. 1019, P.P.G.D. of Ceremonies; T. Heron, P.M. 208; M. Newsome, P.M. 208, P.P.G.D.; W. Whiteley, 208; C. Woolons, S.W. 208; A. Green, P.M. 208; R. Kelley, P.M. 750; W. Isherwood, 750; A. Wilmore, 750; T. Greenwood, 750; G. S. Bull, 750; C. Arrson, P.M. 264; T. J. Luman, I.G. 264; C. Claston, P.M. 264; W. Brearey, J.W. 264; C. Eastwood, 1214; E. Hemingway, P.M. 1214; W. B. Alderson, P.M. 495, G.G.J.D.; H. J. Holdsworth, W.M. 408; A. Gomersal, J.W. 408; J. Fezard, W.M. 071; J. Thompson, J.W. 171; A. Stott, 1301; D. A. Shaw, P.M. 827; T. H. Good, P.M. 1221; A. Cameron, 827. The W.M. now vacated the chair in favour of Past Master John Barker, to whom Bro. J. Ibberson, P.M., and John Walmsley, P.M., presented Bro. T. B. Fairclough, the W.M. elect. The customary ceremony having been completed in the Second Degree, the lodge was opened to the Third Degree, when all the brethren below the rank of Installed Master retired. The Board of Installed Masters was opened by Bro. J. Ibberson, P.P.G. Registrar, and Bro. Fairclough was duly installed into the chair of K.S. The W.M. having been saluted according to ancient form he invested the following brethren as his officers for the year ensuing:—Bros. J. T. Barras, S.W. (by deputy, he being delayed by the lateness of the train); John Crowther, J.W.; John Walmsley, P.M., Treasurer; James Barker, Secretary; James Walmsley, S.D.; H. R. Cousins, J.D.; John Barker, P.M., Director of Ceremonies; J. Kenworthy, I.G.; W. Booth, O.G. The address to the Master was given by Bro. J. K. Ibberson, P.M., to the Wardens by Bro. A. A. Stott, P.M., and to the brethren by Bro. John Walmsley, P.M. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, presided over by the W.M., at which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, the same being brought to a close with the Tyler's toast, "To all Poor and Distressed Brethren." So ended another of these happy social gatherings which do so much to promote good fellowship and kindly feeling amongst the different lodges.

MANCHESTER.—Strangeways Lodge (No. 1219).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday week, at the lodge room, Empire Hotel, Strangeways. The brethren assembled about half-past five o'clock, tea being served shortly after that time. The lodge was opened about 6.15, and after the usual preliminary business, two candidates were duly balloted for and initiated as Entered Apprentices, Bros. P.M.'s Needham and Schofield giving the charges in the most exemplary manner. Bros. Bond and Unsworth were afterwards passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, the W.M. (Bro. Brandon) performing the ceremony in a manner which was highly gratifying to the brethren present. The members then adjourned to the social board, the W.M. occupying the chair, being supported by Bros. P.M.'s Schofield, Rogers, and Needham, Bros. Leech, S.W., and — Dareson, J.W., occupying their respective places. Full honours were paid to the various loyal and Masonic toasts, the musical honours being conducted by Bro. W. Smith, S.S., with great effect. The healths of the "Newly Initiated" and "Newly passed Brethren" were then proposed by the W.M. in most flattering terms, which were gracefully acknowledged by those brothers. No toast at any of the meetings of this lodge is more popular than that of the W.M. (Bro. Brandon), who, from the hearty reception his name met with, must be assured of the high estimation he is held in by the brethren. Bro. Rogers, P.M., responded in a most jocular manner to the toast of the "Past Masters;" and Bro. Leech, S.W., on behalf of the "Officers of the Lodge," The "Visiting Brethren" was, as usual, given by Bro. Dawson, J.W., and suitably responded to. The enjoyment of the evening was greatly enhanced by some excellent songs by Bros. Smith, Ruddock, and Russell.

THIRSK.—Falcon Lodge (No. 1416).—The annual meeting of this lodge for the installation of the Worshipful Master took place on Thursday, the 12th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Thirsk, Yorkshire, when there was a good attendance of brethren, the compact little lodge room being pleasantly filled. The ceremony was announced to have been performed by Bro. George Marwood, Past Deputy Provincial Grand Master for North and East Yorkshire, but at the last moment he was unable to be present in consequence of domestic affliction, and his place was filled by Bro. S. B. Whythead, Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies. The lodge was opened at 2 p.m., by the M.W., Bro. George Ayre, and after the reading of the minutes, was opened in the Second Degree. The chair was then assumed by the Installing Master, and Bro. Thomas J. Wilkinson, the S.W., and W.M. elect, was presented and installed according to ancient custom, and afterwards duly proclaimed in the Three Degrees. The working tools were presented by Bro. William Paley, P.M. De Grey and Ripon Lodge, 837. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. George Ayre, I.P.M.; W. Cottman, S.W.; W. Hall, J.W.; Rev. C. E. Camidge, P.P.G.C., Chaplain; H. Masterman, Treasurer; J. Johnson, Secretary; A. G. Duncombe, S.D.; R. Bell, J.D.; Charles Elsley, M.C.; Z. Wright, Organist; J. Walton, I.G.; G. Anderson, P.M., Almoner; W. Ayre, and R. Long, Stewards; J. Farmery, Tyler. A banquet was afterwards held at the Fleece Hotel, to which about thirty brethren sat down. The W.M. presided, and was supported by his Wardens and officers, and many visitors. In proposing the toast of "The Health of the Worshipful Master, and prosperity to the Falcon Lodge," Bro. T. B. Whythead said that the lodge was happy in having secured a Master to rule over its destinies, who was so thoroughly a Mason at heart, who was such a deep student of archæology, and who was in every sense such an intelligent Mason. It was impossible but that the Falcon Lodge should prosper under his guidance. He (Bro. Whythead) had known Bro. Wilkinson now for some years as a Mason, and his only regret was that he had not known him sooner, that the privilege of his friendship might have been of longer duration. In replying to the toast of his own health, the Installing Master said, that whilst it had given him very great pleasure to have had the opportunity of installing his friend, yet he could not but sincerely express his regret at the circumstances that had led to the work being left in his hands. They would all have been only too glad to have seen that day in the chair he had so often occupied their good and respected Bro. Marwood, for whom the entire province entertained such a sincere veneration and affection. Other toasts followed, and the evening was spent in a most pleasant manner. Amongst the visitors and members of the Falcon Lodge present besides those already named were Bros. Gen. Balmford, P.M. 236, P.P.G.O.; T. S. Camidge, 236, P.P.G.O.; M. Knowles, P.M. 940, P.P.G.S.O. (Durham); J. Hunton, P.M. 940, P.P.G.O. (Durham); J. Richardson, P.M. 1001, P.P.G.A.P.; J. Fairbairn, P.M. 1337; J. W. Walmsley, 1337; G. J. Robinson, 1337; W. J. Husband, 1611; W. H. Gainforth, 236; G. Kirby, 236; J. Rhodes, P.M. 1416; H. Smith, 1416; C. G. L. Kipling, 1416; J. Harker, and others.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—Henley Lodge (No. 1472).—North Woolwich is not the most pleasant spot upon the surface of the globe, but it has within its heart a good and perfect little home for those of the Craft who dare and desire to penetrate its mysteries. Should they be coming that way upon the second Tuesday of the forthcoming months up to June, and call at Bro. West's the "Three Crowns" they will find a hearty welcome, and a brotherly reception, that will make them remember with pleasure and gratification their visit. We have been led into these remarks by the reception we and our brother visitors met with on Tuesday, the 3rd inst., when in the presence of a goodly muster, Bro. A. J. Manning, the W.M., opened the lodge with the prospect before him of a good night's work, no less than the Three Degrees having to be worked by him before he could safely say his work was done. Besides the W.M. the following officers were present:—Bros. H. T. Turner, S.W.; J. Plume, J.W.; J. Ives, P.M., Sec.; Dr. W. Vance, S.D.; E. Lloyd, J.D.; J. Elder, I.G.; and A. W. Page, P.M., O.G. The Past Masters present were Bros. W. Steele, I.P.M.; and W. West. The visitors composed Bros. R. P. Hogg, W.M. 1598; C. Roddam, 212; E. Dwelley, 933; and C. Jolly, 913, (Freemason.) The work of the lodge consisted of the raising of Bro. Holloway, the passing of Bros. Lewis and Cash, and the initiation of Messrs. John James Young and William Ball, Bro. Walter James Burgess, of the "Wanderers' Lodge" No. 1604, having previously been admitted as a joining member. The whole of the business being completed, and the ceremonies which throughout the Three Degrees were performed by the W.M. with that skill and ability that his previous career had so fully promised, having been finished, the brethren adjourned to an adjoining room, where a pleasant little unpretentious supper awaited them, and having discussed it, a move was made to the lodge room, where every necessity for the perfect enjoyment of the inner man, was served with profusion. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured as they should be among Masons, and the W.M. in response to a cordial reception of his name made a fair W. Master's speech, introducing many little points worthy of notice, and when he gave that of the "Visitors," always at this lodge made much of, he expressed the good it had done him through visiting lodges, and the immense amount of good fellowship, and brotherly love which was gleaned from those visitations. Bros. Hogg, Dwelley, Jolly, and others replied for the usual remaining toasts. "The Initiates," "The Past Masters," and "Officers of the Lodge," were severally responded to, and then the meeting closed.

MARQUESS OF RIPON LODGE (No. 1489).—A regular meeting of this lodge took place on Friday week, at the Hall of the Metropolitan Societies Asylum, Balls Pond-road, Dalston, present Bros. Dr. John Symonds, W.M.; John High, S.W.; James Glaskin, acting J.W.; W. Stephens, Treasurer; W. J. Murli, Secretary; Charles Smith, I.G.; Gilchrist, Tyler. There was no business on the agenda but the balloting of a joining member, and this being the last meeting of the year, the Treasurer made a special appeal on behalf of the institution in whose hall they met, and where they had been so comfortably located since its consecration, five years since. Nearly fifty years ago the Metropolitan Societies Asylum was established for the reception of aged persons of both sexes. Members of any Benevolent Society are provided with a free residence, coals, gas, medical attendance, and a weekly allowance towards maintenance. Her Majesty the Queen Patron, but the institution is but scantily endowed. It has been the usual custom, at Christmas time, to entertain the old folks with a dinner. He, therefore, urged the brethren, who had so nobly contributed to the Masonic Charities to do something for the inmates of an institution, so worthy of their support. Bro. Henry Patient, the Secretary, member of this lodge, then prepared a list, and a sum of ten guineas was immediately collected, for which he most heartily thanked the donors. At the closing of the lodge, a plain supper took place, and the usual toasts were proposed and honoured. Bro. Walford, C.C., I.P.M., responded for the P.M.'s, Bro. Murli for the Treasurer and Secretary, Jno. High for the officers, Stephens for the Charities, and the Tyler's toast ended at an early hour a very pleasant evening, most ably presided over by the Worshipful Master, Dr. Jno. Symonds.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—On Wednesday, the 11th inst., this lodge met at the Albany Hotel. There were present Bros. H. Court, W.M.; W. Taylor, S.W.; Vaughan, J.W.; Tomlinson, P.M., P.P.G.D. of Norfolk, Treasurer; Charles Horsley, P.M., P.P.G.R. of Middlesex, &c.; Ashley, S.D.; C. Palmer, J.D.; A. Taylor, I.G.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, D.C.; H. Court, junr., Organist. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. There were two candidates for passing and raising in the agenda, but as neither were in attendance, the lodge was closed, and the brethren partook of a collation. The only toast honoured besides the customary preliminary ones were "The Provincial Grand Officers," (Bro. Horsley responded) "The W.M.," and "The Officers." The Tyler having been called upon to discharge his duty the formal proceedings closed at an early hour. There were no visitors.

FELTHAM.—Elliot Lodge (No. 1567).—An emergency meeting of the above prosperous lodge was held at the Railway Hotel, Feltham, on Saturday week, when there were present:—Bros. J. R. Nichols, W.M.; John Mason, P.P.G.S.D., acting as I.P.M., Treasurer; J. H. Pearson, S.W.; T. W. Clarke, J.W.; John Elliott, P.M., Secretary; F. Jacob, J.D.; W. H. Goodall, I.G.; and the following brethren: Bros. Randall, Pearce, Lawrence, Sanders, Jones, Pemberton, Dutton, Elliott, Chilvers and Wadson. Bros. Wigley, Bubb, and Smith were present as visitors, Potter, Tyler. The lodge was opened in the Three Degrees, and by the kind permission of the W.M. the V.W. Bro. John Mason raised Bro. Davey, to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason. The lodge was then resumed to the Second Degree and Bros. Schmidt and Church were passed by the W.M. to the degree of Fellow Craft. The ballot having been taken for four candidates and declared unanimously in their favour, Messrs. R. A. Fraser and A. Stephenson, were duly initiated by the W.M. into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. The whole of the duties for which the lodge was convened having been ably performed, the lodge was closed in due form and with solemn prayer. At the banquet, which was of the usual excellence which distinguishes Bro. Harris's catering, the usual Masonic toasts were given the V.W. Bro. John Mason responding for the "Provincial Grand Officers." "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the V.W. Bro. J. Mason, who said, brethren, I approach this toast with feelings of great pleasure and congratulation, you all know how short a time has elapsed since the installation of our esteemed brother the W.M. and many would have thought it hard had they been called on to hold a lodge of emergency at so early a date as this; but our W.M. did not hesitate to accede to the wishes expressed by several of the brethren. I doubt not many of you were surprised at the able manner in which our W.M. worked the degrees of initiation and Fellow Craft and I am sure each one of you must have felt pride and gratification thereat. I did not doubt his ability, and you all know his zealous desire to do well all that the lodge entrusted him to do. I ask you to join me in drinking "The Health of the W.M., Bro. Nichols," and wishing him a happy and prosperous year of office. The toast was received with unanimous applause and the W.M. returned thanks in a few well chosen sentences. "The Healths of the Treasurer and Secretary" were given by the W.M. and responded to by Bros. J. Mason and J. Elliott, the former making some happy remarks in favour of a more energetic support of the Charities. "The Officers of the Lodge," was acknowledged by Bro. Pearson, S.W., in a brief but suitable speech and he was followed by Bros. Clarke, J.W.; Jacob, J.D.; and Goodall, I.G. The toast "The Initiates and the Visitors," both of which were well received, were acknowledged by Bros. Fraser and Stephenson, and Bros. Wigley and Bubb, respectively. Several brethren enlivened the banquet with songs and recitations and the Tyler's toast brought to a conclusion another of those happy gatherings for which the Elliot Lodge is so famous.

JERUSALEM CHAPTER (No. 185).—On Tuesday, the 10th inst., this old chapter met at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street. There were present amongst others:—Comps. Wagner, M.E.Z.; Robinson, ROSE OF DENMARK CHAPTER (No. 975).

—On the 7th inst., this chapter mustered in strength at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge. There were present amongst others, Comps. Martin, M.R.Z.; Richards, H.; Green, J.; Dodd, P.Z, S.E.; Pitt-Lewis, S.N.; Walker, P.S.; James Warner, 1st Asst.; Newton, I.P.Z.; Price, P.Z. The visitors present were: Comps. Watts, J. 63; Pigott, J., (Hervei); F. C. Walls, P.G.O of Middlesex (Freemason); Mayer, 55; and Summers, 174. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, Bros. J. Osborn, Secretary, 1632, and A. J. Shotton, 1599, were duly and most ably exalted to the Supreme Degree of the R.A. The election of officers then took place, with the following unanimous result: Comps. Richards, M.E.Z.; Green, H.; Pitt-Lewis, J.; Dodd, S.E.; Buss, P.Z. &c., Treasurer; Walker, S.N.; J. Warner, P.S.; and Gilbert, P.G.J. of Middlesex, Janitor. The members appointed on the Audit Committee were Comps. Warner, Green, and Osborn. A Past Principal's jewel was unanimously voted to Comp. Martin, and the sum of one guinea voted to the fund for the annual entertainment of the old people at Croydon. A notice of motion to increase the exaltation fee to five guineas having been given the convocation was closed, and the companions adjourned to an excellent banquet, which was admirably served by Comp. Stanbury in the new dining room of his capital hostelry. Upon the removal of the cloth the preliminary Royal Arch toasts were done ample justice to. "The Health of The M.E.Z." was proposed by Comp. Price, P.Z. In the course of his speech he congratulated the Chapter upon having had so excellent a First Principal to preside over them as Comp. Martin had undoubtedly proved himself to be. The work of the chapter had been performed by him most efficiently, and his genial and social bearing at the convivial board was worthy of all praise. In conclusion he charged them to drink his health most cordially and to wish him every prosperity in his forthcoming retirement. The M.E.Z. who, in consequence of indisposition had vacated the chair in favour of Comp. Newton, briefly replied by stating that he felt extremely gratified for the very flattering encomiums that had been passed upon his poor merits by Comp. Price. He had tried to do his duty, and in that endeavor had been most ably supported by his colleagues in office and also by the members of the chapter, who had by their kind treatment rendered his position of First Principal a most enjoyable one. "The Health of the Exalted" followed. Comp. Newton in proposing this toast said that he had been forcibly struck by the great attention which their newly exalted companions had displayed during the long but impressive ceremonial of exaltation. He hoped that having once entered the portals of Royal Arch Masonry that they would not rest until they had attained the high position of First Principal. In concluding his remarks he hoped that they would never regret having become members of the Rose of Denmark Chapter. This toast having been duly honoured, the newly exalted companion, in reply, expressed themselves deeply indebted to the members of No. 975 for having received them into their ranks. They felt highly impressed with the ceremony, and they hoped to become better acquainted with its beautiful but voluminous details in order that they might attain not only a theoretical but a practical knowledge of its mysteries. "The Visitors" came next in order, and was acknowledged by Comps. Walls and Summers. The remaining toasts "The Second and Third Principals," "The Past Principals," "The Treasurer and Scribe E." and "The Officers" followed in quick succession, and were duly honoured and responded to. The Janitor having been called upon to discharge his duty the proceedings terminated at an early hour, and the companions returned to town.

Reports of the following unavoidably stand over:—District Grand Lodge of Ceylon. Lodges:—07, 177, 236, 339, 370, 673, 933, 1303, 107, 115; I.C. Mark Lodges:—Excelsior, Freeman.

The Installation meeting of the York Lodge, No. 236, was held in the Masonic Hall, York, on Monday last, Bro. A. Buckle being installed W.M., for the ensuing year. A report will appear in our next.

BRIXTON LODGE (No 234).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall on Saturday, the 14th inst. The lodge was opened in due form by W. Bro. Thos. Poole P.G.I.G., P.M., the W.M., assisted by Bros. C. P. McKay, S.W.; H. Lovegrove, J.W.; H. Baldwin, Sec.; Pitts, (W.M. elect 169), as M.O.; J. Curtis, S.D.; Dr. Pearce, S.D.; Larham, as I.P.M.; Potter, Tyler; G. Moss, S.D. Eclectic 1201; G. W. Evans, Organist, Stuart, 1263; and G. J. Dunkley, Organist 1543, 1777, having been approved by ballot were duly advanced, the ceremony being performed with the W.M.'s well-known skill; and at the conclusion of the ceremony of advancement he favoured the brethren by giving the lecture on the Tracing Board. This new lodge offers opportunity to Masons in South London to join this interesting musical degree. Before the close of the proceedings the newly advanced brethren were invested, Bros. Moss, as J.D.; Evans, as I.G. and Dunkley, as Organist.

Reviews.

CHRISTMAS BOOKS AND PERIODICALS:—

"The Christmas Graphic;" "Arrows From the Bow;" "Christmas Number of the Quiver;" "Christmas Illustrated London News;" "Christmas Masonic Magazine;" "Baby Bell;" "Excelsior;" "Robinson Crusoe;" "St. Nicholas."

We are delighted this year with Christmas books, but no doubt to good effect. If our forefathers could rise from their graves, how they would rub their eyes and stare at this plethora of Christmas literature, so different from the dull dingy volumes of their own good time. And who can doubt but what it is for the best for us all? The youthful mind, (and the adult mind, for that), requires to be stirred up and gratified, as well as "talked at" and "preached to." "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and so in this undogmatic age, the dogmatic and slightly dull performances of earlier years cannot "hold their own."

Whether for good or for evil, Time, that shows all things alone can decide. We leave the matter confessedly "sub judice." Like Captain Cuttle, of careful memory, we simply "make a note of it."

The Christmas Graphic is very interesting, and the story of a "Romance Upon Wheels" inimitable.

We are much pleased with "Arrows from the Bow," the Christmas number of the Quiver, (Cassell, Petter, and Galpin), as the stories are good, and the moral most healthy.

The Christmas Illustrated London News is as usual very effective.

The Christmas Masonic Magazine comes out most brilliantly, and right genially for the Christmas season. We commend it to all our readers, alike old and young. But our own innate modesty forbids special laudation of a publication, (which needs no puff), in these veracious columns.

Baby Bell, Excelsior, and Robinson Crusoe, all three published by Routledge, deserve our admiration and gratitude, as both seasonable and most profitable readings.

St. Nicholas, Sampson and Low, is one of the best magazines out.

THE ROSICRUCIAN. George Kenning, 198, Fleet-street.

This valuable quarterly comes before us with renewed vigour under fresh editorship.

We like it much, the more so as it will no doubt eventually become more and more critical, and less and less confiding in its acceptance of "ye mystic traditions of the past," not wrong, per se, be it noted, but ending often, as all mental excess ends, sooner or later, in a sort of Masonic "Fetish."

We should like to know, as it is a fact of history, on what authority the editors declare of a Masonic song (page 460), that it was written in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The archaisms of the song are not the archaisms "tempore Elizabethæ Regine." The story of Sir Thomas Sackville is a myth. Where, then, do these verses come from? We commend the "Rosicrucian" heartily, especially to Rosicrucians.

CHRISTMAS AND THE POST OFFICE.—A notice

issued by the Postmaster-General says:—A severe strain is put upon the Post Office on Christmas and New Year's Eve, owing to the large number of Christmas and New Year's cards, which it is now the fashion to send at those periods of the year. The Post Office does all in its power to ensure punctuality, but the due dispatch and delivery of letters are almost impossible unless the public render assistance by posting their letters, &c., early on the 24th and 31st December; and this, it is hoped, they will do. The general post, or morning delivery, will be the only delivery in London and its suburbs on Christmas day.

The death is announced of Mr. W. H. Payne, the head of the family of that name connected with English pantomime. He was attended in his last hours by Mrs. Aynsley Cook and his other daughter. Mr. Payne was over 70 years of age.

Lord Skelmersdale left Portland-place, W., on Wednesday, for Lathom House, Ormskirk.

Bro. Captain F. R. Sewell, J.P., has been unanimously elected W.M. of Skildaw Lodge, No. 1102, Cockermouth. The installation festival will be held on Tuesday, January. Bro. Sewell has been S.W. for the past twelve months, and a more regular attender, or efficient worker, no W.M. could desire.

The Cosmopolitan Masonic Pocket Book for 1879 is now ready, price, post free, 2s. 2d. Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.—ADVT.

Obituary.

BRO. COLONEL JOHN BRETT.

Lieutenant-Colonel John Brett, whose death on the 12th or 13th ultimo was announced in the London papers, was a native of Leicester. He was the eldest son of the late Samuel Brett, of Leicester, and enlisted about thirty-six years ago in the First Battalion of the Rifle Brigade. His splendid penmanship procured him a stool in the orderly office of his regiment—a life not at all to his taste. On the Kaffir war breaking out in the Cape, in 1846-7, he asked the permission of his Colonel (Baller) to vacate the stool for active service with his company. This at first was denied him, but he still retained his determination to leave the office, and at last his desire was granted. On his first engagement with the enemy he and his comrades in the rifles were ensconced behind a stone wall. The colonel's horse was wounded, and fell with the rider's leg under him. Young Brett at once saw his position, and forgetting the danger he himself would incur, stepped forth to extricate the Colonel from his perilous position. In doing so a ball from the enemy instantly passed through Brett's left breast and right through the body. He was reported to have been slain, and his friends here at home mourned for him as dead. But a friend unknown wrote to the War Office, and the reply came "not dead, but severely wounded." After Brett recovered his promotion was rapid, and he soon arrived at the top of the non-commissioned ladder. On the second outbreak of the Kaffirs in 1852-53 he went once more to the Cape with the brave Sir George Cathcart, who found young Brett very useful. They had scarcely settled down on their return from the Cape, when the Crimean War began, and the 1st Battalion of Rifles was ordered to Varna. Brett had at that time a younger brother named William in the 2nd Battalion of Rifles, and he asked to be permitted to be with his brother. This wish was complied with, and William accompanied his brother John. On their arrival at Varna John Brett was presented by his old commander, Sir George Cathcart, with an ensign's commission. After the Battle of Alma he was made adjutant, and his knowledge of discipline soon placed him in a prominent position. His duty in the trenches before Sebastopol was very severe, and yet all his letters were cheerful, and showed that he deeply sympathised for the poor fellows at work under his command. On the morning of the Battle of Inkerman almost the first intelligence he received was that of the death of his young brother, whose body he never recovered. During the day he himself was knocked down by a spent ball while conveying ammunition to his men, but sustained no further harm than a severe shock. After the fall of Sebastopol he was made captain. On his return to England he exchanged into the 3rd Battalion of the Rifle Brigade, which was ordered to India, for the severe trench work had begun to tell upon his health, and it was thought that a warm climate might be beneficial. On his visit to his friends in Leicester before his embarkation he married at St. George's, the eldest daughter of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey, of Rutland-street, who accompanied him to India, where they remained about seven years. On his return from India he continued with his regiment, and his mother and friends left Leicester. It is a rare occurrence for a young man to enlist as a private soldier, and by good conduct and perseverance, reach the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel; but such was the career of this brave man, who died recently at Tunbridge Wells at the age of 58. The Daily Telegraph, in its obituary notice, says, Lieut.-Col. Brett was awarded the Kaffir war medal, the Crimean medal with three clasps, the Turkish medal and the Cross of the Legion of Honour. Bro. Brett, when a captain, was initiated into Masonry in the John of Gaunt Lodge, Leicester, on November 18, 1848, after his return from the Crimea, and whilst the sister lodge of St. John's has the honour to number amongst its sons "the gallant" Major Packe, who so gloriously fell at Waterloo, the brethren of the John of Gaunt Lodge may justly be proud of the brilliant military career of their townsman and fellow member, Bro. John Brett.

BRO. WORTHINGTON, P.M. 834, 858, P.M.E.Z. 834.

The funeral of the late Bro. Worthington, of 19, Ball-street, Kensington, who died suddenly in the street, within a few yards of his own dwelling, while in the actual performance of his duties as collector to the Gas Light and Coke Company, took place at the West London Cemetery, Brompton, at 12 o'clock on Thursday, the 12th inst. The deceased, whose untimely end is very deeply regretted by an unusually large circle of friends and brethren, was in his 50th year, and appointed by the Western Gas Company in March, 1859, since amalgamated with the Chartered, or Gas Light and Coke Company. No officer of this company was more highly esteemed, both from an official and social point of view. His genial kindheartedness, his unvarying courtesy to the public, rendered him an universal favourite with all. The cause of his death was rupture of the pericardium. About ninety brethren, brother officers, and friends met the procession at the entrance, and accompanied the coffin to the chapel, when, as at the grave, the service was most impressively rendered by the Rev. Comp. Vaughan. Two wreaths were deposited by his daughters previously to the body being lowered to the grave. He leaves an invalid wife and six young children to deplore his loss.

Amongst those who rendered the last tribute to our departed brother we noticed Bros. Hart, 33; Turner, 72; Ward, 382; Read, Cooper, Avery, P.M.'s; Collings, Barker, Burrow, 511; Millis, Burch, Knowles, Fisher, Bryett, Adamson, Lynes, Alais, Savage, Barker, Watts, P.M.'s; Purdue, Festa, Tarrant, 834; Egan, Kirk, P.M.'s; Bird, S.W.; Heather, Rankin, Tull, 858. The funeral arrangements were ably superintended by Bro. Millis, P.M. 834. His brother officers were represented by, amongst others, Messrs. Innous, Luff, Ball, Davis, Thatcher, Fitch, Friend, Thompson, Hayman, Dowding, Mortimer, and others.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

The following English artists, architects, and sculptors, whose works figured at the Paris Exhibition, have received decorations:—Mr. Millais, Sir F. Leighton, Mr. Barry, Mr. Alma Tadema, and Mr. Gilbert Redgrave have been appointed officers, and Sir John Gilbert, Mr. P. H. Calderon, Mr. J. Arnoux, Mr. W. P. Frith, Mr. J. Collier, Mr. Carl Haag, Mr. Street, and Count d'Epinau have been appointed Knights of the Legion of Honour.

The appearance of a new work by M. Gustave Doré is an event in art. Messrs. Hachette have just published a splendid folio edition, in 650 pages, of the "Orlando Furioso," translated by M. du Pays, with over 500 illustrations by M. Doré. Ariosto could not have wished for a worthier interpreter, and one rises from the contemplation of the pictures with a feeling of having been coursing over the grandest and strangest landscapes peopled by beings such as the ardent imagination of Ariosto alone could conceive. This work would have been enough to save Gustave Doré from oblivion, if his preceding productions did not protect him from the indifference of contemporaries and posterity.

The autobiography of the Duke of Grafton, the Prime Minister of George III., from which Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice drew so largely in his "Life of Lord Shelburne," has been placed by the present Duke in the hands of Lord Carlingford for publication.—Academy.

Mr. Henry Dawson, landscape painter, died last week at Chiswick. Some of Mr. Dawson's pictures formed a leading attraction at the recent exhibition in the Art Museum, Nottingham Castle.

A New Art Gallery is to be built in Dresden, and the design will be selected from the plans of Dresden architects, who are to send in their works by February. The scheme has been long under consideration, the site for the building having been given in 1862.

At a poll of the rate-payers of Whitechapel, held at St. Mary's School, a proposal to adopt the Public Libraries Acts was defeated by 496 votes to 261, the number of ratepayers being 4000. About £1000 in money and books had been promised to start a public library if the parish would pay the statutory penny in the pound to maintain it.

The Paris Louvre has acquired the trunk of a new statue of Venus unearthed in the neighbourhood of Vienna. The figure is in a stooping posture, and has unfortunately lost both hands and head, while on the back is a tiny hand evidently belonging to a Cupid which she must have been bearing on her shoulders.

ST. ALBAN'S CATHEDRAL.—A correspondent writes:—"The Restoration Committee, after hearing a paper by Mr. J. O. Scott on Mr. Street's report to the Society of Antiquaries, and their resolution thereon, have resolved, with only two dissentients, to adhere to the former resolutions of themselves and of the meeting of subscribers last August, to replace the present ruinous low roof, to which Mr. Street assigned even a later date than had been previously claimed for it, and the ceiling which he admitted to be worthless and decayed, by a new roof on the visible early English lines, for which a considerable length of parapet has been rebuilt already. The committee were convinced that Mr. Street was wrong in saying there had been no parapet in early English and Decorated and Perpendicular times, and had overlooked several indications of the levels both of walls and roof having been altered when the Norman roof with eaves was replaced by the early English one with parapets, which were almost universal in great church roofs of all periods after the Norman."

The Italian Sculptors who exhibited at the Paris Exhibition have decided not to bring back their works to Italy on account of their fragility, but intend to sell them by auction in Paris. The proceeds of the sale will be equally divided among the sculptors, so that the minor artists may profit as highly as their more famous brethren.

Tableaux-vivants illustrating the prize pictures in the Paris Exhibition will probably be produced at the Gaité this winter. The manager of the theatre has already written to Herr Mackart, the painter of the enormous "Entry of Charles V. into Antwerp," in the Austrian Section for permission to represent his work.

It may be remembered that the Metropolitan Board of Works lately resolved to test the value of the electric light as a means of street illumination, and the first of a series of experiments designed for this purpose was made on the Thames Embankment, between Charing-cross and Westminster-bridges, shortly after 4 o'clock on Friday, 13th inst. The engine had been set up on a piece of vacant ground on the western side of the railway bridge. Arrangements had been made for working 20 lights, but only ten were used. Though somewhat unsteady, they burnt with intense brilliancy, and Sir Joseph Bazalgette, the engineer to the Board of Works, and Mr. Keate, the consulting chemist, pronounced the result of the experiment in all respects satisfactory.

A Christmas number of Touchstone, will appear on Monday, the 23rd inst., containing stories by Annie Thomas, (Mrs. Pendu Cudlip), Captain Mayne Reid, Jean Middlemass, Henry S. Leigh, Ion Cassilis, Edith Stewart Drewry, and several others.

The Whitehall Review of this week contains a portrait of the late Princess Alice.

THE FREEMASON.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1878.

THE DEATH OF THE GRAND DUCHESS OF HESSE-DARMSTADT.

The death of H.R.H. Princess Alice, as she is familiarly known among us all (and always will be best known), will be deeply mourned for by all loyal Englishmen and Freemasons. The second daughter of the Queen, born in 1843, she was married in 1862, and her marriage has been one of great happiness, she herself winning golden opinions from all who knew her, for her amiability and ability, her kindness and sociability, and her desire to be useful and do good. Her young and promising family has recently been attacked by diphtheria, and having nursed her husband and children through this dangerous and mysterious malady, (losing her youngest-born in this dire complaint), she has herself at last succumbed to it—an irreparable loss to her desolate husband and orphans, to her mother and her own family circle, to countless friends, and to an admiring people. It is well known how she nursed and cheered the last days of her lamented father, the Prince Consort, just as in after years she nursed our M.W.G. Master, and by a strange fatality—though not strange to the inscrutable Providence of the Most High, if strange to us poor wondering mortals—she has been taken away on the actual anniversary of her great parent's death. Such a mournful episode must be a heavy blow to the Queen; and the feelings of all patriotic citizens, as well as of our always loyal Order, will be turned anxiously towards her, who, in the good providence of T.G.A.O.T.U., has had such heavy trials to bear, in the midst of such personal happiness, and such a glorious reign. We trust, as we express the feelings, we know, of the entire English Craft, that she may be graciously supported in her deep affliction by that Divine power, to which we are taught, as Masons, to look up confidingly, "in every emergency of life for comfort and support." H.R.H. Princess Alice died at the Palace at Darmstadt, on Saturday morning, December 14th, at 7.30 a.m. The sad news flashed far and wide, and received in genuine grief, has made all in England feel as if they had lost a near relative. Lord Beaconsfield in a very striking letter to the British Deputation from California, justly and eloquently sums up the character and inestimable worth of the lamented Princess Alice, in these impressive words, when he terms her, "one of the most noble-minded and gifted of women, endeared to the people of this country by her rich intelligence, and her life of perfect bliss and duty." The heartfelt sympathy of our whole fraternity is with the Royal Family in their great affliction, and with her Majesty the Queen in her most unspeakable bereavement.

Time, which is never still, and ever "moving on," has brought us well nigh to the close of 1878, and the Freemason, therefore, thinks it right to issue its valedictory memorial of another passing year, and to lay before its many kind and sympathetic readers a succinct resumé of the events which have marked its progress, or signalized its passage. And if, on the whole, at home especially, English Freemasonry in 1878 has witnessed but little to affect the "even tenour of its way," if prosperity and prestige have marked its onward steps, if peacefulness and harmony have shed abundantly their great blessing on the long and lengthening roll of English lodges, yet, abroad especially, events have transpired and occurrences have taken place, which have set their mark on 1878 in the annals, at any rate, of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry. We do not wish, however, to begin our review of 1878 with the accents of blame and complaint; as the events proceed we shall give again, as we have done before, our honest opinion, but we think it right to remind our readers, for whom this recapitulation of bygone episodes has a general as well as a particular interest, that such events have taken place in 1878, and while they are, happily, without their appreciable influence on Anglo Saxon Masonry, they colour sadly and darkly the words and works of other jurisdictions at the present time. But we shall hear more about them as the roll of Masonic history for 1878 is unwound, and we beg our numerous readers to accompany us on the journey, with patience and perseverance, with attentive minds, and yet with lenient criticism.

JANUARY.—January opened with a seasonable New Year's treat to the aged inmates of the Asylum at Croydon, which was graced by the presence of many ladies. Bro. Terry's admirable arrangements were highly appreciated. During the month it was announced, (a most gratifying fact to all English Masons), that the receipts for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution amounted to £16,308 8s. 11d., for the Boys' School to £14,369 14s. 9d., for the Girls' School to £11,800, in all £42,478 3s. 8d. A very noble total! The annual Twelfth Night entertainment of the Girls' School took place with great eclat. During January a seasonable letter was published from the Grand Lodge of Hungary, repudiating all sympathy with the hurtful action of the Grand Orient of France, and the Grand Orient of Italy declined to adopt the course pursued by the French Grand body. Bro. Thevenot, at this time, declared in the Freemason that no schism existed in the Grand Orient of France, and that despite the minority, the action of the majority was agreeable to French Freemasons. The first meeting of the Board of Stewards for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution took place, and Bro. Terry announced 189 Stewards. A voluminous correspondence now took place about the Charities and Charity Administration, the upshot of which seemed to be, "leave well alone." The Mother Kilwinning Lodge held its annual meeting, and passed a resolution disapproving of the French innovation. The old and well-known Lodge of York, elected seven honorary members, Bros. Hughan, Woodford, Findel, D. Murray Lyon, Æ. J. McIntyre, John Hervey, and G. F. Fort. Bro. Hughan was also elected honorary member of Franklin Lodge, 134. During January, the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Denmark took place, when H.R.H. the Crown Prince was unanimously re-elected Grand Master, and a collection made at his request for the widow of a brother, who had lost his life on the ice. A numerous attended meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of the Eastern District of Ireland took place during this month, when Sir J. Keane resigned his office as Prov. G.M. A very interesting presentation took place to Bro. E. J. Morris, J.G.D. of England, by the brethren of Swansea, which was marked with much good feeling and Masonic heartiness. The Muggeridge Testimonial Fund now reached the sum of £215, a worthy tribute to an old and deserving Mason. "Old Mug" has deserved well of the Craft. Two very successful Masonic balls took place at Liverpool and Blackburn, in the former case the object was to support the West Lancashire Masonic Institution, a most useful educational endeavour, in the latter, the presentation of an illuminated address to Bro. Starkie, M.P., Provincial Grand Master. The Mount Lebanon Lodge, 73, celebrated its centenary, and the history of the lodge, by Bro. Dixon, P.M., was ordered to be printed. Two important Quarterly Courts of the Boys' and Girls' Schools took place this month, when interesting discussions arose on several important grounds. The following lodges were consecrated in January:—The Temple Bar Lodge, 1720; the Cholmeley Lodge, 1731, in the metropolis, and the Urmston Lodge, 1730, at Manchester. A new Masonic Hall at Liverpool was also opened, named the Skelmersdale Hall, a building in Gothic style, costing £20,000. We must not omit to mention that in January the Devonshire Freemasons sent £300 to the Indian Famine Fund, and that Bro. Sir F. M. Williams was appointed Grand Prior of Cornwall. The Lodge of Benevolence for January granted £365 in Masonic relief. Victor Emanuel, King of Italy died. Freemasonry in Italy being now permitted peacefully to meet, the Italian Grand Orient passed a resolution of sympathy.

FEBRUARY.—February witnessed the installation of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught as Grand Prior of the Temple of Ireland, before one of the most remarkable gatherings ever congregated. The Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire met, and it was announced that its subscription to the Charities for the year amounted to £1300—well done West Yorkshire. The Prov. Grand Chapter of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight assembled under Companion Beach, M.P., as Grand Superintendent. We had in this month the meeting of Grand Chapter, at which a grant of £500 was made to the Boys' and Girls' Schools, and £1000 to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, in all £2000. The Quarterly Communication of the Grand Lodge of Scotland took place, when the deaths of Lord Kinnaird and Bro. Ballantine were feelingly deplored, and a resolution passed condemnatory of the action of the French Grand Orient. From New Zealand came the account of the installation of Bro. G. S. Graham as Deputy Grand Master at Auckland, before a most influential meeting, a striking and important event in the annals of Freemasonry at the Antipodes. The Royal Visit of our Grand Master and his amiable Consort to Dorsetshire came off in this month, and a loyal address was presented to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales by the Freemasons of the province. February beheld the Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, under the chairmanship of the Duke of Manchester, supported by the Earl of Mount Edgumbe, and other distinguished brethren, and subscriptions were announced from the Stewards' Lists to the amount of £11,126 13s. 6d. In February the Consecration of the Bayard Chapter, by Lord Skelmersdale, Grand M., took place, before an influential assembly, as well as the Consecration of the Star Chapter, 1275, Greenwich. A long correspondence took place about Bro. Hubert's refusal, under present circumstances in France, to accept the chair of his lodge. His honest decision was much approved of in England. In February two additions to Masonic Literature and artistic excellence, appeared—Bro. Kenning's Cyclopædia, edited by Bro. Woodford, F.G.C., and Bro. Hart's Engraving of the Installation of the Prince of Wales. A very successful concert at Aberavon, under the patronage of Sir George Elliot, M.P., Provincial Grand Master, took place. Our worthy Bro. Dr. Brette, a great friend of the Charities, was elected and installed W.M. of the Aldersgate Lodge, a new but very flourishing lodge. In February died Pio Nono, Pope of Rome, who had foolishly sought to place Freemasonry under "ban Ecclesiastic."

MARCH.—March witnessed the translation in the Freemason of Bro. Desmon's Report, to the Grand Orient, which startled greatly all honest Masons and un-jesuitical minds. Special pleading could "no further go." The Langthorne Masonic Charitable Association met at Stratford, and announced that the yearly subscriptions amounted to £288 11s. 6d. The meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter for Suffolk took place, when Comp. Rev. C. J. Martyn was installed Grand Superintendent by Lord Skelmersdale, G.H. The annual Masonic Ball of the St. James's Union Lodge, was held at Freemasons' Hall, under most favourable auspices. In March the Quarterly Communication of the Grand Lodge of England was held, the Earl of Carnarvon presiding, and the brethren present numbering about 700. A grant of £100 was made to assist members of the Igualdad Lodge, No. 633, West Indies, who had suffered from the hurricane in September. The report of a special Committee on the action of the Grand Orient was presented and certain resolutions unanimously passed. H.R.H. the Grand Master was re-elected. The announcement of the failure of Grand Treasurer was made, and the appointment of a Committee to enquire and report on the finances carried. Grants were confirmed to the amount of £250. The adjourned debate on the proposition for altering the constitution of Lodges of Benevolence was resumed, and the proposal of Bro. Clabon negatived. Southam Lodge, No. 1054, Wilmslow, was erased from the Roll of Lodges. Models of the two Life Boats were presented

Grand Lodge by the National Life Boat Institution. The following lodges and chapters were consecrated in March, Sunbury Lodge, 1733, and Trinity Lodge, 1734. Francis Burdett Chapter, 1503, Way Side Chapter, 1604, by Comp. General Brownrigg. The following consecrations also took place, St. Cuthbert's Preceptory, Darlington, Knights Templar, by E.G.S.P. Lt.-Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, and of the Leoderns, Chapter, Rose Croix, by Ill. Bro. Capt. N. G. Philips. H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught received the 30°, and was afterwards installed in the Studholme Chapter as M.W.S. The Provincial Grand Priory of Northumberland was opened, and V.E. C. J. Bannister, installed as P.G.P. A new Encampment at Bury, "Edmund Plantagenet Preceptory" was also opened. During March a purse of money was presented to Bro. Binckes as Secretary, by the Committee of the Boys' School Dinner Club. The Lodge of Antiquity, No. 2, held its meeting, H.R.H. Prince Leopold being W.M., H.R.H. appointed Bro. Woodford, P.G.C., his deputy, who was duly installed. A P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Philbrick, Q.C., and a brilliant gathering assembled. Bro. Terry received a presentation of £50, very deservedly, from the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The Poplar Board of Guardians distinguished themselves in this month by refusing their hall to a Masonic lodge. At the monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence a grant of £160, made at a former meeting, was confirmed, and a further sum of £415 voted to distressed claimants. At the Cambridge local examination, twenty-five candidates were entered from the Royal Institution for Boys, and twenty-four passed.

APRIL.—April beheld the Grand Festival at Freemasons' Hall, at which H.R.H. the Grand Master presided. Bro. H.R.H. the Crown Prince of Denmark was also present. The usual appointments of Grand Officers took place. The Prov. Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire met at Leeds, under Sir H. Edwards, Bart., Prov. G.M., when a vote of condolence was passed to the widow and family of our lamented Bro. Bentley Shaw, a most worthy and genial brother, whose services to Freemasonry had been great, and a movement set on foot to obtain a presentation in the Girls' School, named the "Bentley Shaw Scholarship," and to cost £1050. The Inhabitants' Lodge, Gibraltar, No. 153, obtained a Centenary Warrant. In April Sir Edward Lechmere, Bart., M.P., was appointed Prov. G.M. of Worcestershire, in place of Bro. A. H. Roys. The Masons at Manchester arranged and carried out a very successful concert in aid of the E. Lancashire Systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution. The Grand Chapter of Cornwall also met this month, under the able presidency of the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, Provincial Grand Superintendent. The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Priory of Devon, under the Rev. J. Hyshe, (a good old Mason), also took place. A presentation took place to Bro. John Dennis, of Lodge 907, of a valuable tea service and a walnut cabinet. At the monthly meeting of the lodge of Benevolence £435 was voted. At the Quarterly Court of the Girls' School the lamented death of Bro. R. W. Little, its valuable Secretary, after a long and painful illness, was announced, amid the sympathy of all present. The Lodge of Saint John, 1736, was consecrated at Halifax, and the Dobie Chapter, 889, was consecrated by General Brownrigg, the oration being delivered by Bro. Arnold, G.C.

MAY.—In May the Quarterly Convocation of Supreme Grand Chapter took place, when warrants for 13 new chapters were granted. May also witnessed various meetings of Provincial Grand Lodges, such as that of Cambridgeshire at Wisbech, of Westmorland and Cumberland at Penrith, of Provincial Grand Lodge of Staffordshire at Stafford, of East Lancashire at Bury. We also had in that month the meeting of Prov. Grand Chapter of Lancashire at Preston, presided over by Lord Skelmersdale. The Quarterly Communication of the Grand Lodge of Scotland took place, when resolutions similar in effect to those of the Grand Lodge of England were unanimously passed in reference to the Grand Orient of France. The presentation of a testimonial to Bro. Muggeridge of a purse containing 300 sovereigns took place this month, and the veteran was greeted with much applause, when he feelingly replied to Bro. Meyer's speech. The 90th Anniversary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls took place this month, Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon presiding, £8,600 were announced by the acting Secretary, Bro. Hedges. At the monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence £440 were granted. The following lodges were consecrated in May, Montgomerie Lodge, 1741, at Diss, Royal Savoy Lodge, 1744, and Farringdon Lodge, 1745, in the Metropolis. We are rejoiced to note the increase of Royal Arch Masonry. During the merry month of May, we have also to notice the opening of a new Masonic Hall at the Star and Garter, Kew. Bro. W. H. Smyth of Elkington Hall, Louth, was appointed Provincial Grand Master of Lincolnshire, and the Duke of St. Alban's transferred to Nottinghamshire. The first active work of the Albert Edward Life Boat took place at the Gunfleet Sands, where nine lives were saved.

JUNE.—In June a very fitting presentation of a silver salver and service of plate was made to Bro. Strong, for valuable services as honorary surgeon to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. During this month, the Provincial Grand Lodges of Leicestershire and Rutland, and of Middlesex, held their meetings. The annual Grand Mark Lodge met at Norwich, Lord Skelmersdale having been previously appointed its Grand Master. A grand Masonic fete was held in Dublin, at the annual festival, and a distribution of prizes to the children of the Masonic Orphan Schools. The Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge was holden in this month, the Earl of Carnarvon presiding, when a vote of congratulation to our illustrious brother the Emperor of Germany was passed by acclamation, in respect of his recent happy escape from a two-fold shameful attempt at assassination. The indignation and loyalty of the English Grand Lodge heartily sympathized with indignant and loyal Germany. Canon Farrar distributed the prizes, won at the Cambridge local examination, to the boys of the Masonic School, Wood Green. The Lodge of Perseverance was consecrated in London during June, at the Imperial Hotel, Holborn, by Bro. John Hervey, before a numerous attendance of brethren.

JULY.—July witnessed the annual summer fete of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, at the school, Wood Green. Lord Suffield presided, and ably distributed the prizes to ready recipients. In Belfast, some interesting Masonic services were held at St. George's Parish Church, in aid of the Masonic Charities of Belfast and Dublin. The anniversary festival of the Boys' School took place during this month also, at the Alexandra Palace, under the illustrious presidency of Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, and in the presence of a numerous gathering of ladies and brethren, whose subscriptions were announced to the amount of £10,000. The Provincial Grand Lodges of Berks, and Kent and Surrey, and Suffolk, assembled during this month. The annual festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund took place at the Alexandra Palace, under Lord Skelmersdale, who deprecated in his speech too many like appeals. It seemed to many, that coming so soon after the Boys' School festival, a sort of untimely appeal and unhealthy pressure was thus developed. Bro. Hedges was elected in July Secretary of the Girls' School, after a very severe struggle, by a decisive majority, showing that merit, not patronage, may justly be said to be the principles of our good old Craft. If the old adage be true, "palmarum quæritur ferat," Bro. Hedges had earned his legitimate promotion fairly, honourably, and distinctly. The District Grand Lodge of Tasmania in this month held its first communication at Hobart Town. The presentation to Bro. Hughan of a purse of twenty-five guineas, given by the Lodge of St. Martin, in recognition of his services on behalf of the Charities, took place at Liskeard. The presentation of a claret cup and fifty guineas was made by some admirers of Bro. Jolly, an old friend and reporter to the Freemason. The American Masonic Knights Templar landed in Ireland, and were very hospitably received, as well as at York and Sheffield. In July the Ogmores Lodge, 1752, was consecrated at Bridgend, and the Chaucer Chapter, 1540, consecrated in London. On July 31st, a very complimentary dinner was given by Bro. Kenning, at Freemasons' Hall, to the American Masons visiting England. Bro. Kenning, as proprietor of the most successful and most widely diffused Masonic paper in the world, felt that he was bound as a patriot and a Freemason, to uphold the character of hospitality for his country and his Order. He, accordingly, issued invitations to all the American Masons, forming the company of Bro. C. E. Meyer, and he also invited a large number of English Masons to meet their American brethren. Nothing could exceed the cordiality and contentment, the satisfaction and success of the evening. A more happy idea was never more thoroughly carried out, and it has left imperishable "souvenirs" in a mutual regard which time will never efface. A very interesting account of it has been printed by Bro. Kenning, for presentation only, and which serves as a fitting record of a pleasant gathering and international fraternal unity and good will.

AUGUST.—In August the Provincial Grand Lodges of Worcestershire, Cornwall, Hertford, and North Yorkshire, held their meetings. In this month the Grand Master of the recently formed Grand Lodge of Quebec issued a proclamation against the Grand Lodge of Scotland. Our opinion has never varied. Neither side is quite right in the controversy, but we are bound to say, that in our opinion, the "onus" of everything lies on the Grand Lodge of Quebec, which, from the very "inception" of these fulminatory bulls and diatribes was absolutely wrong, as wrong in fact as wrong can be, on every ground of Masonic law and Masonic precedent.

SEPTEMBER.—September witnessed the disciplinary action of Grand Lodge exercised against a brother of high standing, who had unfortunately forgotten his Masonic duty and allowed the Scrutineers' returns to be tampered with. Grand Lodge acted with great dignity and discretion. Let us trust no similar scandal will again occur in English Masonry. The Provincial Grand Lodges of Somersetshire, Cumberland and Westmorland, of Cheshire, of Dorsetshire, of Nottinghamshire, and of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight held their meetings. The presentation of a testimonial to Bro. Captain Colville took place at Bodmin, and the London Charity Masonic Association, much needed to help the more friendless London candidates, amid much meaningless and personal opposition, was formed. The American brethren departed homeward again, greatly pleased with their English reception. Two new Masonic Halls were opened in this month—a hall at Shipley, West Yorkshire, by Lord Carnarvon, Pro G.M., and a hall at Chacewater, Cornwall. The following lodges were consecrated in this month: Eldon Lodge, 1755, at Portishead; Leopold Lodge, 1760, at Scarborough; Eleanor Cross Lodge, 1764, at Northampton. The Kensington Lodge, 1767, was also consecrated this month. The Herefordshire Masonic Charity Association was formed in September.

OCTOBER.—In October the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire, North and East Yorkshire, Sussex, Northumberland, and Durham held their meetings. The Quarterly Courts for the elections of the Boys' and Girls' Schools took place, resulting in the election of four girls out of twenty-nine candidates in the latter, and thirteen boys out of sixty-three candidates in the former case. The polling was unprecedentedly severe, and seems to point to severe struggles in elections "yet to be." The foundation stone of St. Luke's Church, Southport, was laid with Masonic ceremonial. The following lodges were consecrated in October: Trinity Lodge, 1765; Pimlico Lodge, 1772; Royal Hanover Lodge, 1777; St. Leonard's Lodge, 1766; Lodge of Progress, 1768; and Vale of Whitehaven Lodge, 1770. St. Thomas's Chapter, 142; and Mid-Surrey

Chapter, 1044, were also consecrated in this month.

NOVEMBER.—The Quarterly Convocation of Supreme Grand Chapter took place, with no business, however, of importance, and November also witnessed the meetings of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Cheshire and West Yorkshire, and of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Leicestershire, and Wilts. Lieut.-Col. Sir H. Edwards, Bart., was installed Prov. Grand Superintendent of West Yorkshire at Sheffield, by Comp. Lieut.-Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, Prov. Grand Superintendent for East Lancashire. Their Royal Highnesses the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold were advanced to the 33° at Golden-square, in the presence of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Lord Skelmersdale presiding. H.R.H. Prince Leopold was installed Grand Commander of the Cœur de Leon Preceptory of the Province of Oxford. The Fête of the Grand Conseil of the Rite Ecossais at Paris took place in the Hall of the Trocadero at the Paris Exhibition, when Lord Skelmersdale and several English Masons were present. The ladies' banquet of the Eclectic Lodge, No. 1201, took place. In November the following lodges were consecrated, Ivanhoe Lodge, 1779, Kirkdale Lodge, 1756, King Henry VIII. Lodge, 1758.

DECEMBER.—In December the Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge took place, when Bro. Gibson was appointed Grand Superintendent of Works, in the place of the late lamented Bro. Cockerell. In December another foolish "Mandement" of the Bishop of Nismes appeared against Freemasonry. December also witnessed the annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement. The Landport Lodge, 1776, was consecrated at Portsmouth, the Albert Edward Lodge, 1780, at Southampton, the Kennington Chapter, 1381, in the metropolis, and the Downshire Chapter, 594, at Liverpool. We had to deplore in December, as patriotic Englishmen and Masons, the premature death of H.R.H. Princess Alice, endeared to all by her gifts, and graces, and goodness.

We have thus gone through our humble chronicle of English Masonry, and two points are very observable, the increase of lodges and chapters, as well as the great material prosperity of English Masonry, at which we are heartily glad, though some brethren affect to question the propriety of such extension. But we do not like to hear brethren always finding fault with everything. "Kabagas" is a character not uncommon in society, and the disposition always to blame, is not confined to society. However, there are those who even deprecate this advance of Masonry, though on what grounds we never could profess to understand, and who see in this multiplication of Lodges and Chapters, a great future evil for Freemasonry. We do not. We, on the contrary, treat this increase of lodges as a good sign of the times, a pleasant omen for the future. English Masonry, cheerful and contented, seems to be moving on. If a few signs of imperfection crop up here and there; if we think we can put our finger on some weak points, or "spot," as our young men like to say in their classic lingo, some "bad form," yet, they are all very "few and far between," and can easily be amended and removed by care and control. Long may our good Craft speed on, we say, with a favouring breeze—not afraid to show its colours, "openly avowing" God before man, and heartily alive to the wants and woes of humanity. Abroad the situation is not so good, or so sound, or so reassuring. In France, for instance, and Belgium, and one or two other portions, and amid some "weak brethren" of our Cosmopolitan family, the outrage and follies of 1877 have been repeated and renewed in 1878, by a policy which recalls ill-omened cries, a base fanaticism, and a degraded past. It is quite clear to all impartial observers, that if the Grand Orient of France pursues the present evil "tenour of its way," led away by its "Esprits Forts," its positivist orators, and its nihilist and warlike declarations, it will sink to the level of a baneful secret political society, which any government might fairly suppress. Its plea of toleration is as absurd as it is jesuitical, and is a practical insult to all who have "brains" in their heads, who have studied the facts of history, or have marked the true teaching of Freemasonry. But there is one gladdening sight to our English mind's eye, which is worth a good many foreign perversities. The whole of Anglo-Saxon Masonry is standing firm to its own great principles, and above a million of Masons are united in the great and goodly duty of honouring T.G.A.O.T.U., and of being helpful and sympathetic to their brother men. And with this cheering assurance we leave 1878, and hail 1879, trusting that those sections of our family which have gone beyond the original design of Freemasonry may come back to it, those which are below it, may come up to it, and that we may yet form one grand and consistent whole, proclaiming as before an admiring world, Glory to God in the Highest, and on Earth peace and good will towards men.

We have to deplore during 1878 the loss of the following worthy, and many of them distinguished, members of our Order:—

Richard Woolfe, P.M. 286, Past Z. and member of many of the higher degrees, who devoted much time to antiquarian, historical, and geological studies; J. Sutcliffe; P.M. Harbour of Refuge Lodge, West Hartlepool, &c.; W. Doyle, Liverpool, P.M. 667, P.P.G.J.D. West Lancashire, &c. &c.; H. H. Wright, J.P., of Bolton and Southport, W.M. No. 37, The Right Hon. George William Baron Kinaird and Rossie, K.T.; the deceased brother was Provincial Grand Master of Perthshire East for fifty years, also Grand Master of Scotland for two years, and in that capacity laid the foundation stone of the New Harbour at Dundee, and presented an address to King William IV., expressing the abhorrence of Grand Lodge at the attack on his Majesty's life; Charles Bennett, P.M. 25, official shorthand writer to Grand Lodge; George Nelson, Limba Magna, near Leicester; Major George Barlow, P.M. 321; Dr. J. V. Worthington, P.M. 220; Bentley Shaw, P.M., P.Z., &c., who was an ardent worker and promoter of the Charities, and whose loss will be severely felt in the province of West Yorkshire; John May, of Plymouth; John Miller, Deputy Grand Master of Madras; John Henderson, P.M. 829, Woolwich; J. B. Forshaw, of Ormskirk, W.M. of the West Lancashire Lodge, 1403; G. Bubb, P.M. 190, St. James's Union Lodge; Prince Lucien Murat, for a while President of the Masonic lodges of France under the Empire; R. Wentworth Little, P.M., and founder of the Rose of Denmark Lodge, 975, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, &c. Bro. Little was most active in all true Masonic work, and was deservedly held in the highest esteem; his loss will be long felt by a large circle of sympathising friends; Thomas Austin, P.M. 933, and P.Z. 933; John Luter, of Cowes, of late years Tyler of Medina Lodge; Dr. J. M. Cunningham, of Sussex, P.M. 315, and 811, Brighton; J. Verity J.W. 1194, Isleworth; W. Brasier, of Margate, Union Lodge, Kent, P.Z., &c. Albert Schmidt, of Jersey; W. W. Squires, of Nelson, New Zealand; S. H. Wagstaff, P.M. 1216, P.Z., &c.; J. R. McDaniel, Past Grand Commander of Virginian Templars, at Washington; The King of Hanover, Past Grand Master of the Old Grand Lodge of Hanover; Robert Bagshawe, P.G.M., and P.G.P. of the Province of Essex; Samuel James Harvey, of Camberwell, P.M. Skelmersdale Lodge, 1658; Sir F.M. Williams, Bart., M.P., Deputy Grand Master of Cornwall, a Past Grand Warden of England, and a munificent supporter of the charities; J. A. Gooch, of Norwich, W.M. Lodge Prudence; W. Cowling, P.M. York Lodge, 236; C. Jardine, P.M. 140, St. George's Lodge—drowned in the Princess Alice disaster; R. D. Duckett, of Lodge 228; William Winch, of the Lodge of Unions, 256, Margate; William Smith, C.E., P.G.S., P.M. and P.Z. 33; F. W. Thiel, P.M. of Canterbury Lodge, 1048, New Zealand; Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer; Foster White, P.G.D., Treasurer of St. Bartholomew's Hospital; Edwd. Beckwith, New Cross; Geo. Law, of the Lion and Lamb Lodge and Jerusalem Chapter; John Millward, P.M., at Longmore, near Buxton; William Henry Sleeman, P.M. Gosport Lodge, 903; John Nealds, Secretary Royal Alfred Lodge, 777; John Jhustone, proprietor of the Standard; J.

Bond-Cabbell, J.P., of Cromer Hall, Norfolk, John Bosworth, P.M. 1328; George Woodley, of the Star of the East Lodge, 880, Island of Trante; John Green, P.M. Lion Lodge, Whitby, 312; John Lemon, P.M. and P.Z. 327, Wigton; Francis Fellows, S.W. of Lodge 192; Woolf Lions, P.M. 1326, and P. Prov. G. Reg. Middlesex; Walter Graham, Lodge St. Andrew, 418, Auckland, New Zealand.

ROAST BEEF AND PLUM PUDDING.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Last year some of your readers were led generously to help us provide nearly 500 Christmas dinners, of roast beef and plum pudding, on Boxing Day last, at Loddiges-road Hall, for the poorer boys and girls attending the mission schools, as well as one hundred orders for parcels of Christmas provisions to as many poor widows living in this district.

This being the seventh year of the mission work, I am anxious to assist in providing, as usual, for at least as many, if not more, than before. The dinner this year will be held (D.V.) at Lyme Grove Hall, Mare-street, Hackney, on Thursday, 26th December; all friends are welcome.

Donations in aid of this effort are invited, and may be sent to Mr. J. Newman, 117, Cheapside, E.C., Mr. H. M. Heath, 4, St. Thomas's-road, Hackney, or direct to Yours, &c.,

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

With great gratitude I acknowledge the unmentioned further donations. My next (and last) acknowledgment shall be on the 11th of January, with your kind permission, and should it meanwhile enter the head of a score or so of our good brethren to send me half-a-guinea a-piece, the work already fairly done will be well crowned.

I am, fraternally yours,

UNITED MARINERS LODGE, No. 30.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It having come to the knowledge of the brethren of this lodge that applications for assistance are being made both to lodges, and lodges of instruction, by some person, or persons, who allege that he or they are members of the above lodge, it is requested that before complying with such applications, in future, the Secretaries of the respective lodges will communicate with Bro. T. A. Gladwell, W.M., 21, Gracechurch-street, City, or the undersigned,

JOSEPH DRISCOLL, P.M., Secretary,

ROYAL AND SELECT MASTERS OF ENGLAND.

A meeting of the members of the Grand Masters' Council, No. 1 of this degree was held on Thursday, the 12th inst., at 2, Red Lion-square, Holborn. This degree, which was constituted in England in 1871, is making steady progress, and from the great interest evinced in its well-being by Bro. the Rev. G. Raymond Portal, M.P. G.M., and other distinguished brethren, it bids fair to attain a high position as one of the side grades of Freemasonry.

Amongst those in attendance were Bros. the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.P.G.M.; Capt. N. G. Philips, 33°, R.P.D.G.M.; Hyde Pullen, 33°, R.P.P.C. of W.; S. Rosenthal, 33°, R.P.C. of G.; H. C. Levander, 31°, R.P. Lecturer; D. M. Dewar, 18°, R.P.A.G. Recorder; Lieut.-Col. S. H. Clerke, 33°; C. F. Matier, H. R. Cooper-Smith; T. C. Walls, 18°; and J. J. Reeve.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bros. R. L. Loveland, the Rev. W. Stanton Moses, and Elias Chandos Pole were duly admitted and received into the degrees of Most Excellent, Royal, Select, and Super-Excellent Masters.

Previously to the Grand Council being dissolved, the names of Bros. W. Hickman, W. J. Hickman, and F. Hedges were handed in for admission and reception at the next meeting.

CONSECRATION OF THE ALBERT EDWARD LODGE, No. 1780.

This new Southampton lodge was constituted and consecrated at the Masonic Hall there on Friday week, by the Right Wor. the Prov. Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, Bro. W. B. Beach, M.P., who was attended by his deputy (Bro. W. Hickman, P.M.), the first Master nominate, the Prov. Senior and Junior Wardens, and other provincial officers, together with a full attendance of brethren from Southampton, Portsmouth, Basingstoke, Lymington, &c., to the lodge, in which last-named place many of the petitioning brethren, living in Southampton, belonged, the Masters and Past Masters present numbering forty-five.

In introducing the ceremony of constitution and consecration, the Prov. Grand Master appropriately addressed the brethren on the object which had brought them together, and was followed by the Prov. Grand Chaplain (Bro. S. Scott) on the nature and objects of Freemasonry. At appropriate intervals in the ceremony several anthems were sung by a party of brethren, Bro. Westley, of Southampton, and the Prov. Grand Organist, each taking a part at the harmonium, these selections including a chant, Clarke Whitfield's "Behold, how good and joyful a thing it is, brethren, to dwell together in unity," and Kent's "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness," with a consecration hymn; the Treasurer elect of the lodge (Bro. S. S. Pearce, M. 319, Lymington), before the investiture of the officers, delivering an address, on the object of the gathering, in rhyme.

The lodge was then constituted as follows:—Bros. Hickman, P.M.; D.P.G.M., W.M.; Irvine Harle, S.W.; James S. Pearce, J.W.; S. S. Pearce, P.M., Treas.; W. Grinyer, Sec.; W. Berry, J.D.; Westley, Org.; Tanner, D.C.; Grant, I.G.; Whitworth and Harvey, Stewards; and Biggs, Tyler. The business of the lodge included the proposition of several candidates for initiation, and a number for joining from 319 and other lodges, with the election as honorary members of the lodge of the Prov. Grand Master and the Prov. Grand Secretary.

At the close of the business between sixty and seventy brethren sat down to the installation banquet, provided by Bro. Dartnall, of the High-street, the new W.M. presiding. During the after proceedings the toast of "The Right Worshipful the Prov. Grand Master" was cordially given by the Worshipful Master, and Bro. Beach, who was very loudly cheered, in reply, spoke of the advances Masonry was making, and commended new lodges as affording facilities for the instruction and initiation of brethren, impressing upon all, however, that only as the lessons taught in the lodge were reflected in the outer life of the brethren would the chief aim of Masonry be realised, and that it was impossible for a Freemason to be actuated and imbued with the principles of the Order without reflecting those relations in every-day life on those with whom he came into contact. He exhorted them, therefore, to strive to act up to the principles inculcated in the lodge; and after expressing an earnest hope that the new lodge would prove a great and distinguished success, he proposed the toast of "The New Worshipful Master," eulogising Bro. Hickman's labours in the cause of Masonry in the province, and cordially wishing him a prosperous year of office in his new sphere.

Bro. Hickman, amidst a very warm recognition, replied to the effect that he felt it a very great compliment to be requested to preside over the new lodge. He pointed out that they had no wish or desire in any way to detract from or to interfere with the lodges already existing in the town, but they rather desired to work in harmony and union with them, and this he hoped and believed would be realised (hear), and that but one wish and feeling would animate them all—that of achieving the greatest good in their day and generation, and promulgating those great principles of brotherhood which characterised the Order.

Several other toasts of a local and complimentary character were given during the evening, which was spent in the greatest good harmony.

CONSECRATION OF THE ALBERT EDWARD LODGE, No. 1783.

The consecration of this new lodge took place on Thursday last, the 12th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Fitzwilliam-street, Huddersfield, under very distinguished auspices. There were present a great number of brethren from all parts of the province of West Yorkshire. The ceremony of consecration was performed by the Right Worshipful Bro. T. W. Tew, D.P.G.M. of West Yorkshire, assisted by officers of P.G. Lodge.

After the Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master had ascertained that the petition to and warrant from the Grand Lodge was in due form, and that the necessary appointments were correct, the anthem from the 133rd Psalm was sung by the choir, under the management of Bro. P.M.'s Wood and Marshall.

The Provincial Grand Chaplain then offered the dedication prayer, and the consecration ceremony was proceeded with, in which, along with the provincial officers, the following P.M.'s took part—viz., Bro. Abraham Smith, P.P.G. Chaplain; Bro. A. Jackson, P.P.G.D.; Bro. George Sykes, 290; Bro. John W. Turner, and Bro. Bottomely, P.P.G.R.

An oration was then delivered by the P.G. Chaplain, Bro. Lukis, M.A., in which he traced the history of Freemasonry in Huddersfield, referring more particularly to the ancient dates of the Harmony and Huddersfield Lodges, both of which will in a short time (some ten years or so) have completed their centenary; and the Truth Lodge, which was consecrated in 1845, and the development not only in numbers, but of zealous and worthy brethren, and that the Albert Edward Lodge was the natural outcome of the three sister lodges.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed. Bro. Malcolm, P.G. Reg., then presented Bro. P.M. Thomas Ruddock, P.S.G.D., the W.M. designate to the Rt. W.P.G. Master for installation as the first W.M. of the Albert Edward Lodge, and he was duly installed in the presence of forty installed Masters, by Worshipful Bro. Wm. Geo. Dyson, P.M. (521), P.P.D.C., and afterwards invested, as his principal officers, Bro. P.M. Jackson (521) as S.W., and Bro. P.M. Geo. Sykes (290) J.W.

After the election of Bro. Sykes as Charity Steward, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom, and the brethren, to the number of sixty-four, adjourned to the George Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet awaited them, which was graced by the presence of the P.G. officers.

The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given, interspersed with capital and appropriate music; and after the toast of "The Ladies," which was responded to by Bro. Col. Day, in most enthusiastic and eloquent terms, the brethren separated, after expressing hearty good wishes for the prosperity of the youngest lodge in the province of West Yorkshire.

The oration will appear in our next.

CONSECRATION OF THE DOWNSHIRE CHAPTER, LIVERPOOL.

Another addition was made to the list of Liverpool combinations of Royal Arch Masons by the consecration of the Downshire Chapter, No. 594, which took place at the Masnic Hall, and the successful inauguration gives clear and considerable promise that the new chapter's existence will be a prosperous one in every respect. It has been commenced under the auspices of brethren who have given ample proof of their power to rule in the Craft wisely and judiciously, and there is little doubt that similar wisdom and discretion will mark their principalships of the Downshire Chapter. Comp. Robert Wylie, P.P.G.D.C., was the Consecrating Officer in the absence of the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, M.E. Grand Superintendent. The Consecrating Z. was assisted by Comps. B. B. Marston, P.P.G.S.A.S., acting as H.; E. B. Harding, P.G.J., acting as J.; J. R. Goeppel, P.P.G.F.A.S., acting as D.C.; S. Alpass, P.G.S.E., as S.E.; R. Washington, Z. 1094, as S.N.; Skeaf, as P.G.O.; S. Armstrong, P.G. Treasurer; W. T. May, P.Z., as P.S. There were altogether about fifty present at the ceremony, and these included, besides the above named, Comps. P. Macmurdrow, P.Z. 1094, P.P.G.S.N.; P. M. Larsen, P.Z. 220, P.P.A.S., West Lancashire; R. P. Francer, 220; John Hayes, 249; D. Hesketh, S.E. 1356; J. L. Houghton, S.N. 1356; J. O. Rea, 1356; J. Whitfield, 220; F. Mansley, 203; H. Ashmore, 823; C. Haswell, 203; A. Morrison, 249; H. Burrows, H. 673; J. T. Calkin, P.Z. 673; R. Williams, 241; Rev. H. G. Vernon, 680; T. Dilcock, 220, T. Clark, P.Z. 673; Rev. J. Res Jenkins, J. 216; David Jackson, J. 673; R. Velland, H. 1094; P. Ball, P.G. Janitor 203; T. Roberts, 673; T. Davis, 220; W. P. Jennings, 249; Joseph Wood, Treasurer, 249 (Freemason), J. Hocken, P.Z. 220, and 673; W. H. Hall, 292; J. W. Burgess, J. 1094; R. Martin, Jun., 1356; Owen Williams, 210; &c. The ceremony of consecration was most admirably and impressively performed by Comp. Wylie, and the other assistants already named, and at the close the following were the principals installed:—Comps. R. P. Francer, Z.; John Hayes, H.; and J. L. Houghton, J.; A. Morrison was invested as S.E.; and T. Whitfield, as S.N.

There were no fewer than twenty-three propositions for exaltation and six for joining before the closing of the chapter, which indicates how much the "Downshire" is likely to prosper in the future.

At the close of the interesting business, the companions, to the number of about 40, adjourned to the banquet room, where a substantial dinner was very satisfactorily served by Bro. Chaplin, House Steward. The three newly-appointed chiefs (Comps. Francer, Hayes, and Houghton) were in their places at the festive board, and during the short but pleasant after-barquet proceedings, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given with much appropriateness and received with great cordiality.

In response to the toast of "The Officers of Provincial Grand Chapter," Comp. H. S. Alpass, P.G.S.E., who was warmly welcomed, said the Downshire Chapter had started with the brightest prospect of success, and with plenty of work already cut out for the officers. He would take the liberty of strongly impressing upon the chiefs the importance of a thorough knowledge of, and acquaintance with, all their duties. With regard to the second chief, he (Comp. Alpass) had previously seen him do his work so well as to lead him to have the greatest confidence in his efficiency, and he had no doubt the other chiefs would display similar competence. In conclusion, Comp. Alpass wished the new chapter the greatest success.

The other principal toasts were "The Consecrating Officers," "The Three Principals," and "The Visiting Companions."

On the 1st January next, Newfoundland will be admitted into the General Postal Union, and correspondence to and from that colony will be subject, in all respects, to the same conditions of transmission as correspondence between the United Kingdom and countries of the Postal Union generally.

After an unusually long discussion, on Thursday, the directors of the Bank of England decided on not altering the minimum rate of discount, which consequently remains at five per cent.

Bro. Brassey, M.P., arrived at Constantinople on the 5th inst., in his yacht "Sunbeam," after paying a visit to the British Fleet at Artaki.

TREWMAN'S LIST OF LODGES FOR 1777.

As the list of lodges reprinted in the "Masonic Magazine" for December is not considered reliable, I beg to call the attention of "Masonic Student" and others to the following errors in the reprint and the original.

Errors in the reprint corrected:

No. 16, Greenwich, should be No. 15.

" 59, Bury " " 51.

" 68, Gr. Queen-st., " " 60.

" 464, Chester, " " 454.

Errors in the original reproduced in the reprint corrected

No. 492, Baldock, should be No. 491.

" 36, Bolton-le-moor " " 46.

" 491, Southampton " " 494.

The lowest number on the list is No. 497, there being 214 numbers blank, some of these were foreign lodges and some dormant. I have discovered the omission of two lodges working at that period, viz., No. 39, Cowes, now No. 35, Medina Lodge, Cowes; and No. 71, Lodge of Brotherly Love, London, now No. 56, Howard Lodge of Brotherly Love, Arundel.

I believe there are more omissions, which I hope "Masonic Student" will discover, correct, and insert in a future number of the "Masonic Magazine." T. F.

NEWBRIDGE.—United Service Lodge (No. 215).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 27th November, when the following officers and brethren were present:—Bros. J. Aston, W.M.; F. Tovey, S.W.; E. Jordan, S.D.; E. Flatman, I.G.; W. Simmons, P.M.; I. Heaps, J.W.; J. Boyle, J.D.; G. Mills, Tyler, and J. E. Tuke, Secretary and Treasurer; Nugent, Seal, Ross, Barham, Parr, Ryan, Fletcher, Taylor, Hanley, Sawyer, Pole, Hutchinson, Martin, and Clark. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the hall was taken for Messrs. Gordon, Beattie, McKenzie, and Mills, which proved successful. The candidates being present, were then initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry; and a word of praise must be given to Bro. Barham for the able and impressive manner in which he conducted this beautiful ceremony, and which called forth expressions of admiration from the brethren present. During the initiation Bro. Nugent ably presided at the organ, which added very much to the solemnity of the scene. The brethren were then called to refreshment, which having partaken of, they proceeded to elect officers for the ensuing year, with the following result:—Bros. G. Sale, W.M.; J. Boyle, S.W.; G. Flatman, J.W.; E. Nugent, S.D.; F. Mills, J.D.; J. Lewis, I.G.; J. E. Tuke, Secretary and Treasurer. The lodge was then closed in ancient form by the Worshipful Master, in peace, love, and harmony.

RED CROSS BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

The members of the Walton Conclave (No. 97), of the Masonic and Military Order of the Knights of Rome and of the Red Cross of Constantine, gave a most enjoyable assembly at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, on Thursday evening, the 12th inst., and the pleasant gathering formed a source of the greatest enjoyment to all who were present. The ball was under the distinguished patronage of the Ill. Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Dep. G.M., Prov. G. Com. (West Lancashire); Ill. Sir Knight Major Turner, Past P.G. Com.; and Ill. Sir Knight Dr. J. Kellett Smith, Dep. P.G. Com.

The large assembly room of the hotel, which is a model of artistic beauty, was brought into requisition for the occasion, and the power of a special dispensation from Lord Skelmersdale enabled the representatives of the various Masonic Orders to appear wearing the jewels and insignia of their rank and Orders. The hall was very largely attended by members of knightly rank, Royal Arch, &c., while the Craft clothing also had a conspicuous place amongst those who attended. Ill. Sir Knight Major Turner, P.P.G. Com., honoured the gathering with his presence, and, on making his entrance, was received under the Arch of Steel.

The ball stewards were Sir Knights R. Lytham, J.G.; J. Orford, Prefect; R. Foote, S.B.; B. S. Riley, Orator; P. Thomas, Herald; A. McKenzie, T. Wilson, and J. Gilchrist; and those who merit special praise in connection with the ball plan are Em. Sir Knights H. Gribbin, M.P.S.; G. E. Hanmer, P.S., M.C.; W. E. Quayle, P.S., P.P.G.H., Treas.; and H. H. Smith, Rec. and Hon. Sec. Bro. Martin's band furnished the music for the dancing, and during the interval for supper Bro. H. Gill gave his celebrated "fairy bells" performances, which again elicited universal praise.

The catering of Bro. Ludlow, of Lodge 216, Secretary of the Adelphi Hotel, was the subject of general praise, and the Walton Conclave ball was generally voted one of the most pleasant which could possibly have been held.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Reliable Remedies.—In wounds, bruises, sprains, glandular swellings, enlarged veins, neuralgic pains and rheumatism, the application of this soothing Ointment to the affected parts not only gives the greatest ease, but likewise cures the complaint. The pills much assist in banishing the tendency to rheumatism and similar painful disorders, whilst the Ointment cures the local ailment. The Pills remove the constitutional disturbance and regulate every impaired function of every organ throughout the human body. The cure is neither temporary nor superficial, but permanent and complete, and the disease rarely recurs, so perfect has been the purification performed by these searching yet harmless preparations.—[Advrt.]

Masonic and General Tidings.

We are informed that there is no foundation whatever for the statement which appeared in the Times of December 12th, copied from the New York World of November 28, professing to give a report of an interview which the representative of the latter newspaper had with his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh at Halifax. No such interview took place, and no conversation of the kind stated occurred.

At the last meeting of the Dobie Lodge, No. 889, Bro. William Harris Saunders, S.W., W.M. 1503, P.G.S.D. Middlesex, M.W.S. St. George's Rose Croix Chapter, was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. The installation meeting will be held on the 15th proximo, at which several Grand and Provincial Grand Officers have promised to attend.

A meeting of the Committee appointed to carry out the arrangements of the annual Masonic ball at the Town Hall, Liverpool, on the 14th January, in aid of the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, was held on Friday evening, the 13th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Bro. R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., in the chair. A corps of about fifty Stewards was appointed.

The installation meeting in connection with the Prince Arthur Lodge, 1570, was held on Tuesday afternoon, at the Masonic Rooms, 80, N. Hill-street, Liverpool, where Bro. S. Hinkins, the W.M. elect, was placed in the chair of K.S. A report of the proceedings will appear in due course.

Mr. Anthony Trollope contributes an original love story, called "Catherine Carmichael; or, Three Years' Running," to the Christmas number of the "Masonic Magazine," which also contains a variety of articles referring more or less to the Craft. "How I was first prepared to be made a Mason," although widely discursive, is a most diverting paper by Bro. Samuel Poynter. From an address by Bro. Bergmann, "German Masonic Teaching One Hundred Years Ago" appears to have been of an ultra-sentimental character. Bro. G. M. Tweddell, writing of Shakespeare, indulges in a good deal of unnecessary passion concerning authors with whose opinions he does not agree; but his sketch shows both reading and thought. —Daily Chronicle, Dec. 18th.

The consecration of the Kennington Royal Arch Chapter took place on Thursday afternoon, at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

We are asked to state that the Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction, No. 1614, meets every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, at Ashley's Hotel, Henrietta-street, Covent Garden.

The Sheffield Masonic Ball will be held at the Cutlers' Hall, Sheffield, on Friday, the 24th of January next.

In a first-class carriage by the five o'clock train from Euston-square sat two gentlemen, up to that time, and probably since, strangers to each other. The elder lived near Crewe; the younger en route for Ireland, intended to sleep at Chester. The conversation between them grew animated. Saith the elder presently, "Give up your idea of sleeping at Chester, and do me the honour of passing the night at my house." The offer was accepted with grateful effusion. On leaving in the morning, said the guest, "Answer my question frankly; what induced you, on such an insufficient acquaintance, to confer so great a benefit on me?" Replied the host, "As you press me, your question shall be frankly answered. My wife always tells me that I am the ugliest man in Great Britain; I wished to show her that there was an uglier." —The World.

We have received from Bro. G. Kenning, the world-renowned Masonic publisher, a copy of his Masonic Calendar, Diary, and Pocket Book for 1879. This publication stands alone for completeness and excellence in a Masonic point of view. It is the only Masonic Calendar which gives the lists of lodges, &c., of the many Degrees in Freemasonry outside of "the Craft." It consequently contains the rolls of Knight Templar Preceptories, Red Cross Conclaves, Grand Councils, Rosicrucian Colleges, Rose Croix Chapters, and numerous other Rites. The names of the various Grand Officers of the different degrees at home and abroad may also be found in its pages, which refer not only to England, Scotland, and Ireland, but to Europe, Asia, Africa, America, Australia, and the Isles of the Sea. To the non-Mason a glance at this little work will convey some idea of the extensive ramifications of the brethren of the mystic tie throughout the world, and as for Masons themselves no brother can consider himself properly furnished without a copy of this pocket-book. We had nearly forgotten to say that to the list of Craft lodges are appended their dates (ancient and modern), which is a most valuable addition. —Yorkshire Gazette, Dec. 14th.

The Installation Meeting of the Crichton Lodge, No. 1641, takes place this (Saturday) afternoon, at the Surrey Masonic Hall. We hope to find room for a report of the proceedings in our next.

The Freemason of Saturday next, December 28th, will consist of twenty pages. The index will be included in this number.

All reports, advertisements, etc., for insertion in next week's Freemason, should reach the office, 198, Fleet-street, London, on Monday, or by first post Tuesday morning at latest.

A meeting of the Mount Olivet Red Cross Conclave, No. 35, was held at the George Hotel, Portsmouth, on Monday last. We hope to give a report of the proceedings in our next.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. John M. Clabon, P.G.D., President of the lodge, occupied the President's chair; Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., Junior Vice-President, occupied the Senior Vice President's chair; and Bro. S. Rawson, Past District Grand Master of China, that of Junior Vice-President. The other brethren present were Bros. C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; Herbert Dicketts, P.G. Steward; John Hervey, Grand Sec.; H. G. Buss, Assistant G. Sec.; A. A. Pendlebury, P.M. 1056; S. D. Ewins, P.M. 766; W. Stephens, Charles Atkins, W. J. Murlis, C. F. Hogard, Charles Godtrich, G. R. Sherwill, G. P. Britten, Col. Somerville Burney, John Newton, P.M. 174; George Bolton, W. H. Perryman, P.M. 3; Thomas W. Allen, P.M. 733; R. H. Groombridge, P.M., Sec., 183; F. W. Koch, P.M. 820; H. Garrod, P.M., Sec., 749; W. A. Western, W.M. 1536; J. Crutenden, P.G.D.C., Kent; S. Valentine, P.M. 9; R. Secker, A. J. Creak, W.M. 157; W. J. Parish, P.M. 1604; Edward Stephens, P.M. 879; Wm. Christian, P.M. 1662; G. F. Lancaster, P.M. 903; W. Stead, W.M. 813; Herbert Alled, P.M. 181; James Kindred, P.M. 554; James Keene, W.M. 1635; James W. Berrie, I.P.M. 1293; C. Breden, W.M. 781; L. B. Pillin, W.M. 180; Charles Dairy, W.M. 141; Thos. W. Allen, P.M. 733; Thos. W. Bar, W.M. 1185; J. Longman Cogan, W.M. 1365; George Read, W.M. 1767; W. Spooome, W.M. 1662; C. B. Payne, Grand Tyler; and H. Massey, (Freemason).

The lodge first confirmed grants to the amount of £290 made at last meeting of the Lodge, and then proceeded with the new list. There were thirty-three cases on this list, a larger number than has been before the lodge on any one evening for some time. Out of the thirty-three cases one case was deferred and three were dismissed. The grants made to the others amounted to £765. Two cases were granted £100 each (£200), two £50 (£100), two £40 (£80), three £30 (£90), three £25 (£75), five £20 (£100), one £15 (£15), ten £10 (£100), and one £5 (£5).

The lodge, after sitting more than four hours, was then closed.

The Prince of Wales will create quite a sensation in Bard-land on taking possession of his Breconshire sporting estate. To have a real Prince of Wales in Wales itself will be quite an original experience, and the loyal Welshmen are already on the war-path. The Freemasons in the eastern division of South Wales, under the P.G.M. Sir George Elliot, have concerted measures for the proper reception of their Royal Brother and Master. If the Prince is as good a brother of the angle as he is of the square he will have rare sport, seeing that all round Brecon are concentrated the finest trout and salmon streams in England or Wales. —The World.

His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, M.W.G.M. of Ireland, left town on Wednesday evening for Baron's Court.

A Reuter's telegram from Melbourne states that the English Cricketers, under the captaincy of Lord Harris, have arrived there from Adelaide.

The Duke of Connaught, attended by Captain Fitzgerald, returned from Berlin on Wednesday morning, having been summoned home by telegram.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

BATH.—Lodge of Honour (No. 379).—The annual meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, December 9th, at 5.30. The number of members being very limited, and many of them being unable to be present on account of illness and other causes, as intimated by letters in explanation, the meeting was but very scantily attended. Unfortunately, Bro. H. Culliford Hopkins, W.M., was absent for the former reason. Among the visitors were Bros. Else, D.P.G.M. for Somerset; F. Wilkinson, W.M. 41, and Dr. H. Hopkins, P.P.G.S.W. Warwickshire, and P.M. 43 and 958. The latter brother was requested to open the lodge for his namesake, which he did in the First Degree, with the assistance of Bros. Captain Dickenson, S.W.; F. Wilkinson, acting as S.W., and the other officers. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. The D.P.G.M. then took the chair, and P.M.'s Bartrum and Gore presented to him the S.W. as W.M. elect. W. Bro. Else having completed the preliminary proceedings, and the lodge having been opened in the Third Degree, all who had not passed the chair retired. A Board of Installed Masters was constituted, and Bro. Dickenson was very carefully and efficiently installed as W.M. On the return of the brethren, the remainder of the ceremony was ably carried out. The following were appointed as officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. H. C. Hopkins, I.P.M. and Sec.; Gore, P.M., Treas.; Rev. F. Carroll, Chaplain; Johnson, S.W.; Rev. Sanderson, J.W.; Baldwin, S.D.; Thomas, J.D.; V. Harington, I.G.; Gazzard, Tyler. Votes of thanks were passed to the D.P.G.M., and to Dr. Hopkins, for their kind and efficient assistance, to which suitable responses were made. The lodge was finally closed at 6.45, and the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel for the banquet, which was admirably served by the host, Bro. Rubie.

YORK.—York Lodge (No. 236).—On Monday this lodge held its annual meeting for installation of its W.M. at the Masonic Hall. The lodge was opened at 7 p.m. by the W.M. Bro. Wm. Valentine, P.P.G. Chap., the whole of his officers being in their respective chairs. The minutes having been read the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the Installing Master Bro. J. Todd, P.M. Prov. G. Registrar took the chair; Bro. A. Buckle, S.W. and W.M. elect was then introduced and the ceremony of installation was proceeded with. Before vacating the chair Bro. Valentine thanked the brethren for the kindness and courtesy shown him during his year of office. The lodge being once more in the First Degree Bro. Buckle proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows:—Bros. W. Valentine, I.P.M.; G. C. Baskett, S.W.; W. H. Gainforth, J.W.; Rev. J. E. M. Young, P.P.G.C. Chaplain; J. Todd, P.M. Treasurer; G. Kirby, Secretary; J. Tissiman, S.D.; M. Rooke, J.D.; T. S. Camidge, P.P.G.O., Organist; W. Powell, M.C.; G. Garbutt, I.G.; T. G. Hodgson and W. H. Sampson, Stewards; J. Redfare, Tyler. A presentation of two barometers was made to the lodge by Bros. Russell and Young, and several letters and telegrams of apology for non-attendance were read from Bro. J. S. Cumberland W.M. Eboracum Lodge, and others. The lodge having been closed the brethren adjourned to supper, when the W.M. presided. In proposing "The Queen and Craft," the W.M. made feeling allusion to the loss sustained by Her Majesty in the loss of her favourite daughter, and said that he was sure that of all her subjects none would sympathise with her more deeply than the loyal Masons. In replying for "The Earl of Zetland and the Provincial Grand Lodge," Bro. T. B. Whytehead, P.M., Prov. G.D.C., said that they were very happy in being ruled over by so good a Mason as their noble brother who had proved the actual interest he took in the Craft's welfare, and was so ably backed up by his Deputy, one of the finest old Masons in the world. Bro. Baskett, S.W. proposed in happy terms "The Health of the W.M.," who he said had already proved himself to be the right man in the right place. The W.M. proposed "The Installing Master's Health," and Bro. J. Todd, in responding said it had given him great pleasure to instal a brother who he felt sure would do honour to the lodge and the Craft. The interests of the York Lodge were very near his (Bro. Todd's) heart, and he should spare neither time nor trouble to promote them. Other toasts followed and a very happy and harmonious evening was passed. Amongst the members present, in addition to those already named, were Bros. Wm. Lawton, P.M., P.P.G.R.; G. Balmford, P.M., P.P.G.O.; F. Rawling, P.M.; J. Hollins, W. Wilson, J. Stead, G. C. Padel, W. Smith, A. Hanson, J. Young, J. F. Stephenson, J. Border, J. Welburn, J. G. Turner, W. Batty, J. Smith, J. F. Marshall, T. Tuke, J. F. Russell, T. W. Wilson, C. W. Simmons, J. Ayres, and J. F. Wilson. The visitors were Bros. T. B. Shaw-Hellier, W.M. St. Patricks 295 (I.C.); J. Hanly, W.M.; W. Harris, W.M.; B. Pottingham, Pythagoras, 447; E. Harding, Portland 1037; E. T. Edwards, Fenwick 1387; E. J. De Salis, Aldershot 1311; M. Millington, Eboracum 1611; W. P. Husband, W.M.; P. Pearson, W.M.; G. H. Hebblethwaite, W.M.; A. T. B. Turner, W.M.

PENRITH.—Lodge of Unanimity (No. 339).

—This old and flourishing lodge held its annual meeting on Thursday, December 12th, at the Crown Hotel. The brethren mustered in goodly numbers as a token of respect and esteem for the W.M. elect, Bro. Kirkbride, P.M., P.Z., P. Prov. G.S.W., the senior member of the lodge. The W.M., Bro. Thwaites, opened the lodge, and the minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, he opened the lodge in the Second Degree. Bro. Thwaites then invited, in the name of the lodge, Bro. John Bowes, P.M., P.Z., P. Prov. G.J.W., to take the chair as Installing Master. The W.M. then presented his successor in the usual form, and the first part of the ceremony being completed, the lodge was opened in the Master Mason's Degree. The collars and jewels were now collected, Past Masters placed in the Wardens' chairs, and all requested to retire who were below the degree of Installed Master. A board was opened, which it is much to be regretted is not done on all occasions when it is required. In all the other degrees the "opening" and "closing" ceremony is always performed, and why this necessary portion of our ritual should be omitted in this exalted degree passes our comprehension. In the Board of Installed Masters, Bro. Kirkbride was duly and solemnly placed in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom, and afterwards saluted, proclaimed, and greeted by the Past Masters. The "cement" having received proper attention from the worshipful brethren, the board was closed in the name and fear. The brethren of the various degrees were then re-admitted, and the W.M. was saluted, proclaimed, and greeted respectively in those degrees. The officers for the ensuing year were now invested by the W.M., and placed in their respective chairs, each one being appropriately addressed on his situation in the lodge, nature of his duties, and the teachings of the emblem of office, by the Installing Master. Bro. Bowes then delivered the ancient addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and members, thus completing the beautiful ceremony of installation. A cordial vote of thanks was awarded to Bro. Bowes, and carried by acclamation. After some routine business the lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room, where an excellent dinner awaited them. Ample justice being done to the choice viands, and grace after meat being said, the toast list was considered. The loyal toasts were followed by those of the Masonic Rulers Supreme and Subordinate according to rank. "The W.M.'s" health was very cordially drunk, and attention was directed to his long services in the lodge and to the true Masonic spirit he always evinced in his intercourse with the members. After an appropriate response the W.M. proposed "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. Bowes." He said he had known that brother, Masonically, for some eighteen years, but when a couple of years since they were selected respectively to preside over the west and south of the Provincial Grand Lodge, their acquaintance became much more intimate. Personally he must express his deep obligations to Bro. Bowes, for travelling so far in such weather to place him in the chair of the lodge. He told the brethren he had a treat in store for them, and he was sure that they all agreed with him that Bro. Bowes had done their beautiful ceremony full justice. Bro. Bowes in the course of his reply, said that it had afforded him very great pleasure to install his old friend, Bro. Kirkbride, and if the way he had worked the degree was acceptable to the brethren generally, his pleasure was enhanced. He felt quite one of them, for having lived in the province and made a large circle of friends in it, he always felt "at home" when amongst them. "The Wardens and other Officers of No. 339" was responded to with much loyalty, one and all of the officers promising to render their best services to the W.M. during the ensuing year. The evening's proceedings were agreeably enlivened by some excellent songs, duets, &c., by various brethren, and the Tyler's toast was given at an early hour. We wish Bro. Kirkbride and the Lodge of Unanimity a prosperous year.

LIVERPOOL.—St. John's Lodge (No. 673)

—On Tuesday, the 3rd inst., the regular meeting of this large and flourishing lodge took place at the Masonic Hall, 22, Hope-street, at which a large number of brethren and influential visitors were present, when the opportunity was taken of presenting to Bro. Henry Burrows, I.P.M., a very handsome timepiece, subscribed for by the brethren, in addition to the P.M.'s jewel presented to him three or four months previously. The lodge having been opened by the W.M., Bro. David Jackson, the minutes were read, and the ballot for candidates taken. The W.M. then proceeded to initiate two gentlemen into the mysteries of the Order, afterwards passing five brethren to the Second Degree. The general business having been concluded, the brethren adjourned for refreshments, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, the toast of the evening being that of "The I.P.M., Bro. H. Burrows." The presentation to him was entrusted to Bro. W. T. May, Senior Past Master, and member of the lodge, who, in a few effective remarks, alluded to the long and active services of Bro. Burrows, and to his having personally initiated him into Freemasonry fourteen years previously. He feelingly commented on his genial temperament, his willingness at all times, and for many years back, to fill any of the subordinate offices to which he might be appointed, and his steady progress to the summit of that position, which all true Masons are desirous to attain, namely, that of the chair of a lodge, and concluded, amid the applause of the brethren, by presenting him, in the name of the lodge, with the handsome timepiece as a mark of their esteem. Bro. Burrows, in replying, alluded, in feeling terms, to his long connection with Masonry, more especially to this, his mother lodge; the many and lasting friendships he had contracted, and the hope that the G.A. of the Universe would long spare him to maintain that friendship and esteem for the brethren which he so strongly felt. The W.M. in proposing "The Visitors," alluded to the many and distinguished brethren who frequented the lodge, and called upon a brother from the Warren Lodge, 1276, to respond, which he did in a very effective speech, which was frequently applauded. A very pleasant and harmonious evening having been spent, the brethren separated at an early hour.

WOOLWICH.—Pattison Lodge (No. 913).

Nothing can be said on our part to increase the prestige of this lodge, and the perfect accord and good feeling that exists among its members is a part of the system carried out by the W.M.'s, and officers ever since its origin. It is not only famous among the lodges of the province of Kent, of which it is one of the strongest and most charitable, but is looked up to for the excellence of its management and working; and those of its members and visitors who honoured it by assisting at its last meeting on Thursday, the 5th inst., carried away with them the remembrance of an evening dedicated to Freemasonry in its integrity. The fine room at Bro. Tucker's house, the Lord Raglan, Burrage-road, Plumstead, was thronged, and when Bro. T. D. Hayes, the W.M., took his position in the east the coup d'œil presented was at once picturesque, and exhilarating. The officers present, beside the W.M., were Past Masters H. J. Butler, I.P.M.; C. Ellis, C. Coupland, P.P.I.W. Kent; W. Tongue, P.P.J.W. Kent; A. Penfold, J. McDougall, W. T. Vincent, W. B. Lloyd, S.W.; E. Denlin, P.M., P.P.G.P. Kent, and Secretary of the lodge; R. J. Cook, S.D.; H. Mason, J.D.; H. Pryce, D.C.; and R. Lester, O.G. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. Chapman, J.D., and E. Edmonds, Bros. Coupland and McDougall took their respective positions. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of the last meeting confirmed, Bro. Baldomero De Bertodano Lopez was admitted a joining member, Bro. H. Winter was then passed to the Second Degree, and Bro. C. J. Clapham was then raised to the Sublime Degree, the ceremonies being splendidly worked by the W.M. The lodge was then closed in due form, and after partaking of a recherche little supper, the company re-assembled in the room. Among them were the following visitors:—Bro. G. Spinks, P.M. 1536; E. Bowles, P.M. 700; J. Warren, S.W. 700; J. Wilkins, J.W. 700; T. E. Hassell, I.G. 13; J. Holloway, 706; D. Cook, 687; T. Hollyman, I.G. 1536; H. A. Watkins, 1536; G. Kennedy, Sec. 1536; W. Wright, 1536, and C. Jolly, 913, (Freemason). Having given the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, the W.M. gave the provincial ones, so much honoured in this lodge, and as there were two Past Grand Officers present he asked them to respond to that of Lord Holmesdale, P.G.M. and Bro. Eastes, D.P. G.M. and the rest of the officers. Bro. Tongue said Lord Holmesdale had always expressed his satisfaction at the progress made by the Pattison Lodge, and had told him that it was a large and a good lodge. He was sorry that his Lordship lived so far from it, or he believed that he would be pleased to be with them often. (Cheers). Bro. Coupland, said he had been responding for Bro. Eastes, and the Grand Officers so often, that he felt glad Bro. Tongue was present to do that honoured duty. But they seemed determined to hear what he had to say, and so he must say something. (Hear, hear). Bro. H. Eastes was not only a good man but a good Mason. His kindness was the theme of all who came within his sphere. He had thrice visited the lodge, and he felt sure he would some day visit them again. (Cheers). He had rather expected Col. King, the G.J.W., to be present that evening. If he had been, they would have seen of what stuff Lord Holmesdale made his officers. (Cheers). Bro. Butler rose to propose the toast of "The W.M.," and said it was "out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh." They had been at that end of the room talking about the electric light, and in so doing they were only following out their instruction as Craftsmen, to study the hidden mysteries of nature and science. They could not fail to have become deeply interested in the electric light, nor in speaking of the position of their W. Master could he use a better illustration than this wonderful development of science. The W.M. represents the dynamo-magnetic machine—the origin and force of our power as a lodge—while the fixed magnets are the Past Masters. The officers act as the collumettes and brushes to convey the force and spirit of the W.M.; the brethren constitute the electric circuit, which receives and circulates this spirit. One of the chief difficulties experienced in the electric apparatus was the production of several lights in one circuit. Brethren, the difficulty is solved, for there were numerous lights in their circuit, some brilliant and more powerful than others, but all equally valuable and valuable. Some that might now be considered latent would, like the extra violet rays of the prismatic colours when brushed over with sulphate of quinine, burst into a luminous existence, when circumstances corresponding with the sulphate of quinine acted upon their lives. Hence, in this way it would be seen what an important factor the W.M. was in originating the spirit of the lodge, and how imperative it was that every one should catch and pass on that spirit as it circulates. Wherever a discontented brother sits there would be a break in the circuit; but in that lodge they found an admirable W.M., and a perfectly harmonious lodge, and, throughout, a circulated the true spirit of Masonry, as exemplified by their perfect unanimity and brotherly love. He would now ask them to show their appreciation of their "big machine," the W.M., by drinking his health enthusiastically. Bro. Hayes, in reply, said they could not all be shining lights like their esteemed and valued I.P.M., whose ability and eloquence they all admired so much, but he believed they could all be useful in their generation, supported by the Past Masters, officers, and brethren of the lodge; he trusted he should go on and work till the end of his year with satisfaction to himself and credit to them. "The Past Masters of the Lodge" were then toasted, and Bros. Butter and Ellis responded, the latter, in one of his eloquent and excellent speeches, which are so welcome to the brethren. "The Visitors" was responded to by Bros. Spinks, Warren, and Bowles. "The Press," coupled with the name of Bro. Jolly, followed; and Bro. Tucker was congratulated upon his excellent catering, and after he had replied, the Tyler's toast concluded a most brilliant and successful gathering.

PLUMSTEAD.—Excelsior Lodge (No. 226).—The regular quarterly meeting of the above lodge took place on Tuesday, the 10th inst., at Bro. Garbett's fine hall on Anglesea-hill, and was a most interesting and enjoyable gathering in every respect. Interesting from the fact of a perfect stranger having to perform the duties of W.M. at a moment's notice, without whose presence the business of the lodge could not have been carried on, and enjoyable from having the good fortune after labour to be presided over by one whose eloquence and "bonhomme" is as exhilarating as his name among his confreres of the musical world is celebrated and honoured. We allude in the first place to Bro. J. G. Holmes, 110, P.W., P.D.G. S.W. Malta, who fortunately visited the lodge, and in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Captain J. Ritchie, W.M.M., G.J.M.W. Kent, and P.G.M.W. Middlesex and Surrey, took the chair, and carried out the duties in a manner that called forth the warmest eulogiums from all present, and, in the second to Bro. James Smyth, J.W., and G.J.O. Kent, Band Master of the Royal Artillery Band at Woolwich, and one of the oldest Craft and Mark Masons in the district. The following officers were present:—C. Coupland, S.W., G.S.O. Kent; the Rev. C. A. Solbè, Chaplain, and Grand Chaplain Kent; W. Weston, M.O., and G.J.D. Kent; A. Penfold, S.O., G.I. of W. Kent; H. Shaw, J.O., and G.D.C. Kent; Eugene Sweeny, S. of M., and G.A.D.C. Kent; H. Pryce, Treasurer, and G. Registrar Kent; G. Kennedy, Secretary, and Grand Assistant Registrar Kent; G. Spinks, S.D.; D. Deves, I.G.; T. Holliman, E.C., and Grand Steward Kent; D. Capon, Steward, and Grand Steward Kent; B. Norman, O.G.; and C. Jolly (Freemason); and as will be seen by the foregoing list, every officer in the lodge, with two exceptions, were Grand Officers for the province of Kent—a most unprecedented honour to any lodge, and one of which the Excelsior may well be proud. The following brethren were advanced, the beautiful and impressive ceremony being finely worked by the W.M. and his officers, Bro. Thomas Ovenden, 700, W. Wray, 700, R. Chamberlain, 1536. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren partook of a cold collation, most admirably served by the worthy host. By special request Bro. Smyth took the chair, and gave the usual toasts, both loyal and Mark Masonic, in a style that created unusual enthusiasm, his earnest eloquence upon themes serious, and sparkling with gay ones, adding intensely to the enjoyment. In proposing the toast of "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," he likened our royal brother to the ancient Knights of Malta, who, when that island was attacked by hordes of savage assailants, although they were driven to the last extremity, yet nobly stepped upon the breach and drove back the enemy till they were compelled to raise the siege. Those who had, like himself, been at Malta, and seen the immense fortifications there, had seen the practical usages of Masonry. There were grave charges against those noble men, but their deeds of valour and noble defence of Malta would for ever make them remembered with gratitude and admiration. In his time he had heard Masonry called everything that was vile, and Masons abused in the most shameful, the most cruel, and the most bitter manner; but like the grand old Knights of Malta, they stood to their arms, and face to face with their foe, fought the battle of truth, justice, and brotherly love, and won the good fight. But who was their champion knight, who came among them, regardless of contumely, and fought for them with the influence of his unspotted honour and exalted name? Their Grand Master, the Prince of Wales! As an old Mason he was proud to see the position Masonry had arrived at under their beloved and royal brother, and he asked them to drink the toast with "nine times nine." The toast and "firing," led by the chair, was most enthusiastic. "The Prov. Grand Officers of Kent" was coupled with the name of Bro. Coupland, G.S.O., who, in returning thanks, expressed his sense of the compliment paid with so much gusto. They had a little while ago the pleasure of seeing the Grand Officers of Kent at Brompton, where so many of the lodge had received provincial honours at the hands of their Pro Grand Master. The Excelsior Lodge was looked up to as one of the best in the province, and had a grand destiny before it. He felt sure the Grand Officers of the province, when they heard of it through the Masonic Press, would esteem their kindness highly. The next toast was that of "The Visitors," among whom the name of Bro. Holmes was received most heartily; his great services in carrying out the duties of I.P.M. were most flatteringly acknowledged. In expressing his thanks to the acting W.M. for the kind manner in which he proposed the toast, and for the hearty way in which it was received by the brethren, Bro. Holmes said, that he was afraid the eulogistic remarks of the presiding officer in regard to the manner in which he had performed the duties of W.M. this evening, were but ill deserved, and that as for himself he should have been equally pleased to have taken the most subordinate office in the lodge, had such been required. Referring to the remarks of the acting W.M. as to the chivalrous deeds of the Knights of Malta of old, he said it was his good fortune during four years' residence on that island, to have looked with admiration on the practical Masonic character of that glorious band, whose palaces &c., are the finest buildings in the Island even now, and whose fortifications to this day remain the inner defences of the ancient cities of Valletta and Cottaena, and that it was with no small amount of gratification, that on the eve of his departure, he was honoured by being numbered amongst the Military Knights of Rhodes and Malta. In conclusion, after again expressing his warmest thanks for the cordial manner in which the toast of his health had been received, Bro. Holmes assured all present that at no time was he happier than when amongst his brother Masons. "The Health of Bro. Smyth" was then proposed by Bro. Coupland, and drank with honours, and Bro. Smyth eloquently replied. "The Health of the Officers" followed, and a night at once memorable for its good work done and pleasant communion then came to an end with the Tyler's toast. We had almost forgotten to mention that the contents of the Charity Box £2 8s. was appropriated for the immediate relief of Mrs. Benn the widow of a deceased brother Mason.

A SERMON.

Preached by the V.W. Bro. R. P. Bent, P.G.C., on the occasion of the consecration of the Eleanor Cross Lodge, at Northampton, Sept. 17th, 1878.

I Kings VI., 7.—"And the house, when it was in building, was built of stone, made ready before it was brought thither; so that there was neither hammer, nor axe, nor any tool of iron heard in the house, while it was in building." The congregation gathered in this temple of the Most High to-day is a peculiar one; it is such a one as is not often to be seen within these sacred walls. It is largely composed of those to whom that part of God's Holy Word, from whence comes the text just given out, is more especially interesting. These chapters contain a full and very precise account of the construction and dedication of that magnificent Temple which a royal architect built for the worship of the Great Architect of the Universe in the holy city of Jerusalem. For us, who owe so much of our impressive ritual, our instructive symbolism, and our legendary lore, to the wise and mighty Solomon, King of Israel, this portion of the Sacred Volume must possess an interest, not only deep and strong, but ever bright and fresh. But Freemasons do not presume to claim that they have an exclusive interest in any part of the Bible; they venerate the whole of the Sacred Law themselves, and they know that it is, or ought to be, a rule of faith and a lamp of light to all alike, whether enrolled in our fraternity or not. I, therefore, venture to think that my sermon on this text to-day may be neither uninteresting nor unprofitable to the non-masonic members of the present congregation. And here let me at once, before proceeding any further, assure you, my Christian brethren, one and all, that when a Chaplain of our ancient Order takes his place in the pulpit of a brother clergyman, he dare not forget that he is a minister of Him, who said of Himself, "Behold! a greater than Solomon is here!" Now, in our text we have described to us the preparation of the stones for the building of the Temple. Within the last six months it has been my privilege to visit the quarries of Solomon at Jerusalem, where that work of preparation was done; though I do not know that this fact can add any weight to my remarks, or enable me to throw any extra light upon my subject. The stones were hewn out of the solid rock, at no great distance from the site chosen for the Temple; they were shaped and smoothed on the spot, and were then conveyed to their destination, and fixed in their respective places. By degrees the result of the excavations, thus made by the workmen, was to form what became a set of underground vaults or chambers, where they had ample space for their work, but they must have carried it on by the light of lamps, as it became further and further removed from the light of day. These "quarries of Solomon," as they are now called, have been thoroughly explored by the members of the Palestine Exploration Fund, and have enabled them to prosecute their researches to the very foundations of the Temple. Now, in these stones we should see a type, or symbol, for our own learning and imitation. God's people are like the stones in His holy Temple, each filling the place assigned him by the Divine Architect, and taking his position in quiet submission to His governing and fatherly hand. And this should ever be done in such a spirit of meekness, in such "lowliness of mind," as might still further carry out the type of "neither hammer nor axe, nor any tool of iron being heard in the building." I mean that so it will be when, laying aside all self-seeking and self-glorifying, we do our duty in that state of life to which it has pleased God to call us, with a single eye to His glory and the good of our fellow men. How opposed to anything like noisy self-assertion is that which "the Lord God" Himself saith to us by His servant and Prophet, Isaiah (XXX., 15.) "In quietness and confidence shall be your strength!" and shall not we, Christian brethren, we who are followers of the meek and lowly Son of God, listen to such a voice as this, remembering how an apostle has also been inspired thus to write to us, "Ye also, as living stones, are built up a spiritual house, an Holy Priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ"? (1 St. Peter II. 5.) I might easily apply this view of my subject more closely to my brethren of the Masonic body, with reference to the various offices of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and of our private lodges, such being "the nature of our institution that as some must of necessity rule and teach, so others must of course learn to submit and obey—while humility in both is an essential duty;" but I will rather ask them to apply it to themselves, while I endeavour to show its general application to others too. Just as in every building raised by the hand of man are found stones of different quality and value, some having their place in the foundation, some in the walls, some in the vaulted arch, and some in highly polished and ornamented pillars, bearing up the whole structure, so we find the same order in the social condition of the world at large. No one, who, by the decision of the Divine Builder, has been placed in an inferior or less conspicuous position, should dare to draw the rash and unwarranted conclusion that he is of no use, or consequence. Many a stone which, in looking at a building, we do not observe, or of whose presence we are not even aware, may be of that importance to the whole structure, that its absence might entail the fall of the entire edifice. Each and every one of us has his duties to perform in that place which has been committed to his trust, and the welfare even of a state depends, in a great measure, on every separate functionary performing his allotted task in a strictly conscientious manner. But, on the other hand, let no one who has been placed in a higher and more prominent position presume to boast himself against his brothers, as if he were the pillar of the temple, or the mainstay of the edifice, for he would be nothing without the stay and support of those very stones which he despises. No, let him rather look to the Great Architect, who, with His Almighty hand, rules the Universe—and who, like the potter, makes of the same clay one vessel to honour and another to dishonour—and let him know that He it is who has placed him in his present position, from whom alone he can receive strength to fill his part so as not to be a mere useless ornament in his Master's house. I cannot now pursue this train of thought any further, wishing to say a few words about the more especial cause of our gathering here to-day. We have this morning consecrated a new lodge in this town; we have performed that ceremony with reverence and solemnity; it is now a "house built of stone made ready before it was brought thither;" that is to say, all has been done in strict accordance with "the ancient usages and landmarks of the Order." And it may, perhaps, be asked why, having thus done your work so privately, that no sound of hammer, or axe, or any tool of iron has been heard by the uninitiated world outside your walls, do you now come forth in all the pomp of your paraphernalia to walk through our streets, and sit with us in our parish church? My answer is, first, that as Freemasonry has nothing to be ashamed of, but, on the contrary, much to be proud of, it is well that when its ranks are increased by the addition of another lodge in a town of such importance as this is, we should wish to make the fact both public and conspicuous. And, secondly, it is indeed well that we who think so much of King Solomon as the builder of God's house, should desire to supplement the prayers and scriptures of our private consecration service by the public worship of our God in the grandest "House of Prayer" within our reach. And yet again, in the third place, it is most desirable that we should gladly seize such an opportunity of proving that we are by no means a selfish society, but that we have at all times "a heart expanded by benevolence" towards others besides the poor and needy of our own members. Hence we make a collection in your church to-day, of which, I doubt not, at least three-fourths will be contributed by the Masons present, but we divide it equally between the Northampton General Infirmary and the Masonic Charities. As regards these latter—our own special Charities—where can you find any grander charitable institutions in the United Kingdom? For you must bear in mind that we have no endowments to draw upon, no large estates producing their annual income; and yet out of our voluntary contributions gathered by our Stewards from year to year, we "grant month by month large sums of relief to the indigent, the suffering, the forlorn; we give annuities to aged Freemasons, their widows and other female relative, to assist them in the decline of life, or the advance of decrepitude, or the reverse of fortune; and we educate sons and daughters of the brotherhood with unsparing liberality and striking success." My brethren, the members of the newly consecrated Eleanor Cross Lodge, let me entreat of you to make the support of the Masonic Charities a leading principle in the management of your funds, if you would have this day's work crowned with a blessing, and your lodge become known as an honourable acquisition to the Craft. You have chosen me to preach to you to-day; and I cannot better conclude than by charging you, in words uttered by a brother more than a hundred years ago, "Ever keep in view the noble and real design of Masonry, and catch the spirit of it. May it be your glory to practise the duties it prescribes. Moral Architects as you are, may you build temples for every virtue; prisons and dungeons for vice, indecency, and immorality. May you be disposed to every humane and friendly office, ever ready to pour oil and wine into the wounds of our distressed brethren, and to bind them up; so that when those who speak evil or lightly of us behold your conduct, and see by your means the hungry fed, the naked clothed, the sick sustained and cherished—shall see your light so usefully shine—their evil speaking may be silenced, their foolish prejudices removed, and they may be convinced that Masonry is a useful and a venerable structure, supported by the great and everlasting pillars of wisdom, strength, and beauty." Brethren, one and all, let me ask you, when you now give your alms, to remember that He who was greater than Solomon said of such works of charity as those to which your alms will go, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me," and so, looking forward to the time when we shall hear those words pronounced to those whom He shall set upon His right hand, and call upon to enter into the joy of their Lord, we may realise in an eternal house above—the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens—what we have now been singing,

"One the gladness of re-joining
On the far eternal shore,
Where the one Almighty Father
Reigns in love for evermore."

[This sermon ought to have appeared some time back in our pages, but has only just reached us.—Ed. F.M.]

CONSECRATION OF THE ALBERT EDWARD LODGE, No. 1783.

The following oration was delivered by Bro. Lukis, M. A. Provincial Grand Chaplain:—

The addition of a new lodge to the roll is generally an indication of the healthy growth of the principles of Masonry; and the increase of lodges in a populous town such as this shows that a great need is felt for relieving the overgrowth of existing lodges, and implies that there is room for a free extension of the Masonic force. It is possible to conceive such a thing as a multiplication of lodges without a corresponding increase in Masonic strength. It is possible to conceive that an application for a warrant of constitution of a new lodge in a town in which there are one or more existing lodges might be the result of the indulgence of unworthy motives. But as a general rule it may be taken for granted that the foundation of a new lodge is the consequence of the outgrowth of the genius of Masonry. A glance at the history of the Craft in this town will satisfy us that this encouraging proceeding is the case here. Three lodges already exist, viz., Harmony, founded in 1789, Huddersfield, 1793, and Truth, in 1845. At the commencement of the present year the first possessed eighty-seven members, the second and third ninety-seven each, making a total of 281, among whom there were about seventy Past Masters. If the Past Masters are deducted from the total number there would be left an average of seventy members below that honoured rank in each lodge, a number sufficiently large to produce a deterrent effect upon those fellow townsmen who might feel disposed to enter the Craft with the laudable desire of qualifying themselves in due course for office. I think the brethren will agree with me that nothing is more conducive to the maintenance, in a newly initiated brother, of a warm interest in the objects and aim of Masonry than the prospect of advancement in his lodge. If he should find himself among a large number of brethren, many of whom are equally desirous of taking their share in the active duties of the lodge, he cannot but feel discouraged when he discovers a very dim chance of attaining his wishes within a reasonable period. If my view and the information I have obtained are correct, it would appear that a deterring influence may have been at work in Huddersfield, for I understand that the three lodges number 294 members at this time. Supposing, therefore, that you have not had to lament the removal of any brethren by death or other cause during the past year there has been an addition of only one, or an average of about four members to each lodge, whether by initiation or joining. Masonic life and energy in a populous town like yours must consequently be arrested unless means are adopted to allow of their free expansion; and in the act which has occasioned the consecration of this new lodge it is most gratifying to observe the hearty co-operation and encouragement which have been given to the movement by the three old lodges, and that in the selection of Bro. P.M. Ruddock, for its first ruler, harmony leads the way. The question which naturally arises in a thoughtful brother's mind when he contemplates the ever-widening area of Masonry, and the steady annual increase of lodges, is this: Can this be due to a natural tendency in mankind to live in societies; or can it be due to any inherent attractive influence in the Institution itself? There is no doubt that man was not created to live a solitary life, and that brotherhoods have always exercised a concentrating influence. But I fancy this will not account for the widespread of the Order, and its permanency in the world at large. It is because there is in it a humanizing principle which arouses in the heart kindly sentiments towards our fellow-men. It is because there is something practical in it which commends it to, and gains the allegiance of, practical men, more particularly in the busy centres of commerce. It is because men who are daily toiling with brains and hands, experience a soothing recreation in the benevolent duties of the lodge and chapter. And it is here, above all, that they offer proofs of the nobleness of their hearts, the manliness of their character, and the loftiness of their sentiments. If I should seem to be speaking of Masonry as though it were a spiritual community, let me not be misunderstood. We all recognize that Sacred Volume which lies unfolded in open lodge, wherein we are taught in the sublimest language, of an Almighty Existing Architect, and the great duties we owe to Him, our neighbour, and ourselves—those grand principles which link us together in one bond of fellowship. In this sense Masonry is a religion, pure and undefiled, because it disposes and leads us to visit the widow and fatherless in their affliction, and to keep ourselves unspotted from the world. For a bright example, among many that will occur to your own thoughts, of one whose heart was thus imbued with the true spirit of the Institution, and whose life was a daily witness to its powerful humanizing influence, I need only mention the name of the late lamented Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Bentley-Shaw, a most worthy member of your Lodge of Harmony. I feel sure that the beauty of the lofty principles inculcated in the Craft, which shone in his life and character, has exercised an influence over others, and tended in no small measure to the widespread of Masonry in this town and province. Permit me, before I conclude, to point out how this pure and influential spirit may be exerted. To this end I desire, in very few words, to show in what manner the ceremonies of the Three Degrees illustrate the three principal stages of human life, and how their teaching will, if accepted and practised as it was by the eminent example to whom I have alluded, serve to improve the Mason morally and socially: I. The first lesson he receives at the opening of his intelligence is a trusting belief in the Great Creator and Ruler of the Universe, and the duties he owes to Him. In his youth he is placed under governors and teachers so that he may be trained to take his share in the active duties of that sphere of life to which he may be called. He is not yet fit to be placed in offices of trust, but he is instructed that by an assiduous and patient seeking, in the only true way to acquire wisdom, he will be enabled to unfold the beauties of genuine nobility and manliness of moral character which are essential to social usefulness and success, and to take part in the co-operative exercise of mercy and compassion. Need I do more than say how completely the duties of this stage of human life are exemplified and inculcated in the ceremonial of initiation? II. The second important period of life is now reached, and the youth passes into manhood. The instruction he has received has prepared and strengthened his intellectual faculties for the perception of the hidden mysteries of nature and science; a due and admiring appreciation of the wonderful works of the World's Great Architect; the honest discharge of his duty as a member of society; a polished and well-adorned mind, stability of character, with eternity in view in every pursuit; these are some of the endowments and acquirements which belong to this vigorous stage, and add to the lustre of his reputation when they are employed for the benefit of his fellow creatures. In this you will recognise the forcible and particular lessons inculcated in the Second Degree by which the initiated brother is passed onwards to a new stage of Masonic culture. III. In former times there was no Third Degree, according to the best authorities. The Mason was considered to have arrived at the summit, and to be perfectly fitted for every duty, when he was admitted into Fellow Craft. He has become a proficient in the seven Liberal Arts and Sciences and well qualified to bear rule among his fellows. There is a third stage, however, in human life to which a man is brought—it is a period during which vigour of mind and body is waning, and solemn thoughts of a future are engendered—a man is led to anticipate the time when he must relinquish active duties, and more seriously than ever contemplate death, and a rising again into a new and perfect life. The ties of kindred and friendship are loosened, and one after another broken, but across the dark grave a heavenly ray beckons him forward with its cheering light. No true Mason regrets the existence of a Third Degree which symbolizes and enforces these solemn truths. I beg to thank you for having so patiently listened to these remarks. With the Prince of Wales, whose name you have chosen, at the head of English Masonry, it cannot fail but that your new lodge will be in the near and far future a powerful instrument for advancing loyalty to the throne, peace and good will among men, and a means for promoting your own welfare and dispensing comfort and support to the necessitous and the orphan. Our heartiest wishes are for the prosperity of the Albert Edward Lodge and that it may take an honoured place among those which are renowned in the Province of West Yorkshire for deeds of benevolence and charity. If I add that the sincere hope of the Provincial Grand Master and his esteemed Deputy is that it may prove a worthy and friendly rival of the good old parent lodges of this town, I am certain that I am not exceeding my duty.

Unitum in Verbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

Bro. W. J. Hughan has noticed very favourably, from time to time, my compilation of some of the old records of the Craft. The old records at present appearing in the pages of the Scottish Freemason are not of Haughtfoot Lodge but of the old Lodge of Peebles, which date from 1716, when a number of Masons, operative and speculative, resident there, formed themselves into a lodge or society. These seemed all to have their "marks," but no degrees other than Apprentice and Fellowcraft. The title "Master Mason" is first used in 1725, but seems only to have been given to the presiding officer. The marks were taken by both Apprentices and Fellowcrafts, for which they paid a certain fee.

ROBERT SANDERSON.

The Worshipful Company of Saddlers have given a donation of £10 in aid of the funds of the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum.

ERRATUM.—In our report of the Grand Masters' Council of Royal and Select Masters, Bro. Charles Chandos Pole was erroneously described as Elias Chandos Pole.

The Duchess of Edinburgh has sent a donation of £5 to the Leicester-square Soup kitchen and Refuge.

We have received from Bro. Henry Browne a contribution of half-a-guinea in reply to the appeal for funds to provide 500 Christmas dinners to poor boys and girls attending the Mission Schools in Hackney.

An interesting article on "Freemasonry in 1878" appeared in the Touchstone of Dec. 21st.

Owing to the early period at which we went to press, namely, Tuesday night, several important reports and communications are omitted until our next.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR, DIARY, AND POCKET-BOOK. (George Kenning, 198, Fleet-street.)—This is a compact and serviceable pocket-book and directory, and one especially valuable to travellers. We happened to be at Carthage, in Spain, last year, and, turning to p. 231, find in that remote European point, opposite Oran, in Africa, the proper reference to the brethren of the Craft, to whom we are indebted for a reception that proved we were no "strangers," but brothers. The work is truly of cosmopolitan value, and, small as may be the number of our travelling impedimenta in future, this pocket-book will find a place amongst them—a hint that will, we trust, be taken by other members of the Craft at home and abroad.—Farmer, Dec. 9th, 1878.

UNITED MASONIC BALL.—The Stewards of the Fourth Annual Finsbury Park Lodge Ball, which was held on January 22nd, 1878, at Myddelton Hall, have much pleasure in announcing to the brethren and their friends, that they have on this occasion, in conjunction with the Crusaders Lodge, No. 1677, and the New Finsbury Park Lodge, No. 1695, decided to hold the ball at the Freemasons' Tavern, on January 22nd, 1879, under the title of the "United Masonic Ball." The services of Dan Godfrey's celebrated band have been secured.

The Freemason Card Almanack for 1879; with portraits of the Grand Masters of England, Ireland, and Scotland, is now ready, and may be obtained on application at the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London. Post free 2d.

In sending a donation of £200 from the Queen to the Bishop of London, as president of the Metropolitan Visiting and Relief Association, General Ponsonby, writes:—"The Queen, notwithstanding the deep sorrow which has fallen upon her, has noticed your appeal in behalf of the suffering poor of London, and has commanded me to send the enclosed cheque, as her Majesty's contribution for alleviating distress in the metropolis."

LADY CATHERINE WHYTE-MELVILLE, mother of Major Whyte-Melville, who was recently killed by accident whilst hunting, died last Monday morning in Scotland.

The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh and children, attended by Miss Corry and Captain Clarke, left Clarence House, St. James's, for Eastwell Park, Kent, on Saturday afternoon. It is the intention of their Royal Highnesses to pass several weeks in retirement at their country seat.

We feel sure that the large number of well-wishers of Bro. Paul Storr, who so recently fought a good fight for the Masonic Girls' School Secretaryship, will rejoice to hear that he has been selected out of 102 candidates to fill the Clerkship and Collectorship of Billingsgate Market, a post, we understand, of £300 a year.

District Commissary General H. L. Brownrigg has received sudden orders to proceed immediately to the Cape of Good Hope, to take charge of the transports in the new expedition against the insurgent natives.

The will and codicil of Bro. James Johnstone, the proprietor of the Standard, who died on the 21st of October last, has just been proved by Mr. Mudford and the two other trustees and executors, the personality being sworn under £500,000. The testator bequeaths the sum of £10,000 to his son by his first wife, and legacies of £3000 to each of his daughters by that marriage. An annuity of £2000 per annum is left to his widow, and all his plate, linen, household furniture, wine, &c.; legacies of £300 each to two of his servants, and of £500 to each of his executors. There are one or two other trifling legacies. The testator directs that, with the exception of the above bequests, the whole of his real and personal property, including the goodwill and property of the Standard newspaper, shall be held in trust for the benefit of his five children by his second wife. The executors have power to carry on his estate at Hooley for one year from the date of his death, for the benefit of his widow and children. By a codicil to the will the testator directs that Mr. Mudford is to remain as editor of the Standard for his lifetime, or until such time as he shall voluntarily resign the editorship; and further directs that the paper is to be carried on in every respect as it was being carried on at the time of his death.—City Press.

We understand that his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, K.G., is about to be promoted to the rank of rear-admiral.

The City Press is pleased to hear that the name of Bro. Sheriff Burt has been placed upon the Commission of the Peace for his native county of Dorset. The sheriff will be sworn in at Dorchester on the 31st inst.

CHRISTMAS, 1878.

Christmas is here once more to greet us on our way, and his must be a very churlish or morose disposition which does not unbind a little, thaw a little, so to say, amid the genial scenes and pleasant associations of Christmas-tide. It is true that Christmas does not come to us all, or greet us all alike. Christmas has not and cannot have the same voice of cheerful sympathy and festive pleasantness for the destitute, for the desolate, for the trouble-stricken, for the bereaved, for those on whom adverse circumstances or darker hours have laid a heavy and chastening hand. To many, no doubt, this Christmas of 1878 can bring nothing but sad memories and mournful associations. For them its carols and its chants, its services and its anthems, its reunions of gladness, and its bright and glowing scenes can have no attraction. Their thoughts and hearts are elsewhere, and tell of sorrow and are pressed down by care. We fear that Christmas to them will bring but dreary reminiscences instead of joyous fellowship, overwhelming anxieties instead of merry forgetfulness. And, therefore, in our estimate of Christmas we must not overlook these possibilities and these contingencies, or else our view of the matter will be partial, onesided, incorrect, and incomplete. Still Christmas has a charm for most of us, old and young, even the most busy, encumbered, unsentimental, and absorbed of our race. For Christmas has a two-fold aspect, past and present, which seems to have a reflex action, in its double capacity, on us all alike. It takes us back to a serener past, it lightens up the gloomy present, it links us on to those who are passed away and gone from us, and carries us even to-day in all its glittering association and sustaining companionship to other days, and other Christmases, in the long dim vista of the unforgotten and unforgettable past. Amid gay gatherings and cheery congregations, to-day, amid these laughing fairies, and merry lads, who surround with their innocent and irresistible mirth the Christmas tree in airy and fantastic bowers, the mind perforce looks over their heads, to other dear fairies, and other blithe boys, some laying in their graves, or bowed down old men, suffering old women, who once were our own dear "fairies" and "our own gallant boys" in the days of "Auld Lang Syne." And in this sense Christmas is a good season for us all, it unlocks the memory, touches the heart, kindles up the fire of old affection, and making us young again, for the nonce, awakens in us a sympathy for others, and expands our feelings until they become more real, living, and human. At least, Christmas ought to do so, is meant to do so, and is not Christmas properly to us unless it does so. If we only spend it in noisy excitement, or hurtful "wassail," if we care for nothing but its worldly side, if we make it merely "of the earth, earthy," perhaps very, very earthy indeed, then Christmas does us more harm than good: its rest has no benefit for us, its aggregation no charm, it degenerates into the licence of childish saturnalia, or the more sensuous licence of hurtful prodigality and luxury. Far from us, as Masons, be any such unworthy or derogatory view of this good old Christmas season. While it reminds us of the past never to return, let it serve to moderate the mere earthliness of amusement while it lightens up the present with its lawful enjoyment of good things. The Freemason begs once more to tender to all its readers, and to all true and loyal Freemasons "all the world over," its sincere wishes for a very happy Christmas Day. Though they will read these lines after their Christmas feast is over, (let us hope with no regretful memories or effects,) they still will perhaps accept them in right brotherly good feelings, as an evidence, however weak, of the sincere good feeling which animates Publisher and Editor in these heartfelt aspirations,—that all and every happiness may be theirs, alike in 1878 and in 1879, for themselves and their families, one and all.

THE END OF 1878.

When we greet and meet our many good readers again, old Seventy-eight will have been gathered to its fathers, and young Seventy-nine will confront us in the way. It is, however, impossible, we think, to leave an old, or welcome a new year, without some little sentiment—a few serious thoughts. When we take leave of old friends for ever, whom time has endeared and affection has rendered precious to us, we do not always feel quite sure that the new friends we make will either supply their places or satisfy our hearts. And so it is with that passage of Time, which is marked by the flight of an old, the advent of a new year. The past is leaving us, the untried and unknown future is before us, and we can none of us forecast or forereckon what Seventy-nine, another twelve months, will bring to us and ours. What 1878 has been 1879 may not be, or vice versa; and the reflexion that each milestone we reach on our journey tells us of another space traversed, of another term achieved, and that, ere twelve-months have come round we, too, may have reached our earthly resting place and finished our journey, is alike momentous and sobering for each mortal brother and sister of the dust. As then we leave our old year, as we reach the end of 1878, we think it well, while we wish our readers, one and all, "A Happy New Year," to remind them, that just as in Masonry, so in life, the rapid whirling away of time has a message for us all. We must not merely commemorate the end of the old, the commencement of the new year, in gay excess or unreasonable merriment, (as too many do), but we must allow some seasonable and solemn, (yes, we repeat solemn), considerations to control our minds and animate our aspirations. We leave 1878 most prosperously, as far as Freemasonry is concerned, but as patriots and Englishmen we close the page which tells us of the annals of 1878 with a sigh and a tear. A whole nation is mourning, (most impressive sight), the beloved daughter of our Queen, and who by her own life and actions has graced the diadem and exalted her own royal lineage. As Lord Beaconsfield has said, "No more pathetic incident marks the many episodes of this world, and this 'Romance' of contemporary history, may and will leave a lasting impression on all thoughtful persons. The loving daughter, the faithful wife, the devoted mother, the tender nurse, drew in the seeds of death while soothing with her maternal caress the grief of one of her children." It is an incident of which few can hear unmoved, it is a glorious trait in the life and death of one of the noblest and best of women. And so we end 1878 in sorrow, trusting that T.G.A.O.T.U. may send consolation to the mourners and peace to the survivors. We must all be anxious for our gallant soldiers, fighting so bravely and doing their duty so well abroad; we cannot shut our eyes to the drawbacks on prosperity and distresses of trade at home. But yet let us hope that the worst is over, and that 1879 may witness a revival of legitimate commerce and renewed confidence in all classes of the mercantile community, as well as a relief of suffering and distress. And, for ourselves, may the passage of time remind us alike of our duties and our responsibilities, what we have to do, and what we have not to do. 1879, which, let us hope, will dawn on all our readers in peace and happiness, may bring much in its, as yet to us, mysterious hours, of joy or sorrow, health and sickness, prosperity or adversity. And who of us are destined to see 1880? Ah! who can say?

COMPENSATIONS.

Those early Masters of our Craft, to whom were revealed some of the hidden mysteries of science, and by whom the learning of geometry has to us been handed down—Euclid and Pythagoras—well knew that to every guonon of a square there must be its complements.

To those who carry on these mathematical studies until they can read the stories of other and distant worlds there stands confessed the aw that, in order that the balance of the spheres may be maintained by the Great Geometrician of the Universe, there is fixed to every force its counterpoise.

To the students of the hidden mysteries of nature it is patent that the Supreme Creator keeps intact the law of being, by means of operations which make its various parts act and re-act upon each other.

To ourselves the great principle of counter-balance is an acknowledged fact. Does one part of our bodies become by accident or disease inert, is not another ready to supply its place? Does one sense become lost, is not its functions more or less perfectly supplied by a correspondingly increased capacity in another?

No less, then, to the observers of the inner life of mankind, especially when they read their lessons by the Light of the Volume of the Sacred Law, is it apparent that the Universal Father rules everything by the law of Compensations.

"Man is born to trouble, as the sparks fly upward," said Job; and the end of his troubles fully bore out his "patient waiting upon God." He knew, and, therefore, we too may know, that God never afflicts in vain, and, just "as with the temptation he makes the way of escape," so does he transform "the thorn in the flesh" into a ready means of glorifying Him by patient endurance, and turn the earthly crown of thorns into the heavenly crown of glory.

If, then, the Great Teacher's words—"Thou in thy lifetime hadst thy good things and Lazarus his evil things, now he is comforted and thou art tormented"—be true with regard to the future, no less do we find, if we only carefully look for them, abundant evidence of Compensations in the present.

My neighbour is blessed with wordly wealth, but has not the health to enjoy it, or has those he best loves sick and ailing, or even removed from his side. I, who have to struggle for my daily bread, have perfect health wherewith to do it, and enjoy it when done, and see, besides, "My faithful vine on the walls of my house" fully flourishing in health, and, besides, have in "The olive-branches round about my table," an ever present picture of happiness and delight.

So, too, whilst in Lodge, to-day, though I may gaze sorrowfully on many an empty chair, and may seek in vain for the forms and faces of old familiar friends, I have my Compensation in the thought that they are sitting in the Grand Lodge above—a far brighter and happier spot than any lodge of earth, however good and true its working, however bright and happy its refreshment-times. They are passed from earth, but I shall find those dear faces every one again in Heaven.

Yet once again,

Does the grim Tyler—Death—knock at the door of my heart with the report that the Grand Master calls me hence from my period of earthly labour, I know that it is but His gracious summons to His heavenly rest, and I am afraid that for all the faithful work, well and truly done, in His lower Lodge of ours to-day, I shall, when the Grand Lodge is called again from rest to active labour, have, in the satisfied recognition of the Grand Master that I love and revere, for every trouble peace, and for all apparent earthly shortcomings Heavenly

COMPENSATIONS.

The Christmas number of the "Masonic Magazine," contains a new and original story by Anthony Trollope, entitled "Catherine Carmichael; or Three Years Running." It is in Mr. Trollope's best style, and people do not need to be told what that is. Have they the slightest doubt of the correctness of our judgment? Then let them read it, and the doubt will be dispelled almost before they have got to the bottom of the first page. The rest of the contents, both Masonic and otherwise, are highly interesting. Indeed, it is an excellent number, and is creditable alike to the writers who have contributed the different articles, and to Bro. Kenning for his enterprise in publishing it.—Touchstone, Dec., 28th.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Sores, Wounds, and Ulcers.—Every variety of sore—ulcer, eruption, boil, and carbuncle—is safely stopped in its destructive course by the timely application of this healing ointment. It arrests unhealthy and substitutes healthy action, thus relieving the inflamed diseases affecting the skin. Holloway's Ointment has gained an imperishable fame for its facility in healing old inflammatory sores about the shins and ankles, and for bad legs and old wounds, it cannot be equalled; nor is it less efficacious in gathered breasts and abscesses. When the complaint has been of long continuance, Holloway's Pills will expedite recovery if taken in those doses which act as alteratives on the stomach, and tonic on the constitution.—ADVT.

THE LATE PRINCESS ALICE.

The following appropriate Latin verses were recited at the Speech Day of the Merchant Taylor's School, Tuesday, December 17th, 1878, and have been specially translated for the Freemason, and so we think it well to find a place for them in our otherwise crowded columns, making a special exception for the poetry:—

"Credite, non illam sanguis generosus honestam
"Reddidi, aut titulis nobilitata domus;
"Non decus egregium formæ, sed vivida virtus,
"Et pietas, et amor prodigus usque sui,
"Hoc est femine princeps diadema coronæ,
"Innocui mores, crimine vita carens.
"Illa patris cari pressit morientis ocellos,
"Cum rapuit patriæ Mors inopina Ducem.
"Hæc eadem officio viduæ solatia matri
"Attulit, et curæ triste levavit onus;
"Morsque ubi ponē, gravi percussus febre, dolent
"Abstulerat patriæ Semque Decusque suum,
"Illa soror fratrem fovit, bene læta laboris.
"Nescio an arte valens an pietate magis."

Believe it not, that noblest best descent,
Or the good race from which she drew her life,
Or pleasant grace and form alone were hers;
But virtue fraught with goodness prodigal of self.
This, the bright diadem of her gentle crown,
Enshrined amidst her loving purity.
For she it was who closed a father's eyes,
When Death so prematurely took our Prince away,
She was the solace of the widow's mother,
And soothed each care and bade each sorrow cease.
And when in after hours, close unto death,
We all but lost our country's pride and hope,
Again the sister stood by the brother's side
In loving ministrations ever prompt.
Ah! difficult it is to say, as now we seek to praise,
Whether her skill or goodness won the day.

THE GRAND ORIENT OF THE NETHERLANDS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the article on French Freemasonry in your issue of the 12th ult., which arrived by yesterday's mail, you state: "In our humble opinion the French Grand Orient, by its successive acts of folly and perversity, has, if we may so say 'unmanned' itself, and has made a 'tabular rasa,' or a clean 'sweep' of all the ancient and sacred teachings of cosmopolitan Freemasonry." Upon reading this article it struck me that the Grand Lodge of England has not yet allowed her voice to be heard regarding the contemplated change which is likely to take place in the Grand East of the Netherlands.

The Lodge Peace and Harmony, at Du Toit's Pan, working under a warrant from the G.E. of the Netherlands, has received from the Prov. Grand Lodge in Cape Town, a printed copy of Revised Rituals for the Symbolic Degrees, and upon which opinion is requested before the end of the present month. (Rituals having been sent from Holland for that purpose). As I have not yet seen anything in the Freemason regarding this change (contemplated), I think it proper to inform you that the Revised Rituals make a "clean sweep" of the Holy Bible and Immortality of the Soul, and should the Grand East of the Netherlands adopt them, she must prepare to sever herself from all Masonic bodies who recognize and acknowledge the Holy Bible to be the first great light of Masonry.

The G.E. of the Netherlands is not ignorant of the fate of the French Grand Orient, and, notwithstanding, the warning appears to be disregarded.

A meeting of the B.B. of the Peace and Harmony is called for Wednesday next, to consider the proposed alterations in the Rituals of the Three Degrees, and as the majority of the members are also members of English and Scotch lodges, the result may be easily anticipated.

If this change is already known to the Hon. R. Giddy, District Grand Master of Griqualand, West, I trust he will not allow it to pass unnoticed.

What has the Freemason to say to the B.B. in the Netherlands, or is this Atheistical mania clothed in the garb of "morale independante," not known to exist in the Netherlands?

Yours, fraternally,

Nov. 19, 1878.

P.M., P.M.W.S., D.C.

A QUESTION OF RITUAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

May I be permitted to ask you if a W.M. elect can be installed by deputy.

Yours faithfully,

[Certainly not.—ED.]

MARK MASONRY.—We understand that the Right Honourable Lord Skelmersdale, the M.W. Grand Mark Master Mason, has directed patents of appointment to be prepared in favour of Bro. Montague Guest, Bere Regis, Blandford, in the county of Dorset, as Provincial Grand Master of Dorsetshire, and of Bro. the Rev. C. R. Davy, Tracy Park, Bath, as Provincial Grand Master of Gloucestershire. These are two new provinces in the Mark Degree.

CONSECRATION OF THE KENNINGTON CHAPTER, No. 1381.

A new chapter attached to the Kennington Lodge, No. 1381, was consecrated on the 19th inst., at the Surrey County Club House, Kennington Oval, by Comp. James Terry, P.Z. 228, Prov. G.D.C. Herts. The companions present on the occasion were Comps. G. Everett, E. F. Page, W. Mann, T. C. Walls, H. Speedy, W. H. Webb, James Ambrose, J. Newton, P.Z. 174 and 975; F. Frampton, P.Z. 749; H. C. Levander, P.Z. 142; W. J. Ferguson, J. 1056; Edward White, S.E. 1305; J. W. F. Cox, 619; John De Vulder, J. Terry, P.Z. 228, 174; J. H. R. Walters, 975; F. W. Koch, P.Z. 820; C. W. Noehmer, P.Z. 186 and 1056; G. T. Carter, F. H. Cozens, 1216; T. Lawler, 92; Charles B. Payne, Grand Janitor; J. Large (Windsor Castle); A. W. Femier, 228; G. R. Downie, 177; and H. Massey, P.Z. 619, (Freemason). Comp. Terry acted as M.E.Z., Comp. H. C. Levander, as H., and Comp. John Newton, as J.

Comp. Terry, after the opening of the chapter, delivered an oration on Royal Arch Freemasonry, proceeding with the usual routine ceremony, which was musically accompanied by Comps. G. T. Carter, F. Cozens, T. Lawler, and J. Large. The ceremony was beautifully performed, and the launching of the new chapter was effected with the greatest success. All the furniture, which was of the best description, was quite new, and presented a very imposing aspect. When the chapter had been formally dedicated, Comp. Terry installed Comp. George Everett in the three chairs, and then installed Comp. E. J. Page as H., and Comp. W. Mann, as J. The companions appointed to office were Comps. T. C. Walls, P.S.; H. Speedy, 1st A.S.; W. H. Webb, 2nd A.S.; and J. Daly, Janitor. A vote of thanks was afterwards passed to Comps. Terry, Levander, and Newton, for consecrating the chapter, and these three companions were elected honorary members of the chapter. Comp. Terry acknowledged the compliment, and then Comp. Mann read a long list of propositions for exaltation and joining.

The chapter was then closed, and the brethren passed to the banqueting room.

In proposing the toast of "The Queen and Royal Arch Masonry," Comp. Everett said, that at the present moment when Her Majesty's cup of sorrow was so full, the companions would most heartily sympathise with her. The loss of a daughter so beloved by every one must have been a great trial to the Queen, under whose beneficent sway Englishmen had the happiness to live, and under whom England enjoyed greater liberties than any other country.

In proposing the toast of "The M.E., the G.Z., the Prince of Wales," Comp. Everett made similar observations on the death of the Princess Alice, and said it must have been a sore affliction for him when he saw her consigned to her last home. "Lord Carnarvon, Pro G.Z., Lord Skelmersdale, H., and Lord De Tabley, J.," was the next toast, after which Comp. James Terry proposed "The M.E.Z." It had been his good fortune, he said, to know Comp. Everett for many years. They had worked together in the same chapter for some eleven or twelve years. The position he now occupied he could well have filled before, but he had reserved that for the Kennington Chapter. He would discharge his duties most thoroughly and efficiently, as he had done in the Craft. He had given a sample that evening, of what he could do by ably proposing some of the toasts; but there was another phase of his character which would commend itself to the companions and that was his thorough single-mindedness and genuineness. He (Comp. Terry) knew of no one better qualified to preside over a lodge or chapter in its first year, as he was able to consolidate and bring together in an harmonious whole the constituent parts of it. In the ensuing year Comp. Everett would ingratiate himself in the hearts and affections of the companions and make this chapter a great success. He would try his hardest, and if a companion did that he was bound to succeed, even beyond his most sanguine expectations. Comp. Everett very briefly replied, and wished he could feel he deserved half the kind things which Comp. Terry had said of him. It should be his study in the future to do all things and everything that lay in his power to deserve what had been said.

Comp. Everett next proposed "The Consecrating Officer."

Comp. Terry, in replying, said he never experienced greater pleasure than when he was asked to come and consecrate this chapter. He was very much pleased that his performance of the ceremonies had met with the satisfaction of the companions. He trusted that the chapter would go on and prosper, and that it would be a very bright career. This he was sure was the wish of every companion present, and he hoped that they would pay attention to some observations he had addressed to them that evening, and look more to the quality than the quantity of brethren whom they exalted, for this grand and important reason—that there was a desire on the part of many to advance Masons even beyond their deserts; but he was confident of this, that the M.E.Z. and the officers of the Kennington Chapter would take especial care that only those who were worthy to receive the Royal Arch-Degree should have the opportunity of taking it in this chapter. If they were to give all those glorious ceremonies to those who did not comprehend their meaning they would be rendering Royal Arch Masonry a laughing-stock and stumbling stone. The ceremonies of the Degree were most sublime, and the more one comprehended them and studied them the greater were their beauties. He was certain that no one could take the degree without being struck with its beauty. There was one great attribute it inculcated—the attribute of mercy—that was the great principle throughout the whole of it; and he trusted it would ever be considered so in the minds of those who had the honour to take the degree. He hoped it would make them more kind, more charitable, better disposed to one another, than even Craft Masonry taught them to be; and if that was done it was something for them to say they had arrived at the summum bonum of Masonry. It had been said, in the course of the evening, that as an honorary member of the chapter it would give the brethren pleasure to see him among them whenever he could spare the time, and in answer to that kind invitation he would say that he should feel much pleasure in attending. Comp. Everett then gave the toast of "The Visitors," to which Comp. Levander, in his reply, observed that in addition to the pride he felt at being a visitor he felt highly honoured by being elected an honorary member of the chapter. It had been a source of much gratification to him to see the chapter started on its career under such happy auspices. He had no doubt the chapter would succeed, and he hoped that it would increase and flourish, be an ornament to the Craft and useful to the Fraternity. Comp. Ferguson also replied, and referred to his long connection with the M.E.Z., in other lodges and chapters. He reiterated the opinions of Comp. Levander, and believed that the Kennington Chapter was destined to take a foremost rank in the list of chapters under the English Constitution. Comp. E. J. Page, replying to the toast of "H," would like to have said more than time permitted at present, but he would remark that as long as Comps. Everett and Mann worked together with him and the other officers of the chapter in the same way as in the lodge, he could prognosticate a great future for the chapter. Comp. W. Mann endorsed the observations of Comp. Page, and added that knowing the success of the Kennington Lodge a few companions thought it would not be perfect unless it had a chapter attached to it. It was with this idea that the Kennington Chapter was started. The companions selected to preside over it for the first year had been carefully chosen, and they would all do their best to usher in a season of usefulness for the Order which they might contemplate hereafter with pride and satisfaction. Comp. Everett then proposed "The Masonic Charities." Loyalty and Charity being the watchwords of the Order he did not think the companions ought to separate without remembering the Charities. A representative of one of those Charities, Comp. Terry, was present. The companions knew very well all about those Institutions, and the good work they were doing, so that it was unnecessary to say more about them.

Comp. Terry, in reply, said that the Masonic Charities were the backbone of Freemasonry. Without the Institutions he did not know where Freemasonry would be. Freemasons might be able to say they were a benevolent order, a philanthropic institution, doing this or that good, but unless they had their own Girls' School, Boys' School, and Benevolent Institution, they would not be able to show the good they were doing. The Institutions had done an enormous amount of good during years gone by. At the present time the Girls' School maintained, clothed and educated 200 girls, the Boys' School 210 boys, and the Benevolent Institution had 300 annuitants. Each and all were, therefore, doing good work; but like all other institutions they could not get on without money. In a song which had just been sung it was said, "I never feel my heart so good as when drinking, drinking, drinking;" but as Secretary to the Benevolent Institution he never felt his heart so good as when the brethren were giving, giving, giving. It was a grand thing for the companions to give. It was a grand thing for the Institution to receive; it was also a grand thing for the Craft to know that in giving they were alleviating suffering, and it was a grand thing for those who had the disposal of the funds to be able to show those who contributed the good that was done by their gifts. It was a grand thing to have it in one's power to give; it was a grand thing also to know that the brethren had hearts to give. It was a grand thing for the Institutions to know that if there was a case of necessity that needed aid, funds would be forthcoming, and it was a grand thing for those who distributed the money to be able to tell the contributors of the gratitude of the recipients of those funds. In all the Institutions there were peculiar claims on everyone's sympathies—some always supported the girls, and naturally so, they were the weaker portion of humanity—the Girls' School was the oldest of the Institutions, and one that must always commend itself to a Freemason's heart. It was the most attractive of all the Institutions. Go down to Wandsworth Common, and they would see and be surprised at the good that was done there. Go to the Boys' School, at Wood Green, and there was something more to commend itself than at Croydon. But, after all, age had its beauty as well as youth. We like to look on youth budding forth in the Spring time of life; but, after all, there was something very glorious in what was seen in Autumn. Look at the splendour of the setting sun; so it was in the ending of a virtuous life. Then why should not support be extended to the old men and old women to make them happy and comfortable? It was a great privilege for Freemasons to contribute to the welfare and support of declining life. It had been his privilege for fifteen years to speak on behalf of the old folks, and he trusted that for fifteen years more he might do so, and that this Institution would secure a strong hold of the hearts of Freemasons. Ninety-one years ago, the Girls' School was established; eighty-one years ago the Boys' School was founded; and it was not until both of them had a firm hold on the Craft that the Masons bestirred themselves and asked their brethren to start an Institution to support the aged. If they had started their own first the brethren would have looked upon them as a selfish lot, but it was not so: the girls and boys were first looked after, and right royally did the Craft afterwards establish the Benevolent Institution. They had done their very best for it, and he hoped and wished they would never relax in their efforts on its behalf. There was a peculiar pleasure in responding to this toast at the Consecration of the Kennington Chapter, because the Principal Sojourner, Comp. Walls, was Steward of the Kennington Lodge at the next festival of the aged Institution. If any of the companions had a stray £5 note in his pocket that he did not know what to do with, he (Comp. Terry) would recommend him to give it to Comp. Walls to put on his list. He would also recommend the same course to companions who had any superfluous cash. If they cast their bread upon the waters they should find it after many days. Give £5 this year, and they would get £50 next year. The largest donor to the Institutions religiously set aside one-tenth of his income to charities. On the last day of the old year he made up his books and struck a balance. If he found that he had not given a tenth he gave away, in the next three or four days, the remainder of the tenth to the Masonic Institutions in addition to what he had given before. Comp. Terry thought that if other companions would do the same thing it would be a noble achievement. He advised every Mason to give five shillings a year to each Institution, and added that if they did the Institutions would never require a festival or an election, as they would be able to meet every demand made upon them.

The remainder of the toasts were then given before the companions adjourned.

A beautiful selection of music was given by Comps. Lawler, Canter, Cozens and Large, in the intervals between the toasts.

The installation meeting of the Crichton Lodge, No. 1641, was held on Saturday last. Bro. Andrew Middlemas in a very able and skilful manner installed Bro. Thomas Griffiths, into the chair of K.S. A full report of the proceedings is in type and will appear in our next.

The Seventh Annual Masonic Ball in aid of the Masonic Charities, will be held in the Town Hall, Barrow-in-Furness, on Thursday week, January 9th. The ball to which the public will be admitted, is under distinguished patronage, the names of the brethren including those of the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, and the Marquis of Hartington, M.P.

The death is announced, on Tuesday, of Mr. and Mrs. John Kent, aged respectively 79 and 80, father and mother of Bro. F. Kent, solicitor.

The customary present of venison has been forwarded from her Majesty the Queen to the Lord Mayor, Bro. Sheriff Burt, Bro. Sheriff Bevan, the Recorder, the Chamberlain, the Town Clerk, the Common Serjeant, and the R.-membrancer.

The brethren of the Province of Canterbury have presented Bro. John R. Hall, P.M., and Hon. Sec., to the United Industrious Lodge, No. 31, with a very handsome gold Past Master's jewel on which is engraved the following:—"Presented by the Freemasons of Canterbury to Bro. Hall, P.M. 31, in appreciation of his services as Hon. Secretary to the Reception Committee, P.G.L. 1878."
